The poor people of our county who need a job to make money with which to buy the bare necessities of life, are not able to gather political influence in support of their needs. They must depend upon the people who are able and willing to help them and who are in sympathy with their distressed condition. We are glad our probate judge and commissioners have shown that they are willing to answer the cry of the needy, regardless of politics and personal interests.

We are proud of Chilton County and the record our county has made. We are proud of the fact that our county rates financially among the best in the state of Alabama. We commend our commissioners for their policy in the past of spending the county's money with the people of the county when possible.

We regret that some persons who want to be candidates for county office in the future have tried to put politics into the road work of our county. We say that politics does not belong in our road business, and if continued, as some are seeking to do, it will result in a serious injury to the splendid road system which has already been made possible by the sound and constructive action of our road officials.

We urge our Commissioners to stand fast by their duties to the people of this county. We hope they will not be misled by the strange political disturbances that may arise. If our officials will discharge their duties in the future as faithfully and efficiently as they have in the past, and at this time accomplish their plans of bringing relief to the suffering, we believe such a stand will receive the commendation of the great body of Chilton County citizens who want to see our road business kept out of politics.

We urge our Probate Judge and Commissioners to make immediate application through the Governor of Alabama, for such aid as may be secured for our county through the relief appropriation bill which was recently enacted by the Congress and signed by President Hoover.

We recommend that a committee composed of Mr. T. J. Littlejohn, Mr. M. A. Gore, Dr. N. S. Johnson, and Mr. W. M. Wyatt be appointed to serve with the Probate Judge and Commissioners to take up with the Governor of Alabama the matter of securing relief for the people of our county through the Federal Emergency Appropriation bill.

It is announced that there will be plenty of barbecue and fried fish. Addresses will be made by a number of preachers who will be in attendance. Music will be furnished by a string band, and no doubt there will be some old time singing.

Such amusements as swimming and boating will be available all day to those who desire to participate.

COMMISSIONERS ATTEND A MEETING IN BIRMINGHAM

Judge Reynolds, together with Commissioners Cobb, Vinson, Burnett and Mims, went to Birmingham Wednesday morning where they will attend a three-days session of the State Association of County Commissioners. They will return Friday afternoon.

Judge Reynolds is slated to make a speech before the association on the subject of the counties paying to the state the tax on gasoline the same as individuals have to pay. Heretofore counties have been exempt from paying this tax, but an agitation has been started which claims that they should pay it. Several other matters concerning county affairs as handled by the boards of commissioners will be discussed at this meeting.

ECONOMY LEAGUE HEAD WAS HERE

Local Organization Started, and Will Cooperate With State Movement

Mr. W. C. Davis of Jasper was in Clanton Monday and spoke to a small crowd of citizens in the Probate Judge's office. He gave some figures and data concerning taxation and the cost of state, county and municipal government in Alabama. Following these remarks by Mr. Davis, a local organization was set up to affiliate with the Economy League of Alabama. The purpose of the association is to secure "Economy in government — national, state, county, and municipal," and holds that this is "The only hope of permanent relief from excessive taxation.."

The organization is to be statewide with an independent unit in each county, such county organizations, at all times, to keep in touch with the state chairman, which post is held by Mr. Davis.

A temporary chairman was chosen for Chilton County, and Mr. C. Fenn Jones was named for this place. In a few chosen remarks Mr. Jones expressed his hearty sympathy with the movement and agreed to accept the temporary chairmanship. Some time in the near future Mr. Jones will name an executive committee of five or seven members to help him handle the work in the county. It is the ultimate intention to carry the work into every Beat in the county, the details of which will be worked out as the work progresses.

STAPP THANKS PEOPLE FOR COOPERATION IN PICNIC

Mr. Stapp asked us to express through the paper his appreciation for the splendid cooperation on the part of organizations and individuals in helping make the county-wide picnic last Friday a success.

It is estimated that more than 2,500 people attended the picnic. Many people say that the county-wide picnic was the best meeting of this nature they have ever attended. It was voted to make it an annual affair.

Mr. Stapp states that the Kiwanis Club, the Pilot Club and numerous individuals cooperated in every way to make the day a success, especially does he wish to call attention to the cooperation of the new bakery in Clanton for their donation of the bread used at the barbecue stand.

BOY PREACHER WAS HERE

A boy preacher, 11 years old, by the name of Hall from Florida, passed through Clanton a few days ago and stopped off and preached at the courthouse. A full court room was there to hear him Sunday afternoon, and reports say that he did some fine preaching. His brother, younger than him, conducted the singing.

ALABAMA G. O. P. SELECTS TICKET

Economy and Prohibition Are Main Issues For Campaign In The State

A state ticket was selected by the Republican Executive Committee at its meeting Saturday at the Thomas Jefferson Hotel. Selection of congressional candidates will be left to executive committees of the districts.

Economy and prohibition were indicated as issues for the state campaign. O. D. Street, national committeeman, hit sharply at the Democratic repeal plank and declared the Democratic party is pinning its hopes on the wet cause. J. B. Weaver, probate judge of Winston County, urged ecenomy in government and a 33 1-3 per cent salary reduction of all public employes. Paul Parsons advised keeping alive the real issues and declared every man would have to work to insure party success.

Dr. J. C. Swann, of Mobile, chairman, presided, and was authorized to select the campaign committee.

J. T. Johnson, Oneonta, was nominated for United States Senate to oppose Senator Black; J. I. Abercrombie, Birmingham, and John A. Posey, Haleyville, for state Supreme Court justices; R. J. Hawkins, Fort Payne, for president of the State Public Service Commission.

The following presidential electors were named; J. M. Pennington, Jasper, and W. A. Clardy, Roanoke, from the state-at-large. S. B. Adams Mobile; Victor Hovis, Montgomery; C. R. Robers, Enterprise; C. W. McCay, Ashland; Arthur Fowler, Attalla; Percy M. Pitts, Clanton; Charles F. Lunsford, Hackleburg; Leon McCaleb, Huntsville, and Frank R. Lathrop, Birmingham.

Selection of these candidates was in the hands of the nominating committee composed of A. C. Birch, J. F. Brawner, J. B. Bowsey, C. R. Robinson, J. B. Isbell, J. F. Morton, J. T. Johnson, H. A. Caffey and J. I. Abercrombie.

ROAD TO CHILDRESS CEMETERY FINISHED

The citizens of Mt. Carmel community wish to announce that the road, greatly needed for many years is now finished and in shape for travel.

Uncle Jim Mims brought out the county machines and did a piece of work that no one else has ever done. This job of road work extends from the place of Filmore Childress, running south almost on land line to George Mims' place, where it intersects the Thorsby Maplesville link, passing by the Childress cemetery, and in this way anyone wishing to reach the cemetery may go in from two ways—north or south and have a good county road. Besides, it is hoped that a loop of the Thorsby mail route may be brought over this piece of road, thus accommodating a section of the county where little attention has been given.

The following citizens wish to go on record as appreciating this road and also thank Jim Mims and his efficient road crew for doing a fine piece of road work and at the same time helping in a place where it will certainly help taxpayers of this county and give people all over the county a way to get to the graves of their loved ones.

We wish also to thank Grover Bice postmaster at Thorsby, for his interest in developing the sections along the rural route from Thorsby and if this change is granted by the department it will touch and help more than twenty families, so we are informed. This kind of money spent here and elsewhere in the places where it is needed most will go a long way in causing our taxpayers to see the benefit derived, because they are paying the bills, and it will create a feeling that the county is their friend.—Respectfully yours, M. W. Mims, G. C. Mims, Hugh Davenport, Pink Whatley, Newton Foshee, Layton, Davenport, Filmore Childress.

NEGRO WOMAN KILLED NEAR MAPLESVILLE MONDAY NIGHT

Coroner J. Mell Martin was called to Maplesville early Tuesday morning to investigate the killing of a negro woman. The body of Mollie Jackson had been found on the side of the highway about a half mile east of Maplesville. The negro woman had been shot with a pistol, supposedly about 10 o'clock Monday night. Someone reported that they heard a pistal shot in that vicinity about that hour, and the condition of her body showed that she had been dead about that length of time.

Messrs. John L. Gore and W. G. J. Dorminey of Union Grove were in Clanton Wednesday morning.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

FARMERS WEEK AT AUBURN IS READY

Auburn, Ala., July 25.—The program has been published and preparations made for the 1932 farmers week at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. It will be only three days instead of a week. This change, according to Prof. L. N. Duncan, general chairman, will meet the wishes of the majority of those who attend.

The plan provides for addresses and indoor meetings in the forenoons and outside meetings, field trips, livestock judging and experiment station observations in the afternoons. Dean director M. J. Funchess, of the college of agriculture and experiment station, and his staff will be in charge of afternoon programs.

The initial session will be held on Wednesday morning, August 2. Women as well as men will be present. The Alabama Council of Home Demonstration clubs, of which Mrs. J. D. Giles of Selma is president, will hold their annual meeting at Auburn at that time, as will the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation, of which J. Litt Edwards of Selma is president.

The initial session of the Farm Bureau meeting will be held Wednesday morning, August 2. Following preliminaries, President Edwards will present his annual report as president of the state farm bureau. Edward A. O'Neal, former president of the Alabama Federation and now president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, will speak Wednesday morning.

"We have planned the program," said Prof. Duncan, "so as to give practical instruction and practical information and to enable our farmer guests to have plenty of time for seeing and studying experimental projects. Arrangements are being made at Auburn to accommodate all who attend."

Vienna Farms in Pickens County, supervised by C. P. Dougles, averaged 53½ bushels of corn per acre, and much of this due to hairy vetch. "I never expect to farm again without hairy vetch and Austrian peas," said Mr. Douglas.

C. W. Brantley of Monroeville, Monroe County, averaged 34 bushels of corn per acre in 1931 after Austrian winter peas. On adjoining land fertilizer with nitrate of soda at the rate of 100 pounds per acre the average was 23½ bushels per acre.

FARM PRICES WILL BE FIRST TO RISE

Auburn, Ala., July 25.—Farmers will benefit and reap their rewards when business begins to improve, according to J. D. Pope, head of the department of agriculture and economics at Auburn. They were the first to be hit and will be the first to profit.

Pope explained, however, that a violent decline in prices, such as has occurred in recent years, makes the whole situation chaotic for many years. He declared also that present farm prices are entirely out of line with the gross supply and that ultimately they must rise.

The reason farm prices are out of line, Pope said, is because of the economic law that when prices fall, producer's prices fall more violently than consumer's prices; and when prices rise, producer's prices rise more violently than consumer's prices. In the 3 years ending may, retail prices of food fell from an index figure of 177 to 111, or thirty-seven per cent; in the same time, prices paid to farmers for the same food materials fell form 152 to 64, or fifty-eight per cent.

If, by some means, the 1929 level of wholesale prices for all commodities were restored, farm prices would rise higher than they were in 1929, because some reduction in distribution charges has been made. Farm prices were as high as other wholesale prices from 1925 to 1929. Any rise in price level, he said, will result in a greater proportionate rise in farm prices.

This brings a bit of cheer to the farm picture and hope for farm people who have suffered greatly during the last decade, Pope said.

Winter and summer legumes, better seed and better cultivation have increased the average yield of corn in Dallas County by three bushels per acre, according to County Agent John Blake. If all farmers in the county had followed this improvement program as recommended by Mr. Blake the increase would have been much larger.

W. J. Spinks, of Thomasville, Clarke County, planted Austrian winter peas on 3 acres of his farm in 1930, using as fertilizer basic slag at the rate of 600 pounds per acre. In the spring of 1931 he plowed the peas under and made 210 bushels of corn, or 70 bushels per acre, on the three acres. In 1931 he planted 8 acres in Austrian peas.

FARMERS WANT DUNCAN, DECLARES MR. R. J. GOODE

The appointment of Mr. L. N. Duncan as temporary president of Auburn would meet with the practically unanimous and enthusiastic approval of the farmers of the state, declares Representative R. J. Goode, farmer and member of the State Board of Agriculture, in a letter addressd to the Board of Trustees of Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Speaking as a farmer and legislator, Mr. Goode declared that the primary purpose for which the institution was established is for the service which it may render to the farm people of the state and for that reason the farmer is more interested than anyone else in the kind of man who is named president.

Mr. Goode has released the following statement:

"I have just had an interview with Governor Miller in reference to the general situation at Auburn and the selection of a temporary president for the college. I have also mailed to each member of the Board of Trustees of Auburn a letter, setting out at length the attitude of the farmer toward the institution and as to the kind of man whom the farmer believes would properly direct the affairs of the institution to serve the purpose of the State's Agricultural college, for which the institution was intended.

"While it is realized and desired that the college should function as a well-rounded institution, we cannot escape the conclusion that the primary purpose for which the institution was established is for the services which it may render the farm people of the state and, for that reason, the farmer is more interested than anyone else in the kind of man who is in charge of its direction.

"By reason of his long association with the institution and his complete knowledge of all the intricacies and details of its administration, as well as his demonstrated ability and sympathetic interests in the problems of agriculture, no other man could come so nearly meeting all of the requirements as temporary head of the college as Dr. L. N. Duncan. His appointment as temporary head of the college would not only meet with the practically unanimous and enthusiastic approval of the farmers of the state, but would insure to the college the development of a well-rounded institution in all of its departments."

J. O. Thompson of Brent, Bibb County, is now making a bale of cotton per acre where he formerly made a bale on three acres; and 35 bushels of corn per acre where he formerly made 12 to 15 bushels per acre. The difference is due to Austrian Winter peas, Mr. Thompson said.

Thousands Find Health In Amazing Mineral Compound

New Scientific Formula Containing Essential Elements of Human Body, Combined with Necessary Vitamins, Brings Radiant Health to Many Who Had Given Up Hope of Ever Being Well Again.

People in All Walks of Life Tell of Its Powers. Many Declare Lee's Mineral Compound Has Brought Them Health, Strength and Vigor After Many Medicines Had Failed Completely.

You who are blue, downcast and depressed over your loss of health. You who have tried many medicines and treatments with little or no relief—take new heart and cheer! Prepare yourselves for the most joyous surprise of your lives.

Throw away your "patent" medicines, pills and drastic laxatives. Give Nature a chance! Feed your body with the essential Minerals and Vitamins that God intended you should have and see how quickly Nature asserts herself and charges your body with renewed health, strength and vitality.

BODY DEMANDS MINERALS

Medical Science has discovered that the human body is made up of a very limited number of essential elements. All of these are found in the Mineral kingdom and in foods in their natural state. To be exact, the healthy human body is composed of eleven Minerals and when these are present, in balanced proportion, we enjoy good health.

Unfortunately, few of us give any thought to balancing our diets, according to their Mineral content, and therefore we must pay the penalty. A deficiency of these elements brings on Indigestion, Gas, Bloating, Constipation, Headaches, Nervousness and a host of other ills. We soon lose strength, go from bad to worse and become disgusted with life itself.

NEW WAY TO HEALTH

For many long years, Physicians and Chemists have been trying to combine, in proper proportion, the eleven essential Minerals with necessary Vitamins. They realized that the preparation must be easily assimilated and supply the system with these elements so necessary to health.

Fortunately, for all mankind, this tremendous undertaking has met with success! Science has perfected a most remarkable formula, known as LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND. This preparation supplies the system with the eleven essential Minerals, in combination with Vitamins. It is not, in any sense of the word, a "patent" medicine but is more in the nature of a FOOD VITALIZER. It assists Nature, by restoring a proper balance of the Mineral Content of the body and good health follows as a natural result.

MAKE THIS 10 DAY TEST
Convince Yourself!

Stop dosing yourself with "patent medicines," harsh purgatives, oils and cathartics for just 10 days. Go to your nearest Druggist and secure a bottle of LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND. Take it regularly, and watch the results. You'll be amazed at the feeling of renewed strength and vigor that soon appears. No narcotics or alcohol to "boost you up" but a natural method of restoring health and energy.

LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND with Vitamins

Supplies the System with a Balanced Proportion of the 11 Essential Minerals Combined with Vitamins.

ALABAMA FARMERS HAVE MORE PIGS

Alabama has six per cent more pigs than last year, but farmers of the nation have 7 per cent less, reports F. W. Gist, statistician for the department of agriculture.

The total number of pigs in the state this year is 414,000 against 391,000 in 1930.

JONES WRITES FOR JACKSON

I see for commissioner, Mr. J. H. Jackson has asked for a term. As to good principles and honesty, you will certainly find him firm. For commissioner I believe he would be fine, for when he tells you anything, a little soft talk will not change his mind. To buy his honor, I do not believe money would make a start.

By good reason I think he is a Christian man at heart. In misfortune, he is always ready to help and give. This can be proved at Lomax, where he lives, by us who were in the storm. His duty, he certainly did perform. He would take his truck and haul, and would not accept pay. He showed that he was in sympathy with the people whose homes were blown away.

Mr. Jackson certainly is the man that has to labor, and in his community you cannot find a better neighbor. So dear people, when you meet at the polls this fall, please remember Mr. Jackson, the man that really believes in equal rights for all. —By Grady Jones.

(Paid political adv. by J. H. Jackson, Lomax, Ala.)

Col. and Mrs. J. O. Middleton of Montgomery were the week end guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Littlejohn.

LOG HOUSE COMES BACK

Montgomery, Ala., July 25.—Hundreds of log houses are being built in Alabama as a partial solution of the shelter problem of families whom the depression has driven from the cities back to the land, according to investigation made by Col. Page S. Bunker, state forester. These homes are encountered frequently along the back roads and large numbers are visible from the air. In the northern part and western part of the state they are especially numerous.

The basic needs of all mankind are food, clothing and shelter. With agricultural and pastoral peoples, close contact with the sources of supply usually renders these needs easily satisfied. An industrial people, however, living chiefly in towns and cities must buy its living materials and facilities with the cash derived from wages and salaries. In times of economic depression, with cessation of cash incomes, the most obvious recourse is a change of vocation permitting a return to the soil. Back on the land, while there may be very little money income, there exists the facilities for satisfying the fundamental physical needs.

The log house avoids consideable expenditure for manufactured building material. In general it is a reversion to certain features of the simple life of pioneers. Dependence upon the primitive arts does not mean a lowered scale of civilization, since skill in their practice and application involves fully as high a mental effort as that involved in the more complex systems of society.

DEEP SEA FISHING RODEO

Preparations are nearing completion for Alabama's fourth annual deep sea rodeo to be held in lower Mobile Bay and the Alabama Gulf waters August 8, 9, and 10, according to Commissioner I. T. Quinn, of the department of game and fisheries.

Continuing, Commissioner Quinn said: "The fourth annual deep sea fishing rodeo promises to surpass any event of its kind ever held. Registrations of participants are being received daily at the office of secretary Sam H. Lackland, Adams Motor Company, at 350 Government St., Mobile.

Fishing sportsmen from all over Alabama and from far flung sections of the country will meet Fort Gaines and match their fisherman's prowess with their competitors. Among the notables who are expected to participate are Will Rogers, of Beverly Hills, California; U. S. Senator Harry B. Hawes, author of "My Friend the Black Bass", Missouri; Col. Charles Dawes, with a party of fifty from Chicago, Illinois; and Irvin S. Cobb, of New York City.

The annual deep sea fishing rodeo was designed to make it possible for the every day variety of fisherman who have little opportunity on account of the cost usually found necessary in deep sea fishing to partipate in this wonderful sport. The committee in its preparations for Alabama's deep sea fishing rodeo has arranged for free lodging in comfortable quarters, meals at popular prices, and boat hire has been reduced to a minimum. Nothing will be left undone for the comfort and happiness of all participants.

Many valuable prizes will be awarded to successful contestants, and the rankest amateur is just as likely to win a grand prize as any old timer at the art of deep sea fishing.

Reports from the fishing grounds convey the good news that tarpon, the gamest fish that swims the seven seas, ling, King Mackerel, cavalla, black, fish, bonita, blue fish, speckled trout, channel bass, Spanish mackerel and many other valuable and game species are now appearing there in unusual numbers.

If you have visited historic Dauphin Island and Fort Gaines on its eastern point, overlooking the Gulf of Mexico, you will want to go back again. If you have never availed yourself of an opportunity to visit Alabama's sub-tropical area where the cooling breezes from the Gulf are wafted upon beautiful Dauphin Island and the sandy deaches of Mobile and Baldwin counties, you should arrange your vacation so as to include three days fishing with a host of brother Waltonians at Alabama's fourth annual deep sea rodeo.

Grover Bice Makes Further Reference to Lower Taxes

Editor Union-Banner:

I still contend that if Jefferson County or any other county in Alabama has a right under the laws of this state to revaluate all property in their county, that Chilton county also has a right under the laws of this state to revaluate every piece of property in this county. The following is clipped from the Birmingham News, dated July 8, 1932:

Plan for revaluation of all property in Jefferson county as a solution to present day tax and economic problems, advanced by county Commissioner Corning, chairman of the Board of Review, has been given endorsement of Sidney W. Smyer, chairman, Jefferson County Association to Secure Economy in Government.

After the review body completes hearing more than 12,000 tax protests for lower assessments for 1932, Corning plans to call a conference of county, city and state officials to consider revaluation.

Cost of revaluation, which would necessitate employment of 30 expert field men six months, would be approximately $50,000 as estimated by Corning. This expense would be born jointly by the city, county and state.

"If a competent revaluation of all property were made, then no one would have any kick coming on the amount of taxes he should pay," Smyer declared. "This also would help the commission solve their problem of operating the county within its income, because they would know exactly how much revenue to expect each year and consequently could budget it accordingly."

Smyer also declared his association would advocate appointment of an outside advisory board to pass on revaluations, pointing out he considered this would be the "mast satisfactory way of revaluing the property."

Corning estimates approximately $20,000,000 in tax valuations will be lopped off the total assessed valuation of property in the county by the review board, with a resultant marked decrease in revenue.

To meet this decrease in income, the commission already has placed in effect or proposed economies amounting to more than $800,000 reduction in operating expenses.

Although assessments are being reduced, some property still will be valued too high, Corning declared. On the other hand, other property will be assessed too low, he thinks.

Thus, he points out, revaluation of all property is the only logical way to equalize taxation and "solve satisfactorily our tax problems."

General Acts of 1923, page 152, gives the Commissioners Court of all counties in Alabama the authority (when acting as the board of review) the right to revaluate all property assessments in said counties.

The Board of Review is composed of the Commissioners Court, with the exception of the probate judge. I therefore, say Judge Reynolds was not within his rights when he replied to me. Turn my letter of May 31, 1932, over to Commissioner Cobb, chairman of the Board of Review, and let the Board of Review reply to it. Judge Reynolds answer something he has no right to answer (because he it not a member of the Board of Review.) He slurs at me all he can and when I reply to him he yells out "Political nagging."

Now, I want to say to Judge Reynolds that I wrote to the Commissioners Court under date of May 31, 1932, as a citizen and a taxpayer. I did not write to the Probate Judge of Chilton County. I have never addressed any communication, L. H. Reynolds Judge of Probate. You addressed me, Grover A. Bice, Postmaster Thorsby. You had a motive in that. You also try to bluff me by insinuating a postmaster is under civil service rules, and had better keep out of politics. You can't bluff me by that.

The Judge said, "The statement referred to in my letter to the Union-Banner on June 7, 1932, are but hopes and expectations of candidates, hoping to mislead some voter and taxpayer to follow them—fake promises and false hopes held out by candidates in heated campaigns.". I'll just say to Judge Reynolds that he has been a candidate many times and in many heated campaigns, and not to judge others, lest ye be judged. The law that Judge Reynolds referred to in all his letters are to govern individuals—does not have anything to do with revaluating all the property in the county. And taxpayers, take notice that Judge Reynolds timed the occasion and made it convenient to tell the taxpayers of Chilton county how to reduce their taxes just before the primary in May of this year.

When property has reduced in value over the entire county as the case is now, common sense tells us we should have our taxes reduced over the whole county according to the value of property. Now as general Acts 1923, page 152, gives the Commissioners Court, when acting as Board of Review, the right to revaluate all property in this county, as a good citizen and taxpayer, I respectfully request the Board of Review to be governed accordingly and reduce our taxes, by revaluating our property according to the value of property of today. For the sake of humanity, give our taxpayers in this county whatever relief you can. If there ever was a time in Chilton county when taxpayers needed relief, it is now. Respectfully, — Grover Bice.

Central Singing Society

The Central Singing Society met in regular session at Friendship last Sunday afternoon. There were not many present, probably because it looked like a cloud might come up about the time to begin the service. There were plenty of directors present, but the class was small and the audience was scattering too. The society was glad to have Mr. A. H. Glasscock of Jemison with us. Mr. Glass is a good singer, and he really enjoys it too.

There will be no meeting of the society next Sunday afternoon, that being the fifth Sunday, but it was announced that all societies would meet at the courthouse for a joint afternoon singing. The idea met with approval of everyone present. The next regular meeting of the society will be at Chestnut Creek the first Sunday afternoon in August.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

A great many people who follow the securities market expressed definite surprise when the announcement of the virtual cancellation of reparations at Lausanne was not followed by a quick and enthusiastic rise in the stock market. They recalled the fact that the announcement of the Hoover moratorium proposal in June, 1931, was greeted by a sharp rebound of the market and had anticipated the same result following the announcement of success at Lausanne. But it is barely possible that some of the so-called insiders in the market sensed the fact that the announcement of the reparations settlement at Lausanne had some large sized strings attached to it.

These strings are now becoming visible to the naked eye. That so-called gentleman's agreement entered into by the creditor nations, and the sharp disagreement to what it meant, now being aired by the statesmen of Great Britain and France are evidence that the trouble is not yet over. The statement by Premier Herriot that this gentleman's agreement means that there will be no final settlement until Uncle Sam has cancelled the war debt has had its reverbations in the United States. Even the pacifying statement of Premier Ramsay MacDonald, of Great Britain, to the effect that the agreement meant no such thing, has failed to calm the troubled waters. Sentiment in the United States against cancellation is well neigh universal, and it took the calm and lucid letter of President Hoover to Senator Borah to quiet the diplomatic tempest in the United States.

While there is undoubtedly a disagreement between M. Herriot and Mr. MacDonald as to the general terms of this gentlemen's pact," this disagreement should not be taken too seriously. It is to be remembered that M. Herriot gave up a great deal of "paper reparations" at Lausanne and it would be difficult for him to face the home folks with the statement that he had cancelled reparations but that France must continue to pay her international debts. The French people are thrifty and such pronouncement, no matter whether justified by world conditions or not, would undoubtedly end in the fall of the Herriot government. For this reason M. Herriot is vigorously stating for home consumption, that nothing is settled yet unless Uncle Sam takes action for scaling down debts. It is to be remembered that statesmen often have to make statements for home consumption which are not as rabid as they seem. This fact is generally better recognized in Europe than in the United States for the reason that our diplomats, having fewer fussy neighbors to deal with, generally say and propose about what they mean.

It would seem to the ordinary observer that Uncle Sam is now in a pretty good position so far as the international debts are concerned, and will remain so, unless he turns his trumps over to Europe, which he is apt not to do. For, no matter what M. Herriot says about it for home consumption, the reparations question is pretty well settled. Whether the Lausanne agreement is signed or not, it is well understood that Germany will pay no more reparations. It is even doubtful whether she will finally be able to pay the one cent on the dollar provided for in the agreement. The European nations will eventually then be faced with the task of paying Uncle Sam or defaulting, unless Uncle Sam decided to play Santa Claus, which he seems to have no intention of doing at this time.

Speaking of the stock market, however, there is undoubtedly another reason why it failed to respond more vigorously to the Lausanne settlement. The fact is that the principal thing hindering our economic recovery is not the European situation but the situation in the United States. If Uncle Sam can get his own affairs staightened out and get the home fires burning brightly again the European situation will not seem so important. The international bankers have been telling us that the trouble was all due to reparations and war debts. The action of our markets in ignoring the Lausanne settlement proved that the effects of European conditions on the United States have been greatly overemphasized. The internationalists want us to forget the home market which consumes ninety-four per cent of our products for the six per cent foreign market, or rather trade our ninety-four per cent home market to Europe for a chance to add a couple of points to the six per cent foreign market. But the American people see through this false reasoning and are not going to be taken in by it.

THE PRAYER

It was a little white casket, in which lay the body of a little boy of five years. The many friends had gathered in the old church as a mark of respect and sympathy for the mother and father and the little lad. The minister read fitting passages of Scripture and the choir sang the songs that he loved to sing, and the minister called on John Dettor for a prayer. John was a sort of recluse and did not have many close and confidential friends. He did not seek them. But, as he lifted his voice, there came a sort of musical tremor to the tones and every ear was in rapt attention, for it was something more than a prayer—it was something that reached the inner chambers of the heart, something that stirred every sleeping memory of the golden childhood, something that held spellbound every fibre of sympathetic impulse:

"Thou Almighty One, in whose presence we started once as this child who rests in eternal sleep before us, Thou has brought us along into the sterner realities of life, but the sweetest music that we have heard along the way was the tatting of a childish voice. And why should the petals of the bloom of childhood droop and fade away? We do not question; we only ask. And shall we resent this taking away? Will we allow it to wither up our faith and to embitter our spiritual love? The birth of a child is a miracle, but the parental love is God's own blessing revealed. And, as the river flows on to the sea, so that love must flow on—the parting is but the severing of the golden cord which angel fingers shall reunite again. And some time, some day, when our weary feet are treading the last mile of the earthly pathway, the gleaming stars will beckon us on, and we shall find renewed strength in the journey, for something greater than all left behind is awaiting us over there. And when we come, the same lifted little arms will entwine around our necks, the little lips will brush against our own and the same little voice will whisper: "You have waited so long!" But the waiting and the parting will all be forgotten in that united love that has God's promise of eternal continuance, and he shall be well."

After the service the minister said "Brother Dettor, that was a touching and beautiful prayer." "It was not a prayer; it was a heart call," said John, "for a little one I lost in the long ago."—James Tandy Ellis.—The Alabama Baptist.

DOUBTFUL ECONOMY

A number of housewives have told me they intend to take their cars on the first of the month and make a round of all their cerditors, paying their bills in cash to avoid the check tax. Futility has attended my efforts to explain that by following such a course they may actually contribute more to the government through the new gasoline tax, let alone the general cost of operation of the all cash expeditions, than would be saved on the check tax.—The Baltimore Sun.

Somebody held up the Hotel Roosevelt in New York the other night but so far as can be learned there was no politics in it.

In light of what happened at Chicago we doubt very much whether Al Smith will travel all the way to California to make any speeches for Mr. McAdoo in his race for the United States Senate.

Sea nettles around the bathing resorts are said to be thicker than ever this year. It is tough luck for the vacationists. First the inn keepers sting them and then they get in the water and then the jellyyfish do it all over again.

We are informed that we are once more at the bottom of the depression. How many bottoms does a depression have, anyhow?

Many a romance started when a young man first saw his young lady in a bathing suit. And many likewise have been shattered in the same way.

Our idea of nothing to look at is a fat man in a tight bathing suit trying to cut cute little capers along the beach.

The annual revolution in Brazil started two weeks later than usual this year. Maybe on account of the depression.

Cincinnatti always wins the National League pennant in February before the season starts and the Democrats always win the election in July, before the campaign starts.

In order to be consistent with his platform Governor Roosevelt should have taken his vacation on a schooner instead of a yacht.

If Governor Roosevelt can work out that plan for planting three million trees they will look fine set out around the million post office buildings that Mr. Garner wants to put up.

MORAL ECHOES

(By D. W. Haskew)

The pastor knocked upon the door and a little girl of five opened it and seeing the preacher standing there she said, "Come right in doctor, mama will be down in a minute." The minister stepped into the parlor and near him the little girl and her smaller sister resumed their play on the floor. Soon there was a heated argument between the little girls, and the preacher thought it time to get in one of his moral lectures. He bent over the little girls and began, "Daughters, you should not fuss and snarl at each other that way. Little girls should not get mad and have a fuss with their sisters." At this point both children broke out in a laugh saying, "Why, pastor, you do not understand. We are only playing papa and mama. We are not mad, we are just doing like we see them do." The pastor pulled the crook out of his back and quietly walked back to his seat. He knew somethnig that he did not know before. How many of us would like to have our children play papa and mama out where everybody can see and hear?

The preacher was out looking after his flock, and passing two little girls playing in a shady garden by the side of the home, he stopped and inquired, "Daughters, what are you doing?" "We are playing Sunday school," replied the children. The pastor inquired again, "And where are your pupils?" The children pointed to the doll, the cat, the two puppies, a little biddy and a little calf and said, "These are our pupils." Sooh the pastor was on his way with a happy shot in his heart, as he thought of the happy children. A few weeks after this he was passing the same home and found the two little girls out under the shade playing again. "What are you doing this time?" asked the preacher, remembering the conversation they had when last he saw them. "We are still playing Sunday school," replied the girls, "but do you know pastor, one of our pupils has deserted us." Looking over the group the preacher inquired, "I do not miss any one. Tell me of the absent member of your school." Then one of the girls replied, "It is that stinking old calf. Buddie calls him Buck and Buck thinks that he is too big now to go to Sunday school." The experience of those girls is the experience of those who really conduct Sunday school. Many of our "Bucks" grow a bit older and they think themselves much larger, and then decide that they are too old to go ot Sunday school. What a pity.

The preacher was passing through the park. Quite a gathering of children were seoted about the stand. A little boy stood on a cracker box in the midst of the gathering. The minister stopped and looked on. He discovered that the game had something to do with church, and so he ventured to ask, "What are you children playing?" A little girl of eight summers became spokeslady, said she, "Reverend, we are playing church. Tom there on the box is the preacher, Sam ahd Will are the ushers, these kids are the pew members, our dolls are the babies in the service." At that moment the preacher noticed two little girls and a boy sitting off to one side laughing, whispering and giggling, and he inquired, "And who are the children over there who are misbehaving so badly?" "Why preacher, don't you know? That is the choir," replied the child. The preacher remembering a few things smiled and said, "Is that so?"

Well, I have had my first dose of driving a bargain. It reminded me of the live wire salesman who rushed up to a doctor's office and asked him to come at once to another village, ten miles away. The doctor cranked his flivver and together they drove like fury to the distant location. Upon their arrival the salesman asked the doctor, "Doctor, how much do you get for making a trip over to this place?" "Three dollars," replied the physician, still in the dark as to why he had been called. "Here you are," said the salesman, handing over the money, "the garage man wanted eight dollars to drive me over after I had missed my train." I have often wondered why people think that a preacher's car and gas and time are cheaper than other people's cars, gas and time. If I had all the money that I have spent to help folks because they presumed that with me it did not matter, I could build a smoke stack big enough and high enough to accommodate Al Capone's biggest distillery.

In a country community a man drifted off into a comatose state and for three days it seemed that he was dead. After the doctors revived the sick man and he became conscious, his friends gathered about him to inquire how it really felt to be dead? The sick man replied that he knew that he was not dead. On being asked to explain why he knew that he was not dead he replied, "Well sah, I knew that I was hungry, and I knew that if I had been in heaven I would not be hungry. Then too, I knew that my feet were cold and I knew that if I had been in hell I would not have been suffering from cold feet." That man's comatose state did not stop him from exercising good logic. As long as you are hungry or suffer from cold feet, you may be certain that you are a part of this world.

One reason why it is had to stabilize things is that the stables have all been converted into garages.

We have a sneaking idea that Governor Roosevelt's "forgotten man" will turn out to be the fellow who used to sell hitching posts.

We are still waiting to hear how much money former Chairman Raskob is going to raise for the Democratic Campaign fund this fall.

Having already secured something like fifty billions from Germany in territory, indemnities and other concessions, the allies now want us to cancel the debts because they can't get any more.

The announcement that Senator Norris has bolted the Hoover-Curtis ticket has about as much significance as would the announcement that Senator Watson has bolted the Roosevelt-Garner ticket.

The Washington Post is willing to admit apropos of Governor Roosevelt's immediate aeroplane acceptance of the Democratic presidential nomination, that, "There is some advantage in completing the contract before the party has a chance to change its mind."

According to history George Washington was a successful farmer, and it is to be remembered that this was in the days before the Farm Board was even dreamed of.

In his address of acceptance, Frank Roosevelt said that economic laws are man-made. He isn't the first fellow who thought he could repeal the law of supply and demand.

The MAN in the MOON

Looks Over All—
Overlooks None.

What A Tornado

As you all know, when anything out of the ordinary is found, anything with something written on it, on up to fork-headed snakes, etc., any and all, they all land in the newspaper office, sooner or later. Not long after the tornado which swept through Chilton County last March, a string of curiously twisted wire was found near Lomax. We have a piece of the wire in the Union-Banner office. Originally, it was some kind of cable, having one center wire of steel, with some six of seven wires twisted around this center wire, but the outer wires are of aluminum, or some other light metal. Last Saturday a little boy was looking at the sample of the strangely twisted wire—he examined the thing closely, noted its light weight, and then a funny little grin spread over his map as he broke out with this: "That must have been a 'shore-nuf' stout wind to blow all the weight outa that wire like that." And what made it sound so funny, the kid was honest in it.

Two More Good Ones

Now that Henry's first love—the Model T—is fast leaving the scene of action, becoming few and far between and more so every day, I believe the jokes about it, of which there have been plenty, are getting better and better every day. Nowadays, there are few Model T's on which the emergency brake will stay pulled back. Recently I heard two fellows as they prepared to crank one and get away. One of them crawled under the wheel, while the other took his place in front of the "machine" and yelled: "Pull the hammer back." And then on a similar occasion, the fellow who was fixing to crank 'er up yelled: "Well, back 'er leg, and let's get going." And too, there was the case where two smart fellows got all ready to take off in a Model T, and the guy who was going to do the cranking called out to the driver: "Contact."

Don't Aid Depression

The shades of night were falling fast, and a farmer had a load of produce to sell. He was talking to a Clanton merchant about buying it. The merchant knew the fellow had failed, so far, to sell his load, and was making the most of the farmer's predicament by offering him a ridiculously low price. The farmer knew he couldn't afford to accept the price, but rather than take the load back home, he sold at the price offered. Right there I saw one of the main causes of depression. The merchant knew he should pay more, and the farmer knew he should receive more, yet they traded, because they both knew the farmer was in a tight place and had to sell at a loss, or refuse and lose it all. That is a bad example to follow.

Keeping Them Fresh

I strolled around by the up-to-date grocery store of Culver and Jones one afternoon this week, and my attention was attracted to a funny little spray dingus in one of their show windows where they keep fresh vegetables of one kind and another. A kind of spray attachment is all rigged out, with water forced through a very small outlet, where it strikes a flat surface. The water has the city pressure behind it, so that when it hits the flat surface, it is cracked up into a kind of mist, which keeps the fresh vegetables, etc., all nice and crisp, just like they had just been taken from the garden. It is quite interesting. Call around and see it. I just wondered why I can't think of things like that, and take in a cool million or so, some time.

Learn to Play Chess

I like pretty near any kind of game—the harder to learn the better I like it after I learn it. But, right now, I believe I have struck my third Waterloo. I learned to play a fair game of tennis and count the score; I learned to play "Fox and Geese;" I learned checkers fairly well; and I can even keep score for golfers well enough not to have to ask somebody who won after the game is over. But I confess I never could have patience enough to learn bridge; and then mah-jong left me high and dry—couldn't make the grade. Now, I have looked at a game of chess, and tried to see through it, but nothing doing. The more I watch this game the less I know of it. On this theory, if I had never heard of the game, I might put up a pretty good show of it. But since I've studied it a bit, I know I'd never learn it. To tell you the truth, I don't think there is much to it, but ask Clay Marcus about it—he plays it pretty well. That chess game has me about ready for the padded cell. Believe I'll call it a day.—Man in the Moon.

HOOVER WILL WIN

We believe President Hoover will be re-elected next November. We base our belief on the firm conviction that the American people cannot be stampeded in times of stress. If this depression were local only, if it were confined to our own country, the voters would no doubt hold the administration responsible. That is the usual way. But the depression is world-wide and the intelligence of this nation is coming to realize that President Hoover had no more to do with it than the man in the moon.. It is the logical sequel to the greatest and most terrible war in the world's history.

The intelligence of this country is coming to realize more than this fact. It is realizing that President Hoover, by reason of his ability and through courageous leadership, has done more to meet conditions and to ease his country, as much as possible over the rough places that have beset its pathway in the past two years, than has any other man in the world today. He has labored night and day, and faithfully and efficiently to keep this country in a course that will lead to ultimate recovery. Indeed, President Hoover has mapped out and has followed the only course that could be followed with safety and with any assurance of success.

The voters of the United States will give President Hoover a chance. They will be fair to him. They will not throw overboard at this critical time, the safest and sanest leader that these trying times have produced. He has preserved the nation thus far. They will permit him to lead it back to better times.

THE TIDE HAS TURNED

There are innumerable indications that the business tide has turned and business is getting better, according to a survey conducted by Editor and Publisher, magazine of the newspaper field.

The magazine points to the success of retail sales in recent weeks in New York, Boston, Chicago, Pittsburgh and other cities, as indicating buyers again are going into stores and spending their money.

Another factor indicating a better business outlook is the stepping up by one motor car manufacturer of the production schedule from 2,000 cars for July to 3,500.

New York business observers have noted that the oil industry as a whole has turned the corner and is out of the red. It is held that if the improvement in the direction of earning moderate profits is maintained, one of the most dangerous sore spots on the American economic scene will be healed.

Business leaders throughout the country are in a more cheerful mood.

The financial pages of the daily papers of recent dates contained such headlines as "Stocks Mark Rally in Brisk Trading," "Fear of Quitting Gold Ended in America," "Grain Values Climb," "Cotton Advances in Strong Market," "Rush of Buying Advances Price of Hogs and Cattle."

All of which sounds as if America were entering the "Business as Usual" era.

NO MORE BUREAUS, PLEASE

On thing to which the American people are unalteralbly opposed is the creation of more boards and commissions. If the tendency of the past twelve years is continued it will not be another twenty years until practically everybody will be working for the government and there will be nothing left to regulate but the regulators.

Many present day proposals would, if adopted, pave the way for additional boards, or extension of the present boards and commissions. If the government were to suddenly start out on a forest drive of the kind outlined by Governor Roosevelt, it is easy to see where there would be opportunity for the creation of new commissions to buy the land, prepare it for planting, and to look after the the trees after they were set out.

Speaker Garner's proposal to put Uncle Sam into the pawnbroking business would certainly expand the idea of government activity in a way in which Speaker Garner's party would not approve, if the question were squarely put up to it. What we need is not more government in activity, but less of it. Often well meaning people who, in ordinary circumstances, would be the first to frown on the creation of new federal commissions and bureaus, are perfectly willing to start one in the interest of a pet scheme of their own.

For example a few weeks ago the educational committee of one of our great church bodies went on record as favoring a federal commission for the regulation and control of moving pictures. Just where this might lead with all the attendant evils of government censorship these good people did not stop to consider. They believed that the quality of moving pictures ought to be improved and in lieu of any other ideas on the subject proceeded to pass the buck by wishing the whole job on a federal commission. Just how such a commission of politicians would go about raising a standard of moving picture production is a little difficult to see. Too many people have formed the habit of leaning on the government to do things which they ought to be doing themselves. As a result, things do not get done, but, on the other hand, there is created an office holding class and a paternalism the like of which was not dreamed of by the founders of the government.

"I am always glad," remarked a grizzled campaigner as he turned away from listening in on the wild demonstration that greeted the Democratic nominee at Chicago,—"I am always glad to see my political opponents reaching the climax of their enthusiasm four months before the election."

"What we need in the White House," shouted the Democratic orators at Chicago, "is a man of courage and firmness and decision of character, not vacillating and changeable, but one who will act promptly and decisively." And then nominated Franklin D. Roosevelt who, within four days, had changed his mind on four questions of the utmost political importance!

Within the past twelve months the price of hogs has advanced 60 per cent. Oil is up 200 per cent over its quotation this time last year. Bradstreet's reports that its weekly food index "continued its upward trend of the last several weeks." There has been a distant advance in cotton and some other commodities. Congress is bound to adjourn soon. Why not look on the bright side of things!

"Congress has gone tax-mad," says a headline. Man alive, you haven't seen anything tax-mad until you interview a taxpayer.

Our produce man says his wife is so particular with her chickens that she won't keep a hen around the place unless it lays eggs wrapped in cellophane.

Count Your Change!

(From Collier's Weekly)

There's no argument in this editorial. It's merely a collection of facts, incontrovertible, eloquent facts that confound those who profess to see America slipping down into a state of effortless despair.

America's mutual savings bank deposits are $1,233,000,000 higher than they were at the peak of the boom three years ago.

Total bank savings today exceed $29,000,000,000, equal to more than $1,000 for every family in the land.

Savings depositors number 52,000,000, nearly two per family.

The number of Americans owning stock has increased almost 40 per cent ince 1929.

A group of 102 companies which had 5,539,036 stockholders at the end of the boom year had 7,675,143 stockholders at the beginning of this year.

One company alone has over 665,000 stockholders, a gain of more than 195,000 since the boom. This company (American Telephone and Telegraph) has assets exceeding $3,200,000,000.

No other nation on the face of the earth can show such widespread ownership of money and stocks.

Our total stock of gold is $4,000,000,000. No other country ever possessed so much. Britain for example, has only $588,000,000.

Currency in circulation aggregates $5,464,000,000, or 700,000,000 more than in the boom.

A recent offering of $450,000,000 of U. S. Treasury securities elicited subscriptions totaling $4,196,296,700—more than nine times the amount offered.

Last year $16,500,000,000 worth of new life insurance was written.

Total insurance now carried is estimated at $109,000,000,000, or not far short of $1,000 for every man, woman and child in the United States. Policies in force total 127,800,000.

One company alone (Metropolitan) has in force many more policies (44,520,810) than there are families in America.

Such safeguard, such security is enjoyed by the people of no other nation in the world.

Our total national wealth, estimated at $329,700,000,000, is greater than that of a dozen Continental European countries combined.

The income of the American people comfortably exceeds $1,000,000,000 a week.

The percapita income here is far greater than in any other land.

There are still six or seven persons gainfully employed for every person idle.

Foreigners owe American investors approximately $18,000,000,000. In addition, foreign countries owe our government $7,000,000,000 and we are still selling abroad more than we are buying.

No fewer than 25,800,000 automobiles are owned by Americans—almost one for every family.

This total is almost three times the number owned by all the rest of the world.

Americans possess far more telephones (19,500,000) than all other countries put together.

Radios continue to multiply. The latest authoritative computation puts the total at over 16,000,000, representing an investment of more than $1,600,000,000, also a record unapproachable by any other people.

How many new domestic mechanical refrigerators have been bought? Would you guess? A grand total of fully 3,750,000, at an estimated expenditure approaching $2,000,000,000. And most of these have been installed in the last three years. In no other part of the globe do half as many homes enjoy such luxury—Americans are rapidly coming to regard it as a necessity.

America has more home owners than any other nation.

A recent survey of 29 typical small towns revealed that 71 per cent of the inhabitants owned their homes, that 88 per cent had electric lights, 72 per cent had baths, 51 per cent had electric washers, 55 per cent had radios, 41 per cent had vacuum cleaners.

There are more families in America than in any other land that can afford to and do send children to high school and college.

In no other land do so many average families have the means to enjoy foreign travel.

Expansion in airplane travel—the most costly of all common forms of overland transportation—has been greater here than abroad during recent times.

The theatre of the masses, the movie, still attracts a weekly average attendance of 75,000,000.

Our so-called luxury bill is still away up in the billions a year.

It took a billion and a quarter pounds of candy to satisfy our sweet tooth in 1931—no decrease from the 1929 total.

The percentage of our agricultural population who, despite deflation, are acquiring domestic comforts, conveniences, labor-saving devices, improved machinery, the use of better roads, is constantly increasing.

Today more than 700,000 farms are electrified, representing an increase of 400 per cent in eight years, and the total is being swelled rapidly.

In industrial communities hard manual toil is being steadily abolished by the introduction of machinery. Each American worker now has at his command five horsepower, a record not even remotely approached outside our boudaries.

The average working-day a generation ago was ten to twelve hours. The standard in this generation is eight hours, with the trend running towards a still shorter working-day.

The work-week used to consist of six (even seven) days. Now it is five and one-half days, with the five-day week coming into vogue.

America has recovered from the periods of depression and pressed forward to new heights of prosperity.

Never in the past was America so well equipped as it is today to resume an epochal forward march. Not only have we changed from a debtor nation to the greatest creditor nation on earth, not only have we vaster national wealth, not only have we an unprecedented supply of gold, but we are richer in experience, richer in inventive brains, richer in scientific knowledge, richer in machinery, richer in productive facilities, richer in managerial skill, richer in discovered mineral oil resources, richer in transportation facilities by land and air and water, richer in every material wealth-creating product and process, richer in craftsmanship, richer in everything.—Collier's Weekly.

Clip this article out of The Union-Banner and put it in your pocket. It will bear rereading many times when politicians invite you to tear your hear over the state of the country. The country is all right. What we need is less hysteria and more confidence and courage.

250,000 People Going To Work Under U. S. Road Appropriation

Federal Aid Must Be Matched by States. Thirty Hours Work A Week For 11 Months To Result From Funds, According To Reports Received

Chicago, July 26.—A quarter of a million men working 30 hours a week for 11 months—that will be the result, a nationwide survey indicated today, of the $120,000,000 Federal appropriation to aid states in highway construction.

In virtually every state, the construction program, designed to make the jobless self-sustaining, was hailed as a vigorous step in the right direction.

Relief workers generally were enthusiastic over the provision for a 30-hour week, thus providing jobs for more workers over a longer period.

Highway construction will be doubed or tripled in many states by the Federal government, which must be matched dollar for dollar by the states themselves. Governors of several states indicated as many as 40,000 men would be employed at road work.

In addition to the thousands working directly at road construction, others will be employed at manufacturing materials and machinery. Work for the unemployed also was expected to better business conditions in countless communities throughout the nation.

Highway officials in 18 states gave definite estimates of the additional number of men employed in their territory and the total was 118,740. Practically every other state reported substantial employment increase would result, but estimates were unavailable pending a check on the amounts to be expended for materials and for labor.

California reported 16,000 men would be put to work extending the state's improved road system; Kansas estimated 20,000, and Mississippi 9,000.

Contracting companies everywhere were jubliant over expectations of new jobs. Employees who have been laid off for months were told to come back in a week or so and we'll probably have something.

Practically every state announced plans for setting a minimum wage scale "staggering" employment to provide as many jobs as possible, and limiting employment to those with families and needing work.

Florida's proposed wage scale was announced at 20 cents per hour, but many states planned to pay union wages.

Following are reports from states unable to estimate probable employment but intending to use federal allotments:

Georgia—Maximum number skilled and unskilled laborers to be employed in expending $5,123,928 of the state and federal funds.

Illinois—Nine thousand men already working on state highways and number expected to be substantially increased with federal funds.

Iowa—Nearly $5,250,000, including more than $3,000,000 federal aid to be spent on highways in 1933.

Maryland—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie said state would withhold decision on acceptance of $1,019,570 until report on relief survey in progress was completed.

Michigan—Eight and one-half millions available, including federal aid.

Missouri—Higway officials said several thousand extra men would be employed if Missouri's allotment of $3,753,000 were granted.

Ohio—Nearly $5,000,000 available of which $3,750,000 was expected to go to labor, directly or indirectly.

Oregon—State's share of federal fund to be $2,000,000, with a large portion going toward employment.

New York—State to spend $35,000,000 on highways, including $6,000,000 federal aid.

THORSBY SECTION

(E. E Norton, Manager)

For people who think there never were such times as these we have been having since the latter end of 1929, and who are fearful about the future, we commend an article in the August issue of the American Magazine, by the author of those cheerful Scattergood stories, which have appeared from time to itme for several years past, Clarence Kelland.

He sets forth facts and figures showing how for the past 150 years the financial pendelum has swung back and forth 13 times, bringing depression and hard times, lasting from two to five years, and each time when the tide turned, recovery was rapid and we advanced to greater things in all lines until we have grown to be the greatest nation on earth, and we are likely to hold that position indefinitely.

The writer has vivid recollections of the "hard times" as far back as 1857, and feels sure, as the author expresses it, one or two such recoveries might not establish a never failing precedent, but 13 times in succession, is enough to give scientific proof, that this, the 14th time will fade out like others, and we shall have prosperity.

Rev. E. W. Butler has shown us a letter just received from the Paxsons, who recently removed from Thorsby to the home of kinfolks, living on a large plantation in the Blue Ridge Mountains, a few miles from Gainsville, Ga. They seem to be comfortably located, and enjoy the weather in their higher altitude, except that it is hot in the middle of the day. They get the Union-Banner and enjoy it, because it helps them keep in touch with the people back home. They send their best regards to all in Thorsby. They say, "We retown or neighborhood anywhere that gretted to leave them. There is no the people are more kindly and neighborly than in Thorsby, and we will always remember them."

Their address is Route 2, Gainsville, Ga.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Peterson have gone to spend several days with their son, Herbert, in Birmingham, while Herbert's wife gets a vacation to visit home folks in Thorsby.

The Lutheran Ladies Aid social held at the Foss home last Thursday night was an occasion greatly enjoyed by the fifty or more people present. There are comparatively few social events in Thorsby that include the men folks, and when they have the opportunity to attend an informal affair, where they can be out for doors, coatless and smoke at will, they enjoy it.

At the children "story hour" next Friday at 4:30 p.m., in front of Helen Jenkins hall, Miss Fairbank and Dorothy Butler will tell stories. Children and parents should remember the place and hour.

J. Bice Favors 18th Amendment Repeal

Editor Union-Banner:

How about giving me a small space in your valuable paper for a few words on prohibition, as it is now in politics, and will be one of the main issues in both parties in this fall's campaign?

Personally I am dry, otherwise I am wet. I believe the 18th Amendmen should never have been put into the Constitution. It has done more harm than good. Do away with it and you will do away with bootleggers. I believe in state's rights. The state can do more inforcing the law than the federal government. If Congress will repeal the 18 Amendment and pass a bill having a billion dollars in currency struck, and put in circulation, you will see times pick up right away. Our money is worth too much—can buy too much with the dollar.

It would save about 50 million dollars now trying to inforce liquor law, and with the billion dollars currency in circulation you would see cotton go up in price, farm products and everything else. I have been strong for prohibition in the past, but after studying the holy Bible on this subject for four years, I changed my mind. It does not justify it. I am a temperance man. I believe in it. The Bible teaches it, but not prohibition, and that is what I taught in Sunday school for 45 years.

God holds every sane person responsible for his acts and work. Liquor will not hurt anyone, if they will let it alone. God made man with a free will, and put good and evil before him. Then he tells him the law and punishment if he violates them. He does not remove anything. A man can be a dry if he wants to or he can be otherwise if he wants to.

Jesus Christ came to save the lost and not the righteous. I wish the Man in the Moon, the Man on the Corner and also the Moral Man that writes in your paper to read beginning with the 24th verse of 13th chapter of St. Matthew and to and including th 30th verse. Then too 36th verse to and including the 43rd verse and publish in your paper.

Isn't it a fact that Jesus said the enemies that sowed the seed is the enemy, the devil. And when they asked if they should go and take up the tares he said, "Nay, lest while ye gather up the tares ye root up also the wheat with them." Jesus said at the end of the world I will separate them, and tells what he will do with them.

You see the law, the federal government and the preacher and a lot of the churches wants to do away with them instead of going to them in a loving way, speak kind words to the devil's children, and maybe they could win them—love them into the church. They cannot drive them. If you have a man shot in the back and kill him, it is murder, and no murderer can enter the kingdom of heaven. And prohibition is killing hundreds of men, women and boys. And the people that is backing the law up is in a way responsible for it, our government is responsible for it, and those that make such laws. I never have violated the prohibition law.

My honest opinion is that times will not be any better until the 18th Amendment is repealed, as it is not in accord with the Bible.—J. Bice.

ASK FOR LOWER POWER AND LIGHT RATES

Prattville, Ala., July 26.—At a recent meeting of the Community Development Club of Prattville, the following resolution in substance was adopted and its passage requested by the city council.

The city council of Prattville hereby petitions the Alabama Public Service Cmmission to have the Alabama Power Company show cause why there should not be a substantial reduction in their rates, in accord with other commodities and necessities, pointing out among other reasons that the 3% Federal Tax was originally intended to be paid by the power and light company and not by the consumer.

A special meeting of the city council of Prattville was held and favorable action was taken on the above resolution. The council's petition will be forwarded to the Public Service Commission on August 1st. In view of the present economic conditions and the fact that several of the state commissions have already taken such action on the matter, we believe that it should only be fair that we be granted this relief. We desire to request your city government pass a similar resolution, if they have not already done so, and present it to the State Service Commission, on or before this date. We sincerely hope that we will have your hearty cooperation in this matter.

Yours sincerely,
A. K. COOPER,
Chairman of the Board of Directors.

Lesson for July 31

THE GIVING OF MANNA

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 16:1-36.

GOLDEN TEXT—Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, coming down from the Father of lights. —James 1:17.

PRIMARY TOPIC — Bread from Heaven.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Bread from Heaven.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—God's Daily Gifts.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—God's Daily Gifts.

I. Lusting for the Fleshpots of Egypt (vv. 1-12).

1. Murmuring against Moses and Aaron (vv. 1-3). As they journeyed from Elim into the great wilderness, they became conscious of the scarcity of some of the things they had enjoyed even in Egyptian slavery. Only a few days before they were singing God's praises for their wondrous deliverance at the Red sea (Exod. 15). Many complain bitterly of their experience in the service of God, while at the same time they will endure all sorts of hardships uncomplainingly when pursuing their own selfish interests. Their complaint not only displayed ingratitude but a deep-seated impiety. They went so far as to express the wish that they had died in Egypt with full stomachs rather than to be walking in the wilderness by faith. The very fact that God had gone to so much trouble to deliver them should have convinced them that he would not forsake them now.

2. God's answer to their murmurings (vv. 4-12).

(a) He promised to rain bread from heaven (vv. 4, 5). His purpose was to teach them that man liveth not by bread alone, but by every word that proceeded out of the mouth of the Lord (Deut. 8:3).

(b) He promised to give them a vision of his glory (vv. 6-10). This served as a warning and encouragement. Moses and Aaron told the children of Israel that the glory of the Lord should be seen in the morning as a reminder that their murmuring was against the Lord and not against themselves.

(c) He promised them flesh and bread (vv. 11, 12). "At even ye shall eat flesh, and in the morning ye shall be filled with bread."

II. Quails and Manna Given (vv. 13-15).

At the appointed time God gave the Israelites the promised food. He first allowed them to feel their need to show them that man's highest need is not physical food, but living faith and fellowship with God. He followed this with a display of his glory, showing them that he was able and willing to supply their need if they would but trust and obey him.

1. In the evening the quails came up (v. 13). Since they desired flesh, he gave them flesh to eat. God frequently caters to the desires of his people, knowing that the best way to teach them is to allow them to be filled with their own folly.

2. In the morning God gave the manna (vv. 14, 15). The Israelites did not know what it was. Moses told them it was the bread which the Lord had given them to eat.

III. The Responsibilities of the Israelites (vv. 16-31).

1. They must gather a certain portion daily (v. 16). They must look to God for their daily bread (Matt. 6:11).

2. Every man must gather for himself (v. 16). Every man must appropriate Christ for himself.

3. They must not gather in excess of one day's supply (vv. 18-20). Those whose greed prompted them to do so realized their mistake when it became corrupt and bred worms. Christian grace and Bible truth must not be hoarded up—they are only good when put to use.

4. The manna must be gathered fresh every morning (v. 21). This was to be done early before the sun was up. So must we seek Christ, who is our manna, every day, and the first thing in the day (John 6:57).

5. The manna must be eaten to preserve life. They were in a wilderness, so could live only by the eating of the food which God gave. It is so with Christ, "except ye eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink his blood, ye have no life in you" (John 6:53).

6. Due consideration should be given to the Sabbath day (vv. 22-31). A double portion was to be gathered the day before, so as to keep inviolate the Sabbath day.

IV. Manna Kept as a Memorial (vv. 32-36).

This was to be kept as a reminder of God's favor in feeding them in the wilderness, even for supplying them with bread for forty years until they reached the promised land.

"PLAY GIRL"

DAT BLOOMIN PREACHER

This week's Blossom:
Jesus sa, "Blessed are de Peaeemakers."
Ah sa, "But some church members done lost da tools."

Turn wid me dis mawnin to de third chapter ob Revelations, which Ah will read fur a lessen. (Reads.) Now Ah wants dis congregation to stan an sing dat good ole song, "Bruderin we has Met to Washup," (All stand and sing). Now let de congregation be seated.

My tex is de 22 verse ob de chapter dat Ah red. "He that hath an ear, let him hear what the spirit saith unto the churches." De subject dis mawnin is de leadership ob de spirit. To start wid Ah will sa dar am lots ob spirit in de church today. We can see "spirit" exhibited in nearly evything in de church dese days. De membership is always showin some spirit in de things undertaken by de church. But mah brudders, has you evah stopped to look into de thing deep nuf to see de kind ob spirit whut lots ob church folks shows?

Lots ob times hit is a spirit ob ob rebellion, or ob antagonism, an when da dont want to go so far as to rebel or antagonize da jes show a spirit ob contrariness. Dat, in mah pinion, frins, is de hole cause ob so much contention in our churches today. Ah repeat mah fust assertion dat dar is lots ob spirit shown in de churches today, but hit aint de rite kind ob spirit.

Will you lissen to whut de Bible says in 1st John 4th chapter an de 1st verse? Here it is, "Beloved, believe not every spirit, but try the spirits whether they are of God; because many false prophets are gone out into the world." De Baptist churches use whut is called de congregational form ob church government, which means dat evy church member has a "sa so" in all things ob de church, an it stans to reason dat wid such a form ob government de majority rules, so dat if de majority votin on any matter or question in de church, happens to be led by de wrong spirit, which is de case lots ob times, de majority, which is led by de spirit ob de Lord is dissatisfied wid de decision an when da begin to contend fur what da belebe to be rite de majority begins to accuse dem ob causin a disturbance.

Of course de majority may be honest in their opinion, but not bein led by de rite spirit, they, an not de minority, are de ones dat is rong. Nothing ob dis kind cud hab happened in de early church fur dis reason. Not only de minority, but de whole church wuz ob one accord. Dat means dat evyone wuz led by de same spirit. But after an elapse ob bout 96 years we find John, while on de Isle ob Patmos, bein instructed to write to de seben churches in Asia.

A careful persual ob dese fust chapters ob Revelations will lead us to de conclusion dat a great number ob names dat had been added to de church wuz only superficial Christians, or Christians in name only. Now fur jest a moment let me go back to our church government. Dat "rule ob de majority," which has been de priceless heritage ob Baptists down thru de ages, has today become de weakest place in it. An it is easy to see why dis is de case when we view it frum de above stanpint.

Brudders, dar is no tellin jes what cud be accomplished by a church whose evy member wuz led by de same spirit. Ah, here an now, make de bold statement dat a church, tho da wuz few in number, dat wuz led by de spirit ob God, cud literally "turn de world upside down." Ah long fur de day to come when our churches are completely led by de spirit, but Ah feel dat we will not see dis until we act accordin to de admonition giben in de tex, "He that hath an ear, let him hear what the spirit saith unto the churches." We kno dat it is a fac dat Jesus wants His churches to go forward—dat he is pleased when de church is at peace wid each other, an still better pleased when all is workin fur de salvation ob de lost aroun dem.

How mah ole hart wood leap an jump inside ob me if Ah cud go to de class in mah Sunday school an find evyone ob de same mine an all had de same pinions. Frins, all ob dis contention an disputin an argument in de church an Sunday school shows mo dan anything else dat somebody is not led by de rite spirit.

Brudders, can you think ob a more hurtful thing dan for yoah children to set in de Sunday school an lissen to you disputin an arguin bout de lessin? De chile will become disgusted, an learn to hate de Sunday school stid ob lovin it. May Ah tell you rite here dat Ah knows some grone folks whut has done quit gwyn to Sunday school all because somebody wanted to git up a big argument ovah de lessin evy Sunday mawnin. You is all de time complainin cause lots ob de members wont jine de Sunday school, an if dem same members didn't want to hurt yoah feelins, da would tell you dat da couldnt stan all ob dat argument.

Less keep our ears open to de whisperin ob de spirit and ketch what it is sayin to de churches, an den when we learn whut is de will ob de spirit, start in to carry out dat will. Now, our revivals is comin on rite away, an how Ah do wish dat de churches wood git down on their nees an ax de good Lord to gib dem freely ob His spirit to lead dem in de rite way. De success ob de revivals dis year, mo dan ever, depends upon de spirit in which we go into dem. Less hear whut de spirit has to sa to de churches. Ah will close now. May de Lord bless you all. Less stan an be dismiss.

Italian Chef Alfredo Knighted for Noodles

By GEORGE RECTOR

World Famous Chef and Daily Food Broadcaster

ON THE Via della Scrofa in Rome, Italy, is a little "theatre," seating sixty people and directed by Alfredo, Cavaliere della Cörona d'Italia. Alfredo's place is really a "ristorante" or restaurant, but with the type of operatic presentation which accompanies Alfredo's piece de resistance, it is only natural that one should consider the place anything but a restaurant.

Fettuccine. You have probably heard me mention it or have read about it in one of my stories, but you should witness it! As you sit at your table in Alfredo's and breathe in the aroma of perfume from the ovens of Olympus, a waiter hustles into the room with a platter held aloft in a manner that indicates it must contain costly jewels for the Shah. As he enters, a violin sobs an obbligato from an adjacent opera, and he sets the dish down on your table while the violin sobs on.

You take a look at the dish and if you are among the uninitiated, you feel like sobbing too, because on the dish are a lot of dough balls, shaped like ribbons. But the waiter makes a flourishing gesture which says: "Rome is built on seven hills. Look! Here is the eighth hill!" Then he bows and gazes admiringly at the gobs of damp flannel while the violin searches the lower throbs of melancholy. A hidden tenor launches a song made famous by Caruso. The song swells up into supreme notes, everyone gazes toward the archway, and the waiter cries "The maestro!"

The tenor is now laughing, ha-ha-ha, as a short, stocky-built man strides swiftly into the room. He has reddish hair, a reddish mustache and is also laughing. You suddenly feel a little better, and the fettuccine turns from a sickly yellow to a bright gold. The maestro for it is the Cavaliere Alfredo—has upturned mustaches and is almost a ringer for the ex-Kaiser. He is wearing a short, white, barber coat, ordinary black trousers and brown shoes. He bows left and right, holding a dish of grated Parmesan cheese in the crook of his left arm. He stops at your table, and once more the waiter introduces, "The maestro."

The maestro smiles. He holds the dish of cheese in one hand, and dips a large spoon in the Parmesan, spreading the cheese as a little girl spreading white roses in front of an advancing bridal couple. The waiter takes the dish of cheese. The violin goes into a sprightly cadenza. The tenor trills a love song. And now Alfredo is ready. He bows over the fettuccine like John Philip Sousa bending to an expectant audience. Then he mixes, swaying from the waist in perfect time. His muscles ripple under the linen like snakes in a burlap bag. He actually leads the violinist and the tenor, for they watch him closely and harmonize with his movements. At the end of five minutes of turning the entire mass, mixing lumps of butter and Parmesan, he bows with a flourish and steps back to take a look at his work with half closed eyes. He placed the dish under my nose and bowed again. I had been served by a master hand.

Now—even though you may not have a violinist around; even though no operatic tenor stalks through your kitchen, you may make Noodles Alfredo—simply, and here's how:

Noodles Alfredo

Cook Encore noodles until tender in boiling salted water. Drain, place the noodles on a large hot platter, sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese, and add a generous lump of butter. With a large spoon and fork lift the noodles from the platter until the cheese and butter are thoroughly blended with them.

IN MEMORY OF J. R. MIMS

From this earth, dear father has gone, but we'll meet him on Canaan's shore, where we'll live while the ages roll, and sad partings come no more. To know him was to love him; he was a friend to all—his desires was to live a Christian life, and meet the Savior's call.

We miss him, oh, we miss him, for our Savior called him away, but we are praying to meet him in a better world some day. We know that he is waiting with our Savior on high; he's there ready to greet us, where there is no goodby.

His weary hands are now at rest, his smiling face is cold, but Jesus called him home to Him, in the land where we'll never grow old. We love you dear father, no human tongue can tell, we said goodby for a little while, but we didn't say farewell.

His troubles in this world are over, he paid the debt we'll have to pay, but if we live the life he lived, we'll be ready in that day. Oh, how good, brave and tender he was every day by day, all the sorrow that he gave us, was because he went away.

A faithful father from us is gone, the one we love so dear, but Jesus whispered, "Come to Me, your resting place is here." So let's think of him with gladness—with unselfishness and say, heaven now is dearer and sweeter, just because he went away.

LORETTA YOUNG IN PLAY GIRL

Theatre-goers who have admired Loretta Young as a beautiful and capable young leading lady will be enthusiastic in their applause for her as a great emotional actress, when "Play Girl," her latest picture comes to the Wadesonian Theatre, Wednesday and Thursday, August 3 and 4.

Always popular because of her personal charm and thorough technique, Miss Young reaches the climax of her enviable career in this picture. Her emotional understanding and sincerity proved her dramatically qualified in the greatest acting opportunity that she has ever had.

In "Play Girl" she plays the part of Buster, a modern young girl who carefully lays her plans for a brilliant business career and financial independence, without including marriage or motherhood. She forgets them all when she meets Wallie, a handsome young Lothario, promptly steals her heart. They marry, and for a time revels in the renunciation of her own hopes and submerges her former ambitions in her love for her husband.

But Wallie turns out to be a ne'er-do-well, lovable yet undependable, earning his precarious living by gambling. Hardly is the honeymoon over when Buster discovers his nefarious occupation. Her great trust in him gradually lessens as he makes and breaks promises to work and to refrain from gambling.

A bitter quarrel sends Wallie to a distant city without Buster. Alone, with dwindling funds and expecting a baby, she resorts to his own practices by placing her last cent on an unknown horse because its name was "Baby Mine." The climax would spoil an enjoyable evening for many theatre goers if related here. Suffice it to say that it is an imaginative and unusual ending to a consistently strong story.

Mingled with the adventures of Buster and Wallie is another romance, the hilarious wooing of another couple, who, in the persons of Winnie Lightner and Guy Kibbee, furnish some of the rarest comedy of the season. Red-headed Winnie wisecracks through scenes in her old sparkling manner. Kibbee, a comparative newcomer is already established as a capable comedian.

Norman Foster, as the young husband, is excellent. His work in "Play Girl" opens the doors of a new fame to him. Neel Madison, Dorothy Burgess, James Ellison, Polly Walters and Mae Madison are splendid in supporting roles.

COPELAN IS PUTTING PEOPLES TELEPHONE COMPANY ON FEET

To those many people over the country who are interested in the operation and success of the Peoples Telephone Company, it should be welcome news that the people generally who have phones are taking more interest in the system than they have in some time. There have been several lines gone over and put in better shape, and movements are on foot for others to do the same.

The Board of Directors have placed the operator of the central and the care of the lines in the hands of people who mean business and will make the thing go. Mr. and Mrs. Copelan know how to run the business and they do not mind work.

Now, the Board appeals to the people to get their lines in shape so that service can be given. If there is something wrong with your box, get it fixed. If you need batteries, you can surely raise a few dimes and buy a set. The main thing to do right now is to get your phoneholders on your line organized. All lines should call meetings and select somebody as your director who will get in behind the lukewarm ones and get them awake to their duty, and everybody get into action with the matter. Don't everyone depend on someone else; and just because all will not fall in and help, don't let those who are interested quit. Keep punching until you do get action, or else just count the drones out and go ahead with the work. Somebody will have to take hold of the work and push it if anything is ever done.

You have an excellent chance to bring the Peoples Telephone Company back into useful service, if you will only do your part. It can't be done, however, unless folks will wake up and get in after the proposition. If this opportunity is let pass, we feel sure that there will not be another one.—T. E. Wyatt, for the Board of Directors.

It is reported that the boys in attendance on the camp entered into the various activities with the customary interest of boys full of life and eager for excitement. It goes without saying that they had a good time. The camp was not all fun and play by any means. There was work to be done, and the proper attention given to consideration of subjects of value.

HEAVEN BOUND HERE AND AT THORSBY, AUGUST 8TH AND 9TH

Tugggle Institute's musical pageant and program of spirituals, "Heaven Bound," is coming back to Chilton County. It will be at the Wadesonian Theatre in Clanton on the night of August 8. The following night it will be at the public school building in Thorsby. Here it is sponsored by the Methodist ladies and at Thorsby it is sponsored by the P.-T. A. The program will begin at 8:00 o'clock at each place.

Last spring this group of colored people came to Clanton and put on this pageant at the high school building, and it is acclaimed one of the best things that has ever been here in a long time. Dr. Ezell and Dr. Haskew are quoted as saying that this program presented here did more preaching than they both could have done in a year's time.

Others who saw it say that it presented a message and a moral that is seldom equaled on the American stage.

On the night that it shows in Clanton, Mr. Wade at the theatre will follow the pageant with "Beauty and the Boss," which talking picture will begin at 11 o'clock, one hour after the play is over. During this hour, we understand that the Methodist ladies will sell cakes, pies and cookies furnished them by the Sunlite Bakery in Clanton.

CANE CREEK

The revival meeting will begin at this place Saturday, August 6. The pastor, Rev. Trice, will do the preaching. Everybody is cordially invited to attend these services.

SINGING SCHOOL AT MT. PLEASANT STARTS AUG. 8

Announcement is made by Prof. I. D. Huett that he will begin teaching a singing school at Mt. Pleasant schoolhouse on Monday morning, August 8th. Prof Huett is an able teacher, and the community is fortunate in getting his services as a music teacher.

At the present time Prof. Huett is teaching a four weeks school at Corinth church. There are forty-two in attendance down there, and it is said that the interest in the work there is unexcelled anywhere. The school is said to be the best Mr. Huett has ever taught and among the best ever held in that part of the county.

The people of Mt. Pleasant community are asked to bear in mind the date of beginning of the school there and everybody come prepared to enter right into the work from the start. No time will be lost in getting the work started there, reports Prof. Huett.

Prof. Huett urges all patrons to meet with him on the opening day.

CIRCUIT COURT BEGINS MONDAY, AUGUST 22

The special session of the Circuit Court will begin on Monday, August 22nd, and continue for two weeks.

This will be a jury term. No grand jury will be called.

The first week will be taken up with civil cases, and criminal cases coming up the second week.

PLANS INCREASED HAY PRODUCTION

Chilton County Should Raise Enough Feed To Supply All Local Needs

A practical plan for increasing hay production in Chilton county by 18,700 tons each year is being recommended by County Agent C. E. Stapp. The plan is feasible and well worth consideration by every farmer because it is inexpensive as well as practical.

"This amount of hay can be produced annually," said Mr. Stapp, "if every farmer in the county will plant between September 15 and October 15, one acre of a mixture of oats and either hairy vetch or Austrian peas for each mule, horse, and cow he owns. After harvesting this hay crop next spring plant either cowpeas or soybeans or a mixture of cowpeas and sorghum. By producing enough hay we would keep within the county thousands and thousands of dollars now sent away anually to buy hay produced elsewhere."

Mr. Stapp said that this would be an increase of 15,000 tons over the 1931 hay crop in Chilton County. It would be worth more than $18,700 at current prices. It would add much to the value and to the net incomes of livestock, in addition to keeping money for other purposes. This county has been producing only about 20 per cent of the hay needed for the livestock on farms. "This is a serious mistake and it is expensive to the entire county," added Mr. Stapp.

"We are foolish to continue buying hay when we could produce it right here in the county at a very low cost. It is hoped, therefore, that every farmer will begin immediately making plans for producing enough hay for his needs in addition to planting hairy vetch and Austrian peas for soil improvement.

"These two winter legumes are very effective in enriching land as well as making feed. One good crop should increase the corn yield around 20 bushels per acre and cotton yield around 350 pounds of seed per acre. Enriching land and increasing per acre yields in this way is a lot better than trying to buy fertilizer. It is also less expensive."

FLOUR DISTRIBUTED

Reports from County Agent, C. E. Stapp, Tuesday morning said there were distributed through the Red Cross Monday and Tuesday morning a total of 2,400 sacks of flour.

Distribution was made through the committees already named for that purpose, and the flour went to needy families scattered in all parts of the county, on the basis of one 24-lb sack to 3 persons.

It was stated that another car load has been promised for this county in about two or three weeks.

What will in all probablity go unchallenged as the biggest watermelon of the year for Chilton County, has been on display at Evan Parrish's Store this week. It was grown by Walter C. Jones, and weighed 77 pounds.

Sanders Calls People To Support Schools

Member of Board of Education Wants To See Our Schools Take Their Proper Place Among the Most Important Public Interests of The County and State

To the School Patrons and Taxpayers of Chilton County:

I, as a member of your school board, feel it my duty to say a few words about the school situation in Chilton county and the State of Alabama.

Several have asked the question, "Are we going to have any school this coming year?" This question, I am sure, can be answered in the affirmative, but as to the length, we do not know, due to the fact that we cannot tell to what extent the state is going to meet her obligations.

If the state were to pay Chilton County all monies past due and the appropriations due her for the scholastic year 1932-1933, we could give you something definite, but as it is, the length is uncertain.

There is no school board in the state that knows how to estimate a budget under the existing conditions. Some have asked if we are to have school? When will they open? The county board in session last Friday set an opening date, but this is also uncertain for more than one reason. First, there is no money in the school treasury with which to pay the October payroll. This is due to the fact that we used all money available to pay off the state's obligations for the January payroll of this year. Now if the state doesn't pay sufficient money into the treasury to meet the October payroll, the schools cannot open in that month unless it be upon the sacrifice of the teachers.

It seems that all work on roads and highways have been paid up to date and there is still money in the state and county treasuries to continue this work, but no money can be found with which to pay the teachers of the county and state for service rendered during the past scholastic year.

This being true, I, as a member of the board, cannot ask the teachers to open the school doors this fall on merely a promise. I do not know whether the teachers are going to be willing to teach without pay or not; so this will, to some extent, make the opening date of the schools uncertain.

Here are some figures given out by a research committee. I wish you would take them into consideration, get them into your system and digest them, and then you will not wonder at the school situation in Alabama.

Disbursements from state funds in 1930-1931 in the following departments were as follows: highways, $19,321,967; education $4,118,687; convict department $3,040,142.

There is between four and five times as much spent for highways as there is for education and almost as much spent for the convict department as there is for education.

It is very clear that in sight of the state authorities the roads are of far more value than that of any other department of state. It seems that they think the construction of highways must continue if the children drown in the sea of ignorance.

Let us next consider the cost of the convict department as compared with that of education. Out of the state treasury went $7,158,829 for the support of education and the convict department. While the children of free, law-abiding, taxpaying citizens of the State of Alabama drew $4,118,687, the lawbreakers, thieves, robbers, and murderers drew $3,040,142. This is all happening in what we call a civilized country.

Do you taxpayers of Chilton county think that any criminal of the state should draw almost as much of the state's taxes as one of your children? Any sound person would answer no to this question. This looks like civilization!

While we criticize the state officials for their attitude toward the schools, let us not forget to take a side view of the officials of Chilton County and see just where they stand as to schools, roads and other county affairs.

First, go to the records of the Board of Education and see if you can find where your money has been thrown away. See if you can find where we are responsible for the shortage in school funds. After you have examined the records to your satisfaction, you are welcome to make any criticism the Board deserves. I am willing to take all criticism that justly belongs to me. When you have examined the records closely you will find that the board is not resposible for the shortage in school funds, but it is on the account of the state not meeting her obligations.

If we could get the money due us from the state we could pay all our debts and have a balance of $10,000 in round numbers. This would mean that our schools would open at their regular opening date.

Now since the Board of Education cannot give a full term of school on account of the above causes, I feel that since the Commissioners Court has money with which to build permanent roads, money lying in the treasury, as they said, "Doing no one any good," that they should help us as much as possible put over a full program.

I believe the Commissioners Court would receive more stars in their crown for any appropriation they would make to the children of Chilton County than they would for any

The Good Samaritan Buying Contest Sponsored By Union-Banner and Co-operating Merchants

For the purpose of stimulating buying in this section The Union-Banner is putting on what is known as The Good Samaritan Buying Contest. The rules and regulations of the contest will be found on the page in this issue headed as above. Also on that page will be found a number of advertisements by business firms in Clanton and Thorsby. These firms whose names you see on that page will issue either tickets or sales slips which can be used as votes. Only cash purchases or cash paid on back accounts will command votes. When a collection of votes is gathered they may be brought or mailed to The Union-Banner and a receipt will be issued for them. It will not be necessary to write the name of the organization or church on each ticket, but the name on the bundle will be sufficient. The number of votes (one cent counts one vote) should be plainly written on each bundle of tickets or sales slips.

There are two firms on the page whose brand marks will be counted as votes. Nehi crowns will count five votes each, and Sunlite bread wrappers will count 5, 10, 15 or 20 votes, according to the price paid for the loaf.

All that will be necessary for a particular church or organization to enter the contest is for its friends to put in votes with that church's name or that organization's name plainly written on it, together with the number of votes in the bundle. Also note in the rules that all tickets must be voted not later than ten days after they are issued.

As we explained in the outset, the purpose of this contest is to stimulate business and at the same time help some worthy cause. We will urge our readers to trade as much as possible with the firms who issue these votes. You can readily see that these prizes are worth working for and you can also see that it is going to take some concerted effort on the part of an organization to get in on it.

At the beginning is the time to start on this race. There is going to be a scramble before it is over, and in order to win easily a contestant must get an even start from the first. You will note that it will last ten weeks. The prizes will be awarded at 4 o'clock on Saturday afternoon after the last of the ten advertisements have been run, which will be October 8th. That sounds like it is far off, but these ten weeks will slip away before you know it. So, everybody get in the race at the start and lets all have lots of fun as well as some swift buying and casting of votes; and then will come the time for The Union-Banner to pay off, when the winners will be really glad and we will all enjoy the climax together.

The Montgomery Advertiser and a number of business firms in Montgomery are sponsoring a like contest which they are displaying in a full page of The Advertiser every Wednesday morning. Their proposition will run for 17 weeks and the total amount of their prizes runs up to $1,500.

THE COURTHOUSE SINGING LAST SUNDAY AFTERNOON

According to the announcement made in last week's Union-Banner, a singing was held at the courthouse in Clanton last Sunday afternoon. It being the fifth Sunday, none of the societies of the county had a regular meeting, so it was a kind of joint affair between the different societies of the county. The courthouse was filled to its capacity, and there was a very large class. The organization was perfected shortly after 2 o'clock and the crowd went right to singing. There was no interruption for two hours except a few minutes was taken to raise a collection on the piano, which has recently been placed in the court room. Nearly fifty dollars was raised, which was about half the total cost of the instrument.

For some months there has been talk of getting a piano and letting it remain in the court room for singings and meetings of other kinds which are held there from time to time. The idea has finally materialized and the piano, said to be a rare bargain, is now there and when fully paid for will be the property of the people of Chilton County. Collections will be taken from time to time until the balance is raised.

It is expected that singings will be held more often now at the courthouse since there will be no worry about an instrument. This is the best building in the county for a singing, and it is centrally located so that it is accessible to everybody. Watch out for announcements for singings there in the future.

WINTER LEGUMES INCREASED CROPS

Interesting Figures on Increased Production In Chilton County

During the last five years farmers of Chilton county have made winter legumes (hairy vetch and Austrian peas) increase their production of corn by 105,000 bushels, or an average of 21,120 bushels per year. It is now estimated that the 1932 increase due to winter legumes will be 35,200 bushels. These figures were furnished by County Agent C. E. Stapp. In presenting them he said that this increase in total production has been worth $1 per bushel, or a total of $105,600 to date. He figured the 1932 increase at 40 cents per bushel or $14,080 for the county.

Mr. Stapp explained that, as an average, a good crop of either hairy vetch or Austrian peas has increased the yield of corn by 20 bushels per acre. He says that it is the best way he knows for Chilton county farmers to enrich their land to the extent of making profitable yields of corn and also cotton which responds well to winter legumes.

Yields are increased by winter legumes because they add nitrogen and humus. Where a good crop is plowed under it is not necessary to buy any nitrogen for either corn or cotton, thus eliminating this expense. In addition much valuable humus is added.

"Without winter legumes," said Mr. Stapp, "the average farmer in Chilton county will plant corn on 23 to 25 acres if he produces enough for his farm needs. By planting winter legume seed in the fall and plowing the crop under in the spring he can make enough corn on half this acreage. Advantages here are apparent."

With these objectives in view, Mr. Stapp is urging farmers to get ready for planting hairy vetch and Austrian peas this fall, the time to plant being from September 15 to October 15. Seed should be ordered and arrangements made for fertilizer. Basic slag, a by-product of the steel industry of Birmingham, is the best fertilizer for winter legumes.

REYNOLDS SAYS FEED THE HUNGRY

Advocates Doing Road Work In Every Beat In The County This Summer

Editor Union-Banner:

I regret to have to ask so many favors of you by requesting you to publish so many articles. But there are so many persons in Chilton County who want to be candidates for office in the future and grasp every opportunity to put a rail or two on their political fences, and it seems like some of these prospective candidates always want to jump on me. However, this gives me no particular worry, as it is always a pleasure to me to explain my official actions to the people of Chilton County.

Mr. Grover Bice, postmaster at Thorsby, seems like he is very anxious to find a law whereby he can dictate to the various officers of Chilton county, and tell them exactly how to run their business. I say to the taxpayers of Chilton county if you want to have your taxes reduced in the future, if you will file notice with Mr. Akins Collins, Tax Assessor, on or before the last Monday in May, next year, the Board of Review, composed of members of the Commissioners Court, can take the matter up and pass on the same as they see fit; or perhaps you can file your case with Grover Bice, postmaster at Thorsby, and let him take such action as he see fit.

I hope postmasters will not get control of the Republican party in Chilton County and get it in the condition they have got the Republican party in Alabama into. We have two or three counties in Alabama that still elect Republican officials, and I hope we will be able to retain them. But if those counties continue to elect Republicans, they will have to keep the affairs of the party in the hands of the people, and not turn it over to postmasters who are seeking only federal appointments.

We had a great mass meeting at the courthouse July 23, and received over 800 applications for work on the county roads. These applicants stated that they and their families would suffer unless they could get immediate relief work. I think these distressed people ought to receive the hearty sypathy of not only the county officials, but of every citizen who is able to give a few days work to help feed the hungry women and children of our county. I am sure we have never seen such conditions in Chilton County as exist today.

It seems to me it is enough to arouse the sympathy of all people when over a thousand men come together at our courthouse and beg for something to be done to give employment to the unemployed, and thereby feed the hungry people of our county. Such a demonstration appears to me to overshadow all personal ambitions that any aspiring politician might have.

I realize that a good deal of prejudice has been stirred up among the people by a few politicians who would be candidates in the future against the county building two miles of improved road. Those who were at the mass meeting July 16 will recall that those who made the loudest speeches against the proposed road work are either prospective candidates for office in the future, or had been candidates in the past, and were disappointed in their efforts to get money out of the county treasury. Some of the loudest speakers in that meeting do not pay any tax in this county.

If you want to find a fellow who can tell everybody else how to run their business, you will generally find him to be a fellow who has no business of his own, or if he has any business, he generally neglects it.

I hope the Comissioners will appropriate money to help the unemployed in every beat in our county. As your Probate Judge, I say to the people of Chilton County that I had rather spend what money we have in the treasury on the public roads of our county in giving employment to the unemployed, and thereby feeding the hungry women and children, than to pay the bonds we owe, which will not be due until 1947, fifteen years from now.—Respectfully, L. H. Reynolds.

DATE FOR OPENING SCHOOLS

At its meeting last Friday the County Board of Education tentatively set the dates for opening the schools of Chilton County as follows: High Schools to open on the third Monday in September, and Elementary Schools on the third Monday in October.

There is so much uncertainty about the school business, it is stated, there may be necessary an alteration in these arrangements.

NEW SALEM

The revival meeting at New Salem closed Saturday night. Ths word came from many of the older members. We have had the best meeting that we hafe ever had. Rev. B. F. Dykes preached, and we must say, preached some of the most forceful sermons we have ever heard. The results of the meeting were seventeen by baptism and nine by letter. The church will be greatly helped by this great meeting.

Sunday night, July 31, ended a most successful pastorate of three years with this dear church. A large crowd attended this service and heard the pastor preach his farewell sermon, the subject being "Move Forward." The reason of the pastor leaving is that he plans to enter The Seminary at Louisville, Kentucky, in September. During the three years at this church, there has been over a hundred members added to the church. The greatest number came into the church by baptism.

REFUGE

We have finished a great revival, in which there were 13 additions to the church, that we were very glad to have. Although our hearts were made sad right in the midst of the revival, by the loss of one of our dear sisters, Mrs. Pharoah Mims. God in His wisdom saw fit to call her away. However, we must remember the Lord giveth and the Lord taketh, blessed be the Name of the Lord.

We had with us as our visitor Sunday, Rev. E. A. Norris. He was enroute to Pates Chapel to begin a revival and as the Lord would have it, he dropped in at Refuge at the preaching hour and delivered us a wonderful message, which was enjoyed by all. We heartily thank Rev. Norris for his visit, and will gladly welcome him back to see us at any time and all times.

Our pastor, Rev. M. Lockhart, and Rev. E. A. Norris are running a revival at Pates Chapel this week, in which we are praying that there may be a good number of souls won to Christ.

Everybody come back to Sunday school next Sunday and bring someone with you, and help make our Sunday school one of the very best. —Church Reporter.

Lesson for August 7

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS—DUTIES TO GOD

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:1-11.

GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, with all thy soul and with all thy strength. —Deuteronomy 6:5.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Giving of the Ten Commandments.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Giving of the Ten Commandments.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Loving and Worshiping God.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Giving God First Place.

The Ten Commandments furnish us with the greatest moral code the world has ever seen. The law was not given to save sinners, nor to rule saints, but to reveal sin (Rom. 3:19, 20), and to lead to Christ (Gal. 3:24).

I. The Preface to the Decalogue (vv. 1, 2).

The Ten Commandments are based upon the truth set forth in the preface. Two great thoughts underlie this—what the Lord is, and what he did. What he is, is embodied in the name Jehovah-Elohim. The name Jehovah sets forth three great truths.

1. His all-sufficiency. All that he is and does centers in himself.

2. His sovereignty. There is no being equal to him, nor above him. He is outside of and above every being in the universe. He is immanent and transcendent.

3. His unchangeableness. The "I am that I am" (Exod. 3:14) may be expanded into "I am what I was." "I will be what I am," "Jesus Christ the same yesterday and today and forever" (Heb. 13:8). The name Elohim signifies the strong and mighty One.

II. The First Commandment (v. 3).

"Thou shalt have no other gods before me" means literally, "Thou shalt have no other gods before my face." This commandment requires single-hearted worship and service. Man was created a worshiping being. From the very deepest recesses of his being he demands a god. Furthermore, every man has his god. It is either the true God or a false god. The center around which our activities revolve is our God. This commandment may be broken—

1. By living for self. If one's activities gather around himself he worships himself, and is an idolater.

2. By making pleasure the goal of our lives, and spending our time and money for our sensual enjoyment.

3. By being covetous (Col. 3:5). Every man who is greedy for gold breaks this commandment.

III. The Second Commandment (vv. 4-6).

The first commandment is directed against false gods. The second is directed against the worship of the true God with false forms. This commandment may be broken—

1. By resorting to the use of crosses and images in our worship.

2. By putting the pope in the place of Christ, and following after priestcraft.

It should be observed that this commandment is accompanied with a warning and a promise. The warning is that iniquity will be visited upon the children even to the third and fourth generation. The most awful thing a man can do is to pass on a wrong conception of God to his children. The promise is that he will show mercy to thousands. This means that the workings of the same divine law will pass on God's mercy to thousands of generations.

IV. The Third Commandment (v. 7).

The Hebrew word translated "vain" in this prohibition against taking the name of God in vain, means lying, deceptive, unreal. Therefore, to take the name of God in vain means to use it in a lying, deceptive and unreal way. The word "guiltless" is from a Hebrew word, the root-meaning of which is to be clean, to go unpunished. God will not hold a man to be clean nor allow him to go unpunished who takes the divine name in a lying and hypocritical way. This third commandment may be broken:

1. By profanity. 2. By perjury. 3. By levity and frivolity. 4. By hypocrisy, which is professing to live for God when living for self.

V. The Fourth Commandment (vv. 8-11).

The essential principle embodied in this commandment is work and rest. It enjoins work on six days and forbids work on the seventh. The command to work six days in just as binding as the rest on the seventh. The human being needs physical rest and spiritual refreshment. This command ment may be broken—

1. By living in idleness. 2. By working on the day set apart for the worship of God. 3. By making it a day of feasting. 4. By devoting it to pleasures and games.

WORDS OF WISDOM

It was fitting that heaven should go into mourning when Christ died.—Zwemer.

A great deal of the religion of the present hour is a dead philosophy.—Philpott.

MOUNTAIN SPRINGS

The revival at this place last week was a great success. There were ten new additions to the church. Everyone was full of pep in this revival. If you did not get to attend, you sure did miss a good revival.

Sunday school will begin next Sunday morning at 9:30 o'clock on account of Cane Creek's revival. Cane Creek was a great help to Mountain Springs, so we are going to help in every way we can.

Part of the Sunday school class went to Log Cabin Beach Sunday evening. They reported a nice time.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Gentry had dinner Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Retherford, also Mr. Jr. and Warren Lillie and Wilton Smitherman.

The C. E. did not meet Sunday evening on account of the literature not being here. We hope it will be here by next Sunday evening. We invite everyone to come, especially we want Cane Creek to join us.

ANOTHER FUNNY PINE ROOT

The Union-Banner has come into possession of another peculiar fat pine lightwood root. This looks very much like a large auger or a screw of some kind. It was found on the farm of Pate Mims near Providence several years ago. Since Mr. Mims died the root has been in the possession of Adolphus Payton. Come to The Banner office and see it when you are in Clanton.

LOCAL KIWANIS CLUB GETS ATTENDANCE CUP

The silver cup for the best attendance among the Kiwanis Clubs in this district was awarded to the Clanton Kiwanis Club for excellence in attendance during the past month of June.

The Clanton Kiwanis Club is to be congratulated on this award, as many clubs show a decrease in regular attendance of members during the summer months.

Members of the local club are urged to be present at the regular meeting today.

$600 LOST IN HOLDUP

Two youthful bandits who lined up 15 persons in the Rogers Mercantile Co., at Siluria, 30 miles north of Clanton, Saturday night and calmly robbed the cash drawer of more than $600, were still at large Monday.

The bandits, one of whom was masked, swooped down on the store at 9 p.m. Brandishing pistols, they ordered the clerks and shoppers to "back up against the wall and hold your hands up." The masked man held his gun on them while his companion appropriated the day's receipts.

With a warning that anyone attempting to follow them would be killed, the men headed toward Montevallo in a Ford sedan.

W. M. Rogers, who operates the store, said each of the bandits is about 25 years old.

CEMETERY CLEANED OFF

The work of cleaning up the grounds of the Clanton Cemetery has gone forward to a successful conclusion this week, in charge of committees representing the Pilot Club and the Kiwanis Club of Clanton.

It has been a big task, as there was much to be done. But the job has been done well by those in charge. The cost of the work has been defrayed by subscriptions taken up by a committee of the Pilot Club.

We understand that the Pilot Club has adopted as one of its projects the continued attention of the cemetery grounds, and will have the place cleaned up at regular intervals.

I order to take care of the expense, those who have lots in the cemetery will be invited to make contributions in cash. If you are interested in helping out in this program, see Mrs. Walter Martin.

CHILTON CIRCUIT M. P. CHURCH

The meetings held thus far on this work have been unusually good. We began our revival at Concord July 17th, the interest being good from the very beginning. Rev. G. B. Golden was to help at this place, but because of sickness, failed to be there. However, we were fortunate enough to secure the help of Rev. J. H. Limbric, who brought us wonderful messages from time to time. The meeting closed at this place on Thursday night with four additions.

We went from this place to Antioch, beginning Saturday. Bro. Golden came to us on Sunday and did the preaching throughout the meeting. We had a pentecostal shower the first service and it lasted throughout the meeting. We believe this to be the best meeting we have ever attended. Every service was well attended and full of the Holy Spirit. We closed again Thursday night, with 12 additions.

The meeting at Pleasant Grove will begin the first Sunday, with Rev. A. L. Lumpkin doing the preaching. We are looking forward to a great meeting at this place.

Everybody is invited, and especially the ministers.

All members of Pleasant Grove church who have moved away are urged to get in touch with the pastor or church officials and let us know if you desire to continue your connection with us. There are many of our members who live away from the church and we will appreciate your prompt compliance with this request. —G. W. Stewart, Pastor.

PRICE FOOTBALL TICKETS CUT

University, Ala., Aug 1.—Drastic cuts in the price of tickets to grid games played by the University of Alabama Crimson Tide this fall were announced Saturday by Jeff Coleman business manager of athletics.

Coleman announced that football fans will be enabled to see two of the South's outstanding games, the Alabama-Tennessee and Alabama-Vanderbilt games at Birmingham at rock-bottom prices. The top price for these games will be $2.50 plus Federal amusement tax. For these games there will also be more than 8,000 seats, available at $2.00 each plus tax, while there will be a large number of one dollar seats at the end of the field.

The lowest top price in 10 years for an Alabama homecoming game will be charged for the Alabama-V. P. I. game. Tickets will sell for $2.00 plus tax. Fans will be able to see Alabama games at top prices ranging from $1.50 and tax for the Southwestern game to $2.50 plus tax for the major games to be played.

The sale of alumni tickets will open September 1, Coleman said. Settlement of the Federal tax to be charged has necessitated a delay in preparing literature and tickets for the 1932 season. The athletic department has also been making strenuous efforts to secure attractive rail rates so that the cost per person attending Alabama's games will be as low as possible.

This meeting will about close up his preaching in Chilton County at least for a while, as he is contemplating moving away in a few weeks.

POST DESERVES PRAISE

A recent act of the Birmingham Post deserves the approval and praise of decency loving people. We have reference to the beauty contest recently conducted jointly by that thriving Birmingham evening daily and the Alabama Theatre, in which the most beautiful and talented young lady in that district was selected to take part in a talkie to be filmed soon.

This is the first beauty contest we have noticed in a paper in years in which the contestants were not pictured in scanty attire, late model bathing suits, tights, or something of the kind. The pictures of these contestants showed the girls modestly dressed, and we wish to commend the Post or the censors or whoever was responsible for the pictures appearing this way. We are sure that it meets with the approval of the better element of our people who have chanced to read about the contest. It is disgusting to the thousands of pure-minded people about us—people who admire real, genuine beauty in womanhood—to see pictures in the papers of so-called beauties wearing a pretended garb with just about enough cloth in it to cover a common house cat—or as some negro preacher put it, about enough to wad a shot gun. Such pictures are entirely too common nowadays, and the result of same is degradation to the moral code of our race. In these times people's minds are led to have too little regard for modesty—a jewel which is almost lost to modern society, and one of the things that has lessened these regards is the disgraceful way in which women permit themselves to be pictured and appear in public.

And too, we cannot touch this subject without mentioning an evil that is right here amongst us and which is leading more people to disregard sanctity and decency in society than any other evil that can be mentioned—we refer to dancing. When a man and his wife go off to one of these modern social affairs in which hugging to music is the dominating pastime, they surely must leave their conscience at home with their cook and the kids. At this season of the year, when there are half a dozen protracted meetings of various denominations in progress within reach of everybody, people who pretend to belong to the church will go to a dance instead of to preaching and trying to become better men and women and trying to set right examples before their children. How can we expect anything other than hard, depressed times so long as we waste the time, talents and other things that God has given us and throw them away on indulgencies that God frowns upon. Such thoughtless and careless living as this is one cause for the condition the world is in today.

May our good people who have sound minds, pure hearts and a God-fearing soul try to come into a realization of the sinfulness of these modern indulgencies—in all forms—and flee from it as we have been taught to do by God's word and through His faithful servants here on earth.—Name gladly given on request.

MR. BEST WISHES TO BE MADE CLEAR ON THE ROAD MATTER

Editor Union-Banner:

I would like for you to publish a few words for me. I want it understood that I am not stirring politics and I do not propose to get into a long argument on politics or anything else. But I want to make myself clear to my friends regarding my stand on the commissioners spending money on the roads to help the needy people.

At the mass meeting at the courthouse on Saturday afternoon, July 27, I spoke a few words commending the county officials for spending the money on the roads over the county to help relieve the depressed condition of our people. The general idea in that meeting was prorating the money among the different Beats of the county and that money be put into needed road improvement. The resolution adopted at the meeting read in part: "We especially urge the commissioners to spend enough money on the roads in each precinct to relieve the distressed condition of our people, as far as they can consistently do so. . . We are glad our Probate Judge and commissioners have shown that they are willing to answer the cry of the needy, regardless of politics and personal interests."

The above is what I was speaking in favor of, and that was the prevalent idea of the meeting as I understood it. I did not then and do not now approve of the officials spending all the money in one Beat and thus only helping the people in that particular Beat. If that is the idea they have, then I must say that I do not approve of it; but if they will spend it in proportion all over the county, then I do approve of it.

Everybody please understand that I am not trying to get a wrangle started, but I want to be a friend to everybody just as nearly so as I can. I thank you for the space.—J. V. Best, Clanton, Ala., Route 7.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

The free trade internationalists in the United States when they dust off the old argument about the balance of trade and exhibit it to the public with the pious assertion that foreign nations cannot buy our goods unless we buy an equal amount from them, and that the allied nations cannot pay their war debts unless we take it in imported goods, only display their lack of knowledge of the real situation. Something of this knowledge can be gained from figures recited in a recent address on our invisible exports, by Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, figures which show the hollowness of the free trade argument.

Dr. Klein estimates that, despite the lessened business in 1931, our invisible exports which benefitted other countries amounted to a billion dollars. These invisible exports included "those so-called invisible payments such as tourist expenditures, immigrant remittances, charitable contributions and the freight and shipping accounts—those payments which, taken together, may make all the difference in the world in any argument regarding tariffs, or war debts or trade balances," says Dr. Klein.

For example, according to Dr. Klein, American tourists in 1931 spent $110,000,000 in France alone, a great deal more than France actually paid us on our war debts in 1931. Again Italian immigrants to America sent back home during the year $26,500,000in savings which is more than twice as much as Italy paid on the war debt. In tourist expenditures to all countries Americans spent abroad in 1931 the sum of $570,000,000, while foreigners traveling in the United States left only $112,000,000 so that the balance in favor of the rest of the world was $458,000,000 in tourist trade alone. To all countries, immigrants in the United States sent out $172,000,000 in savings, which was a gain to Europe because nothing came this way from American immigrants abroad.

But this is not all the story. Charitable, religious, educational and scientific institutions in the United States during the year sent $39,000,000 abroad for philanthropic purposes. And yet they tell us that Uncle Sam is the shylock of the world! Again Americans paid to foreign shipping interests in freight charges $72,000,000 more than we got back in freight charges from foreign interests using American ships. Other items in this "invisible account which favored Europe during the year include international transfer of funds by insurance companies, payments for advertising in foreign fields, picture royalties, receipts an remittances by international communication companies and the purchase and sale of electrical power across the Canadian border.

To sum it all up, Dr. Klein's figures show that regardless of the purchases of American goods abroad, and of foreign goods in this country, Uncle Sam sent abroad a billion dollars more in 1931 than he got back from foreign countries in the way of these invisible services noted above. In calling attention to the importance of these invisible accounts in making up their balande of trade, Dr. Klein says:

"If we were to get a true and just comprehension of our position, we cannot confine our attention to the movements of materials that can be seen and touched, tangible merchandise and hard gold and concrete capital transfers. We must not make the mistake of a well known politico-economic analyst who declared recently that our international obligations are settled by shipments of either gold or goods.

"He left the third item just as important as the other two, but more elusive, more difficult to tabulate, namely, services. We must give due weight to these services as listed in the numerous classes of "invisible payments," the many items which are not obvious and easily identified in international business.

"The 'invisible items' are the ones not regularly recorded in the reports of custom houses or the statements of banks or business firms; they represent more abstract and intangible but very real values. Often these tangibles radically after the complexion of a situation; they refute and overthrow many short sighted contentions."

All of which is true. The next time one of our internationalist friends starts quoting figures of our exports and imports as a reason why Europe cannot pay its debts to us unless we lower our tariff, just come back at him with some of Dr. Klein's figures on our "invisible exports." The effect will be instantaneous and may be even a little enlightening.

HERMIE CHILDRESS CANDIDATE IN BALDWIN COUNTY

According to a news article in the Foley Onlooker last week, Mr. Hermie T. Childress, of Loxley, is a candidate for member of the Board of Revenue of Baldwin County on the Republican ticket, having been nominated for this place by a recent meeting of the Republican Executive Committee of Baldwin County.

Mr. Childress is a former citizen of Chilton County. He has been living in Baldwin County for some years past, where he is engaged in farming. He is a son of the late Alf Childress, of Chilton County, who was for a long time one of our most honored and useful citizens, and always a strong supporter of the Republican party here.

Hermie Childress, like his father before him, is a staunch Republican. He is a good business man, of fine character and sturdy qualities. The people of Baldwin County would make no mistake to place him in the important position of membership of the Board of Revenue. His friends in Chilton County would rejoice to see him accorded this honor which he is fully able and worthy to have.

OPENING GUN

With the firing of the opening gun at Boston the other night by Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills, the Republican campaign may be said to have been put definitely under way. Like a good strategist Mr. Mills recognizes the fact that the best defense is a counter attack, and consequently he devoted the greater part of his speech to attacking the aims and records of the opposition. After showing briefly that the depression is world-wide and due to deep-rooted and fundamental causes, he proceeded to the attack by going into the record of the present Democratic House of Representatives in Congress, under the leadreship of Mr. Garner, the democratic candidate for the vice presidency. In this respect he said:

"Measures actually passed by the Democratic house of representatives provide for the printing and issuance of fiat currency the immediate payment of the bonus; an appropriation of over a billion dollars for post-offices, rivers and harbors, roads, etc., these two items alone aggregating over three billion dollars; the guarantee of bank deposits; instructions to the Secretary of the Treasury and Federal Reserve Board to manipulate commodity prices; the unbalancing of a budget balanced by great effort; and putting the government into the general commercial banking business on a large scale.

"All were doubtless well-meaning remedial efforts. Yet they would bring ruin and disaster, running counter as they do to sound economic and financial principles, and being destructive as they are of the confidence so badly needed throughout the country.

Turning to the attack on the Democratic presidential candidate Mr. Mills accused him of lack of leadership in failing to clean up the political scandals of his own state of New York, declaring of Governor Roosevelt, his "failure for three years to use the power of his great office to clean up his own party," and his failure to assert his moral leadership, bar him definitely—honest, amiable and attractive gentleman that he is—from spiritual kinship with such liberal statesmen as Woodrow Wilson or Theodore Roosevelt, or that independent and rugged Democrat Grover Cleveland."

Finally Mr. Mills attacked Governor Roosevelt for failure to have any definite relief program of his own stating that "aside from the fact that he would plant trees where his running mate would plant postoffices, all Governor Roosevelt has to say is that he favors the use of certain types of public works and the issuance of bonds.

Mr. Mills speech was a clever and logical one and indicates that the Republicans are not going to wait to be put on the defense by the enemy.

When the books are finally closed, they will probably show that Uncle Sam financed both sides of the war.

Mrs. Garner has ordered Speaker Garner to take a fishing trip and a long rest, according to news dispatches. That is showing real political judgment.

The Prince of Wales has just predicted that the business slump is ending and that things will take a turn for the better in the latter half of 1932. We earnestly hope that the good prince is a better prophet than he is a horseback rider.

Well, if the French and British and Italians get together to try to cancel the war debts, the Republicans and Democrats in our own country ought to be able to get together to prevent it.

An internationalist is a fellow who has his money invested in Europe and who thinks Uncle Sam ought to send all his wealth there to protect that investment.

When it comes to Democratic politics Vice Presidential Candidate John Garner seems to have grabbed the spotlight right away from Presidential Candidate Franklin D. Roosevelt, and this seems to be all right with the Republicans.

MORAL ECHOES

(By D. W. Haskew)

I was in a community as pastor when the patrons of the school, located near my church, decided that a new school building was needed. No sooner had the project been launched than a covey of objectors came forward howling down the proposition. They objected because the location was not correct, because the plan was too elaborate, because the building faced the West, because "John Smith" was in favor of it, because it would increase taxes and then because and because. Every community has its objectors, who are always against every movement for the betterment of the community. There is only one place where there is no objection to what is being done and that is the cemetery. Everywhere there are folks who object to taxes, the building of good roads, stock law, prohibition, a progressive school system—to them it seems to be a dreadful waste of the people's money. This bunch was born in the objective case and in the kickative gender. Let it be remembered that this attitude is not a mark of greatness.

My grandfather was the proud owner of about 150 hives of bees. His bees would sail out in every direction in search of wax and honey, and every Spring they would store it up in rich abundance. All during the fall and winter they would stay by their wealth and no theiving hand dared to reach for their treasure. It took special preparation to take the honey from them. There was much honey in every gum, but it was guarded by a thousand bees with sharpened stingers to protect it. It took courage to secure the honey that was thus protected. To make it our own we had to run the risk of a sting. That is true in everything that is worth having. To hold the rose as your own, you must run the risk of being pricked by the thorns. Gold is to be found beneath tons of dirt and rocks. Pearls are found in deep waters. Oil is found in deep wells. The priceless things are the hardest to procure. Just anybody can live in a hovel, be poor and ignorant. It takes the fighting spirit to obtain an education, wealth and culture. The honey life can not be dipped up from flowing streams. Diamonds are not picked up by the roadside. We must risk the sting to obtain the honey.

Darkness had settled about the country home and we were sitting on the front porch in sweet fellowship when a car drove up in front. The horn sounded and the oldest boy in the family arose and reached for his hat. The mother lifted her voice in protest, but the young man was deaf to her appeals. When he started down the steps the mother put her arms about his shoulder and walked toward the gate with him. I could not hear what she was saying, but I knew that she was begging her boy not to go away into sin that night. On reaching the gate she stopped, the boy pushed her aside, slammed the gate behind him, leaped into the car and went away with a crowd of rowdies. The mother stood there for a moment, wiping the tears from her eyes, and then slowly found her way back to her seat on the porch. Seeing that I thought to myself how like God was that mother. No one ever starts out over the prodigal's path without God entering his protests. He walks by the side of the one who is leaving the ways of righteousness, he follows them down to the very gate, uttering his appeals. When the door of the soul is slammed in His face, like a devoted mother, he stands there weeping his sad bosom empty because His child has determined to go wrong.

The other night my clock started to striking, and I counted up to fifty. By that time I was wide awake and I was wondering if there was something wrong with me or with the clock. The thing kept up its striking and it dawned into my sleepy brain that the clock was not striking to tell the time of the night, but to tell the household that there was something wrong on the inside of the clock. When one of these "Gossips" come around to your home and start disturbing you with the endless stream of community filth, do not become overly alarmed. That one is striking, not to tell you the real condition in your community, but to tell you that there is something wrong on the inside of the one doing the talking. Like a good clock, we should only let our tongues announce correct time.

I was talking to the lady of the house and the phone rang. She lifted the receiver. At our end of the line I heard her say: "Yes. No, I am not raising my girl that way. Good bye." The lady then told me that a certain young lady in town was trying to make up a dancing school, and that she wanted her to send her daughter. With that bit of information I felt almost like shouting as I thought of her statement, "I am not raising my daughter that way." That was a real mother. A mother who knows human nature and who loves the soul life of her daughter, should answer every call coming to her for her daughters to be trained to dance, "I am not raising my daughter that way." Mothers should not forget that the way she raises her daughters, that is the way they are going to live. God pity a mother when she raises her daughters for the dance hall. May heaven have mercy on the young womanhood when they are trained that way.

WHISPERING DESTROYERS

Persons who spread rumors reflecting on the security of sound banks are in the same catagory with dangerous irresponsibles who provide panic by shouting fire! in a crowded auditorium. They are whispering destroyers who menace the welfare of the community. In times when the public opinion mind is abnormally sensitive to evil report their power for harm is extraordinarily great.

Nowadays the sport kings are trying to stay on the throne.

The fellow who used to pay $50 for a suit of clothes and complain because it couldn't be bought for $20, now finds that it can be bought for $20, providing of course, one has the twenty dollars.

Some congressmen seem to believe that if they can only make the treasury deficit large enough it will be able to cure itself.

About the only thing they haven't changed on the 1932 cars is the back seat driver.

It would be a little difficult to restore prosperity by making two federal buildings sprout where only one grew before.

COMMENDS SCHOOL RECORDS

The report of the Brookings Institution on the government of Alabama has the following to say in commendation of the manner in which the records of the educational business of the counties are kept:

"The most satisfactory accounts kept anywhere in the county are those of the county superintendent of education, who is guided by uniform accounting instructions, forms and report blanks, prescribed by the State Department of Education."

Such an estimate of their system should be appreciated by the school officials, especially because it seems to be the purpose of every politician to create the impression that our school business is lacking in everything akin to good business.

One big advantage of traveling on American ships is that you are not bothered by having hastily improvised quartets outside your stateroom door all night long.

Congress has finally adjourned and the whole country is now experiencing some real congressional relief.

In spite of the depression there are a lot of people in this country more worried over Babe Ruth's Injuries than about what might happen to the gold standard.

An English train made a record run of 152 miles the other day in less than 140 minutes. We wouldn't want to travel on a train going that fast over there for fear the blame thing might run off the island before they could get it stopped. In Texas it might be different.

Out in Texas they call Speaker Garner "Cactus Jack." And Governor Roosevelt is the fellow who got stuck with him.

Once Again

Once again, as might be expected, the good old summer time has rolled around. Summer time—with its thunder showers, mosquitoes, also watermelons, peaches, revival meetings, and other good things. And, by the way, speaking of revival meetings, it seems to me that more interest is being shown this time than in years past. I took a little trip one day last week, passing several churches where revivals were being held, and I know they must all have been pretty well attended that day. I met and passed people going to church in all kinds of ways—by auto, buggy, wagon, and lots of them walking—any way to get there. I heard a preacher say one time that as long as people stayed away from church because they didn't have any way to travel, they didn't have much interest and less religion; but if they attended, no matter how they had to get ther, it was an encouraging sign. On that theory, people and things in general must have taken a turn to the better.

Staying on the Job

In passing around the postoffice last Monday morning, Grover Harris let me in on an ear full—on that morning he began his 27th year of service as mail carrier on Route 3. Mr. Harris went to work for Uncle Sam on August 1, 1906, and is still going strong. That certainly is keeping on the job. Several of the carriers have long periods of service to their credit. Some of them have more service than their continuous records show, but below I will give a list of our rural carriers' continuous service records: No. 1, G. F. Harris, is in his 20th year of service; No. 2, J. D. Armstrong, 22nd; No. 3, G. C. Harris, 27th; No 4, E. W. Miller, 22nd—part of his service was on Route 8, which was discontinued in 1928, just after the death of W. J. Armstrong, who was carrier on Route 4—at this time Mr. Miller was placed on Route 4; No. 5, J. J. Mims, 12th year; No. 6, D. D. Easterling, 22nd; No. 7, B. J. Sessions, 20th. Many of these, in fact all of them have service records all the way back to old horse and buggy days, when they went out at eight o'clock in the morning and returned about four in the afternoon. That's service—keeping the old nose to the grindstone.

This Free Flour

I heard a pretty good one last Monday. I was sitting around, watching people from time to time as they made application for the flour being given by the Red Cross. We were talking about this matter, when somebody remarked: "I expect that's going to hurt somebody's flour business." Another fellow came back thus: "Hurt nothing. I bet it's completely 'ruint' it."

Our New Bakery

I passed along by our new bakery recently, and noting the "smell" of things around there, I just had to drop in. I have called this "our new bakery," and I hope everyone else around here will feel the same way about it. If we feel that this is "our" bakery our local people will support it better than they have other enterprises of this kind in the past. Gee, what tasty looking goodies were on display at the new bakery. All sorts of bread, pies, cakes, rolls, doo-dads and thing-a-mah-noodles were there. It all smelled so good until I just had to stand around and smell a while, not having the wherewithal to buy with. Coming back down to brass tacks about it, though, our people ought to support this new bakery. Clanton needs a business of this kind. Several times in the past such plants have gone on the rocks, just for the lack of support. This should not be. I am quite sure their products are as good as those brought in, and if so, they have a right to expect our support. Let's support the new bakery, and help it to grow.

Came Out in the Wash

"The King of the Suds," Leo Thompson, is all the time issuing fair warning to remove all valuables from clothes before sending them to the cleaning plant. That's fine, and a very good idea. But His Majesty should hearken unto his own good advice. A few days ago Leo decided to turn his pants over to the cleaning force, and did, but I suppose he was studying about something else, or decided he had plenty of time, or something, so he neglected removing his watch from his pants before having them washed. King Leo said "his watch came out in the wash," though.

Hungry

Along about this time of the day, the force cuts a watermelon, or goes out for a cold drink, or something. It happens every day. Believe I'll join 'em this time, no matter what they plan on doing. I hope it's a watermelon—I'm just plain hungry. So long.—Man in the Moon.

The Man on the Corner

Some Sights He Saw—
and Some He Saw Not.

Don't Suppose You Missed Me

The Man on the Corner was "out of pocket" last week. Maybe you missed me, and maybe you didn't. I was enjoying a few days vacation at Gadsden attending the Convention of the American Legion. For me the vacation turned out as vacations most always do. It took me a week to get rested after I got home. A fellow couldn't sleep in forty miles of Gadsden with about two thousand Leginnaires turned loose at having a celebration. Every time I would think they had signed off and settled down for the night, they would break loose with more fury than ever.

The Legion is Impressive

While the American Legion can have as much fun to the square inch as any bunch of fellows in the world, yet I was impressed by the fact that they take time to be serious about important questions of our times. The Legion is directed in its objectives and purposes by the best minds among our ex-soldiers. It impressed me very forcibly to observe the serious and straightforward manner in which the convention went about its deliberations.

The Attitude Toward Schools

One of the first current issues of importance to get the attention of the Legion was the Alabama School situation. President J. A. Keller, of the Alabama Education Association, himself a member of the Legion, was on the program to speak the first day. His address was received with the loudest applause and heartiest enthusiasm. The sentiment of the soldiers on the school situation was crystallized and expressed in a clear-cut and forceful resolution calling upon the Governor of Alabama to call the legislature into session at once, and further requesting the members of the legislature, when they get together, to do something to insure the opening and operation of our common schools with uninterrupted regularity in the future.

This May Surprise You. It did Me

Most everybody seems to nave a notion that the ex-soldiers are in favor of two things—bonus and beer. Well, they may be. But when a resolution endorsing the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment was presented to the Convention last week, it took just about two minutes to pass a motion to lay it on the table without consideration. That was somewhat a surprise to me. Perhaps, after all, everything else in the world is not as wet as the Democratic Convention in Chicago.

"Shorty" Wren Is Commander

Edward R. (Shorty) Wren, of Talladega, was elected Commander of the Department of Alabama, for the coming year. "Shorty" is one of the most popular of Alabama's ex-soldiers. With a record of service that marks him as one of our outstanding heroes of the World War, and with wounds that will forever keep him from enjoying good health any more, he is the idol of all his buddies. His election as Commander was by acclamation, the unanimous and enthusiastic choice of every Legionnaire. Talking with "Shorty," he told me he has a warm spot in his heart for Clanton. When a boy he used to come here to visit relatives. On those visits he became acquainted with many of the then young people of Clanton. He mentioned in particular Bill Mullins and Grady Reynolds. The late Mrs. Haynes, of Clanton, was a sister of Shorty's father.

Here is a Beautiful Thought

Talking to the Big Brothers Sunday School Class last Sunday, Judge Leon McCord was discussing the future life. In the course of his remarks he made this statement which strikes me as a gem: "We do not even know about this life. We can not understand it. We live, and we go out of it like little children creeping to bed in the dark." The ability to say so much in such simple and beautiful words marks Judge McCord as one of the greatest minds of the present day.

Heard Congressman Patman

Congressman Wright Patman, of Texas, spoke to the Legion Convention about the cash bonus bill he has been backing in Congress. Mr. Patman does not appear to be radical in his views in any sense. He is honest in his contentions that the payment of the bonus to the soldiers will bring about a general and widespread relief in the financial depression in the country. Then, too, he argues that since the government has paid off all other claims of every interest growing out of the World War, it should likewise pay off its obligations to the soldiers. Chief blame for the delay in soldier bonus payments is charged to Secretary of the Treasury, Andrew W. Mellon, by Congressman Patman.

Visit to Goodyear Tire Factory

One of the most interesting entertainment features of the Legion Convention was a trip through the plant of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. We followed our guide through the factory and saw the whole process of tire-making from start to finish. It was very interesting and revealed many things we had never thought about being in the process of tire building. After all the materials that go into a tire are made and assembled, the work of putting them together and making the tire is done by hand on a piece-work basis. They are built on a machine which greatly facilitates the task of the workmen. The finished tires of all sizes come out of the factory in a steady stream and go into the stockroom where they are assorted, wrapped and made ready for sending out to dealers.

Business Seems to be Feeling Better

The pulse of business seems to indicate decided improvement of the patient in the last few weeks. Reports show a steady rise in the stock markets, and the prices of commodities seen to be rising enough to give encouragement to producers.

Alabama finds encouragement in the prospect of several millions of dollars to be spent in road construction this summer and fall.

Locally in Chilton County there is a feeling of optimism over the program of our county officials to spend several thousand dollars in road construction projects. There are many people in every part of our county who need work to do in order to get provisions for feeding their families. Our officials say they expect to allot their road work to each and every beat in the county so as to come as near as possible to bringing a job to every person who is in distress.

Right now it is felt that all things may work together in bringing about a decided turn toward better conditions; and it is most sincerely hoped the signs will not fail us.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

ALABAMA EDITORS TO URGE MORE LIVESTOCK

Auburn, Ala., Aug. 1.—Alabama editors at their recent convention in Montgomery, declared themselves as being in favor of improvement and enlargement of livestock farming in Alabama. They made this one of their major projects in 1932.

In line with this, county agents and extension service representatives of Auburn expect to press forward with their livestock development work, realizing that the movement will be argumented by the power of the press. The plan provides for improving and increasing dairying, hogs, poultry, beef cattle, and, in some sections, sheep.

Preparatory to increasing the livestock industry and improving the net returns from it, emphasis is now being placed upon the planting of winter legume seed this fall. Legumes enrich land so that farmers can make feed for livestock. This is fundamental in view of the fact that livestock are fed on foot; and livestock products, such as milk and eggs are produced from feed.

Alabama farmers have found by experience that the yield of corn is frequently increased 15 to 25 bushels per acre as a result of plowing under one crop of either hairy vetch or Austrian peas. Another way of stating it is that one crop of either of these winter legumes generally doubles the yield of corn compared to what it would have been. This means that corn is available for feed.

Farmers who have tried winter legumes (hairy vetch or Austrian winter peas) declare that they are the best known for enriching their lands for corn, cotton and other crops. Winter legumes are good for spring grazing as well as for hay when planted with oats.

ALABAMA IS MAKING LESS COTTON IN 1932

Auburn, Ala., Aug. 1.—The Alabama cotton crop has arrived at the first of August in a "spotted" condition with much ungertainty as to final production or yield. Although no official estimate will be released until August 8, the concensus of opinion is that the state crop this year will be much less than that of 1931.

August—the cirtical crop month of the year—is in the future. The month has just arrived and close observers of cotton know that weather conditions during August will be a big factor in determining the amount of cotton harvested from Alabama fields this fall.

While weather itself is a very important factor in cotton production, boll weevils, too, are important for boll weevil activities are influenced by August weather. This is especially true of the central and northern portions of the state, in view of the fact that south Alabama's cotton is further advanced.

As the crop advances attention is being focused upon it by spinners, merchants, bankers, and others along with farmers. The feeling is that with a smaller crop prices should advance and thereby offset part or all of the losses due to decreased production.

Corn, hay, and other feed crops are very promising. The average is larger and fair to good yields are expected, these, however, will be determined in most of the state by future weather. Early corn and some of the other early feed crops are about made, but much can happen yet to most of the corn and also to other feed crops produced in Alabama. Recent weather has been favorable to crops in most of Alabama. Theatre, however, dry spots which need rain.

Mr. John L. Hollis, superintendent at Mitchell Dam, underwent an operation for appendicitis at a Birmingham hospital last week. His many friends will be glad to know that he is making fine progress toward recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Woodson of Lay Dam were called to North Carolina Saturday on account of the death of Mr. Woodson's brother-in-law. They drove to Birmingham in their car, where they caught a train for Carolina.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Bean and daughter, Frances, of Bessemer, have been spending several days with relatives in Clanton.

FOREST FIRE REPORT OF FIRST HALF OF YEAR

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 1.—Alabama citizens numbering 11,586 turned out to fight forest fires without pay from the state or federal government during the first half of 1932, according to compilations just completed by the state commission of forestry. According to the commission, fire holds about the same rank among the enemies of timber production that the boll weevil maintains in cotton growing. The official compilations, based on intensive observations and research over the entire state show that approximately six and one-quarter per cent of the 22,500,000 acres of forest land in Alabama burned over during the first six months of 1932. Most of the damage occurred during the months of January, February, March and April.

Forest fire conditions are regarded as a fair index of the interest taken in the profitable management of the woodlands by their owners. Prior to the establishment of a joint state and federal agency to stimulate, coordinate and supplement the efforts of the landowners in the proper management of their woodland holdings, from thirty to forty per cent of the entire forest area of the state burned over each year. With the widespread interest that developed in forestry after state and federal action was taken, this proportion was reduced to an average of but five and one-quarter per cent for the four year period ending in 1929.

The current economic depression however, reduced the available state funds by about one-half for 1930, 1931 and 1932. This condition, of course, was reflected in the extent of the work that could be done, with the result that the percentage of forest land burned has increased to an average of approximately seven and three-quarters per cent for the years since 1929.

During the first half of the present year the proportion burned on the 8,748,000 acres of net forest land comprised within the organized districts amounted to approximately two and three-quarters per cent. However, on the 13,752,000 acres included in the unorganized territory in which the commission of forestry, for financial reasons, is not able to maintain agents, the percentage burned over was approximately eight and one-half per cent.

The total number of fires occurring from January 1 to June 30 was 13,225. Of these railroads caused 592 fires, lumbering operations 386, brush burning and land clearing 5,289, camp fires 1,345, smokers 2,856, incendiaries 1,734, and miscellaneous causes were responsible for 1,023.

STORRS TELLS FARMERS HOW TO CATCH SOYBEAN FAKE

Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture today advised farmers who received "hog" or dwarf variety of soybeans instead of hay producing varities as purchased to report to the department of agriculture and an investigation would be made.

He said that farmers can easily tell the variety of beans they have planted by the time they blossom and mature. The "hog" beans begin to bloom 45 to 60 days after planting and begin shedding foliage within a very short time. O-too-tan or the hay producing beans begin blooming from 100 to 120 days after planting and mature from 140 to 150 days," he said.

Commissioner Storrs reported that the "hog" or dwarf beans are at present beginning to bloom whereas the other varieties are not blooming. He advised farmers, in making complaints, to report the time of planting, when the beans begin to bloom, the name of the dealer from whom the beans were purchased and the name of the shipper.

BRIEF NEWS NOTES

During the next ten months the federal government will spend close to five million dollars on Alabama road work.

In 1931 M. A. Ward of Edna, Choctaw County, averaged 35 bushels of corn as a result of having planted hairy vetch seed in the fall of 1930 and plowing the crop under the following spring. With four mules Mr. Ward made 1,200 bushels of corn, 27 bales of cotton, 3,000 pounds of peas, 10 tons of hay, and a supply of peanuts and potatoes.

Federal authorities at Washington have named $60,500,000,000 as the nation's income for 1932. The 1928 and also the 1929 figures were $85,000,000,000. One-fourth of the income this fear will go into government costs, which include federal, state, municipal, county, and local taxes. With this money schools will be run, roads built and maintained, and numerous other public services rendered.

The federal appropriation for the U. S. department of agriiulture for the fiscal year 1932 is $185,883,236, of which $109,405,000 is for roads, leaving only $76,478,236 for agriculture. This includes research, extension, regulatory work and all other work done by the U. S. department of agriculture.

FARM AND GARDEN QUERY BOX

(By K. C. Davis, Knapp School of Country Life, Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn.)

Q. When should orchard trees be fertilized for the next crop of peaches or early apples?

A. The fruit buds are produced this year for next year's crop. Fertilizing should be done now to produce good, srong fruit buds for a good crop next year. This is most important for the early ripening varieties of any fruit. Use more nitrate of soda on early varieties than you would on late varieties. Use considerable phosphate and potash along with nitrogen for the late varieties. One pound of nitrate of soda to each bearing tree will aid greatly in prducing a good crop next year if applied now.

Q. When should winter cover crops be sown for next winter?

A. August is a good time for sowing of winter cover crops throughout the south. For each acre use one bushel of rye, eight pounds each of crimson clover and winter vetch. Such a winter cover crop can be sown between rows of corn, cotton, tobacco, and garden crops. This will prevent loss of nitgrogen during the winter, will prevent leaching and washing of the soil and will produce plenty of green manure which may be turned under next spring. The field may be used as pasture for livestock during the winter.

Q. What is meant by rogueing crops for the saving of seed?

A. During the summer go through the sweet potato fields, tomato patch, and other garden crops and pull out those unsuitable for seed. This will include diseased and inferior plants. Mark with a stake those plants best for seed.

REPORT AND AUDIT COST $36,417.79

The Brookings Institution was reported to have been paid $20,000, as a fee; printing of 4,000 copies of its report cost $6,000; postage, $299.16, and miscellaneous $32.28, making a total of $26,931.44. UNITED SOCIETY AT THORSBY

The United Singing Society will meet at Thorsby Baptist Church next Sunday afternoon. The society has been somewhat disorganized since the storm and also on account of the all day singings; and we want to get started back in real earnest again. All singers have a cordial invitation to meet with us next Sunday afternoon and help us get back in line again. We hope to meet regularly every Sunday afternoon from now on, and we ask the support of the singers of this section.—A. H. Glasscock, Chairman.

DAT BLOOMIN PREACHER

This week's Blossom.
Ole sayin is, "Red cloud at nite is a sailor's delite."
Ah sa, "Some Church members loves da moonshine."

Widout readin a lessen dis mawnin let me introduce de followin tex: "Take My Yoke Upon You." Matt. 11:25. In de ole days in dis country oxen were used almost exclusively for haulin, and sometimes for plowin. Everybody knowed how to yoke up de team, an was well up on makin yokes an bows. Dese implements wuz not bought in de sto lak we buy jes bout all we use on de farm now. An in de ole days ob our Lord, de yokes in use wuz a very crude impliment, yet it served de purpose ob an illustration dat evybody cud understan.

De young people ob today cant jes grasp de great truth so beautifully set forth by our Lord in dis tex. An Ah has foun lots ob men dat understood all bout how oxen wuz worked, dat culdnt git away fum de idea dat de two oxen wuz yoked togedder, an dat de Lord ment fur men who wuz willin or those who took Jesus as their Savior, to submit to bein yoke up wid some man an de two pull togedder jes lak de two oxen. Ah want to tell you dat dar wuz nevah a more rong interpretation made ob our Lord's words dan dat. To use dat interpretation, not only destroys our Lord's meanin, but causes men to balk at de idea ob bein yoked up wid somebody whut aint as good as da think da is.

You see, we is got sich a great pinion ob ourselves dat we draw de line at bein yoked up wid somebody else. Ah feel sure dat dar is some people dat is stayin outen de church today jes because da think dat da is better dan some one who is in de church. So you can easily see why he cant be yoked up wid dem. Ah has always pittied those folks who has sich a high pinion ob da own selves dat da wont jine a church whuts got somebody in it whut don't lib jes rite, an de reason Ah pity dem is because da is allowin de debil to fool dem into de notion dat da is too good to be yoked up wid sich trash. Now less see whut our Lord intended fur us to learn frum dis tex.

First, whin a farmer wished to break in a young steer he wood yoke him up wid an ole one, so dat de ole one wood hold de young one in place, an hold him in line. All dat de young steer had to do wuz jes hold up his end ob de yoke. De ole steer done all de pullin, an ob course, knowed how to guide de waggin an keep evy thing gwyn rite.

Second, de owner ob de young steer knowed whut wuz de best thing fur him, he knowed dat to yoke two young ones togedder dat da wuz liable to run away an tear up de wagin.

Now when we look at de tex, we see dat our Lord sed "Take my yoke upon you," an when he sed "my" he ment "His," an when we see it frum dat pint, it becomes one ob de most beautiful ob all ob our Lord's sayins. Whut is more beautiful dan de thought of bein yoked up wid Jesus Christ?

When we is yoked up wid Jesus he pulls de load an guides our footsteps in de rite path. He is well acquainted wid de road. He knows all ob de pit-falls, an guides us over de ruff places ob life. An not only dat, lissen whut 1st Peter 5:7 say, "Casting all your care upon him; for he careth for you." How nice it is to be yoked up wid Jesus, de one who will tote de big end ob de log, who will bear de burden ob all ob those who is willin to take His yoke upon dem.

My frin, can you find a frin in dis worl who is willin to take all ob yoah cares upon hisself an bare all yoah burdens? Ah am so fraid dat some ob our church people is not ritely yoked up wid Christ. In other words it seems lak dar am somethin lakin bout um. Da dont seem to be ready to take hold ob de work ob de Lord in His church. It mought be dat da hasent yet acknowledged Him as Lord, has not yet been ritely yoked up wid Him. When we fail to acknowledge His Lordship, we is jes riskin Him an not trustin Him.

De man whut yokes up an ole ox wid a young one can take his seat in de wagin an feel safe, cause he can trust de ole ox to pull de load an keep de young one gwyin strait. So when de membership ob de church is yoked up wid Christ, den de church moves long nicely, an good is complished; sinners is sabed, and yoked up wid Christ an all is well, but on de udder han, when some ob de members is not properly yoked up wid de Lord, sinners stan back, feelin dat dar is nuthin to de religion ob Jesus Christ, an de reason fur dat feelin is dat de rong things dat those who are not yoked up wid Christ is guilty ob stans out so big in their eyes dat da cant see de good things dat those who are yoked up wid Him does.

Let me show you how dis is. Settin rite here befo me is a brudder dat you all is quainted with. You kno dat he is a good man an a good neighbor, an evy time you take a collection he gibs bout as much or more dan anybody else. An yit he is not a member ob any church, an de only reason dat he will gib fur not bein a member is dat dar am so many ob you folks dat is not ritely yoked up wid Christ.

Ah calls on you all to serch yoah harts on see effen you is a chile of God or no. Look roun an see effen you is yoked up wid Christ jes rite. You kno dat if de team aint hitched up rite it wont pull. An de wa things is gwyn here, Ah is fraid dat some ob you aint hitched up jest rite. Take His yoke upon you an all pull togedder, an den we will complish somethin. Ah will close now, de Lord's blessins be on you.

Now stan an be dismis.

JOE E. BROWN IN THE TENDERFOOT

Joe E. Brown, affectionately regarded as the current king of comedians, follows up his "Fireman, Save My Child" success with "The Tenderfoot," a First National picture coming to the Wadesonian Theatre Friday and Saturday, August 5 and 6.

In his latest, wide-mouthed Joe portrays a Texas rancher who comes to New York with the last of his money, which he intends to invest profitably so he can lift the mortgage on his ranch. Armed with money and six-shooters, Joe becomes involved with a theatrical producer, falls in love, buys a show which is a failure, miraculously and unwittingly turns the show into a howling success, gets mixed up with lawyers and ladies, eventually overcoming all obstacles, lifting the mortgage and winning the gal.

The script of Brown's latest film funning story was written by Arthur Caesar, Monty Banks and Earl Baldwin, generally regarded as Hollywood's best concocters of comedy. Monty Banks will be remembered as a former comedian on stage and screen. The direction is by Ray Enright, co-author of the previous Brown success, "Fireman Save My Child."

In "The Tenderfoot," Joe is supported by an especially selected cast, with Ginger Rogers in the feminine lead. Lew Cody and Robert Grieg appear as theatrical producers. Vivian Oakland is seen as a temperamental star. Others in the exceptionally large cast are Wilfred Lucas, Spencer Charters, Ralph Ince, Mae Madison, Marion Bryon, Harry Seymour, Jill Dennett and Alan Lane.

The producers have given "The Tenderfoot" a more elaborate setting than any previous Joe E. Brown picture, with the result that the combination of story, cast, direction and settings bring to the screen what has been hailed by metropolitan critics as one of the funniest films of all time, bringing new laurels to Brown's successful record of hit after hit.

ECONOMY LEAGUE TO BE FORMED

Meeting Called at Courthouse Monday, August 15th, 2 O'clock p.m.

Preliminary plans have been effected for the organization of a Chilton County Unit of the Economy League of Alabama. Similar units are being organized in every county in the state. The movement has for its purpose the reductoin of government expenses by carrying the appeal of the common people of Alabama to the legislature when that body is in session.

C. Fenn Jones has been chosen as temporary chairman of the Chilton county unit, with G. C. Walker as temporary secretary. With these gentlemen the following have been designated as members of the executive committee: F. J. Callen, W. M. Wyatt, Grady Reynolds, J. R. Mullins, and M. L. White.

At a meeting Tuesday the president, secretary and members of the executive committee considered plans for effecting the permanent organization of the Chilton County Unit.

To this end it was considered advisable to call a meeting at the courthouse for Monday. August 15, at two o'clock p.m., at which the following representative citizens from each Beat are urged to join in the permanent organization:

Beat 1—O. R. Mullins, Matt Vines; Beat 2—S. P. Shaw and R. B. McNeil; Beat 3—C. B. Lenoir and D. O. Manning; Beat 4—W. A. Reynolds and N. S. Johnson; Beat 5—H. B. Oliver and Lee Robinson; Beat 6—Bob Owens and C. D. Foshee; Beat 7—Hill Foshee and H. M. Nix; Beat 8—Lee Ousley and Charley Mitchell; Beat 9—C. R. Foss and Perry Gore; Beat 10—D. S. Robinson and Harley Calloway; Beat 11—D. C. Giles and J. R. Robinson; Beat 12—John Bean and Richard Robinson; Beat 13—B. M. Killingsworth and Willie Shaw; Beat 14—H. H. Armstrong, Hoyt Freeman; Beat 15—J. L. Abbott and E. G. Caldwell; Beat 16—J. M. Parrish and R. M. Robinson.

A personal letter will be sent to each of these Beat representatives urging them to attend the meeting on the 15th, and take part in forming the permanent organization, which it is believed will result in much good toward effecting economy in our State government.

WAR IS DECLARED

Sympathizers of Commander Walters' Khaki Shirt Army captured the Town of Lomax early Sunday night, and had full control of the town until some one of the defeated army called upon Sheriff Gillespie's office for reinforcements. At the arrival of the sheriff's gallant forces the famous battle of Lomax was in full action. The Sheriff and his gallant deputies took immediate possession taking three prisoners of war and placing them in the stronghold at Clanton. One of the prisoners was the self-appointed commander of the Khaki Shirt Army.—Andy Gerber, special war correspondent.

EIGHT ARRESTS IN PAST WEEK

Reports from the Sheriff's office account for eight arrested during the past week, as follows: One for burglary and grand larceny; two for violating the prohibition law; two for non-support; three for assault and battery.

The jail register Wednesday morning showed nineteen persons in the county prison.

NOTICE OF FALSE REPORTS

Editor Union-Banner:

The following is for the justice of the prisoners in jail here:

It has been reported that we have attempted to break jail. The fact is that two of the boys were taking exercise by holding to the bars in a window and letting their weight fall on the arms, by so doing, a weak strip on the outside of the window, fastened with screws was jarred loose. This by no means was an attempt to break jail, and although we are in jail with charges ranging from petit larceny to murder, we have too much pride and self respect to attempt a jail break.

We are sure that any sane person, who has inspected this jail will know that it would be impossible to get out of here, even if we were furnished with hack saws. We are hoping that anyone visiting the jail will ask to see where the attempt was alleged to habe been made. Respectfully, Thos Littlefield, N. J. Griffin, T. J. Griffin, Carl Reeves, Ernest Garner, Woodrow Griffin, all white prisoners.

Akins Collins Will Manage Campaign

Plans Outlined At Committee Meeting Held Last Wednesday

Editor Union-Banner:

Just a small space to say to the Republicans of Chilton County that we had a real good meeting of the committee on the 27th. There were 36 of the 40 members either present in person or by proxy. Everyone seemed to be very confident and determined on a great victory this fall in the general election.

The committee attended to a good bit of routine business, but that which would be of most interest to the Republicans in general is the fact that the committee elected Mr. Akins Collins chairman and W. M. Wyatt secretary of the campaign committee. We feel that this was a very wise act and that under the able direction of Mr. Collins we feel assured of success in the general election.

It was also directed by the committee that each member of the executive committee be a member of the campaign committee and that they assume responsibility to a great extent for the success of the party in their Beats and communities.

We will say we were very glad to see the spirit of harmony and cooperation that prevailed in the meeting. There were a good number of interested visitors present and we greatly appreciate their visit and insist that they attend again. We would be glad that more visitors would attend the committee meetings.

With best wishes for the success of the Republican party, I am, yours very truly, J. Z. Mims, Secretary of the Committee.

Mrs. W. A. Norris has been ill for the past week, but is somewhat improved now.

I do not want any appropriations paid over to the Board of Education that I might have the honor in helping spend it. I'm not a member of the board for honor, but for service. That is the reason I'm writing this article. I feel it a duty of mine to do all I can to help open the schools at their regular opening date and keeping them open a full term.

Since the Commissioners Court and the Board of Education are the two bodies that spend the taxes of Chilton County, they should cooperate in times like these and give the greatest needed service first, which, I believe the majority will say is education.

We commend the Commissioners Court for the splendid roads they have built and hope we will continue to have good roads. No one is opposed to good roads. Good roads came after civilization. Civilization came by way of education. Let us educate our people and good roads will spring up as if by magic; but if the people grow up in ignorance the roads will crumble.

I would like to hear the voice of the people on this question. The roads, schools and money belongs to you.

I hope no one will try to carry this into politics for I do not intend it that way. All I want is a reasonable term of school.—W. L. Sanders.

Bonner's Plan To Meet Deficit Without Levying Any New Tax

Senator From Wilcox County Names Many Proposals For Strict Economy In State Without Adding Levies to Finance Debts

Strictly Opposed To Any Measure Designed To Increase Our Taxes

Opposing the income tax, sales and any other proposed new tax, Senator J. Miller Bonner, Wilcox County, announced Sunday that on the day the Legislature convenes in special session he will introduce a series of bills enabling the state to fund the deficit and balance the budget without increasing taxation. The Legslature has been called to meet August 16.

Senator Bonner's plan is to accomplish these ends by practicing strict economy in all branches of the state government instead of adding to the present burdens of the taxpayers.

Foremost among his proposals are bills providing the following:

1. A salary slash of 25 per cent for members of the Legislature.
2. Dispensing with the services of three-fourths of the committee and other legislative clerks.

Debt Funding Bond Issue

3. A $15,000,000 debt funding bond issue amendment with interest to be paid out of the general fund.
4. A horizontal salary reduction of 20 per cent for all state officials and employes whose salaries on January, 1, 1932, were more than $1,000 annually.
5. Elimination of the $200 monthly expenses paid by the state for maintenance of the executive mansion.
6. Abolition of all white teacher's colleges except those at Florence and Troy.
7. Suspension of all school bulding appropriations for two years.
8. Repeal of the existing appropriations for the educational trust fund, levied in 1927, and providing in place of these appropriations that the moneys now coming into this fund be apportioned among the various educational causes now participating.
9. Abolition of all district agricultural colleges.

College Funds Cut

10. Reduction of 20 per cent in appropriations for all state colleges and instutions of higher learning, and for various other state departments including the State Health Department and the Child Welfare Deparment.
11. Repeal of the act of 1931 raising the salary of the president pro tem of the Senate from $8 to $10 a day.

"Taxes in Alabama will not be increased if it lies in my power to prevent it," said Senator Bonner in discussing his economy program. "There will be no income tax, sales tax or any other kind of new or increased taxes if it is possible for me to defeat them.

"The only sensible remedy is for the Legislature to balance the budget without any increased taxes. The state can be made to live on its present income and it is a grave duty owed the people by the Legislature to see that it does.

Must Set Example

"The Legislature, however, cannot conscientiously require the state to economize unless the Legislature sets the example and for that reason the first bill I will offer will reduce the salaries of senators and representatives 25 per cent. I also hope that the rules committees of the two houses will adopt a program which will keep the two houses on the job and thus prevent another long drawn-out and expensive session.

"In 1931 there were far more committee clerks and other clerical assistants than were actually needed. The second bill I will offer proposes to reduce the number to the minimum, or about three-fourths under the number on the pay roll during the 1931 session."

Senator Bonner declared it is his opinion that a bond issue for $15,000,000 will be sufficient to meet the state's deficit and that these bonds, drawing interest of 5 per cent, paid out of the state's general fund, would be ratified by the people of Alabama.

Proposal To Cut Pay

Senator Bonner said his proposal to cut salaries of the state officials and employes 20 per cent would do much toward stabilizing the state's financial structure and would work no hardship on the persons affected since living costs are much below that figure now.

SHERIFFS WANT SUCCESSION LAW

Amendment Will Be Voted On At The General Election In November

Sheriffs of central and south Alabama assembled at the Exchange Hotel at noon Wednesday to lay plans for a campaign in support of the proposed constitutional amendment enabling them to succeed themselves in office. As the law now is sheriffs have to wait four years between terms.

Sheriff Robert Locke, of Butler, Choctaw County, president of the Alabama association, called the meeting and urged attendance from the southern part of the state. North Alabama's sheriffs will hold a similar session in Birmingham Thursday, it was announced.

Voters of Alabama will ratify or reject the amendment at the general election in November. An active campaign will be made by the sheriffs in support of the proposed change.

Tax Collectors, assessors, probate judges and other county officials are called upon by the sheriffs to help them out. These officers, the sheriffs point out, can succeed themselves in office, and that a sheriff is the only officer forbidden by the constitution from serving successive terms.

ECONOMY LEAGUE TO BE FORMED

Meeting Called at Courthouse Monday, August 15th, 2 O'clock p.m.

Preliminary plans have been effected for the organization of a Chilton County Unit of the Economy League of Alabama. Similar units are being organized in every county in the state. The movement has for its purpose the reductoin of government expenses by carrying the appeal of the common people of Alabama to the legislature when that body is in session.

C. Fenn Jones has been chosen as temporary chairman of the Chilton county unit, with G. C. Walker as temporary secretary. With these gentlemen the following have been designated as members of the executive committee: F. J. Callen, W. M. Wyatt, Grady Reynolds, J. R. Mullins, and M. L. White.

At a meeting Tuesday the president, secretary and members of the executive committee considered plans for effecting the permanent organization of the Chilton County Unit.

To this end it was considered advisable to call a meeting at the courthouse for Monday, August 15, at two o'clock p.m., at which the following representative citizens from each Beat are urged to join in the permanent organization:

Beat 1—O. R. Mullins, Matt Vines; Beat 2—S. P. Shaw and R. B. McNeil; Beat 3—C. B. Lenoir and D. O. Manning; Beat 4—W. A. Reynolds and N. S. Johnson; Beat 5—H. B. Oliver and Lee Robinson; Beat 6—Bob Owens and C. D. Foshee; Beat 7—Hill Foshee and H. M. Nix; Beat 8—Lee Ousley and Charley Mitchell; Beat 9—C. R. Foss and Perry Gore; Beat 10—D. S. Robinson and Harley Calloway; Beat 11—D. C. Giles and J. R. Robinson; Beat 12—John Bean and Richard Robinson; Beat 13—B. M. Killingsworth and Willie Shaw; Beat 14—H. H. Armstrong, Hoyt Freeman; Beat 15—J. L. Abbott and E. G. Caldwell; Beat 16—J. M. Parrish and R. M. Robinson.

A personal letter will be sent to each of these Beat representatives urging them to attend the meeting on the 15th, and take part in forming the permanent organization, which it is believed will result in much good toward effecting economy in our State government.

CAN'T YOU HELP MR. COPELAN A LITTLE?

If you haven't a Peoples telephone you should not read this, but if you do have one and are connected up with central and are getting service and have not paid your fee this year, you should read it every bit.

We all know these times are hard and money is hard to get hold of; but Mr. Copelan and his wife, formerly Miss Nettie Culp, are operating the central of the Peoples Telephone Co., and they have to have some money to live on. Mr. Copelan is doing lots of work, and his wife is a very efficient and accommodating operator. The fee is 25 cents per month for the rest of this telephone year—up to November 1st. So, you see 75 cents will put you there and then some. And if a hundred people would drop in and pay up for these 3 months, my, my, how it would help out.

If you can't possibly get up as much as a quarter, bring Mr. Copelan a pullet, a mess of potatoes or something, and show him that your heart is in the right place.—Secretary.

EVAN PARRISH STORE MOVED

FIRST BOLL OF COTTON BROUGHT IN ON FRIDAY

The first open boll of cotton this season was brought in to our office last Saturday by Earl Edwards, the 11-year old son of Ben Edwards who lives near Thorsby. Then Saturday morning Earl Marcus brought in another open boll from the farm of his wife's father, John Mims, of Thorsby. Earl said that Mr. Mims had had open bolls since August 1st, but that they had not thought to bring them in.

Monday afternoon Mr. Ruben S. Easterling, who lives on the Hodges place, two miles east of Clanton, brought in the best developed open boll that we have seen. He said that this boll came from a stalk that had grown from a last year stubble. Mr. Easterling said that he had several hundred such stalks on his farm, and that he believed they were going to make better cotton than the rest of his crop which he had planted this year.

REVIVAL SERVICES TO BEGIN VERBENA METHODIST CHURCH

Association of County Commissioners Considered Problems of Government

At the recent meeting of the association of County Commissioners of Alabama held in Birmingham, that body dealt with many of the State issues in Alabama with very pointed and forceful resolutions. The action of the body in expressing opinions and policies on these questions is given added significance since the call of the Governor for assembling the legislature in special session embodies a consideration of some of the important questions before the Birmingham meeting.

The reslution of the association of county commissioners dealt with the gasoline tax that is being levied by the State and allocated equally to the 67 counties of Alabama. This resolution stated emphatically that "this body is unalterably opposed to any change in the allocation of funds now appropriated from the gasoline tax to the various cunties of Alabama; and this body goes on record as favoring the present law and will oppose any law abrogating the two-cent tax to be divided equally among the 67 counties."

In a resolution the organization recommended that its chairman appoint a committee of five if its members to confer with Governor Miller in an effort to obtain whatever part of federal appropriations as may be available to Alabama for relief of the unemployed.

The association expressed definite approval of the use of Alabama material and resources in the building of highways, thereby insuring the people of Alabama and the industries of Alabama the highest degree of financial benefit from both labor and materials.

A resolution provided for a committee to take up with the distributors of electric current, the matter of securing a more equitable scale of rates for current used by the various counties of Alabama.

The association called upon the Governor and Highway Commission of Alabama to cooperate with the Federal Government and get every cent that is available to Alabama for road building purposes.

The association went on record by resolution "opposing any plan of legislating out of office any duly elected officer of this State or any county therein, and we believe officials elected by the people are entitled to serve until discharged by the people themselve."

Concerning the question of poll tax, the association passed a resolution recommending that the legislature submit an amendment to the Contsitution whereby any eligible person, who is liable, by the payment of two years back poll taxes prior to the time at which he offers to vote becomes an eligible elector when properly registered in the State of Alabama.

The association, while not endorsing outright, recommended the careful consideration of the voters upon the proposed amendment to the constitution providing for sheriffs to succeed themselves in ofice by election. This amendment is to be voted in November this year.

Endorsement of a program of economy in government was expressed in a resolution approving immediate reduction in all government expenses, the abolishment of unnecessary clerks in offices, and demanding that the cut in government expenses be not less than 25 per cent.

Concluding its volley of resolutions, the association aimed its parting shot at the school question with this unequivocal statement:

"While we deplore the condition in Alabama and the threats we hear to close our schools, and believing as we do in the education of our youth, be it resolved by this association that if any cut is to be made in any appropriation in the schools of our State, that the authorities begin with the higher institutions of learning and reduce the expenses and appropriations in the execution of our law in administering our schools, and by all means work out a plan by which our common schools will be operated without interference, to the end that the childhood of Alabama may receive as in the past instruction; and if any sacrifices is to be made, let it be borne by those who have already had the benefits of preliminary and high school education."

GOOD SAMARITAN BUYING CONTEST

Following the announcement in last week's paper of the beginning of the Good Samaritan Contest, in which The Union-Banner and a number of cooperating merchants and business men of Clanton and Thorsby will give away one hundred dollars in cash to some church or charity organization in the county, ladies are getting busy gathering votes and persuading their friends to buy at places where votes are given, as well as urging people who owe debts at these places to pay them up, which also commands votes.

Of course, we did not expect to turn the world upside down with the first week, because it naturally takes time to get anything worth while going in good fashion. And this contest is going to get warmed up before many days. Already some ladies in the really live communities of the county have seen that it is their opportunity to raise some much needed money for a worthy cause pertaining to their church or school, and they are going after it.

If you haven't already decided to help some particular organization in the contest, don't fail to ask for your tickets when you trade, because you will later find need for them.

Before you read anything else in this paper, turn to the contest page and read every word on it, including the advs. See who is giving votes, find out how to get them, and then find out how to make them count for a good cause after you have gotten them.

To the people in the northern part of the county, we call your attention to the fact that four places in Thorsby are cooperating in the movement and are giving votes. Look up these places when you buy in Thorsby and ask them for your tickets. Get them even if you have not decided what church or organization you want to help win—you can decide that later.

County Plans To Get $50,000 From Federal Relief Agency

Mass Meeting of Citizens Held Last Tuesday Adopted Resolution Requesting Commissioners To Secure Loan and Spend the Money for Relief of Unemployed

Program Will Extend To The Roads in Every Beat In Chilton County

At a meeting composed of representative citizens from every Beat in the county, at the courthouse Tuesday morning, a resolution was adopted requesting the Commissioners Court of Chilton County to make application for a $50,000 loan under the terms prescribed by a bill recently enacted by Congress for the relief of unemployed.

The resolution further requested that if the Commissioners could secure the loan, they use it in road work in all parts of the county, with the utmost care that employment be given to the people of the county who are in greatest need.

Judge Reynolds presided at the meeting Tuesday. After listing the people present from each Beat, he briefly outlined the plans of the bill under which the loan might be obtained. Thereupon he placed the matter before the meeting for discussion. Everybody who desired to do so was given an pportunity to discuss the subject.

Mr. W. H. Conway, of Jemison, opened the discussion by making a most stirring appeal in behalf of the needy people of our county. Mr. Conway expressed very forcibly his approval of the county securing the loan and using it to give employment to people in every part of the county by work on the roads.

Short talks were made by several different parties. Only a few were in opposition to the proposal. Finally a motion was made by W. W. Fox requesting the Commissioners to go ahead and secure the loan if possible, and spend the money on the roads in every part of the county, giving employment to people who are out of jobs and in needy circumstances. After a brief discussion the motion was approved by an overwhelming majority. There were about 200 people in the audience. Only 13 voted against the motion. A very few did not vote at all.

If our Commissioners can get this loan, it will enable them to project a program of work in the county this fall which will give jobs to a great many unemployed, and thereby bring them a means of providing necessities of food and clothing for their families during the winter months. It is sincerely hoped the proposition works out according to present prospects.

SCHOOLS WAIT ON LEGISLATURE

Hope Expressed By Harman That The Special Session Will Bring Aid

Replying to inquiries from various county superintendents concerning the opening of schools, state superintendent Harman has issued a statement in which he re-asserts that there is so much indefiniteness in the state situation that it is still impossible to offer an authentic assurance as to what will be the outcome, or to know what the situation will be a month from now when schools would ordinarily begin to open.

The letter of Mr. Harman says: "I regret to say there is no information whatever in my possession whereby any definite assurance as to amounts of money to be received by county boards of education or as to when moneys due and payable to county boards will be paid.

"The forthcoming extraordinary session of the Legislature will undoubtedly make speedy provision for the continuation of the schools. In the meantime budgetary procedure will, by the necessities of the case, be entirely tentative. I do not see how binding contracts as to length of term or as to salaries can be made with teachers or other school officials until such time as the Legislature shall have met and dealt with the present situation.

"It is of course evident that schools may operate on returns from county and district taxes and from local sources that are not pledged to the retirement of the principal or interest on school warrants or to other expenses that may constitute a prior claim on such funds."

FARM BUREAU IS FOR INCOME TAX

Demand Rigid Economy In All Phases of Our State Government

Auburn, Ala., Aug., 8.—Strong endorsement of an income tax was given by the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation through a resolution passed at the annual convention of the farmers' organization here last week. The resolution read:

"We demand rigid economy in all phases of the State Government and we are insistent that proper steps be taken to obtain maximum efficiency from all governmental agencies.

"We are wholeheartedly committed to the principle of taxation on the basis of ability to pay which in practice means that the greater portion of state and federal expenses of government should come from income, corporation, inheritance, and gift taxes, leaving the general property tax largely for local governmental expenses.

"We call upon the legislature after it is called into session to immediately submit to the electorate an amendment to the Constitution permitting the levying of an income tax. We feel assured that the proper type of income tax will bring considerable revenue into the State treasury and also that the majority of the voters of Alabama favor this type of taxation.

"We pledge our cooperation to the governor and to the legislature in helping to work out these problems."

HOME OF EMMETT SMITH BURNED LAST MONDAY

Last Monday, just shortly after noon, the home of Emmett Smith, six miles north of here, was discovered to be on fire. Mr. Smith and his wife were at the house when it was discovered to be burning all up in the ceiling. They were able to save only a few of the household goods.

Mr. Smith reports that he carried $600 insurance on the building and $350 on the household goods. Their smoke house was also destroyed. The Smith home was about a mile from the home of Dr. Mastin.

COTTON POOLERS TO SPLIT $57,989

Montgomery, Ala., Aug., 8.—Final settlement with all members who had cotton in the 1931-1932 annual pool was authorized here last Friday by the board of directors of the Alabama Farm Bureau Cotton Association.

Checks aggregating $57,989 have been placed in the mails by J. A. Beaty, general manager, and his associates.

This is the third payment by the association to annual pool members this year, the first having been made at the time the cotton was delivered and the second or suppementary advance in May.

The board discussed in detail the plans for operation of the association during the fall and preparations were made in an effort to increase deliveries.

Members of the board present were J. L. Edwards, Selma; S. A. Burns, Talladega; W. G. Peebles, Mooresville; E. L. Deal, Forence; Willie Shelton, Moulton; E. S. Pace, Eastaboga; W. L. Rasberry, Fayette; J. S. Hyatt, Cullman; A. N. Grubbs, Eutaw; J. T. Gresham, Prattville; J. H. Lovelace, Dadeville; B. H. Lightfoot, Troy, W. C. Braswell, Elba; A. R. Knight, Repton, and E. W. Berry of Camden. J. D. Boswell of Leroy was the only member absent.

BETTER BUSINESS IN STATE IS SEEN

Auburn, Ala., Aug., 8.—Business sentiment has improved in Alabama during the last thirty days. Like improvements have occurred in other states, as revealed by press reports, therepy indicating a general feeling that the worst has been encountered and that better days are ahead.

Calling by Governor Miller of a special session of the Legislature for August 16 has given much cheer, the feeling being that the Governor and the Legislature will adjust the state's finances to where debts will be paid, which will mean much to business.

Another announcement act was that of asking for bids for constuction of $1,750,000 worth of roads and bridges in Alabama, including 75 miles of grading and paving and 5 bridges. This will be part of the five million dollar highway construction unemployment relief program scheduled to be under way within the next few weeks with the aid of federal funds. Counties included in the initial lot of $1,750,000 are Limestone, Walker, Butler, Macon, Lee, Etowah, Jefferson, Dallas, Loundes, Montgomery, and Calhoun.

Governor Miller announced also that Alabama will apply for her full share of the $300,000,000 unemployment money authorized by congress. Thad Holt of the Alabama Industrial Development Board, Birmingham, will serve as field representative of the emergency relief division handling this money.

A substantial rise in the value of securities and a corresponding rise in the prices of farm products have contributed to the general improvement situation.

FARMERS URGED TO VOTE FOR FRIENDS

Auburn, Ala., Aug. 8.—Edward A. O'Neal, an Alabama farmer of Florence and president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, Chicago, issued a crusading challenge to his "fellow farmers" at the farmers' week exercises at Auburn on August 3. He appealed to farmers everywhere to launch a "war of ballots against the forces of greed and selfishness that have dominated the nation too long," adding:

"We must organize our war against the unfaithful legislators and public officials who are willing to vote relief for all other industries but allow agriculture to sink to ruin. We must elect men who are true friends of agriculture, those who will pledge themselves to carry out our farm program. We must find out who are our friends and who are not.

"We must demand of our candidates for public office that they declare themselves on the great principles for which the farm organizations are fighting; demand that they support our program for rehabilitation of agriculture. If they refuse then give them a decided answer at the ballot box next November.

"It is distressing to see some senators from predominently agricultural states in the south and west voting against agriculture or not voting at all."

Mr. O'Neal insisted that there must be an equitable distribution of wealth before business can be made stable and general prosperity returns. He declared that legislation taking into consideration the needs of the masses—especially the farmers—must be enacted before this condition is attained.

Horticulturists at Auburn advise against sprinkling the grounds in a garden—either vegetables or flowers. They say that the ground should be wet thoroughly. In dry weather this should be done every week.

Advancing prices for hogs until September of this year is expected by J. D. Pope, agricultural economist at Auburn. The upward movement began in June and should reach its peak early in September, Pope said.

BRIEF NEWS NOTES

Bids have been requested on $1,750,000 worth of road work in 11 Alabama counties of Alabama, federal money to be used. Actual work will begin at an early date and much employment will be provided.

It is said that 19,000 persons accidentally lose their lives each year in American industry and that 30,000 are killed accidentally in their homes. For each fatal accident in homes there are 158 non-fatal injuries. Precaution would avoid most of these.

The RCA-Victor Corporation recalled recently 5,000 employees at its Camden, N. J., plant. At the same time the Campbell Soup Corporation recalled 4,000 workers. Meanwhile, the U. S. Steel Corporation and the Studebaker Corporation each declared a regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 per share on preferred stock.

Theodore Swann, Birmingham industrialist, thinks that a canal from Jacksonville on the east side of Florida across to the Gulf, a distance of 160 nautical miles—would mean much to Alabama. Mr. Swann said that 102 of the 160 miles would be canalization of rivers and lakes, leaving only 68 miles of excavation to complete the job, estimated to cost $176,000,000.

ASK RELIEF FROM LAND BANK BURDEN

Auburn, Ala., Aug., 8.—The Alabama Farm Bureau Federation at its annual meeting here last week, went definitely and strongly on record as favoring measures to lighten the burden of land mortgages.

A resolution passed said that the farmers' organization favored making annual payments to the Federal Land Bank less on the principal and the loaning of money by the land banks at lower rates of interest, and continued:

"The farm loan system has become unsympathetic with agriculture and a complete reorganization of it is required by amendments to the Farm Loan Act to give the farmer-borrower that control of his credit policies which was intended when the Act was first authorized. The cooperative nature of the Farm Loan System has fallen into almost complete disuse in recent years so that the farmers do not consider it any longer their own credit agency.

"For immediate relief we recommend Congress take steps to prevent foreclosure by the Federal Land Bank during the depression of lands and homes owned by honest borrowers who are unable to pay because of the deflation of prices. We suggest one of two remedies: First Immedite refinancing by the government of debts to the Federal Land Banks with lower rates of interest on a fair amortization basis. Second the federal government to pay interest on Federal Land Bank bonds until the loans are rewritten on a lower interest rate."

This is one of the 17 resolutions setting out a definite legislative program for Alabama Agriculture.

DEVAUGHN TEACHING SCHOOLS AT ISABELLA AND MAPLESVILLE

Monday morning of this week Prof. W. M. Devaughn opened a singing school at Isabella schoolhouse, and then Monday night he went over to Maplesville and started a night class off in the Baptist church building. Prof. Devaughn is assisted in the work in the two schools by Prof. Marion Easterling who does the playing, teaches some and takes some special work too.

Reorts early in the week from both schools say that the enrollment at each place was around 35 with prospects for a total of forty later. This is the first venture we have heard of where two schools—one in the daytime and one at night—were being carried on by one teacher. But Prof. Devaughn really does things when it comes to music, whether it has ever been done before or not.

There will be no preaching here Saturday, as the pastor is away in revival services. But he will be back and fill his appointment here Sunday and Sunday night.

Mr. E. W. Danforth and Tera Parrish have returned home after a trip through Texas.

NEGRO PREACHER DIED

Rev. J. W. Mims, well known negro preacher, died at his home south of Clanton Sunday night. He was buried at Hopewell Tuesday.

Central Singing Society

The society meets next Sunday afternoon at Walnut Creek at 2 o'clock. All singers are invited to attend.

The singing last Sunday afternoon was held at Chestnut Creek, Cooper. The crowd was rather small on account of the threatening weather, and too, some of the Central people went up to Thorsby to help out the United Society. We admire the spirit of cooperation; we like for our people to help other societies, and we like for them to reciprocate by helping us.

A movement is on foot to have a singing at the courthouse about once a month—that is, one Sunday afternoon a month. This is a fine idea, because that will bring all the singers of the county together. However, one obstacle will have to be overcome in order for this to be done and that is some church or churches in our societies will have to give up their singing for good or else hold theirs the same afternoon the singing is held at the courthouse. Or could it be managed to have a singing at the courthouse every fifth Sunday afternoon, which comes every three months, and then say have one or two nights during the week between fifth Sundays? If this would not work out satisfactorily, maybe some church where the societies meet would give their regular Sunday afternoons and take the fifth Sundays and the night singings as mentioned above.

Let the singers of all societies consider these things and let's fix up some satisfactory program as early as possible.

BETHSALEM SUNDAY SCHOOL

We met Sunday morning at 9:30. Sunday School was called to order by the superintendent, Mr. C. L. Wilkins. We had a real good crowd. The subject of our lesson was, "Giving God First Place."

Our school has improved, although we need a lot more of our church members to attend .

We still have B. Y. P. U. at this place. We invite everybody to come and worship with us at both services.

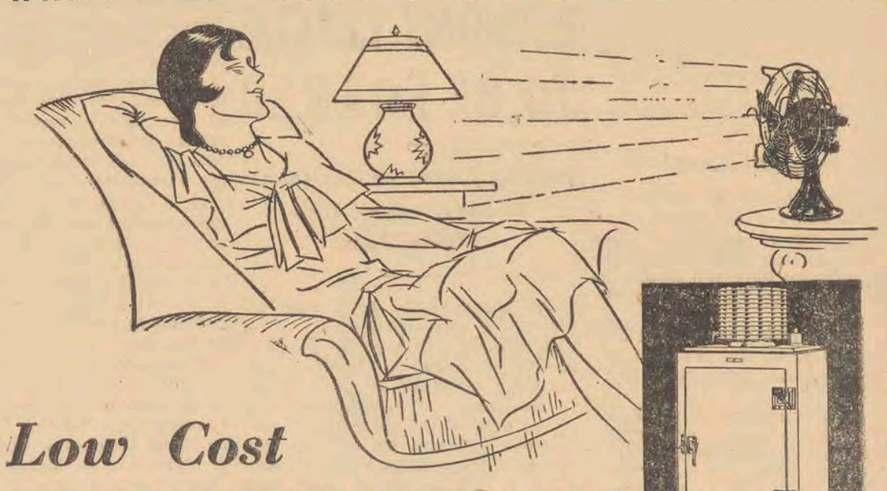
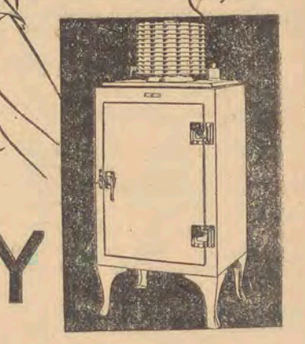
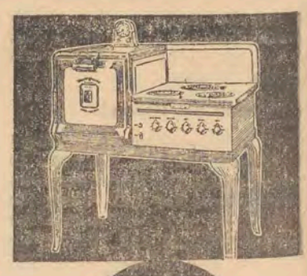
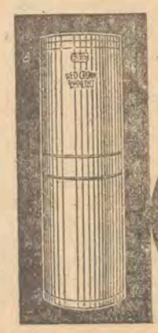
WHAT ELECTRICITY HAS DONE FOR ALABAMA



Low Cost
ELECTRICITY
Has Done Away With Drudgery In Many Alabama Homes







Low cost, statewide electric power service has revolutionized housekeeping here in Alabama. It has placed at the command of Alabama women scores of tireless servants such as those pictured here . . . electric ranges that cook without attention . . . electric refrigerators that keep food fresh and safe . . . vacuum cleaners that whisk away dirt . . . automatic water service that is always instantly available. These and other labor saving appliances have made housekeeping a joy instead of burden. They have made homemakers out of housekeepers.

ALABAMA POWER CO.

DAT BLOOMIN PREACHER

This week's Blossom.
Jesus sa, "Ye Must be Born again."
Ah sa, "Some folks done bin born one time too many now."

Let me read the 35 chapter ob Isaiah fur a lessen. (Reads.) De choir is gwyn to sing, "Walkin In de King's Highway." (They sing.)

Now let evybody git down on da nees an pray. Brudder Poke Salad will lead us in prayer. (His prayer:)

"Our Fadder, we is met hyah dis mawnin to washup tord yoah holy temple, an effen our hearts dont deceive us we want to please you wid dis service. Forgib us ob all ob our sins an transgresssions an make us to feel our acceptance wid thee dis mawnin. Lord you no dat thy servant has bin tryin to walk in de strait an narrow way fur dese 23 years, an you no dat he aint tired yit. Will you send de Holy Spirit down an into our hearts jes now, an revive us cause we is waitin hyar befo Thee, an is expectin a blessin fum thy hans.

"Lord, lead de preacher dis mawnin. May he tell us lots ob things whut we aint nevah heard befo—de things dat will build us up, an strengthen us. Keep us Lord, in de highway ob rite livin, an at last receive us high up in heben, an we will gib Thee de praise thru Christ our Lord. Amen."

You will fin de tex in de 8th verse ob de 35 chapter of Isaiah. It reads lak dis, "An Highway shall be there, and a way, and it shall be called The Way of Holiness; the unclean shall not pass over it; but it shall be for those: the wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein." No doubt you is heard preachers sa dat "de way to heben wuz so plain dat a wayfairin man, though he be a fool need not err therein?" Ah guess da thought da wuz quotin scripture, but Ah has nevah foun dat in de Bible, an Ah amagin dat de tex given above is whut da had in da minds.

Ah will agree dat de wa is very plain. De way ob salvation is not so hard to understan, nor is de rite wa to lib so hard to fin. But effen de scripture dat Ah has selected fur mah tex is whut da had in da mind, Ah mus sa dat it is a rong interpretation. De joyful flourishing ob Christ's Kingdom is whut de prophet had in his mind when he wrote dis chapter. Frum de earilest ages on down thro de years to Christ's time de washup ob de Jews consisted ob types an shadows. Dar wuz so many ceremonial laws, such as observin certain feast days an certain washins an de many kinds ob sacrifices, dat it served de purpose ob obscurein de rite way.

But de ole prophet Isaiah, by de operation ob de spirit, booked down through 713 intervenin years, an beheld de beautiful simplicity ob Christ's Kingdom. An wid a burst ob righteous enthusiasm exclaimed in de language ob my tex, "An highway shall be there." No more types an shadows, no more ceremonial laws, no more ob keepin certain feast days.

We mus notice dat de highway wuz "de way ob holiness." All ob those whose good fortune it is to be in dat highway, would hab de holiness ob their Lord imputed to dem. You will also notice dat "the unclean is not to pass over it." In other words, dat highway is fur de chilun ob Christ's Kingdom. It wuznt set up fur de unclean—de unregenerate, an when we find people in our churches whut wont lib rite, les dont make de mistake ob thinkin dat da is in dat highway. Da is jes members ob de visible church here on earth. Dat birth frum above hasent nevah taken place. Da is jes plain sinners holdin membership in our churches.

It aint hard to find out who is in de highway to heben. Jes watch their step a little while an you can easily tell which wa he is treadin. An den he says dat de highway is fur de wayfairin men. Now we kno dat a wayfairer is one who is gwyn frum one place to another. Ah remember when Ah wuz a boy mah daddy sont me to a man's house to git his mule to work wid his'n to town. Ah wuz in de road dat lead frum our house to dat man's house an some boys met me an sed, "Come an go wid us to de creek an we will go in swimmin. So Ah went wid dem an a snake bit me an da had to take me home, an mah daddy axed me effen de snake wuz in de road an Ah tole him no; so he sed effen Ah had staid in de road an went on to whur Ah wuz gwyn, Ah wouldnt hab bin bit.

We is got some folks in our churches whut is really in de highway, whut can be enticed to play wid snakes. You kno whut Ah mean. Ah mean dat some ob our church folks is so weak dat da will gib way under de strain ob temptation. My Christian frins, let us keep to de highway an not leave it to partake ob de things dat de debel displays long de wa.

Paul says in 2nd Corinthians 2:11, "Lest satan should get an advantage ob us, for we are not ognorant ob his devices." We dat has bin walkin in de king's highway a long time can understan all ob de tricks ob satan cause we are on to all ob his ways. But he will try us evy day wid sumptin new to get an advantage ob us. De young converts whut has cum in to de highway dis summer is ignorant ob his devices. He can allure dem offen de highway an git dem tangled up wid de worl. It is our duty as stronger travelers to hep dem to sta in de rite road. My young Christians, let me say to you, watch yoah step, keep to de rite road an dont let satan trap yoah feet. Now my sinner frin wont you try to git in de highway befo all ob de protracted meetins is ovah?

Git in de highway now an go long wid us to heben. Ah will hab to close now. May de Lord keep us all in de rite wa, an bring in lots mo to journey wid us, is my prayer.

Les stan an be dismss.

Affimative Concord speakeers were Mr. Driver and Mr. Baker. Negatve speakers of Vrbena, were John A. Scott and Herman Dubose. The judges rendered ther decision in favor of the Verbena club.

Ten boys attended the 4-H camp July 28-30. They all enjoyed the fine talks given by different men, also the food and swimming.

A meeting will be held Friday night, August 12, 8:00 p. m., at the high school building. This will be the fourth meeting held. If a member misses three meetings without a reasonable excuse he will be automatically dropped from the club. All members are urged to attend the meeting. FROM REUBY CHASTEEN

Editor Union-Banner:

May I have a little chat through your good old paper again? Of course news is scarce, but I do like to write once a while.

We are having some mighty good meetings around now, if the people would only listen to it.

Mrs. Susan Cooper, of Mulberry, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. J. C. Henley of R 7.

E. S. Chasteen and family left Sunday night to spend a week down in Florida. A fishing trip I suppose. I hope they have a nice trip.

Reauby Chasteen motored to Birmingham last week on a watermelon truck.

Mrs. D. F. Calfee moved in her new home near Mr. Young Smith. Just finished by E. S. and E. T. Chasteen, a real nice little home on the Selma Highway.

The watermelon trucking is about over now, they are mighty cheap this time.

Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Larson had as their guests last Sunday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Wambem, Miss Lola Wambem, and Mr. Clarence Taylor.

Miss Lucille Sherwood of Brundidge is visiting friends here.

A SAD REFLECTION

After looking at some faces which have been lifted, one wonders what they were like in their fallen state.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

The statement of Senator Borah advocating a revision of the European debts under certain conditions has had the effect of reviving the debate on this all-important question. It is apparently the opinion of the Idaho Senator that such revision ought only be agreed to if it can be shown that the American people would benefit through increased world trade and prosperity in a degree sufficient to satisfy the scaling down of the European war debts. That such a qualifying condition for reviving the debts is a comendable one, goes without saying. But that it will be difficult to convince the American people and the members of the United States Senate in advance that such a scaling down of debts would result in a gain rather than an added burden, also goes without saying.

The contentions of the internationalists that debt cancellation will restore prosperity and usher us into another golden era have to be taken with several ounces of salt. They point to the virtual cancellation of German reparations, by the allied governments, and assume that we ought to do the same thing about debts. But the cases are by no means parallel. In the first place reparations were exacted from a fallen enemy by a victorious foe, and they are only being cancelled because the allied governments realize the futility of trying to collect anything more from prostrate Germany. But the money loaned by America to the allies was a regular loan made in good faith. It was a friendly transaction, and it was not executed under duress, not even under the duress of war, because practically all of the unpaid part of the debt represents money loaned after the armistice was signed.

And while Germany is being forgiven reparations solely because she can pay no more, there is no evidence that the allies cannot continue to pay installments on their debts to Uncle Sam, without greatly injuring their economic fabric. They are still spending out enormous sums in preparation for the next war, and the condition of the two greatest nations which owe us money is by no means desperate. Great Britain is gradually getting her financial house in order and France, with the greatest per capita gold reserve in the world has been touched comparatively lightly by the depression. In fact, based on capacity to pay, France is better able to pay now than she was when the debt settlement was made a few years ago.

There is no question that Europe does not want to pay on the war debts any longer, and perhaps she will not continue to pay many years longer. But this does not mean that Uncle Sam should cancel the debt. To do so would be only to let Europe "off easy" without having to go through the stigma of repudiation. Such a situation would put Europe in much better position to borrow from us when the next war comes along. But if the debts are repudiated, not forgiven, the warring nations may have a little more difficulty getting money from Uncle Sam the next time they engage in their more or less popular sport of making war.

When Europe is spending so much for war preparation there is little ground for saying that she is staggering under the burden of debt payments to Uncle Sam. And there is little reason to believe that a cancellation of the debts would greatly change the world economic situation except to add additional burdens on to the backs of American taxpayers. It is quite conceivable that the money which the European nations saved on debt payments would be diverted to battleships, regimental and other supplies. This would benefit nobody but the munitions makers, and certainly we do not want to heap more taxes on the average American for any such purpose.

After all Europe's troubles at the bottom are political rather than economic. What the dark and bloody continent is suffering from most is Polish corridors, Bessarabias, Macedonians, and other political disputes too numerous to mention. If these questions could be gotten rid of, together with the accompanying tariff barriers, Europe's economic troubles would be on a fair way to solution. But, it will be answered, they cannot be eliminated. Well, if this be true, the economic situation certainly cannot be cured by such half measures as debt cancellation and opening the American markets to the cheap labor of Europe and the Orient.

CHILTON COUNTY ACCORDED FAVORABLE POSITION IN FINANCES

The financial condition of Chilton County always gains favorable position when brought to the attention of people of other counties. The other day when Judge Reynolds and our Commissioners were attending the convention of Alabama Probate Judges and County Commissioners in Birmingham, the condition of Chilton County's finances was an item of more than usual interest.

Commenting upon the statements that were made in the convention The Anniston Star had the following editorial:

> Chilton County has set a good example in financial management, having worked on the principle that it is wise not only to live within the income but also to lay something aside for a rainy day. As a result of having followed out that plan, the county government ha sbeen able to offset the effects of the depression by saving in the past when times were flush.
> The highly favorable position of the Chilton County treasury was described by Judge L. H. Reynolds at the convention of county commissioners and probate judges in Birmingham. The county does not owe a cent, he told the convention delegates, and has $75,000 in the treasury. For many years it has paid cash for the things it has bought and saved large sums of money by the discounts obtained in that way.
> The individual with a cash reserve is fortunate today when all incomes are cut to the bone and a county in that position is likewise to be congratulated.

A friend of Judge Reynolds in Anniston clipped the editorial and sent it to him with this comment:

"This item caused quite a bit of comment on the streets of Anniston today, in view of the fact that the city of Anniston was voting on a $200,000 bond issue to pay due bonds and bills."

Concluding his letter to Judge Reynolds, this Anniston friend said "I am proud of old Chilton's financial condition; and I think the Democrats and Republcans of the county better keep you in office as long as you want it."

WHAT IS BACK OF "ECONOMY LEAGUE?"

Considerable comment has developed over the prosposal to organize a Chilton County Unit of the Alabama League for Economy in Government. Arguments vary to all degrees of pro and con.

What is back of the "Economy League?" seems to be the most general question.

Someone has said it is an undercover scheme of the big interests of the state to defeat the income tax proposal which now seems a sure issue in Alabama.

We do not know whether there is any schemes behind the plan or not. Like every other citizen, it sounds good to us to hear talk about reducing expenses of our government. But we would not like to be charmed into a snare on some other issue by the sweet talk about economy.

In other words, the people of Alabama should decide the income tax question on its own merits. The issue should not be clouded by a mixture with other things.

We know full well there are powerful interests in Alabama that do not want an income tax. The reason is plain.

Governor Miller still sticks to his income tax plan. It will bring a big fight in the special session of the legislature.

The people of Alabama will have the job of deciding whether it is to be our law or not. If the proposed Economy League purposes to muddy the waters for the income tax program, we do not want any more of the League.

Economy must come in our state government. It will come. We must have a more equitable and efficient plan for raising revenue. That will come too—we believe by the adoption of an income tax.

Remember the old fashioned woman who was afraid to stand in the light unless she had on at least a half dozen petticoats?

MORAL ECHOES

(By D. W. Haskew)

On Saturday night of July the 30th, a white woman was shouting in a tent meeting being held near Thomasville, Alabama. In the midst of the joyous occasion this woman decided to fling out into the night air a loud whoop that would indicate that she was the happiest shouter under the tent. She opened her mouth wide and the welkin did ring. The trouble came when she tried to shut her mouth. She had put too much strength into the shout and had jerked her jaw off the hinges. Her jaw was securely locked, and for hours she suffered agony. Finally, when the doctor had arrived, and had jerked her jaw into position, she declared that the devil had locked her jaw, and she resumed her shouts of praise. If that was the work of the devil he must have a barrel full of such keys, for it seems that he has locked the jaws of many who are members of our churches. To say the least, not many church folks are talking for the Lord. Our churches are suffering from lock-jaw.

A mother told me of her sportly son this last week. She was going to church and left the boy at home to take his bath and retire. The lad of twelve summers had learned to like the things that made him comfortable, and after filling the bath tub with cool water he undressed and let himself down into the cool water. It made him feel mighty comfortable. He braced his head against the side of the tub, and on his mother's return, there he was in the tub fast asleep. It suited his feelings and regardless of the danger, he meant to enjoy it. It seems to me that going to sleep in a bath tub is rather risky business. That is no more silly and no more dangerous than for church members to find a good, comfortable place on Sunday and remain there to enjoy it when they should be in the house of God. I am sorry, but I am very much afraid that some church members are going to drop under the current and go down while they sleep and snooze in a comfortable place.

I heard about this funny funeral. A negro man died after having been a long sufferer from rheumatism. The disease had drawn his head and feet together. After he had died the undertaker had quite a job to make the body stretch out in the casket. When the feet would be forced down the head would sit up, and when the head would be forced down the feet would sit up. Finally the undertaker tied both ends down. The casket was before the altar in the church that was crowded with the friends of the dead. The preacher was in a reeling way with the funeral oration when the twine broke that held the negro's head down, and the sorpse sat up in the casket. The congregation and the preacher not knowing that the corpse was tied in the casket, decided that it was time to leave the church vacant. They went in every direction. Two of the sisters who were rather bulky in body had run for a mile and were able to run no more. They dropped down to a fast walk, when one of the remarked to the other, "Mandy, we has the out-cussingest pastor any body ever saw." Mandy was surprised and said, "Why Malinda, has you heard our pastor using profane words?" "Yes" replied Malinda, "I knows dat you must have seen and heard dat man who passed us down de sister dat man was our pastor and he was road wid de window frame on his neck. Why sayin every time his foot hit de ground, 'Dam a church that has only one door'."

The pastor of a congregation was entertained in a country home where roasting ears were served for supper. The visiting preacher was suddenly taken ill and could not preach that night. The pastor was forced into the stand. For supper he had eaten ten ears of corn, and now that he had to preach he saw what he was up against. Before entering the pulpit he went aside to have a little understanding with the Lord, and here is the prayer he prayed, "Lord, I never ask you for many things, and when I do ask you for something I do not ask for much. Lord, I am in the bad tonight with those ten roasting ears and if you will take care of nine of them, I will take care of the other one." That is the way the most of us approach God. We say to him that if he will take care of nine-tenths of our foolishness, we will be able to handle the other tenth.

In Clanton last week a visiting colored preacher was conducting a revival. The meeting was drawing to a close. The one doing the preaching had annouced that he had to have a certain sum for his services and on the last night the committees were asked to report. All the cash had been turned in but ninety cents. The service started but when it came time to preach, the visiting minister refused to deliver his message until the cash was in full. The congregation seemingly had no more cash. The preacher said, "Now my brethren if you is dead broke and cant pay me dat 90 cents, hold up your hand." Every hand in the audience went up. Then the preacher said in his most solemn way, "We will rise and receive the benediction." The local pastor called for silence and several of the heads of the church went together and the 90 cents was paid. That was putting the gospel on a cash bisis.

CONFUSION AMONG THE CLERKS

Representative Percy Pitts was at the capitol in Montgomery Monday. He states that there was very perceptible confusion among the clerks on account of the economy talk and discontinuing unnecessary office workers.

"You are not going to vote to cut out any of our jobs, are you?" they asked Mr. Pitts.

The Chilton representative assured them his first vote in the special session would be to cut his own salary 25 per cent; and then he would go right down the line voting for the same reduction for everybody else on the state payroll.

That is the way to do it. We have heard economy talk in Alabama long enough. What we must have now is some economy voting by members of the legislature.

Senator Bonner sounded the keynote in his statement recently made. It would be a grand achievement if Alabama could balance her budget by cutting government expenses and not resort to increased taxes.

The depression has taught individuals they can and must live within their income. If the State of Alabama has not learned the same lesson, it is a shame on our statesmen.

The coming special session of the legislature should do much for Alabama, and do it in a very short time.

THE NEED OF A HIGHER TARIFF

Go through your stores and observe the articles marked, "Made in Germany," "Made in Belgium," "Made in France," "Made in Czecho-Slovakia," and so on, and then decide for yourself whether the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill is the "robber tariff" that some of the Democratic orators and writers are declaiming it to be. And in your investigation only consider those articles that you know could be made in the United States if we had an adequate tariff to protect our manufacturers and our factory workers.

Then consider the fact that Luxemberg, Germany, Belgium and France are dumping great cargoes of steel into our ports and are shipping it inland, some of it to Chicago within sight of the smoke of the Gary steel mills, and see how this "robber tariff" is working in that industry.

When some of the European nations went off the gold standard and upon a cheap money basis, automatically they made some of our tariffs inoperative, but even before that time these countries were able to lay down in this country scores of products that we manufacture or produce, and do so at a smaller cost than they can be produced, under our standards of living, in this country.

Our great steel indstry is now operating at about 15 per cent normal. All of its stagnation is not due to importations of steel, of course, but much of it is due exactly to that situation. The structural steel used in some recent Chicago buildings was bought abroad—and Chicago adjoins the greatest steel factories in the land.

We do not need lower tariffs in America but higher ones. The tariff commission, within limits, has the power, with the approval of the president, to remedy some of these conditions, but it is tied down in authority and requires the backing of additional laws to become effective.

The Republican party in this campaign could not possibly make a mistake by emphasizing the tariff issue and boldy declaring in favor of absolute protection for the products of the American farm and factory.

The MAN in the MOON

Looks Over All—
Overlooks None.

Another Milestone

Yes, sir, I passed another milestone on Monday of this week. That's twenty-nine of 'em—no use trying to get out of it—I'm not that old, really, but I've been here that long, and it all boils down to the same thing. And how the last ten years have slipped by. The passage of the time since I can remember, reminds me of a train as it gets away from a station. For the first few years the time dragged. It seemed ages between times when Christmas would come around. And birthdays—seemed always between them. Bye and bye they began rolling around a little fatser. And now that old train seems faster. And now that old age train seems going full steam—lickty split—with the wheels clicking merrily—and every click meaning another year has gone by. Well, there isn't much I can do about it, but just hope they keep clicking for a long, long time.

Around the Corner

I have been hearing for a good while that prosperity was just around the corner. Now, it seems, we have reached the corner, and turned it—and sure enough, there's old Dame Proseperity waiting for us. She says she has been there a long time, just a-waiting for us to get enough energy to hobble on up to the corner, where we could peep around and see her. She says: "What a people. They knew I was here all the time—just around the corner—because I could hear them saying as much. They must be lazy, though. Instead of getting up and coming on around the corner, where they could benefit by all these good things I have for them, they had rather lie down and wait and grumble and mumble and try to get Mr. Hoover to either roll them around here to me, or drag me around there to them. But he couldn't do that, you know. I'm right glad they are here, though—we all ought to have a great time from now on, that is, if they don't get scared and run off back around the corner and leave me again."

Now, Ain't That Tough

Well, I don't reckon there's any way under the sun to satisfy these Democrats. For the past two or three years they have led in voicing general dissatisfaction of the way things have been carried on. They wanted somebody—anybody—to bring things back to normal. And, now, since things are beginning to show signs of picking up, they have started grumbling about it—they seem to think somebody had it all planned to bring back prosperity just in time to beat Roosevelt. But, as usual, they're all wrong again—that isn't what it was for, at all. To tell the truth, we all would have welcomed prosperity long ago. Now, so far as Roosevelt is concerned, it does seem that it all happened at a very inopportune time for the furtherance of his political aspirations. But you must remember we have been telling you all the time that Mr. Roosevelt didn't have a ghost of a chance—never, no way, no time—and that isn't an "I-told-you-so" either. And, another thing that hurts our good old Democratic friends so bad is this: They realize that it was through the help of the Democratic Congress, and the first they could be inveigled into enacting, (the first time Mr. Hoover could get them to help him), that things began to happen which tended toward an upturn in the economic situation. Why, oh why, (they cry), could'nt those bone-heads wait until after the election to start such action, so the Democrats could grab all the credit?

The Forum

I don't suppose any of you knew Clanton had a forum—a place where all kinds of subjects are discussed. Believe it or not, we have. Right up there on the Gore corner, any day in the week, Sunday included, you can hear anything discussed. If you don't believe it, just stroll around some time and listen in. And if you don't hear your pet subject mentioned, just name it yourself, and you'll hear all you want to about it—maybe more. And, you don't even have to stand up while listening. There are seats for all. However, if the forum should happen to be unusually crowded, there are posts for you to lean against, or you can sit on the sidewalk and lean back against them. Come around some time and listen in on anything—the Bible, prohibition, Mr. Hoover, Mr. Roosevelt, hard times, good times, baseball — anything. — Man in the Moon.

"Just Passing Through"

Joe Hall Johnson was walking around in front of the courthouse on tom-walkers Monday. It reminded Uncle George Willis of this story: "Way back years ago a crowd of us were at a wheat-threshing. At the dinner table Tom Retherford sat at the head of the table. There was a big pan of chicken pie on the table. About a dozen men were between the pie and Tom. When the pie finally got to the head of the table Tom took it. I noticed he held it a mighty long time. Finally he said he guessed the chicken must have gone through the pie on the tom-walkers."

Hope He Gets Better

Friends of Clarence Evans in Clanton will be sorry to learn that he is having serious trouble with his eyes. For the past six months he has been forced to give up business and remain at his home in Corinth, Miss. Clarence is the oldest son of Mrs. Glennie Evans. His father was Jean Evans, who for many years was a merchant here. We sincerely hope he may have the blessing of recovery from his ailment, and the restoratoin of his eyes.

I Hope They Get It

I went to the meeting Tuesday while the Commissioners were hearing expressions of citizens on the proposal to borrow $50,000 from the Federal government to be used to relieve the unemployed. The plan sounds good to me and I hope our Commissioners get the money and put the idle of our county to work on the roads. A few people seemed to hesitate at the plan. Wonder why? There's a reason. Don't care to discuss that. I admire a man who will strike out bravely to do something when the call of distress is sounded.

Politicians Seek Issues

I know politicians have to have an issue to stand on—platforms, they call them. Some politicians are lucky enough to grab the right side of public questions and use them for their platforms. Others are either unlucky and grab the wrong side, or are slow and have to take the leavings, after the other fellow has grabbed. If I do not miss my guess, somebody in Chilton County has done some unlucky grabbing recently, in choosing political issues.

Atkinson for Mayor

Former Mayor, J. B. Atkinson, announces this week that he is a candidate for that office again. The election will be held some time in September. Whatever may be ones personal attitude toward the different candidates who get into the race, it must be admitted that the term of Mr. J. B. Atkinson as mayor from 1926 to 1928, was, in a great measure, a constructive administration of the town's business. I do not know who else will get into the scrap with Mr. Atkinson. I presume the present mayor, J. Lee Smith, will be in the race for re-election.

Mrs. Clara Mullins, in a most jubilant spirit, called me up the other night, to tell me the ladies of Clanton had won first prize — $100 in gold — in the I. G. A. label contest. This prize, I understand, was divided equally between the ladies of the Methodist and Baptist churches. No wonder Mrs. Mullins was happy. Such a prize is not to be laughed at by any means. The ladies of the two churches express their thanks to all who helped them to win the prize.

The Cemetery Looks Better

The Pilot Club of Clanton, who took the lead, and all others who helped carry out the work, are deserving of the thanks of the community for the improvement of our cemetery. They did a good job. I have thought for many years some day somebody would get tired of the unkempt appearance of the cemetery and do something about it. The entire cost of the clean-up job has not been met. If you own a lot down there you should chip in on the deficit. See Mrs. Walter Martin.

What Will They do?

We shall soon see again the spectacle of Alabama's legislature in session. What will glorious opportunity to write their name and they do, we wonder. They certainly have a fame across the pages of Alabama's history. Never ni our generation was there a time when more needed doing than now. Economy, taxes, schools, and dozens of other important questions flame up with a burning challenge to our statesmen. What will they do, we wonder?

SOME POLITICAL STRAWS

Political observers in Washington are attaching considerable significance to the fact that the American Federation of Labor has refused to make political endorsements this year so far as recommending the organization support to either of the great parties' national tickets. It is known that many of the Democratic leaders had expected and hoped for the official support of the great labor organization, and are surprised and disappointed over the failure to get this. According to the Federation of Labor news service in appraising the platforms of the Republican and Democratic parties in the consideration that the two have given American labor, the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, the largest organized body of labor in the United States, reports a score of 10 to 4 in favor of the Republican party.

Twenty-three demands made on each of the two leading political parties by the American Federation of Labor were used as the yard stick, and the Executive Council reports that the Republican party has definitely adopted ten of these demands in its platform, while the Democrats have definitely adopted four. It reports that in addition the Republican party covered in a general way two other phases of the twenty-one demands, the Republican party remaining silent on only eleven of labor's demands, while the Democratic party, according to the labor council, was silent on sixteen of the demands.

Political observers also feel that there is great political significance in the fact that the Democratic National ticket failed to receive the endorsement of the national militant wet organization and of the wet organization inside the American Federation of Labor. It is becoming evident that a great many issues will have significance in the coming campaign and that it will not be fought solely on the wet and dry issue.

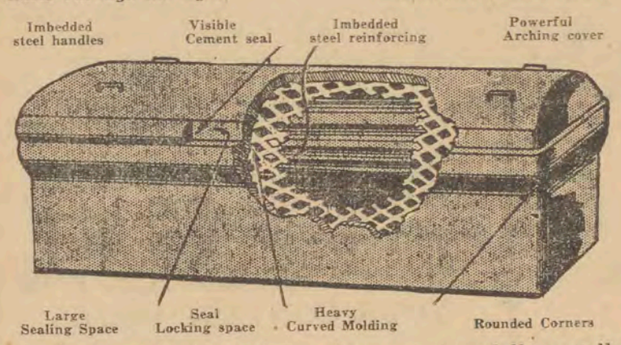
Norwalk Cement Burial Vaults

"Lasts Through the Ages" —Prevents Sunken Graves



The superintendent of a modern cemetery fells morally obliged to inform those who come to him at the time of bereavement of the merits of the various vaults used to protect the casket from the elements. To do this the burial vault must be rust proof, water proof, decay proof, able to withstand severe shocks and capable of resisting great weights.

The NORWALK CEMENT VAULT combines these qualities to the highest degree.

Largest vault does not exceed $70 in Cost.

ALABAMA MERCHANTS ASSO.

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 8.—Thousands of merchants from every section of Alabama are expected to attend the sixteenth annual convention of the Alabama Merchants Association to be held here August 24-25, in responce to the call of Irby Hall, of Collinsville, president of the association.

W. A. Currie, general chairman of the committees on arrangements, reports all committees active in preparing for the event, and he is actively supported in the preparations for welcoming and entertaining the large hosts by the executive committee of the Wholesale Merchants and Manufacturers Division of the Chamber of Commerce, with J. C. Hodges as chairman.

The outstanding entertainment and social event will be the annual convention grand ball at the Hollywood Country Club on Wednesday night, August 24, according to plans perfected by the entertainment committee, of which Meyer N. Kronenberg is chairman. During this ball a snappy cabaret show will be presented and favors and souvenirs distributed, with a famous orchestra supplying the music.

A water carnival at the large club pool, with a junior and senior diving and swimming contest in six separate events, and with valuable prizes to be awarded, will precede the ball from 8 to 8:30 p.m., and during the succeeding half hour will take place the "Hostess Revue" and the selection of the "Queen of the A. M. A." with appropriate ceremonies, promsing a rare spectacle for the visiting merchants.

Thursday night's final business session at a local theatre at 8 o'clock will be featured by an address on a timely topic by Edgar M. Elliot, widely known authority on economy in government, and by installation of the officers elected at the forenoon business session. This will be followed at 9 p.m. by a big time vaudeville show, and concluding with the giving away of an automobile to one of the visiting merchants.

All entertainment features are to be free to visitors who on their arrival will register in the vestibule of the Municipal Auditorium, beginning at an early hour of the morning of August 24.

Hugh Mallory Scors Any Higher Taxation

In my judgement, the people of Alabama are against additional taxation, and feel that we should not think in terms of more taxes or consider ways or means therefor until we have exhausted every effort to reduce government expenses and appropriations to where the State can function within its present income.

If after this honest effort additional taxation is inevitable, then undoubtedly a sales tax is the only patriotic and effective form and the one least caluculated to further upset business conditions.

A special session of the legislature should be called for the purpose of cutting all government expenses and appropriations to the very bone and fixing budgets that will not exceed the state's income from present taxes and passing a law to refund the floating debt with interest bearing warrants.

The question of additional taxation should not be considered until every other honest effort to meet the situation has failed.

If the legislature meets and the general impression prevails that additional taxes must be levied, there is not a "chinamans chance" to cut expenses or reduce appropriations to any appreciable extent. There will be a gesture in that direction, but it will be only a gesture. I am convinced that our legislators want to protect the taxpayers, but unless they have the organized support of the people back home, or if there is an understanding that additional taxes must be levied, they will not be able to withstand the persistent onslaughter of the employees and heads of the various departments for more money—more taxes or their opposition to any reduction. The only way to stop these militant minorities is for the people to let it be emphatically known that they are demanding drastic reductions in appropriations and are in principle opposed to increased taxation.

According to the authentic reports the majority of the State Departments—especially the educational and highway departments—are receiving and spending four or five times more money than they did fifteen years ago. In my opinion the budgets of these departments could be cut at least one-third without injuring their efficiency or usefulness. Many of the mare burdened with useless frills and furbelows that serve no purpose except to increase taxation.

Will Rogers had a very readable article in last Sunday's papers, entitled "What's Wrong with the Schools," in which he says, "Some of these days they are going to remove so much of the bunk and hooey and the thousands of things that the schools have become clogged up with and we will find that we can educate our broods for about one-tenth the price."

We ought to get back to a prewar basis and after reducing expenses and appropriations one-third, we may find that we don't need any more taxes. Of this one thing we may be certain—these organized departmental lobbies will never allow the legislature to reduce appropriations so long as they think the people will stand for additional taxes.

Tax burdens should be imposed under the enlightened conscience and according to the will of the majority of those who pay taxes and not by ever-zealous enthusiasts or selfish receipients of the people's bounty or fruits of their sacrifice.

Experience teaches us that a zealot does not count the cost. He may be conservative along these lines, but he is a spend-thrift for the cause he espouses. Leave him unchecked and he runs hog wild. The past fifteen years might well be called the "age" of the spend-thrift.

Everybody except those who spend the taxpayers' money seems to have realized that the recent orgy of money spending can not go on and the people have made drastic cuts in standards of living until economy has become with them the spirit of the hour.

But not so with those who are spending the people's money. They seem determined to maintain their false standards and extravagant policies regardless of the cost. They neither think or talk the language of real retrenchment. In season and out of season they cry for more taxes—new forms of taxation. Give them an inch and they will take miles. They seem to have no sympathy for tax ridden people, who have been bled white in a desperate effort to meet their exorbitant demands.

There is but one thing to do—the people must rise up and assert themselves. Above all, there should be an intelligent organization on their part in order to offset these organized minorities.— Yours very truly, Hugh Mallory.

Lesson for August 14

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS— DUTIES TO MAN

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:12-21.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.—Leviticus 19:18.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Ten Commandments.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Ten Commandments.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Loving and Helping Others.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Christian Interpretation of the Commandments.

The first table of the law sets forth the duties Godward, the second manward. The fifth commandment is the centerpiece of the Decalogue, keystone of the Sinaitic arch.

I. The Fifth Commandment (v. 12).

This commandment rests upon the fundamental basis of fact that parents stand with their children in the place of God.

1. How this commandment may be broken.

(a) By showing disrespect to parents. Disrespect is shown to parents: (1) By speaking of them as "the old man" and "the old woman." (2) By living such lives as cast reproach upon them. (3) By being ashamed to be seen in their company.

(b) By disobedience. It is right that the child should obey its parents and it is the responsibility of the parent to see that obedience is rendered.

(c) By not supporting them in old age. When parents are no longer able to care for themselves it is the children's duty to care for them.

2. Promises annexed to this commandment.

(a) "That it may be well with thee" (Eph. 6:3). (b) That thou mayest live long upon the earth.

II. The Sixth Commandment (v. 13).

The Scriptures show man's life to be sacred. Man was created in God's image. Every attempt to take human life is a thrust at God. This commandment may be broken:

By sinful anger (Matt. 5:22). By hatred (I John 3:15). By immoderate use of meats and drinks. By immoderate recreation. By selling adulterated foods and diseased meats. By employers having unsafe surroundings, thereby causing the death of their employees. By failing to provide proper food and clothing for wives and children. By sending children to toil in shops and factories. By suicide. By infanticide. By wars.

III. The Seventh Commandment (v. 14).

This is a bulwark thrown around the home. The home is not only the oldest of God's institutions, but the foundation of them all. This commandment may be broken:

By unclean thoughts, affections, purposes, and imaginations (Matt. 5:27, 28; 15:19). By unchaste conversation. By wanton looks (Isa. 3:16; 2 Pet. 2:14). By immodest apparel. One's clothing is a strong factor in revealing character. By actual adultry. By divorce.

IV. The Eighth Commandment (v. 15).

This commandment strikes at the sin of theft. Many things are legally right which are morally wrong. This commandment may be broken:

By taking that which belongs to another. By using false weights and measures. By selling adulterated foods and inferior goods. By extortion. By employers defrauding employees, and employees failing to do honest work or to put in full time. By borrowing and not returning. By going into debt, knowing that payment is impossible. By usury. By graft. By lying advertisements. By making assignments to escape payment of debts. By gambling. By strong nations oppressing weaker ones.

V. The Ninth Commandment (v. 16)

The sin aimed at by this command is a most deadly one—that of lying. This commandment may be broken:

By actual lying. By perjury—swearing to falsehoods by the name of God. By slander—speaking against another falsely with a purpose to injure. By tale-bearing (Lev. 19:16). This is commonly done by repeating a report without ivestigating its truthfulness. By creating a false impression (Exod. 23:1). By a breach of promise. By withholding the truth. By perverting the meaning of a statement. By exaggeration. By flattery. By recommending for a position of honor and trust a man who is unfitted for it. By granting a church letter to a man who is unworthy.

VI. The Tenth Commandment (v. 17).

This commandment strikes at the desire for that which is unlawful for one to have. The sin does not lie in the desire to possess things but in the desire to possess that which belongs to another.

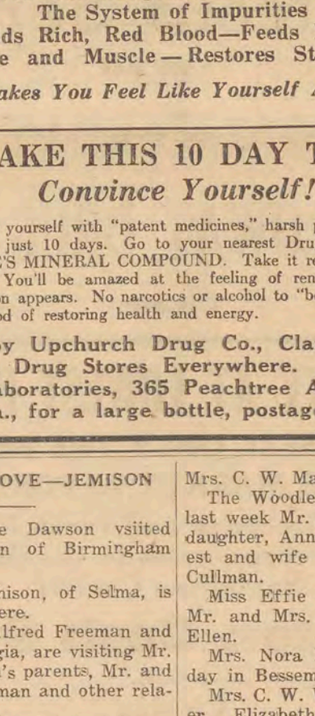
Mineral Compound Proves Sensation

Scores of Local People Report Amazing Results from New Scientific Food Vitalizer; Druggists Astounded at Tremendous Sales.

Probably never before in all the history of this county has any product been given such whole-hearted praise as the new, scientific formula known as LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND. Men and women in all walks of life have put this remarkable Food Vitalizer to the test and proven its amazing powers. Literally thousands of people have made the now famous 10 day test and have proven that Nature's way is the right way to health.

So swift and sweeping has been the success of this new compound that in a few short weeks, it has become the talk of the country. Those who have used it tell astouunding stories of what it has done for them, and, were the facts not known and verified, it would be hard to believe that any single treatment could prove so effective in so many different cases.



It merely goes to prove the assertion of famous Scientists that the one sure way to maintain health is to supply the body with a balanced proportion of the essential Mineral elements and necsary Vitamins.

The one and only product of its kind, LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND, contains eleven essential Minerals, splendidly combined with Vitamins and valuable tonic aids. It acts as a Food Vitalizer, feeding the system those vital elements that we fail to get in modern refined foods. It stimulates the organs of digestion and assimilation, creates a keen, hearty appetite, clears the system of dangerous impurities and waste material, soothes "ragged" nerves, enables one to sleep soundly, awake refreshed and filled with new vigor for the daily battles of life.

No wonder that those who have tried so many other treatments, with little or no benefit, have been quick to turn to this natural method of restoring health. No wonder the sales of "patent" medicines, harsh laxatives and dangerous "painkillers" have fallen to the lowest mark in years. People today are more intelligent than they used to be and are quick to take advantage of the new and proven scientific discoveries. That accounts for the tremendous demand for this amazing compound that builds new health, strength and vigor in Natures own way.

If you have tried many medicines and treatments that gave you little or no relief, do not be discouraged. The chances are 10 to 1 you'll find LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND is just what your system needs to restore your heath.

"ROAR OF DRAGON" WITH DIX AS HERO

Richard Dix, star of "Cimarron," "Secret Service" and other recent romatic films, has an entirely new kind of role in "Roar of the Dragon," the dramatic story of turbulent Manchuria, coming to the Wadesonian Theatre, Friday and Saturday, August 12 and 13.

In contrast to the rollicking, lighthearted character he unusually portrays, Dix is seen as a cynical, disillusioned skipper of the Chinese river service, with little faith in men and none at all in women.

His boat disabled by Chinese bandits, Dix and his varied group of passengers take refuge in a small interior village where they convert a former Mandarin's palace into a stockade.

Here, under fire from bandits and threatened by plague, Dix meets and falls in love with a beautiful Russian woman of mystery. Her calm courage, her willingness to risk the meanest privation to remain with him, rejuvenate Dix and he changes from a selfish sluggard to a daring leader of the beleagued refugees.

The romance has as a stirring background the teeming life of a Chinese village, torn by civil strife and ruthless bandit raids. A graphic picture is presented of the chaotic conditions of the Orient today.

Supporting Dix is Gwili Andre, young Danish actress who created a sensation in Hollywood even before the release of her first picture. Tall, slender, and with a striking blonde beauty, Miss Andre is a perfect foil for Dix in his spirited film.

Edward Everett Horton, Zasu Pitts, Arline Judge and Dudley Gigges have important roles in this RKO Radio picture directed by Wesley Ruggles.

Mr. and Mrs. William Pierce and grandson, William Arthur Newman, visited Mrs. J. M. Nix and Mrs. D. H. Gentry Monday afternoon.

Miss Rachael Peterson spent Monday with Miss Agnes Leary.

Mrs. William Bland, Mrs. Walter Blood and Sylvester Booth spent last Thursday and Friday in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Mack Gray spent Sunday in Selma.

Mrs. A. B. Colley and son, Carl, have returned to their home in Prattville after spending a week with her daughter, Mrs. Mack Gray.

The story telling hour at Thorsby Institute library was rained out last week. Let us hope for better weather next Friday afternoon, which will be the last time for this year.

A meeting of the Thorsby Fruit and Truck Growers is called for Saturday afternoon, August 20th at 2 p.m. at Thorsby Public School, for the purpose of reading and considering certain proposed changes in the constitution and by-laws. One change to be proposed will be changing of the time of annual meeting from the first Saturday in January to some time later this fall. This will give new officers of the association plenty of time, to get everything ready for the coming year, and will leave the January meeting open for fertilizer or crop discussions, which should be given more time than has been customary.

To the Citizens of the Town of Clanton:

I am a candidate for the office of Mayor of the Town of Clanton, Alabama, and will appreciate receiving your vote and influence in my behalf. The people of Clanton honored me with the office of Mayor for a two-year term, beginning October 1st, 1926, and ending October 1st, 1928, during which time the indebtedness of the town was reduced, and all operating expenses, and the interest on the town's bonds were paid promptly. The town purchased and paid for the warehouse and lot near the Methodist church. An additional well was dug and equipped with pump, besides the purchase of one truck and other street equipment.

The total additions and gain of the town during the two years, when I was mayor, amounted to $14,912.00, besides reducing the indebtedness as stated. The initial payment of $765.00 was made on the fire truck and there was no paving done, or any attempt to burden any taxpayer with any assessments, due to the fact that our economic conditions would not then permit any program in paving of streets and side walks. The water rates during the time I was mayor were not raised and if elected mayor, I will use my influence and vote to reduce the water rates, licenses, and taxes. The expenses of the town will be reduced wherever practicable and no paving program will be had at the expense of the taxpayers or property owners. The records of the town disclose that during my term as mayor, the town supplemented the teachers' salaries and liberal donations were made to our grammar and high schools. The council fixes the salary of the mayor, and if I am elected, I shall ask the council to fix a minimum salary so that we may include the schools in our budget and aid the school authorities the best we can, to obtain a nine months thems for our schools.

If the people elect me as their mayor, I will conduct myself, at all times, in such a way that they shall not have cause to regret placing their confidence in, and again honoring me with the office. Thanking each citizen for their vote and influence, I am,

J. B. ATKINSON,

Financing the Schools Is A Momentous Task

County Superintendent, B. Lawrence Continues His Discussion of Important Phases of Our County School Administration

School Finances In Good Shape If State Would Pay Its Obligations

In this article, dealing with the financial condition of the schools of the county, I think it proper and right to call attention to the fact that the County Board of Education is responsible for the financial set-up of the County System. The Board is the governing body and the Superintendent is the executive officer to execute the orders of the Board of Education. He is the Secretary of the Board to keep its minutes and all records. Hence credit is due them for any worthwhile thing that may be done. The Superintendent never has a vote on any matter and it would be illegal for him to vote on any question under consideration by the Board.

With the above statement of facts there is no room for misunderstanding anything I may say in this article. Seven years ago the County Board of Education had outstanding a little above twenty two thousand ($22,000) of warrants. These had accumulated as the result of a splendid building program which had been underway. Today if the more than $42,000 of state warrants, which we hold, were paid, the Board could pay off all indebtedness and be on a cash basis. I think this is a splendid piece of work they have done and I do not believe it has been excelled anywhere else by any board in the state.

When we come to consider the size of the task of the 'County Board of Education we can appreciate their splendid work more fully. Only a few years ago there was but one accredited high school in the county and the average parent looked forward to getting his child through the seventh grade. Now there are five accredited high schools in the county. Four thousand six hundred elementary children and 1,297 high school children were enrolled in the schools of the county last year. We had 973 elementary negro children and 91 high school negro children enrolled. This gives a total enrollment of 5,897 white children and 1,064 negro children or a total of 6,961. This is quite an army and to provide training for these is the task of the Board of Education.

As for the financial accounting of the Board I quote from the Brookings Institute report, page 184.

"The most satisfactory accounts kept anywhere in the counties are those of the County Superintendent of education." We make an effort to keep every account in such a way as to be able at any and all times to give an account of every fund. For the appearance and splendid way in which our own books are kept, I would be unfair not to give credit to Mrs. Jewel Martin Smith. The Board is to be commended for its ability and care in selecting assistants of her type.

Every parent in the county would like to know the length of the school term for the coming scholastic year. We do not know, because the state of Alabama already owes us more than $42,000 and we can get no assurance from them as to when this or any other appropriations will be paid. We expect to open schools and go as far as our county funds will permit us. This will be about one-half year. If the State will arrange to pay its obligations to education, then we will have a full term.—B. Lawrence.

CONSUMER MUST PAY ELECTRIC POWER RATE

Washington, Aug., 8.—The three per cent tax on electrical energy levied in the new revenue act must be paid by the consumer.

Regulations issued by the internal revenue bureau provide that municipally-owned plants must add three per cent of a customer's bill when it is rendered each month to provide for the levy.

The regulations say that the tax applies to the amount paid for all electrical energy furnished for domestic or commercial consumption by any person or agency whether private, public or quasi-public.

In cases where municipalities buy energy and resell it the 3 per cent tax must be added to the customer's bill and a report made to the internal revenue bureau just the same as where a municipality manufactures and sells the energy.

Education is the chief ally of business and is the foundation of good government. Its value to the business of the world is in direct ratio to its spread among the people.—Augustus O. Thomas.

OUR COUNTY OPPORTUNITY SCHOOLS

The county opportunity schools are in their fourth week of the summer session. These schools are of untold value to those people in the county who are being benefitted by them. Many people who are really and truly the salt of the earth failed to have the opportunity of schooling when they were young. Now, since the state and county have seen fit to contribute money to run these schools, the fine folks above are happily reading, writing and doing their arithmetic with a great deal of enthusiasm. Mr. H. A. Harris is the organizer of the adult schools of the county and is putting in many hours each day keeping up the interest among the students and inspiring and helping the teachers in their noble task.

Much of the school page this week has been given over to news from the opportunity schools.

Growing Broilers on Chilton Connty Farm

Interesting Story of Poultry Project Conducted by Marvin M. Durbin, Who is a Student At The Isabella Vocational School

In my agriculture course at Isabella High School, I became interested in poultry. With the help of Mr. Thomas, my agriculture teacher, I built four Auburn type brooder houses last winter. They were built in units of two rooms each with a 6 foot by 4 foot feed room between the rooms. These four rooms gave me a capacity of 2,000 chicks.

The houses were stocked the first time in February. By buying 2,000 chicks I got them cheaper than I would if I were buying only a few. The chicks were placed in the houses and fed a ready mixed feed for two weeks.

I moved a cot into one of the feed rooms so I could care for the chicks better. I used an alarm clock and got up every two hours to look after the fires and temperature.

Litter was used on the floor at first, but was replaced by wire, as this is more sanitary and easier to keep clean. Wire does not require as much labor as does the littered floor.

The chicks were given sour skim milk, all they could drink, from day old chicks until they reached broilers. When they were two weeks old I changed them from the ready mixed feed to the 26 per cent protein supplement, with which I mixed two parts of corn meal. The corn meal and milk were grown on the farm and there was no profitable sale for either.

Feed salesmen from various milling companies told me I could not grow broilers on the supplement feed, but I stuck to it and turned out broilers on the supplement with a two pound average at 10 weeks old.

The supplement is much cheaper than the ready prepared feed. Prepared feeds cost from two to three cents per pound, and the Supplement cost only one and one-half cents per pound, and this is allowing 50 cents per bushel for corn used in the feed.

Due to lack of experience, I raised only 85 per cent of my first stock. On my second I raised more. I now have a batch of 1,000 chicks that are 6 weeks old and I have 95 per cent of them yet. At this time the most danger is over.

When you have a bunch of chickens on the farm you can sell your home grown products through them, thereby creating a market for field crops. By the middle of July, 1932, I have turned out 4,000 broilers. The chicks have drunk about 1,000 gallons of milk, and have eaten nine tons of corn meal. The milk was produced here on the farm and the corn was also grown here on the farm. For these products, I have received a good price—far above the market and I doubt if I could have sold them at all, at any price.

Out of my first years experience, I have learned some things about raising chicks.

1. Keep down feed cost.
2. Keep everything sanitary.
3. Keep down mortality.
4. Never buy low vitality chicks.

MT. PISGAH SCHOOL

Misses Harris and Dennis Are Teaching Reading, Writing and Arithmetic

In the midst of the two revivals, the people of Mt. Pisgah are taking advantage of the opportunity to go to school. Miss Nora Harris is teaching the school subjects—arithmetic reading, etc., and Miss Bertha Dennis is teaching the women and girls better methods of doing the daily tasks of their household duties. A brief sketch of the work is here given:

Clothing—

1. Dresses—In the sewing class much stress has been put on cutting, design, color, school clothes for children, appropriateness of dress for travel, for church, and for home work.

2. Wash ties for men, have been made in school at a very small cost.

3. Exchange for patterns, dress patterns and quilt patterns have been exchanged in the school.

4. Home laundry can be made easier by raising the height of the washing bench, planting vines for a shade (if a shelter can be built,) and storing fuel at odd times, so it will be on hand when wash day comes. Women are also learning to remove stains from garments.

5. Personal grooming—in addition to the above, the class of girls are studying to develop desirable qualities of personality as friendliness, consideration for others, how to be well poised, avoid being loud and boisterous.

Foods—

1. For the family, a well balanced meal, consists of 2 vegetables and potatoes, 1 raw vegetable, eggs in some form or meat, 1 quart of milk, bread, fruit (fresh, canned or dried).

2. For small children, milk, soft cooked eggs, whole grain cereals, fruits and vegetables, crisp dry breads.

3. For the sick, easily digestible foods as poached eggs, milk shakes, fruit juices and fruit.

Growing year-around gardens, and preservation and storage of foods are taking much of the attention of the teachers and pupils.

Dr. Denny Favors Prohibition Laws

University President Gives His Reason For Favoring 18th Amendment

Dr. George H. Denny, president of the University of Alabama, was asked to state in a few words why he was in favor of retaining the 18th Amendment. You are at liberty to quote him as follows:

"There is every good reason why the American people should resist every effort to bring back the saloon. No good reason can be served by its return. On the contrary, the return of the old regime would be calamity.

I do not consider the prohibition question a political question. It is a great economic question. It is a great moral question. It is a great spiritual question.

"The public conscience needs to be aroused to the peril that now confronts the entire country. The younger generation is apparently finding it difficult to realize just what those of us of maturer years witnessed during the days of the open saloon. My conviction is that the overwhelming masses of our people who have had experience with the wide open saloon will not find it difficult to decide that the present situation is infinitely to be preferred to the situation that obtained a quarter of a century ago."

INSURING PUBLIC TAKE NOTICE

The department of insurance has been reliably informed that the following companies, societies and associations are selling contracts of insurance to citizens of this state, without authority of Alabama law:

Louisiana Mutual Benevolent Association, New Orleans, La.

National Union Indemnity Association, Shreveport, La.

Reliance Mutual Benefit Association, Tampa, Fla.

National Aid Society, Springfield, Ill.

Postal Life & Casualty Insurance Co., Kansas City, Mo.

Physicians Health & Accident Insurance Co., Dallas, Texas.

Iowa State Traveling Men's Association, Des Moines, Iowa.

National Protective Association, Kansas City, Mo.

Merchants & Bankers Mutual Benefit Corp., Jacksonville, Fla.

American Benefit Corporation, Springfield, Illinois.

American Protective Association, Shreveport, La.

Allstates Insurance Co., Chicago, Illinois.

Alabama citizens can not afford to buy insurance from these unauthorized companies for the following reasons:

1. They are not qualified. If you have a contract with one of them, have a claim, and the company disputed the claim, you will have to ligitate in the State of Domicile. Alabama Courts have no jurisdiction. And the Federal Courts will seldom have jurisdiction.

2. There are hundreds of splendid companies authorized to do business here, writing the same form of insurance these unauthorized companies write. The qualified companies are paying the state substantial privilege and license taxes for the purpose of being subject to the laws of this state. Citizens should, therefore, buy insurance from these authorized companies.

3. If citizens buy insurance from unqualified fire insurance companies, they are required by law to report this fact to the Superintendent of Insurance and pay 4 per cent interest on the gross premium within 30 days from date of purchase. After thirty days, they are required to pay 8 per cent. Moreover, if they have a fire loss, they must pay the Adjuster ½ of 1 per cent of the amount representing the loss before the Adjuster is authorized to complete his report.

4. Proper insurance protection is too important for citizens to take chances with unqualified companies, which are not subject to our laws. Please do not deal with unauthorized companies.

5. Agents representing unqualified companies are subject to criminal indictment. If convicted, it is a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of not less than $100, nor more than $500, or imprisonment in the County jail for thirty days, or both, at the discretion of the Court.

BAGLEY COACH GREENSBORO

Birmingham, Ala., Aug., 8.—Back in the environs of his collegiate days, Beauregard Bagley, once a stellar center on Birmingham-Southern College eleven, waxed enthusiastic on another subject. "Bo" is visiting friends in Owenton, where for several years he coached at the Simpson School after leaving Southern, and he is talking highly of his prospects at Southern Military Academy next year.

Coach Bagley is starting his third year at S. M. A. and views with optimism his team's chances in all major sports.

"However, we are gaing to make our eligibility restrictions even tighter this year than before," Bagley declared, "and athletes will make the places on the teams only through hard labor and outstanding results."

S. M. A. has turned out some great athletes in the past and right now has two of Auburn's most outstanding stars, Capt. Jimmy Hitchcock, and Casey Kimbrell, ex-S. M. A. luminaries, are being depended on heavily by Plainsmen backers to carry the Orange and Blue to high peaks on the gridiron this fall. Other state colleges have got their share of fine athletic material turned out at Greensboro also, but Hitchcock, prominently mentioned last fall for all-southern, and Kimbrell, a flaming sophomore, stand out brightest as Tiger backfield aces.

Coach Bagley's old principal at Simpson, Prof J. M. Malone, has joined him this year as president at S. M. A.

L. C. Cagle, son of Lou P. Cagle of Bethel community, was carried to Birmingham last Thursday and operated on for appendicitis at the South Highlands Infirmary. Reports say that he is doing fine and will be permitted to come home the last of this week.

TRAPPING IN FLORIDA

Editor Union-Banner:

The movement to legally humanize trapping customs is making progress in Florida. Resolutions favoring a bill opposed to torturing traps were adopted in 1931 in that state by the Florida Audubon Society, the State Chamber of commerce and the Izaak Walton League. The State Federation of Women's Clubs has pronounced itself in favor of humane trapping and the Jacksonville Humane Society has made its influence felt. Thomas Edison approved the passage of a law to reduce the cruelty associated with trapping and many prominent men and women are working with this aim. Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen is among those interested.

Those unfamiliar with the operation of the steel-trap may possibly conceive some notion of the anguish endured by an animal held prisoner by a crushed leg if they recall their own suffering in simply pamming a finger. The pole-trap suspends its victim by his mutilated limb and some forms of snare strangle by degrees.

Devices are already on the market which capture without horror and others will appear as the demand necessitates. Some of the humane traps are the inventions of trappers, disgusted with old methods. The destruction of burrowing pests may often be accomplished through humane methods, such as the use of calcium cyanide or the exhaust from a gas engine.

A law was enacted in Massachusetts in 1930 forbidding use of devices in the capture of furbearers not designed to kill at once or take alive unhurt. An exception was made in the case of traps set within fifty yards of a building or cultivated land. South Carolina and Georgia preceded the Bay State in gaining laws opposed to the steel-trap.

Would the people of Alabama tolerate the barbarism connected with the procuring of their fur adornment if they realized its nature and extent? Any who wish to assist the campaign to prevent cruelty in trapping may very likely secure suggestions from the National anti-steel-trap League, Washington, D. C., or one of its local branches.

Mrs. Charly Cox spent Monday here with relatives.

Mrs. J. C. Jones has returned home after some time spent in Birmingham with her sistr, Mrs. Jake Sheppard.

Prof. Luther E. Little, was a visitor in Clanton Monday. Mr. Little is spending the summer in Birmingham.

IN MEMORY OF WALKER LAWRENCE

(Composed by Arthur Stewart)

To the memory of one who was an honor to his parents. His name was Walker Lanier Elmo Lawrence.
In him there was not a streak of yellow,
Ah! Indeed he was a noble fellow.
He was very fond of a good joke,
Always smiled when he spoke.
He was loyal to his friends and church,
On his name there was never a smirch.
There are not many of his kind,
But I am glad to say he was a friend of mine.

Yes, men like him, are very few.
He was generous, almost to a fault its true,
Ah, no, not in him a streak of yellow,
He would go his limit for the other fellow.
Oh, if there were more made in the same mold,
He was especially kind to the old.
And I wish there were more of his kind
For I'm so glad he was a friend of mine.

Never a duty did he try to dodge,
He was a faithful member of the Masonic Lodge.
No matter how dark the night, nor if the road was rough,
He would attend the meeting, sure enough.
And if for help there was a call,
He would be first to respond of us all.
How I wish there were more of his kind,
For he was certainly a friend of mine.

There was nothing about him to suggest ofnox,
For he had a heart as big as an ox.
And to anyone in need,
He was certainly a friend indeed.
Or every one in trouble or grief,
He was sure to try to give relief.
Oh, for more of his kind,
I'm so glad to say he was a friend of mine.

His health was not very good,
He had not long to live he understood.
Tho if it caused him be worry a bit,
He certainly never did show it.
Always a pleasant word or a good natured joke,
And be laughing as he spoke.
Ah, I do wish there were more of his kind,
For I'm so glad to say he was a friend of mine.

His death, in our lives has caused a blot,
How his place will be filled we know not.
He regularly came to our relief,
Often made a sacrifice to do so is our belief.
He is done with sacrifices forever,
For the dark river he has crossed over.
We cherish his memory in our breast
For we know he is forever at rest.
And we'll strive to meet him on the other shore,
Where we will never part no more.
How I wish there were more of his kind,
For I am thankful he was a friend of mine.

—Arthur Stewart.

Jobs For Unemployed

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug 8.—Constant remodeling and improving of the Hotel Seminole here has kept it the leading hotel in Florida's Gateway city during the past twenty years. During the past 18 months, when unemployment has been felt keenly, the hotel's modernization program has been a great aid in alleviating that condition.

Opening in Jacksonville in the original fireproof building of this city, the hotel has kept apace of all the architectual innovations during the score or more of years it has been operating, and an expenditure that amounted to more than $125,000 has been made in the past year and one half in an effort to give employment and to retain for the hostelry the leadership in this city.

Colored tile in every bathroom; combination tubs and showers; radios in every room; electric ceiling fans and other recent installations make the hotel a popular residental one for Summer visitors here. Visitors from Florida and nearby states come to it when they want to spend some time in Jacksonville near the beaches. Commercial men, too, take advantage of the variety of conveniences the hotel offers.

As a rendezvous for political leaders of the state, the Seminole is rapidly forging to the the lead. A variety of political meetings have been held there during the past few months, and the Seminole recently was designated headquarters for the State Democratic Executive Committee. The Jungle Ball Room, its walls and ceiling decoraten in a motif embodying all the name implies, during the winter season is a popular place for dinner and dancing, and in the summer, various balls, banquets and luncheons are staged in the dining and ball rooms.

In its interior decorating scheme, the hotel has not lost sight of the need for comfort. Slat doors for summer ventilation, bed reading lamps, inner spring mattresses are included in every room, affording the guest every appeal for relaxation and rest.

CLANTON LADIES WIN FIRST PRIZE IN I. G. A.

The ladies of the Clanton Methodist and Baptist churches are very jubilant over winning the first prize in the I. G. A. contest put on a few weeks ago. A few of the ladies went down to Prattville last Thursday where the prizes were awarded, and brought back five brand new twenty-dollar gold pieces. The I. G. A. organization of the State gave a big barbecue at the Prattville park, and there were several prominent speakers who entertained the large gathering of people.

Miss Lurline Harper has returned to her home in Clanton after a lovely vacation of several weeks with Dr. and Mrs. Sam Johnson at Pensacola.

G. A. CAMP WILL BE HELD AT LOG CABIN BEACH SOON

Three days outing for the G. A.'s on the Unity Baptist Association is planned for August the 16, 17, and 18, 1932.

Mr. Hardy came to West End some two or three years ago and since that time has made rapid stride of progress in these lines. He first put in a full stock of groceries then later installed a grist mill and now he has gone into the feed crushing business in connection with it all.

"SUNSHINE" HURT IN WRECK

Mr. Eunice Chism (Sunshine) pharmacist at Upchurch Drug Co., was hurt in an automobile wreck at Log Cabin Beach last Sunday. He was brought to the hospital in Clanton. Reports say he will be out again in a few days.

"THE MAN WHO PLAYED GOD"

At Wadesonian Theatre Here Wednesday and Thursday August 17-18

George Arliss, whose portrayals of statesmen and laymen were nationally acclaimed, appears in a new guise in "The Man Who Played God" his latest starring vehicle for Warner Bros. Pictures, which comes to the Wadesonian Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, August 17 and 18.

Mr. Arliss turns his genius to the portrayal of genius in "The Man Who Played God." In this picture he plays the role of an internationally famous musician whose wizardry with melody places the world at his feet. He is adored by women, admired by men, numbering even kings among the thousands subject to the wonderful music. Those intimate with him, however, respect him even more for his human qualities and kindliness than for his musicianship.

In "The Man Who Played God," an adaptation of the stage play by Julian Josephson and Maude Howell from the story by Governeur Morris, Arliss' "family circle" includes his solicitous and worshipful sister, portrayed by Louise Closser Hale, and his loyal secretary-valet, Battle, played by Ivan Simpson. Two acquaintances, one a widow with whom he had been in love before she married another, the other a beautiful and charming young girl, are in love with him. The first does not tell him of her love because she believes him to be in love with the younger girl, who, on the other hand, is perfectly frank and outspoken in her avowal of love for the great Maestro. Violet Heming appears in the role of the widow and Bette Davis, a newcomer to the screen, is seen as the young debutante in love with the elderly musician.

"The Man Who Played God," presents full opportunity for Mr. Arliss to express human emotions. The drama is heightened by the sudden deafness which takes his music from the great musician and completely changes his life, thoughts and outlook on life. Metropolitan opinion concurs in acknowledging that Arliss' portrayal of "The Man Who Played God" is undoubtedly his supreme achievement to date, in spite of the excellence which invariably places his pictures in the "ten best" lists of each succeeding year. Many critics, in fact, have already chosen "The Man Who Played God" for inclusion in 1932's "ten best."

MAN HURT BY FALLING ROCK

John Allen Blankenship, farmer, of the Lomax community, was seriously injured near Mitchell Dam last Sunday, when he was pinned beneath a large rock that dislodged from a hillside and rolled down upon a party of fishermen. Blankenship suffered fractured ribs and other injuries. He was brought to the hospital in Clanton by Martin's ambulance.

Blankenship and some other fishermen had left the river below the dam to get a drink at a spring, it is said. One of the party accidentally dislodged the rock and it rolled down on Blankenship. It was said the combined efforts of four men were required to move the rock which weighed about a ton.

This is an annual affair given by Dr. and Mrs. Gragg, and is looked to with a great deal of interest.

Adventists Planning Temperance Drive

Vigorous Campaign Is In Support of The Eighteenth Amendment

The American Temperance Society of Seventh Day Adventists has just been organized to conduct a progressive campaign of education, in which every local church body of the denomination in the United States will take an active part.

The Advetists have been recognized as leaders in the promulgation of the principles of health and temperance from the very beginning of their organization.

While they plan to engage in this campaign, in which they will also support prohibition by voice, vote and pen, they will take "special care to aviod becoming involved in partisan politics."

Not only will the different departments of the governing body been put into action, but sixty local and union conferences in all the 48 states of the nation will work under supervision of similar commissions in a campaign of education which the adventists believe promises to be the most far reaching in results in the nation's history. All the local churches everywhere in this country will also be pressed into service to help maintain prohibition and educate in true temperance principles. Public speakers will be sent out from the headuarters of the church in Takoma Park and other centers to conduct mass meetings in church edifices, schools, theatres and other places; and evangelists will make the theme of temperance a part of their public ministry in hundreds of cities.

Efforts will be made to secure signatures to the following pledge: "I pledge upon my honor that I will abstain from the use of all alcoholic beverages and encourage others to do the same."

Signatures will also be solicited to petitions to send to Congress, praying for the maintenance of the 18th Amendmnt.

All of the denominational publications will be utilized, and books in favor of prohibition and temperance will be circulated.

Practically 40,000 young people, who are members of the Missionary Volunteer Society of the Denominaton will also give temperance programs in public places, concentrating their efforts on the winning of the youh of the nation to prohibition and temperance, millions of whom have never seen an open saloon.—J. WREN BURIED BY HIS WAR BUDDIES

Many Thousands Attend Funeral of Alabama Legion Commander

Talledega—"Taps" were sounded for Capt. E. R. (Shorty) Wren, hero of the World War and commander of the Alabama Department American Legion, as dusk settled over this little Central Alabama city Sunday.

Surrounded by 1,500 of his war veteran buddies, the body of the popular legion commander in a flag draped casket was lowered to its final resting place after impressive ceremonies .

As the sun was setting in the west, a company from Gen. Gorgas Post, at Birmingham, fired a volley across the grave, flowers were strewn over the freshly turned earth from three National Guard planes circling slowly above, and a lone bugler, silhouetted against the gray dusk, sounded "Taps."

Approximately 7,000 persons from every part of the state attended the funeral services which were in charge of Col. W. P. Screws, of Montgomery, commander of the One Hundred Sixty-Seventh Infantry, Rainbow Division, in which Capt. Wren won fame and glory during the World War.

The chaplain of the Talledega post, William Crowe, officiated, assisted by Past Com. Bethea, of Birmingham, who acted as commander. Services were held at the home and then the long military procession filed slowly to the cemetery.

At its head rode Col. Screws, followed by the department colors, the Gen. Gorgas band, drum corps from Birmingham Post No. 1 and the Anniston Post, the hearse and members of the immediate family, uniform companies from Bessemer and Tuscaloosa, and the remainder of the 1,500 "comrades in arms" gathered leader.

here to pay final homage to their

CLEVE WYATT HAS GOOD BRICK CLAY

Cleve Wyatt has received favorable reports from the Alabama Industrial Board on samples of brick clay which he submitted for analysis some monts ago.

One report is on yellow brick clay, which the test showed suitable for making brick and tile.

Another report is on red sandy brick clay, also suitable for brick and tile. This clay worked satisfactory in preliminary tests, the report stated.

The samples were taken from a large deposit of clay on the farm of Mr. Wyatt, four miles from Clanton, on the Lay Dam Road. In view of the satisfactory reports on his samples, Mr. Wyatt entertains hope that he may be able to interest someone in commercially developing the possibilities.

Economy League Is Organized Here

Citizens All Over Alabama Are Concentrating Efforts Toward Securing Reduction In Government Expense and The Ultimate Relief From Burdens of Taxation

Permanent organization of the Chilton County unit of the Economy League of Alabama was perfected at a meeting Monday afternoon at the courthouse. Representative citizens were present from most of the beats of the county.

C. Fenn Jones, of Clanton, was elected permanent chairman of the county unit, and Grover Walker, secretary. The executive committee is composed of F. J. Callen, W. M. Wyatt, L. H. Reynolds, J. R. Mullins, Grady Reynolds, and M. L. White. A county committee is composed of two citizens from each beat in the county.

Solicitation is made for every citizen and taxpayer of the county to become a member of the League. Blanks were given out to beat representatives Monday with the request that they secure signatures of all who wish to become members.

At the meeting Monday Chairman C. Fenn Jones briefly outlined the purposes of the Economy League of Alabama, stating that the association has but one objective—that of securing economy in government and the lessening of the tax burdens on the people of Alabama.

After the statements of Mr. Jones were concluded, the following resolution was introduced and adopted after discussion by B. Lawrence, L. H. Reynolds, Dr. H. M. Nix, H. B. Oliver and others.

"We believe that the proposition of securing economy in government, national, state, county and muncipal, is the only hope of permanent relief from excessive taxation.

"In accomplishing this, we believe all officers and employees not essential to efficient service should be dropped and the compensation of those remaining should be fixed at such reasonable amount as may be consistent with existing conditions.

"We hope the legislature of Alabama will approach the problems of our state with an honest purpose of balancing the budget and placing our state upon a sound and equitable business basis. We urge the legislature and all state officials to cut down public expenses as much as possible first, and to give consideration to other measures that may appear necessary.

"We urge our lawmakers to add to the economy talk a proper amount of economy legislation, so as to make real and actual the measures that are obviously necessary for the security and continued proper functioning of our State government.

"We do not favor so-called economy measures that are cut and dried and promulgated in the interest of politicians. We favor economy and retrenchment in expenses of the State because it is this principle that must save the people from burdens in the future and relieve them now.

"We do not desire to be used as a cat's paw by politicians to pull their chestnuts out of the fire. We do not desire to be used as material for politicians to build up a camouflage with which to conceal their real political purposes.

"We call upon the people of our state, the legislature, the state officials, everybody, to embrace the proposition of securing economy in our government, regardless of politics or the individual aggrandizement of any group of people. It is time our government was being placed upon a basis considerate to the interests of the average citizen."

Mr. H. B. Oliver entered a motion to strike the last portion of the resolution, but after discussion and vote upon the motion to strike, it was determined by the body to allow the entire motion to stand and be voted upon by those present. The motion as read by W. M. Wyatt, was placed before those present and it was carried by a substantial majority.

There was a talk by Mr. J. Renfroe Mullins; there was also a talk by Prof. Buford Lawrence as to his idea of economy in government. Prof. Lawrence was in favor of the entire motion as read by Mr. W. M. Wyatt.

There was a discussion by Probate Judge, L. H. Reynolds on the motion, and he made the point that he would not vote for any increase in taxation until the taxes were lowered and not then until he was convinced that such taxation was needed to balance the budget of the state. There was a motion made by D. S. Robinson, Beat 10, to place all county officials on salary basis and that this committee go on record as favoring such motion. This motion by Mr. Robinson was carried.

There were talks made by a good number of our leading citizens. Mr. J. N. Denins made a very instructive and sensible talk and so did Rev. S. J. Ezell, Dr. H. M. Nix, of Maplesville, Mr. Charlie Foshee and others.

It was thought by some that the League for Economy in Government should go into the mode and manner of raising taxes but it was pointed out that the only purpose of the League was to secure economy in government and not to devise ways and means of raising taxes and that this committee or body of men should not go on record as suggesting any mode of increasing taxes but that the sole purpose was to take up and discuss the matters of economy in government.

All those present were asked and given an opportunity to subscribe their name as members of the Chilton County Unit of the Economy League of Alabama.

UNEMPLOYED IN CHILTON COUNTY

Editor Union-Banner:

It is not my custom to write for publication but I have been so impressed with the unemployment situation in our county that I feel like the people of the county would like to know the situation. I am sure we have never seen such demand for work in this county. I went with Judge Reynolds to Maplesville yesterday and he carried two or three clerks to register the unemployed in that community.

We met at Mr. Hill Foshee's vacant store but it would not hold one-fourth of the people.

Judge Reynolds stood in a truck and made a talk to the people and explained the purpose of registering the people, which was to get a fair record of unemployed in our county so that he could make a fair statement of the situation in our county when making application for some of the relief fund appropriated by the Federal Government. The citizens of Maplesville were surprised themselves to find that so many of their citizens had no crop and had no way to make a living for this winter. One hundred and seven men applied for work and stated that they had no crop and no way to make a living for their families this winter and that they and their families would suffer unless they could obtain work. One hundred and six persons registered and said they would need work this winter to support their families and most of them said their crops would not pay their debts and they would have nothing left to feed their families on this winter.

The condition in our county is awful and we have never seen such suffering for the necessaries of life as we will see this winter, unless employment can be furnished for the unemployed of this county.

I hope our county officials will be able to get the $50,000 loan from the Federal Government to furnish employment for the unemployed in our county this winter to help feed the hungry people.

I cannot understand why some of our ctiizens would oppose the county having this money when we have such a large number of people that will suffer unless they get help.—J. J. Johnson.

SINGING AT SELMA

There will be an all day singing at the New Tabernacle, corner of Washington and Fifth Avenue, Selma, Ala., on the 4th Sunday in August.—A. J. Langston.

REGISTER AT JEMISON AND THORSBY

Judge Reynolds will be at Jemison next Monday after noon at 4 o'clock, for the purpose of registering unemployed people who want to work on the public roads of the county.

For the same purpose he will be at Thorsby next Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock.

All people in the northern part of the county who are interested are urged to be present at the times and places named above.

REV. APPLETON LEFT FOR THE SEMINARY LAST SUNDAY

Last Sunday closed the revival at Collins Chapel and also wound up the work of Rev. Zac Y. Appleton in this county. For the last four years Rev. Appleton has been principal of the Collins Chapel High School and for three years has been pastoring the churches at the Chapel and at New Salem. He completed his pastorate at New Salem at the close of their revival a week or so ago.

Rev. and Mrs. Appleton left Sunday afternoon for Birmingham where they will visit a few days with Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Chappell, parents of Mrs. Appleton. They will be in Fort Payne until about September 1st when they will go to Stone, Ky., and spend a while with Rev. Appleton's brother, Frank Appleton. They will enter the seminary at Louisville on September 20. It is a three year course Rev. Appleton is to take, and Mrs. Appleton will do some extra school work there too.

CLANTON METHODIST CHURCH

"If you don't want to attend church next Sunday, do not do it," that is what his satanic majesty is whispering into your ears. When the devil is in the saddle church members leave vacant pews in God's house. This grieves God, hurts the pastor and injures you.

The pastor is this week engaged in a meeting at Cain's Chapel, near Wetumpka, but will be in place next Sunday for both services. Take notice that the night service will begin at 7:45.

We work to win, we preach and we teach to make you stronger. When you are absent our efforts are wasted on empty pews. Always glad to see you at church. Come.

20 THOUSAND FOR COUNTY'S ROADS

Will Be Spent To Employ The People In Every Beat of Chilton

According to a statement given out by Judge Reynolds, the Commissioners Court of Chilton County has appropriated a total of about twenty thousand dollars for road work to be done in the county this summer. The appropriation was made under specifications of a definite amount to each beat in the county, and will accordingly be expended for road work in these beats.

"While we expect to accomplish a great deal of needed work on the roads this summer," said Judge Reynolds, "we at the some time have in mind the employment of people in the various beats who are in need of work in order to get something for their families to live on during the fall and winter."

This appropriation was made out of county funds already on hand. If the proposal to borrow $50,000 from the federal relief agency goes through, the program of work on the roads in each beat can thereby be porportionately enlarged, and a much more extensive measure of relief given to our unemployed citizens.

MRS. MARY FOSHEE DIED

Mrs. Mary Foshee, age 57, wife of Mr. Walter H. Foshee, died last Saturday afternoon at the family home in Mt. Pleasant community. She had been ill for some time with typhoid.

WILL CALL PASTOR AT LIBERTY HILL SUNDAY

There will be a special meeting at Liberty Hill church Sunday, August 21st, at 10 o'clock a.m., for the purpose of electing a pastor and church clerk for the coming year.

All members of the church are especially urged to come and take part in the meeting.—D. W. Ward, chairman.

ANDREW CAMPBELL DIED

Andrew Campbell, age 92 years, died last week at his home near Loxley, in Baldwin County. The body was brought here by Hermie Childress, and was buried at Rockymount cemetery, last Thursday .

Mr. Campbell lived in the Rockymount community of Chilton County until about fifteen years ago, when he went to Baldwin. He was a brother of John Campbell, of Rockymount. He is survived by two sons, Loss and Joshua; one daughter, Mrs. Mary Martin.

DEMOCRATS PLAN TO DEVOUR FOE

Not A Republican County In Alabama Is Slogan of Campaign

The slogan of Alabama Democracy, it was decided at a meeting of leaders at the Jefferson Davis Hotel yesterday is "100,000 majority for the national ticket in November and not one county Republican." The organization to make the slogan a reality took place at the meeting with Jerome Fuller, North Alabama campaign manager and Will Hill, South Alabama campaign manager.

It was decided that the force of democracy will be thrown into those counties in Alabama which are normally doubtful. There are eight or ten of them and the exertion of the party in Alabama this year will be in the direction of rolling up democratic majorities in these close counties.

Judge Leon McCord presided over the conference which was called jointly by himself and State Chairman Edmund W. Pettus. Two senators and three congressmen were present, the senators being Hugo Black and John H. Bankhead and the congressmen were Lister Hill, Henry B. Steagall, and William B. Bankhead.

It was the opinion of those that spoke at the gathering that now was the time to make a strong fight in Alabama, because of the nationwide swing to democracy this year. It was felt that all of the doubtful counties with the possible exception of Winston could be swung over to the Democratic column this year and such a result would mean that they would stay democratic and from this year choose Democratic officials.

Judge McCord explained that there would be little more spent in Alabama this year and what was spent would be spent in the counties where the Republicans were most numerous. Alabama has been assessed $15,000 for the national campaign but this money will be spent in doubtful states of the nation and not in Alabama. Judge McCord said that already $5,000 of this amount had been raised.

It was decided to start the state campaign in the doubtful counties of Alabama around September 15. In this connection it was announced that Dr. Charles Whelan of Birmingham, A. H. Carmichael, of Tuscumbia, and Maj. Frank Dixon of Birmingham would assist Jerome Fuller at the Birmingham headquarters and that Sylvain Baum, of Montgomery, would assist Will Hill, the South Alabama chairman. Two additional assistants will be named in the South Alabama headquarters.

The campaign in Alabama, it was announced, would not be pushed because of any fear that the Republicans will put up a serious fight in in the state, but because it was proposed to redeem the doubtful counties.

Judge McCord, who is preparing a list of speakers for the national campaign headquarters, said that Alabama's two senators, and several of her congressmen would go on the stump in other states. He also read telegrams and letters from Congressmen who were not present at the conference expressing their desire to assist in any way possible to further the plans for the fight in Alabama.

Fine reports were received from senaor Black, Sentaor Bankhead, Congressman Hill, Congressman Steagall, and Congressman Bankhead as to the situation in Alabama as they had found it. These speakers said they did not know of a man in Alabama who had ever voted the Democratic ticket that would vote the Republican ticket this year. Jerome Fuller and Will Hill expressed pleasure over the harmony prevailing in Democratic ranks and said they wanted the help of every Democrat in Alabama, whether he bolted in '28 or '30 or not.

Others attending the conference were Mayor Gunter and Commissioner Screws of Montgomery, Frank P. Glass, Cyrus W. Brown, Leopold Strauss, Sylvain Baum, for Gov. Bibb Graves, Henry Hughes and others.

Judge McCord announced the following Alabamians as on the national speakers list in addition to U. S. Senator Black and Bankhead.

Congressman George Huddleston, former Gov. Bibb Graves, Judge Sam F. Hobbs, Archie Carmichael, Judge Ben Turner and W. C. Fitts.—Montgomery Advertiser.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

STATE COTTON CROP DECLINES; MORE FEED

Auburn, Ala., Aug., 16.—A cotton crop much smaller than that of 1931 is being made in Alabama. The government report of August 1 estimated the State crop to be 950,000 bales against 1,420,000 bales harvested last fall. This decline was unexpected, in view of the fact that the acreage was reduced 10 per cent, fertilizer reduced 50 per cent, weevils are abundant and farmers have battled for weeks against grass and weeds.

And reports from county agents indicate that the Alabama cotton crop is not now as good as it was the first of the month.

But corn, hay and gardens have made good progress except in the dry spots. Gardens are better, there are more of them, and farmers are keeping them producing throughout the year. Preparations are being made for winter gardens. Seed are being planted, fertilizer applied, and cultivation continued.

Canning, preserving, and drying have been done on a larger scale than ever before, as revealed by reports from home demonsttration agents. With food crops in the fields to be harvested and more food products already stored or being stored, it is aparent that Alabama has gone far in feeding herself.

Preparations are now being made too, for planting seeds of winter legumes late in September and early October to enrich land, as a feed crop in combination with oats or barley or wheat, and for grazing next spring.

Livestock, too, are holding up well with good pastures following rains. Indications are that Alabama farmers are increasing and improving their livestock, including poultry.

STATE HAS GOOD CORN, HAY AND POTATO CROP

Indications are that Alabama farmers will this year produce 43,798,000 bushels of corn, 526,000 tons of hay and 6,952,000 bushels of sweet potatoes according to the August 1 crop report released by F. W. Gist, statistician of the department of agriculture.

This is about the same number of bushels of corn and tons of hay harvested in the state last year and is about 1,500,000 more bushels of sweet potatoes.

The pecan crop is expected to be slightly above 2,000,000 pounds, while the apple production is about 216,000 bushels compared with 1,100,000 bushels harvested last year. Indications are that the peach crop will amount to about 221,000 compared with 1,530,000 last year. The pear crop is estimated at 114,000 against 360,000 last year and the grape crop promises about 526 tons against 730 tons last year.

Mr. Gist concludes the report by saying that the condition figures and indications of total crops given are preliminary and subject to change as the season advances.

MORE FALL POTATOES

Guntersville, Ala. — The largest acreage of fall Irish potatoes in Marshall County in any one year has been planted, according to Eric Alsobrook, county agent.

WINTER LEGUMES INCREASED

Monroeville, Ala.—One goal of Monroe County farmers is to plant 75,00 pounds of seed of Austrian winter peas and hairy vetch this fall. Bankers and business men as well as farmers are backing the movement, which is being led by County agent A. V. Culpepper.

The World's consumption of cotton, including linters, for the season ended July 31, totalling 13,331,000 bales, a gain of 1,475,000 bales over last year, secretary H. G. Hester of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange said recently.

ALABAMA COTTON CROP IS MUCH LESS

Montgomery, Ala., Aug., 16.—Alabama's cotton crop this year will be approximately 960,000 bales compared with 1,420,000 bales produced last year, according to a forecast by F. W. Gist, statistician for the department of agriculture.

The condition of the crop was found to be 59 per cent of normal on August 1, indicating an average yield per acre of 150 pounds, compared with 200 pounds last year and 187 pounds in 1930, Gist stated.

"The final outcome of the crop will depend upon the weather and the weevil from now until the end of the harvest, and whether the fertilizer used will hold out to mature the crop in the condition now showing," the report stated.

"If this crop should not go lower than the present forecast it will be the smallest crop Alabama has made since 1923, when only 597,000 bales were produced."

BRIEF NEWS NOTES

The amount of currency in circulation in the United States totals $5,464,000,000, or $700,000,000 more than was in circulation during the boom.

Gold stock in the United States is $4,000,000,000. No other country ever possessed so much. Britain for example, has only $588,000,000.

Mrs. J. B. Eiland of Sprott, Perry County, made by actual weight 347 bushels of corn on 7 acres after plowing under a crop of Austrian winter peas. No fertilizer was used.

Baker Jones of the Alabama department of agriculture says that 55,534 Alabama chickens were tested pullorum disease in 1931-1932 and that 10.2 per cent of these were reactors.

By prearing now to sell hogs of top grade early in September farmers should catch the top market this year, says F. W. Burns, livestock specialist at Auburn. County agents are advising on feeding.

The State of Iowa is seeking a loan of $20,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to meet financial needs of the State treasury. About $15,000,000 is needed to pay outstanding claims, and $2,500,000 will be used for future claims, while a like amount is needed to satisfy outstanding and anticipatory warrants.

AUSTRIAN PEAS WOULD HAVE PAID CHILTON COUNTY

A total of 1,700 tons of fertilizer, valued at $37,500, were bought in Chilton County in 1931 for fertilizing corn.

In a large number of experiments and in demonstrations in practically every county in the state nitrogen has been shown to be essential for good corn yields with a return of about 6 bushels of corn for each hundred pounds of nitrate of soda applied.

The $37,500 spent for corn fertilizer in Chilton county, if it had been spent for nitrate of soda at $40 per ton, was sufficient to fertilize 18,700 acres at the rate of 100 pounds per acre. On this acreage an increase of 112,200 bushels of corn might have been expected.

The same $37,500 would have purchased suffirient Austrion pea seed, basic slag, and innoculation costing $3 per acre to have planted 12,466 acres.

On this acreage corn following the Austrian winter peas would have increased around 249,320 bushels instead of 112,200 bushels based on experiences of farmers of Chilton County and nearly 10,000 farmers throughout the state.

Furthermore, the increase of 244,320 bushels is made on about two-thirds as much land as the 112,200 bushels. That means a big saving in labor.

The second crop of corn following the winter legumes will be increased more than enough to pay the cost of planting the Austrian winter peas.

If the $22 spent by the farmer for a ton of fertilizer for corn had been invested in nitrate of soda at $40 per ton, eleven acres of corn could have been fertilized at the rate of 100 pounds per acre. An increase of about 66 bushels of corn on the eleven acres could reasonably be expected.

The same $22 would have bought sufficient Austrian winter pea seed, basic slag and innoculation for seven acres. An increase of 140 bushels would have been made on seven acres contrasted with an increase of 66 bushels. Twice as much corn on two-thirds of the land for the same money with a profit for the second year is the meaning of winter legumes to the farmer.

PLANTING FALL GARDENS

Moulton, Ala.—To stimulate fall gardens and give information as to how to proceed for best results, 1,200 letters were mailed to farm people by County Agent J. E. Carter. Copies of food preservation bulletins from Auburn were distributed for farm women, in the absence of a home demonstration agent in this county.

Uncle John Calloway has built a new home near Providence, in Beat 16, where he and Mrs. Calloway will live in the future.

SWINE GROWERS ORGANIZE

Florence Ala.—An organization of swine producers of Lauderdale conty is sponsored by County Agent G. B. Phillips who thinks that the organization will start with 100 charter members. About the first of September a hog school will be conducted by an extension livestock specialist from Auburn. It will be for one day.

TRENCH SILOS FILLED

Bay Minette.—Seven trench silos have been filled by Baldwin County farmers with corn from which the ears were pulled and sold as green corn. This metod of saving the stalks turned a waste product into a valuable use, and County Agent E. E. Hale is advising other farmers to do likewise.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., Aug.,—16. For the first time in seven years the number of individual men taking college credit courses in the University of Alabama Summer School exceeds the total individual enrollment of women. There were 1,019 men and 827 women included in the total enrollment of 1,846.

The records kept by the Summer School for the past seven years show that in 1926 there were 570 men and 754 women; in 1927 732 men and 864 women; 1928, 793 men and 958 women; 1929, 882 men and 991 women; 1930, 947 men and 1,162 women; and in 1931, 1,107 men and 1,249 women.

The enrollment of men in the second term however has at times exceeded the number of women. In 1929 there were 544 men and 523 women for the second term; in 1930, 589 men and 561 women; and in 1931, 700 men and 641 women.

Summer school officials also call attention to the remarkably large number of regular session students attending summer school. This year there were 780 regular session students attending the summer school. This accounts for the fact that the total enrollment had held up so well despite the present economic crisis in this state. In 1931 there were 597 regular students in summer school, and 1930, 615, in 1929, 547, and in 1927, 469. No figures are available for 1928.

The enrollment from Chilton County was 17.

Nearing the close of a successful summer session which will be climaxed with graduation exercises Friday night, August 19, summer school officials announce that 1,846 different individuals took college credit courses during the current summer session at University of Alabama. This enrollment is a decrease of 510 under last year when 2,356 were in attendance. During the first term 1,597 attended and during the second 1,135. A total of 887 attended both terms.

There were 1,406 undergraduates and 440 graduate students. For the first time in many years the number of men outnumbered the women, 1,019 to 827.

State Senator W. C. Warren will deliver the graduation address at the University of Alabama summer graduating exercises the evening of August 19. Candidates for degrees number 220.

Dean Dabney S. Lancaster and Mrs. Lancaster and children have gone to Virginia for a ten-day vacation. Dean Lancaster will return August 23. Dean and Mrs. C. H. Barnwell have gone to North Carolina for the remainder of the summer.

H. C. Parnell, state supervisor of secondary education and associate professor of education, Universty of Alabama, has received his Ph. D. at Teachers College, Columbia University.

The University of Alabama will open for its regular session on September 7. Orientation for freshmen will take up the first week during registration.

Go Where you Please On your Vacation...

Mother likes the mountains—sonny wants to go to camp and so does little sister—dad must work most of the summer—but they may go where they please and still keep together by telephone. Mother and the children may arrange to call dad regularly at a certain time, at office or home. It makes vacations more enjoyable and dispels anxiety to hear the voices of loved ones, telling of the day's happenings.

Calling at a prearranged time enables you to use the cheaper station-to-station service with no risk of missing the person wanted. If you call by number at night there is a still further reduction in cost. In using station-to-station service, ask for the distant telephone by number or location instead of asking for a particular person. When the distant telephone answers you may ask for whomever you want.

Wherever each member of the family goes this summer, the local telephone office will gladly give the cost of calling back home. Just ask for "Long Distance."

Good Old Temperence Speech

Since the passage of the 18th amendment and consequent letdown on all public temperance education, apparently it seems good to read this old fashioned temperance speech by the eloquent Henry Grady. It was made by him back in 1887, when the great fight was made to keep his home town of Atlanta rid of saloons. Wouldn't it seem good to hear such a speech again?

Here is an extract:

"My friends, hesitate before you vote liquor back into Atlanta, now that it is shut out. Don't trust it. It is powerful, aggressive, and universal in it's attacks. Tonight it enters an humble home to strike the roses from a woman's cheeks, and tomorrow it challenges this Republic in the halls of Congress.

"It dodges the law when it cannot coerce sufferage . It is flexible to cajole, but merciless in victory. It is the mortal enemy of peace and order. The despoiler of men, the terror of women, the cloud that shadows the face of children, the demon that has dug more graves and sent more souls unshriven to judgment than all the pestilences that have wasted life since God sent the plagues to Egypt, and all the wars since Joshua stood before Jericho.

"O my countrymen! Loving God and humanity, do not bring this grand old city again under the dominion of that power. It can profit no man by its return. It can uplift no industry, revive no interest, remedy no wrong. You know that it cannot. It comes to destroy and it shall profit mainly by the ruins of your son and mine. It comes to mislead human souls and crush hearts under its rumbling wheels.

"It comes to bring gray-haired mothers down in sorrow to their graves. It comes to turn wife's love into despair and her pride into shame. It comes to still the laughter on the lips of little children and to stifle all the music of the home and fill it with silence and desolation.

"It comes to ruin your body and mind, to wreck your home, and it measures the duration of its prosperity by the swiftness and certainty with which it does its work. "

It will do us all good to read carefully this little extract from that great speech and think about how great the blessing is that we have thrown the saloon out. It is especially good to think about at this time when such great pressure and effort are being made to annul the 18th amendment.—Cleburne News.

NEW HYDROFINED MOTOR-OIL ANNOUNCED BY STANDARD OIL

Essolube is refined by famous hydrogenation process

Discovery of process won 1931 Nobel Prize

Motorists throughout the South will be interested in the announcement from W. E. Smith, President of the Standard Oil Company Incorporated in Kentucky, at Louisville, that "Essolube," the new hydrofined motor oil recently perfected by the Standard Oil Company, is now being sold by all Standard dealers and service stations.

This motor oil, perfected for use in high compression motors, will replace the well-known "Standard" motor oil, at no extra cost to the motorist.

"Essolube is not only a new oil, a better oil and a different oil, but it is made by an entirely new process of refining. This is the hydrogenation process, that won the 1931 Nobel Prize for Chemistry for the two chemists that perfected it. This new and exclusive process is expected to revolutionize the manufacture of motor oil," said Mr. Smith in discussing this new product.

Hydrofining ages the oil by rearranging its chemical structure. Briefly, the process of making hydrofined Essolube consists of mixing a high grade crude oil fraction with pure hydrogen gas compressed to 3500 pounds per square inch. This mixture is fed into a fired coil of pipes where it is heated to an extremely high temperature—800° F. It is then placed into a reaction chamber where, in the presence of a secret "catalyst" or transforming agent, the oil molecules are ripped apart, the hydrogen gas reacts and changes the basic chemical structure of the oil. The mixture is then cooled and whatever hydrogen or other gas is present is removed. The partly finished oil is run into stills where under vacuum the gas-oil and gasoline are removed, and the lubricating oil divided into several "cuts," each cut is dewaxed and treated to insure stability and remove any remaining impurities.

Since the oil is subjected to high temperatures and enormous pressure during the manufacture, only parts of the oil that can withstand these conditions—many times more severe than occur in any automobile engine—are left for Essolube.

Before being placed on the market for commercial use, Essolube has been given exhaustive tests in all forms of automobiles, trucks, tractors, etc., to prove its worth.

SPEED BOAT RACES SLATED THIS WEEK

Details are rapildly being completed for the two days of speed racing Saturday and Sunday at Anderson's camp on Lake Jordan.

The first program of this sort held last year was witnessed by thousands and it is expected that the crowds lining the course when the starter's gun booms next Saturday will greatly exceed last year's attendance.

Several acres along the river edge have been cleared to afford ample parking space and men experienced in this respect will be in charge to insure speedy and orderly parking. Work of constructing the circus seats along the court started Monday, and they have been planned so that from any location a full view of the course is obtained.

The first race will start Saturday at 12.30 p.m. They will continue all afternoon until 5:30 p.m. The first Sunday race will be at 11 a.m. with the final event planned about 3 p.m.

A complete list of entrants will be announced towards the middle of the week at which time also the judges and other official's names will be made public.

One of the features will be a match race between a mysterious challenger, who is said to be one of the outstanding seepdboat pilots of the country, and one of the other entrants. Complete details of this race are now being perfected and all details will be announced in a few days.

DAT BLOOMIN PREACHER

This Week's Blossom:

—o—

Old sayin is: Pretty is as Pretty does.
Ah sa: Sum church folks Does purty Bad.—The Elder.

Ah wants ter talk ter youse dis mawnin bout sumthin dat Ah's hardly evah mentioned frum de stan. An dat is "Tryin to Buy our Wa into Heben." An fur a lessen Ah's gwine to read Matt. 19 chapter, 16 to 30. (Reads lesson). Now less stan an sing dat good son "Lord I care not for riches." (They sing). Now while we stan wid our heds bowed we's gwyn to pray. (His prayer): Great God ob de universe, Thou is de maker ob de Hebben an de earth, an is de gibber ob all good gifts to men. An de rewarder ob all who diligently seke Thee. We come in jes as umble manner as we no how, pourin out our harts to Thee. Pleadin no merit ob our own, but de merit ob Jesus. Lord, we no dat dis is de richest country in de worl, dat Thou has blessed us Americans wid evything our harts cud wish fur, yet all ob dese riches cumbined cud not purchase a home in Hebben fur jes one ob us. Lord, our harts is set on Thee. We are not washupin riches, but we do try to washup Thee. Hep us Lord to live uprite Christian lives, keepin umble an always submissive to Thy will, nevvah lettin ennything in dis worl cum between us an our Lord. Dis we ax in de name ob our Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

De tex is in Matt. 19 chapter an de 16 verse. "And behold, one come and said unto him, good Master, what good thing shall I do that I may have eternal life?" Here we hab a young man whose morals were above reproch; a man who had kep de law as giben to Moses on de mount, accordin to his own statement. He had kep de ten commandments fum his youth up. Dar is no doubt in mah mine but dat he, altho he wuz a good moral man, felt dat dar wuz somethin yit lackin. In his study ovah his condition, after hearin Jesus preach, he cum to de conclusion dat he wuz lost. Surely dat wuz a good start. It takes dat verry condition ob mind to git one started toward Jesus. Ah has bin runnin protracted meetins fur a number ob years, an in lots ob cases had young boys an girls to manifest an interest in their soul's welfare rite in de beginnin ob a meetin an den let de meetin close widout acceptin Christ, an Ah am shoah dat dey stoped rite at de pint where dis young ruler stoped. Dat pint wuz when dey learned dat dey had to meet de requirements ob Jesus. So many people trys to git eternal life in some other way dan de way prescribed. One will try to obtain it thro de preacher's prayer, another by bein good morally, an still others by buyin it. An Ah want to say dat dese last is more numerous dan we sometime think. Not dat we po folks trys to buy it, but dar is lots ob welthy men who try to set deyselves right wid God by gibin sum ob dey munny whut He made it possible fur dem to obtain.

Dis young ruler wuz ob dat kind. He had de munny; dat wuz evything to him; he thought munny wud do all trings. Des lak a rich white man whut libed next to mah daddy's wen Ah wuz a boy. Ah has heard mah daddy say lots ob times dat he wuz one man dat thought he cud buy his way into Hebben. He wud gib liberally to de church, wuz a good nabur, an a sober uprite man, an wuz always talkin bout whut de done an how much he gib away, an dat he felt he had jes as good a chance as ennyboddy elce. An den wud pick out some pore church membah an sa, "How much has he gib?" an wud laff an call him a tightwad; an den ax de question "Can a man whut is dat stingy go to Hebben?"

Dis young ruler wuz not a tightwad; he wuz willin to pay fur whut he got; dat is a fine trate in ennybody. But when it comes to doin some good thing, or eben gibin ob our means to obtain eternal life—rite dar is whur we utterly fail, because Paul, in de las verse ob de 6 chapter ob Romans says "For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Chrst our Lord". An in John 6:47 we read "Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that believeth on me hath everlasting life." Can ennyone say den dat salvation is not a gift? Can ennybody, it dont mattah how much munny he is got, buy it? Jesus say in Matt. 6:21 "For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."

Jesus knowed all bout dis young man. He cud look rite into his hart an see dat he wuz rapped up in his riches. We can see dis by de axions ob dis young man—"he went away sorrowful, for he had great possessions".

My sinner frins, will you learn a lesson fum dis rich young man? Will you learn dat dar is nuthin dat you can do to obtain eternal life? It aint somethin dat you can earn as a just recompense for labor performed or services rendered; nor is it somethin dat can be bot wid munny. Will you not learn today dat you mus cum in His way an not in yoah own? Don't do lak dis young man, an turn away fum Jesus jes cause He requiahs dat you renounce dis wurl wid all ob its plesures an social intercourse along wid evything on which yo hart is centered.

My frins, de requiahments ob Jesus is so simple—jes belebe on Him an take Him as yoah Savior, of course confessin yo sins. Do dis today an you will go away fum heah happy, stid ob sorrowful. Ah mus close, now. May de Lord bless evyone an sabe de sinners, is de prayer ob one who loves you. Les stan an be dismis.

CLANTON DEFEATS COOPER TUESDAY AFTERNOON 1-0

Clanton squared the season series of four games with Cooper Tuesday afternoon at two all, when they took the fourth game, 1 to 0, behind the 2-hit pitching performance of Monk Debardelaben.

Brilliant fielding helped Debardelaben out of two tough spots. Clements nipped a budding Cooper rally when he went up for a sizzling liner, and Parrish saved Debardelaben again in the seventh when he went high into the air to stab a screaming drive over third base, with men on second and third. Clanton scored the only run in the fifth, on Clements' double, Foshee's single, and Connatser's short drive to center which Grant dropped after a long hard run. Foshee contributed two circus catches in right field, also.

Dennis, on the mound for Cooper, turned in an extra good performance. This youngster stood up like a veteran under fire on several occasions, and will bear watching in the future. He is plenty good, young as he is, and with the right kind of training we predict a bright future for him. Debardelaben had the situation fairly well in hand most of the way, Tatum getting both of Coopers' hits.

The fifth and deciding game of the series will be played on the local field this afternoon (Thursday) at 3:30, and promises to be another thriller. If you like good baseball, don't miss it!

Rev. M. J. Parrish, of Providence, is preaching in a revival at Union Grove this week. Rev. John Bean of Clanton is pastor of that church.

This certifies that we, the undersigned were present on the 13th day of April, 1916 when a NORWALK VAULT, made by C. L. Cox, was taken out of the ground where it had been buried for 34 days, and the hole kept purposely filled with water during all that time.

This same Vault was so dry on the inside, when it was opened, that matches ignited freely both on the bottom and on the under surface of the cover.

Because we have found the NORWALK VAULT just as represented, and believe it to be a permanent burial receptacle, we are recommending its use in Elmwood Cemetery.

PLEASANT GROVE CHURCH

Our revival closed at this place last Friday night. Bro. A. L. Lumpkin did some wonderful preaching. He brought to us from time to time some of the greatest messages we believe it has ever been our lot to hear, and the result was that 10 souls were brought in saving touch with the Savior, and the church greatly revived.

Most everyone renewed his or her allegiance to the church and promised to stand by it. God's spirit was with us in every service and we are hoping to do great things at this place for the Lord.

As pastor we extend to everyone our thanks for any part taken in the services, and not only the services during the week, but every effort and ever sacrifice that has been made during the year, especially my neighbors, Uncle Abb Headley and wife, Bro. Payton and the others that have been so thoughtful about our needs. We can only pray God's blessings upon all of them.

May the blessings of an all-wise God preserve, keep, and bless everyone of you, and may he feed your souls on a richer grace, is the prayer of your pastor.—G. W. Stewart.

Misses Mildred Coltier and Rosamond Callan of Auburn and Viola Mae Carroll of Anniston are the guests of Miss Mary Nell Jones.

It is quite commendable of our Probate Judge and Commissioners to look out for the interests of the needy, by arranging a program of work for the people in needy circumstances. Their efforts should be appreciated. They are men of fine executive ability, and no doubt have the people's interest at heart.

Our board of education seems to be greatly interested in their work. Their efforts call for the appreciation of the people.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©, 1932, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for August 21

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 33.

GOLDEN TEXT—And the Lord spake unto Moses face to face, as a man speaketh unto his friend.—Exodus 33:11.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Tent of Meeting.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Tent of Meeting.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Talking With God.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Becoming Aware of God.

I. The Divine Command to Possess the Land (vv. 1-6).

1. The abiding purpose (v. 1). They were to go up and possess the land despite the fact that the calf-worship had broken the bond between them and their God. God spoke of them as the people whom Moses brought up out of Egypt, not as his own people. They had not shown any true penitence for their awful sin. Therefore God could not claim them as his own.

2. Divine aid promised (v. 2). Though their sins made it impossible for God to go with them, still he agrees to help them by sending an angel before them to drive out their enemies.

3. The threatened withdrawal of the divine presence (vv. 3, 5). God said, "I will not go up in the midst of thee, for thou art a stiff-necked people, lest I consume thee in the way." The presence of God in the midst of a sinning and impenitent people would mean death unto them. The mercy of God is often strikingly shown by his withdrawal from his people.

4. The effect upon the people (vv. 4, 6).

a. "When the people heard these evil tidings they mourned." They knew that no angel could make up for the great loss of the personal presence of God. They called it "evil tidings." Surely no tidings are so evil as those which tell of the withdrawal of the divine presence.

b. They stripped themselves of their ornaments, showing that the articles which indicated gladness and joy could not be consistently worn when God had departed. We must be stripped of all that pertains to self and carnal pleasures if we would be clothed with the divine blessing.

II. The Tent of Meeting (vv. 7-11).

1. It was pitched outside of the camp (v. 7). As a token of the severed fellowship, the symbol of God's dwelling place, the tent of meeting was placed without the camp.

2. Moses in communion with God (vv. 8-10). Because Moses had not transgressed God's law, he still had fellowship with God. The visible sign to the people that God honored Moses was the descent of the "cloudy pillar" as Moses entered the tent of meeting.

3. Moses the friend of God (v. 11). This is one of the most beautiful expressions of personal fellowship to be found in all the Bible, if not in all literature. Friendship implies mutual confidence and sympathy, a disposition to share each other's secrets.

4. Joshua at home in the Tabernacle (v. 11). Joshua was not involved in the rebellion of the people. Because of his fidelity and in recognition of his unbroken fellowship, he was privileged to abide in the tent.

III. Moses' Prayer (vv. 12-23).

Moses' mind was somewhat perplexed, therefore he came to the Lord for the solution of his problem. God had said that he would send an angel to carry out his covenant obligation concerning the people in the possession of the land. Moses desired fuller knowledge of this angel so that he might act intelligently with reference to the matter. He asked for three things—

1. Fuller knowledge (vv. 12-14). In order to lead the people, he needed to know more fully his God. Intelligent and acceptable service is only possible as one knows God. God graciously responded to this request, "My presence shall go with thee, and I will give thee rest."

2. "If thy presence go not with me, carry us not up hence" (vv. 15-17). Moses was convinced that no substitute could take God's place even though that one were an angel. He argued that it would be better to perish in the wilderness than attempt to go into Canaan without God. God's presence today is necessary in order to convince the world that he has called us.

3. "Show me thy glory" (vv. 18-23). Moses wanted a new vision of God for his new task. To this request God responded by giving assurance that he would make his goodness to pass by Moses. God's supreme glory is his goodness.

Beauty and Health Depend on Minerals

Science Discovers that Health, Beauty and Life Itself Depend on Proper Mineral Balance of the Body

Beautiful Skin

Health and Beauty
All Depend on Mineral Balance

ARE YOU REDUCING?
If so, you need Minerals to keep you strong and well.

Lack of Sufficient Minerals and Vitamins Destroys Health and Brings on Untold Pain and Suffering.

No man, woman or child can look their best, feel well and strong and enjoy life, as God intended, unless the Mineral content of the body is kept in proper balance. This fact has been proven conclusively.

FOODS DEVITALIZED

Modern methods of refining foods rob them of much of the Mineral content so necessary to health. Poor cooking and unbalanced diets are another source of trouble. The body is starved for the essential Minerals and Vitamins. Soon we suffer with indigestion, constipation, headaches, nervousness, pimply skin. We lose weight, feel tired and listless, fail to get enough sleep. Health deserts us and we wonder why.

NATURAL WAY TO HEALTH

After years of research, a new and remarkable formula has been perfected that supplies the body with the essential Minerals. This preparation is not a "patent" medicine but a scientific blending of Minerals and Vitamins that aids Nature in quickly balancing the mineral content of the body, clearing away intestinal poisons and building new strength and vitality.

Dear Editor: Will you please allaw us space in your paper to express our gratitude to Miss Dennis for the work she has accomplished in our community? We feel assured that her work has been worth-while. She taught the ladies and girls many things concerning dress making, dressing appropriately for each occasion, planning meals and how important it is to have a variety of foods.

We enjoyed having her in our community. We feel that any community would be made better by having a young lady of Miss Bertha Dennis's ability to work with them.

If it is possible we want Miss Dennis to be with us again next year.

We wish her much success in her other field work. We also wish to thank Mr. H. A. Harris for making it possible for us to have this home economic work at our school this time.—The Mt. Pleasant School and Community.

Dear Editor: Will you please allow me space in your paper to tell the people how much the opportunity schools have been worth to me? I am going to my third school this summer. When I first started to these schools I couldn't rite a letter or a figure. At this time I am reading my news paper and Bible. What I have learned in arithmetic has been worth my time in school. I can add subtract, multiply and divide. I can figure for myself this is worth so much to me. I am very grateful to the organizers of these schools, yours truly.—Joseph Edwards, Mt. Pisgah School.

Dear Editor: When I started to our first opportunity school I did not know anything about arithmetic. This makes my 3rd school. At this time, I am working in fractions, adding, subtracting, multiplying and dividing fractions. I cannot estimate how much this is wotrh to me. I am getting old now, 76 years old. I cannot work much. This helps me to pass away the long hours. I spend lots of my time working arithmetic. These schools are wotrh while, yours truly.—Tom Robbins, Mt. Pisgah School.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many friends and relatives for the beautiful floral offerings and other kindness shown us during the sickness and death of our baby.—Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Rogers.

A vetch demonstration will be held Thursday morning at 10 o'clock at the farms of Leon Popwell and C. B. Baggett, near Thorsby. All farmers in that neighborhood are urged to come.

IN MEMORY

By request of the family and in loving memory of Mrs. C. C. Beasley, of Castleberry, Alabama, who was called to her heavenly home on Monday, August 8, at 6.25 p.m., from an automobile accident which happened on Sunday evening. She was at her mother's-in-law, Mrs. L. Beasley, and was preparing to go home. While her husband was cranking the car by hand, and her little daughter was in the car, she and Mrs. C. A. Beasley were behind the car, the car jumped in reverse and ran back over her, before they could get the car stopped, it had knocked her over and over. Mrs. C. A. Beasley got out of the way.

They had two doctors and rushed her to the hospital. The doctors found that her back was broken and two ribs pulled loose, and intestine crushed. She only lived 24 hours from the time she was hurt.

She realized that she could not be here with us long and was perfectly willing to go.

Right after she was hurt she prayed a sweet prayer. She smiled all the way through and knew every one on till the last.

She was 33 year of age, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bradberry, Clanton, Alabama. She had been married to Mr. C. C. Beasley, Castleberry, Alabama, since July 4, 1917. She had one little girl, Mary Evelyn, 14 years old.

It is said that Clara Bow's favorite culinary activity is baking angel food cake. But so far as we can remember Clara never made much angel food for the movie fans.

The old-fashioned woman who used to greet her erring husband with a rolling pin now has an up-to-date daughter who, when it is necessary to reprove him, socks friend husband with a bronze ash tray.

After the Senators left Washington the Senate pages got together and held a session all of their own. So far as we can learn it didn't have any deleterious effect on the stock market.

NOT POSSIBLE

The trouble with " a political platform so simple that the man in the street could read and understand it in a few minutes" is that he might be able to remember it after the election.

WOULD BE APPROPRIATE

We trust arrangements have been made to put Calvin Coolidge on the reception committee for that East Indian who is coming over to break seven years of silence.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

Students of international affairs in the United States and elsewhere were much interested in the news from Washington the other day to the effect that nineteen nations of the Western Hemisphere, including of course, the United States, had employed the Hoover "non-recognition" doctrine, first heard in the Chinese-Japanese dispute, in an effort to avert war between the South American republics of Paraguay and Bolivia. The adoption of this "non-recognition" doctrine by the leading powers of the Western Hemisphere, if permanent, will go a long way toward ending all imverialistic adventures in this western world.

The last paragraph of the note dispatched to the two governments, which are at this writing on the verge of war, reads:

"The American nations further declare that they will not recognize any territorial arrangement of this controversy which has not been obtained by peaceful means, nor the validity of territorial acquisitions which may be obtained through occupation or conquest by fore of arms."

According to news dispatches, the adoption of this now famous doctrine for the purposes of the Western World was perfected in the diplomatic room of the Department of State at Washington where the representatives of nineteen nations gathered in an effort to prevent war from breaking out on the South American continent. As the United Press puts it "they realized no doubt that they were making history—laying down a policy which may take its place beside the Monroe Doctrine.

The application of the doctrine was made at this time for the reason that the bone of contention between Bolivia and Paraguay is the Gran Chaco territory which is claimed by both countries. The bit of territory is a typical tropical jungle but it is said to be strategically important to both nations which convert it as a part of their particular domain, and deny the title of the other country to any part of it.

Aside from the application of this doctrine to the present dispute, the fact that it was drawn up in the State Department at Washington, under the inspiration of the administration of the United States, ought to silence for all time the cheap cries of demagogues in the United States and politicians in Europe to the effect that Uncle Sam is pursuing an imperialistic policy in his dealings with the other American nations. If this policy of refusing to recognize any territorial rearrangement based on force, is made the established policy for settling territorial disputes in the Western Hemisphere, it ought to set at rest any charges of imperialistic designs on the part of the United States.

It can be taken for granted that the United States is the most powerful nation in the Western Hemisphere. The United States above all other western nations has the power to grab off by forceful means, additional territory on the American continent. The fact that it does not do so, coupled with the fact that it sponsors a policy of not recognizing territorial claims established by force of arms, is the best evidence that we harbor no aggressive ambitions in the Western Hemisphere, or elsewhere. These facts establish a complete answer to the pink and yellow assaults occassionally made on Uncle Sam, charging him with being an "imperialist" among nations.

GARNER LEADS OFF FOR DEMOCRATS

The Democratic national leaders do not seem exactly comfortable over the fact that Speaker Garner, the party's vice presidential candidate, appears to have grabbed the spotlight from Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, the presidential candidate. That Garner was able to do this, either designedly or unthinkingly is of course due to his disagreement with President Hoover over relief legislation in the closing days of Congress. That Mr. Garner came off second best in the tilt must be evidenced to everyone who will examine the results from a non-partisan viewpoint and there is evidence that the Democratic leaders, and especially some of the Eastern Democratic newspapers, sense the fact.

The Garner program, it will be remembered comprised two big projects. First was the proposal for a gigantic building program, for the supposed purpose of aiding employment. Federal buildings were proposed for small towns and even villages in various parts of the country and so great was the national opposition aroused to this program that in certain instances protests were made by leading citizens and commercial organizations of the towns in which it was proposed to spend the money, the protests being made on the ground that the improvements were not needed and would constitute a needless extravagance. The proposal was lost.

The second Garner proposal was, of course, that which would have enabled individuals and private firms to borrow money from the government. The excuse for this was the Reconstruction Finance Corporation had loaned money to banks and great corporations like the railroads and not directly to the people." Of course nothnig was said about the deposits which the people have in the banks which the government was undertaking to save, and the investments in the securities of the railroads which were vital to the welfare, not only of thousands of individuals, but of the great insurance companies in which the great majority of our people have a real interest. And the objections to the Garner proposal were varied and logical.

President Hoover's veto of the relief bill brought his disagreement with the Speaker of the house into the limelight and made Mr. Garner for the time being, at least, the outstanding figure in the Democratic line-up.

But Mr. Garner's proposals do not appeal to constructive thought either in the East, the South or the West. Hence the discomfort to be seen in certain Democratic quarters.

If we are not much mistaken the public will see, in the near future, a very definite attempt on the part of Governor Roosevelt to " take the ball" away from Speaker Garner.

DEFEATISTS ON THE DEBTS

Says the United States Investor: "In effect, Europe has repudiated her war debt to us. We might as well call them what they are "bad debts" and write them off the books."

Europe has done no such thing and aside from the plaints of a number of European politicians there is no evidence that Europe is going to repudiate. There will of course be a great deal of complaining and a lot of shylock accsations but in the long run the debt question will be settled, and not by cancellation. Great Britain will not repudiate her debts, and in that event it is doubtful whether France will do so, because such an action would not only seriously affect her credit but will give her what she does not want—a further measure of isolation in Europe.

Aside from the question of foreign trade, Uncle Sam is pouring into foreign countries each year a billion dollars in money, in the shape of tourist expenditure, remittances from aliens in America, and charitable and business enterprises. He is expending a great deal more in France and Italy than those two nations are sending us on debt payments. This is aside from such questions as disarmament, and what European nations could save by scaling down their preparations for the next war "to make the world safe for Democracy."

If Uncle Sam will stand firm, as he shows every evidence of doing, and resist this cancellation talk, things will work out all right in the end. But the American "defeatists" who keep on declaring that Europe has repudiated the debts and will never pay them, are making it difficult for Uncle Sam to get his just dues. And they are rendering no real service either for Europe or America. The best thing for the future of both continents will now be cancellation but sane contracts built on the principle of capacity to pay.

MORAL ECHOES

(By D. W. Haskew)

Recently I had a meal in a home where a widowed mother had nine children under her care. I said to her, "Hattie, how on earth are you managing to train those chuldren as you are doing?" She made a sensible reply, "I am doing the best I can. I sleep with one eye open and with one ear listening." This good woman was acting as Sunday School superintendent in her community, and every Sunday she carried her own family to worship in the house of God. Children being trained in a home like that will become the men and women of leadership twenty-five years from today. I fear that the children being trained in the homes where the Sabbath is not respected and where Sunday school is not attended, will become the fodder to feed the courts and penitentiary less than twenty five years from today. Parents had better sleep with one eye open and one ear listening when you have children in your home.

I was called to visit a young lady who had swallowed an overdose of poison. The doctor was called also. Before the doctor reached the patient, I witnessed the intense suffering of the patient and viewed with alarm the increased domination of the poison in her system. When the doctor arrived the young lady's system was charged with the poison. After administering an antidote, the doctor informed me that he could not hold much hope for the girl. Said he, "The poison has been absorbed and it will be a miracle if she lives. The doctor said if he had been there when she swallowed the poison the antidote would have saved the life." The girl died. To witness the agony of that poisoned patient broke my heart. Every day I am called upon to witness the agony of another patient that is under the domination of poison. The church has swallower an overdose of the world and this form of poison is gradually gaining in domination over the life of our Zion. The Great Physician is injecting the antidote for the poison of formalism and modernism, but it seems that the patient is growing worse. It breaks my heart to witness the poison of the world as it is gradually gaining in the church of God. Oh, thou Great Physician, heal us with a sweeping revival.

I sat in the courtroom and listened to the pleadings of a lawyer. His client was charged with murder and damaging evidence had been submitted against him. The lawyer really believed his client to be innocent. He put his very soul into his appeal for acquittal, but the jurors came in with a decision of guilty and the man was sentenced for life. The lawyer could do nothing but bow to the decision of the court. He had lost his case. May I tell you of a lawyer in heaven who has never yet lost a case? This lawyer is at the service of everyone who will employ him to plead his case before the bar of God. He does not plead for money, but for the sake of love. This lawyer is Jesus. He has never lost a case.

I rode up to a country home one Saturday afternoon. A dozen of more men out of the community stood about the lot fence. On inquiry I found that there was an unruly mustang on the inside and that the men had gathered to unite their strength in mastering this wild horse. For an hour these men matched their skill and strength against the wildness and the danger of the unruly animal. Finally they mastered the horse. Men could master a wild horse, but when it comes to mastering a wild man this is only a task that God can do. No man can break his will, subdue his spirit, curb his passion, change his love, quiet his temper or give him a new nature. If he is ever to be saved from the vices and elements that unmake and break him, he must come into contact with the Redeemer of men. To tame a wild, wicked man, is the task of God.

I saw a man out cutting wood. He was one of those negative farmers. He cut wood with which to cook his food, but he planted no garden and no crop. While in school I attended the class room of a teacher who spent his time denying all error, but this teacher never advanced the truth. I listened to a preacher who lambasted sin and sinners, but never offered a code of righteousness. Any man who can handle mud or paint can spoil the finest piece of art in the world but it takes a genius to produce a work of art. Any fool can criticise and tear down, but it takes a real man to make something.

I saw some children at play. Among them was a little girl who moved about on crutches. One of the bad little boys decided that he would play a prank on the crippled child and so he ran up to her and jerked her crutch from under her. She fell to the ground. That was more than we could stand. It was bad enough for a boy to trip a well girl, but for him to knock the crutches from under a cripple, it went beyond endurance. Yet that is what is being done by the infidel. At our very best we are a bit lame in our attitude toward God, and when the infidel knocks our faith in Him from under us, we fall. No man does a creditable thing when he shatters the faith of anyone in God.

If there is to be any cancellation of the allied war debts to the United States, why not let the allies do the cancelling?

Until people regain confidence in themselves and in their government, increasing the amount of money in circulation would only tend to increase the amount of money in hiding.

TELL TALES

This fingerprinting of children will have one good result—it will enable exasperated mothers to trace the real culprit in the jam closet.

We haven't heard so much about those Dakota grasshoppers recently. Maybe wheat got so cheap the hoppers wouldn't deign to eat it any more.

The worst trouble about a war between Paraguay and Bolivia would be that it might inspire a lot of new Latin-American moving picture productions in which the beautiful senorita, lost in the pampas, is rescued from bandits by the gentleman-soldier-adventurer from the Northern Hemisphere.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT!

Dont' take too much interest in the private affairs of others—six per cent is a plenty.

Speak well of your enemies—you made them.

To make your dreams come true, wake up.

What is success? To do more for the world than the world does for you. That is success.

Spare no effort to educate the youth of the world, both morally and spiritually, that you may have a better world.

Education can be helped wondefully by both salary cutting and the levying of an income tax.

You better the world by bettering conditions and making brighter youth.

To better conditions, get the money where it is, and spend it where it is needed.

Do your bit to better conditions today. Tomorrow may be too late.—S. J. M. Webb, Maplesville, Ala.

More Signs of The Times

I always try to start this column off with something which will bring a smile. Sometimes it is a joke and sometimes good news. Sometimes, maybe, it don't get the smile. This week, however, I believe I'll get a big, broad one out of nearly every reader. I grab a paper as quick as I can get one every morning, to see how affairs are tending to turn, and I am happy to state that for the last several days the outlook has been for better times—much better times. From time to time I read where closed factories are opening, stocks and bonds rising in value, cotton and other farm products on the jump and numerous other good signs. But one morning this week I read something, the like of which I have not had the pleasure of reading for two years or more—newspaper articles telling of wage increases in a number of places. Doesn't that sound good? I believe that will bring a big, broad grin of satisfaction—much better than a joke could ever do. And, remember, this isn't a joke, either. It is good news! Whoop-ee! The panic is over!

Democrats, Too

Yes sir, I believe nearly everybody is glad to see things turn for better. One morning this week I heard a good, old, dyed-in-the-wool Democrat come clean for once. "Yes," he said, "I believe times are on the mend. I am glad to see it, too, even if it does mean we'll get the tar beat out of us this fall in the national election. I'm a Democrat all right, and I expect to vote the Democrat ticket, but if Hoover has at last devised some means to get enough of us to work WITH him long enough to bring about better times, I'm for him, EVEN IF I CAN'T VOTE FOR HIM." Now, isn't that just like a Democrat—vote for one thing and pray for another. Years ago, before I found out that most Democrats vote that way on account of tradition, seasoned with prejudice, and "just because Pap did," I couldn't understand why they did like that. But now that I'm older and, I hope, a little wiser, I just join with them in the hope that their prayers are stronger than their votes. That would be too tough for them to vote against their best judgment and then get what they voted for.

Good Baseball Games

I like to see good baseball, no matter who does the playing — leaguers, bushers, men or boys. And I enjoy seeing a home run slammed out, no matter if the batter is Ezra Sizzlehoofer from Splutterfuss Corners or Babe Ruth of "Noo Yawk." And, so, of late I have been having a great time attending the games at the local park. There are a number of really good teams in this and surrounding communities. Clanton has a pretty good aggregation, and then there are good teams at Thorsby, Cooper, Randolph, and other nearby places. The American Legion's "kid" teams are kicking in with good games every now and then, too. If you have been missing these games just because you thought they would be uninteresting, don't keep it up. Just because the teams which have been putting on these exhibitions are not widely known, or are composed of players without big "reps" is no reason why good baseball isn't being played around here. Come around to a few of the games, and you'll say so, too.

More Uses For Cotton

A few days ago I read an article about the discovery of several new uses for farm products. One of them was the making of envelopes, letterheads, etc., out of cotton cloth, containing "starch" made from sweet potatoes. A bit later I saw one of the envelopes—nice work. And what a hole could be knocked in that old cotton hold-over if lots of companies get t ousing "paper" of this kind. It seems this will be done, too, as several of the companies with vision enough to see that "as the farmer fares, so fares the nation" are becoming more and more "sold" on the idea. Well, we can stand a little prosperity right at this time, that is, if the big boys like throwing a little our way.

Maurice Saw Jack

Last week Maurice Lande was in Chicago. He hunted up "Our Boy Jack" Hayes, who is playing this season with the White Sox, and had a chat with him. Maurice says Jack is just the same old cornfield Jack in Chicago that he is in Clanton. He says that those Chicago fans, and the keen baseball heads, too, consider Jack as one of the best in the game when it comes to the "squeeze play" when the services of a good bunter are required. Some think that Jack went to the majors too young, but Maurice doesn't think so. He says Jack is in the major leagues to stay. They like him and his style of play—always on the hustle.

News vs. Watermelons

I never could think well on an empty stomach, and there's another meal due me right at this time. Too. news is scarce and watermelons are plentiful. On top of that, I can look out and see a few of the local baseball fans anxiously scanning the skies to see if the game this afternoon will be rained out. Believe I'll join them. Maybe that'll do for excuse this time.—Man in the Moon.

The Man on the Corner

Some Sights He Saw—
and Some He Saw Not.

"Taps for Shorty"

A number of people from Clanton went to Talledega last Sunday to attend the funeral of Capt. E. R. (Shorty) Wren. It was a full military funeral, with expressions of honor such as are accorded to few men. "Shorty" was Alabama's outstanding hero of the World War. He fought with the Rainbow Division and made a record that emblazoned his name upon the pages of our country's history. The funeral was attended by thousands of his "buddies" from all over Alabama. The Alabama Department of The American Legion, of which he was Commander, was in charge of the ceremonies. Marching in a column of fours, about fifteen hundred Alabama Legionnaires followed their fallen hero to his last resting place, and brushed away their tears as the buglers sounded "Taps for Shorty."

They Gave Us Our Hero

While at Talladega last Sunday I had the cherished honor of meeting and talking to Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Wren, father and mother of Edward C. Wren. I saw them at their home a few hours after the funeral of their noble and honored son. It was as the calm that follows the storm. Out of the sorrow that had engulfed their souls there was shining a spirit of calm satisfaction that came to them from beholding the wonderful tribute of respect that was paid to their boy by the people of Alabama. Dr. and Mrs. Wren have given to us our hero of this generation. It was a supreme sacrifice to them. It was a contribution to the glory and honor of our country.

The Good Samaritan Contest

I hope more churches of the county will get into the Good Samaritan Buying Contest being sponsored by the Union-Banner and a group of business houses in Clanton and Thorsby. There is no element of chance or gambling in the plan. Simply a plan whereby the merchants give votes for trade in their stores and the votes are cast for the church or organization you wish to help. The organization which gets the most votes will win a cash prize of $50; second prize is $30; third prize is $20.

"We Are Going To Have It"

The municipal election in Clanton is steadily approaching. One can hear talk on the streets indicating that interest is going to be keen. Mayor Lee Smith is running for re-election. He is opposed by ex-mayor J. B. Atkinson. Members of the present Town Council are running again. They are H. S. Shaw, H. G. Heflin, Grady Broadhead, Reedie Taylor, W. L. Popwell. Others in the race for members of the Council are G. C. Armstrong, W. H. Sartor, T. J. Marcus, T. C. McSwain and W. J. Billingsley. My guess is that the majority of the people of Clanton will express their endorsement of the present city administration by re-electing Mayor Smith and the members of the Council.

Fenn Jones Is Chairman

C. Fenn Jones, of Clanton, is chairman of the Chilton County unit of the Economy League of Alabama. For this important position Mr. Jones is a fitting person from every standpoint. He is honest, conscientious, and sincerely interested in the welfare of the taxpayer. He is a sound, conservative business man of long and successful experience. He is not a politician in any sense. He believes in economy as a fundamental principle of sound business activity. Under his leadership the Chilton County unit will make its weight felt at the proper time and in the proper place.

Economy League Wants Economy

It is increasingly apparent that the boys of the Economy League of Alabama and the different counties want real, honest-to goodness economy in government. They do not propose to go into any proposition that is sugar-coated with economy on the outside and made up of political designs on the inside. "We don't want anybody to take us up the creek," one of them was heard to say. The Economy League will urge the legislature to first cut down the state expenses as much as is physically possible. Then if the reduction is not enough to balance the budget (and it will not be) some way must be found to raise more revenue.

Blame it on Hoover

Dief says the situation is well in hand, but he does not know exactly whose hand it is in. George Polk said he reckons it is still in the hands of Hoover, Mellon, Mills and their cohorts. Bud Littlejohn says it looks like Hoover is going to cause him to lose his fodder. But Tom says it is the baseball games and not Hoover that threatens Bud's fodder crop. George concluded the session by declaring that business is looking better, but he did not say who he blames for that.

Says Begin at Home

"Economy, like charity, should begin at home," said D. S. Robinson in the economy League meeting at the courthouse Monday. In purusance of this principle, Mr. Robinson introduced a resolution requesting Representative Pitts to pass a bill in the legislature placing all officers of Chilton County on a salary and abolishing the fee system. Mr. Robinson expressed the belief that hundreds of dollars could be saved every year by this means and added: "If we really mean what we say about wanting our State to reduce expenses, we ought to be willing first to reduce our own county expenses as much as possible."

Applications Being Made

Application of unemployed people to work on the roads of the county are being taken now by Judge Reynolds. He went to Pletcher for that purpose Monday, and to Maplesville Tuesday. Applications may also be made at the Probate office any time.

Remember the good old days when railroad trains used to be running three hours late at holiday periods on account of the heavy traffic?

The way Ma. Ferguson runs in Texas ought to make her eligible for the Democratic vice presidential nomination in 1936.

One thing the civil war in Brazil ought to be able to do and that is to raise the price of coffee.

Maybe those Washington statesmen who fill the Federal payroll with the names of their own relatives are merely acting on the theory that charity begins at home.

REFUGE

Health of this community is very good at the present time.

Our Sunday School and B. Y. P. U. are doing nicely, altho we are sorry to say that there is plenty of room for improvement.

A number of our folks visited Pates Chapel during their revival and reported a nice time. Those who went are J. S. Easterling and family, Mally Easterling and family, Mrs. Ruth Lockhart and children, Miss Mabel Parker and Mrs. Ethel Easterling.

Mr. J. S. Easterling and family, Mrs. Ruth Lockhart and children went to Sylacauga the latter part of last week visiting relatives and returned Sunday evening.

Our pastor, Rev. M. Lockhart is running a revival at Maple Springs this week. We are praying for him a grand success.

Everybody come to Sunday School next Sunday and bring some one with you and let's make our Sunday School one of the very best.

It has been learned in Clanton that the Collins Chapel Schoolhouse was struck by lightening one day last week. The building was set on fire, and otherwise damaged. People nearby saw the bolt as it struck, and put out the fire before it got under headway.

Farmers in the neighborhood of Jemison will assemble there at two o'clock Friday and go to Willie Shaw's place on the highway above Jemison. There they will join a party of farmers of the Providence community, and go to the farms of S. C. Sloan, Mr. Morris, and others, for vetch demonstrations. County Agent Stapp hopes as many farmers as possibly can will attend.

"IS MY FACE RED?"

Straight from the shoulder Hollywood strikes at the exasperating phenomenon of personal comment in modern journalism with "Is My Face Red?", a production that dramatizes column conductors.

A swift-moving drama, sparkling with wit and excitement, it is faultlessly presented by a brilliant cast, which includes Helen Twelvetrees, Ricardo Cortez, Jill Esmond, Robert Armstrong, Arline Judge and Zasu Pitts.

In keen, incisive fashion, the film puts the "master mind" who rattles family skeletons on the "spot"; tears him from his pedestal and topples him into the pit of his own creation. His career is woven into a scintillating story which holds breathless interest and builds its suspense up to a smashing conclusion.

In handling this type of columnist without gloves, at the Wadesonian Theatre, does not make him entirely unsympatchetic character. The gossip writer, superbly portrayed by Cortez, is a swash-buckling, dashing fellow, who matches his personal charm, audacity and courage his utter lack of scruples.

This columnist's chief fault is egomania, and he is ruthless in amassing the notoriety upon which it feeds. He is fearless, even to broadcasting the truth about a speakeasy murder, when he knows that doing so may mean his death. In a way, he is true to the journalistic principle that the story is the thing at all cost.

The final picturesque flare of his matchless ego provides a climax which will cause "Is My Face Red?" to be remembered and talked about when most current pictures are long forgotten.

Miss Twelvetrees gives a sparkling performance as the colmnist's show girl sweetheart and scandal scout, and Jill Esmond is outstanding as a society beauty who finds diversion with him in a "personally conducted tour of the gutters." Other noteworthy performances are contributed by Armstrong and the Misses Judge and Pitts. Ben Markson, and Allen Rivkin, former newspaper men, are the authors of this brilliant film story. William Seiter directed with understanding and skill.

"Look—what's in the paper!"

That attitude of the general public toward the personalities of people know to them only as a "name," has caused more turmoil than the World War, if you take the view of brokers who like to dine with Follie beauties and tired business men who prefer blondes for recreation.

The disturbance that an energetic columnist can make when he takes his facts where he finds them and lets the squawks fall where they may are graphically pictured in "Is My Face Red?", the RKO-Radio picture showing at the Wadesonian Theatre.

In this racy, virile drama, Ricardo Cortez plays a New York tabloid writer who specializes in gossip, wise-cracks and insinuations. Neither the high nor the low are immune from his barbed shafts and he knows but one creed of filling his column with material that people will read and talk about. Both a hero and a vagabond, his round of ordeals provides absorbing entertainment.

Playing the romantic lead opposite him is Helen Twelvetrees.

To the Voters of The Town of Clanton:

I am a candidate for re-election to the office of Mayor of the Town of Clanton in the City election to be held on September 19, 1932.

The following members of the Council are also running for re-election, H. S. Shaw, Grady Heflin, Fate Popwell, Reedie Taylor and Grady Broadhead.

At the time the present mayor and councilmen took over the affairs of the town two years ago, the affairs of the town were in a very bad financial condition. The indebtedness of the town was very heavy and by application of rigid economy and business methods during these two years, the present mayor and councilmen have paid approximately $25,000.00, including interest on this due indebtedness, which was due when they took office. Much of this indebtedness dates as far as the year 1925. The present administration has also paid for all purchases made by them and by doing this were able to save substantial discounts for the taxpayers.

During a former administration there was purchased by the officials of the town, a filtering plant and the water rates were raised during that administration to meet the payments upon this filtering plant. However, on January 1, 1932, and after the present administration took office, the rates under which the Town had been operating for several years, was reduced by the present administration approximately one-third. The rates have been reduced lower than during the administration of Hon. J. B. Atkinson. For instance during the administration of Hon. J. B. Atkinson, the minimum rate was 1,000 gallons, for which the charge was $1.25 or 62½ cents per 500 gallons and during the present time the minimum is $1.50 for 1,500 gallons or 50 cents fo r500 gallons, that is, on the minimum charge, which affects most people. The rates are now 12½ cents cheaper for 500 gallons on minimum rate than during the administration of Hon. J. B. Atkinson. The present administration paid approximately $4,200 on this filtering plant and paying the balance due on May 15, 1932.

A fire engine was purchased during the administration of the Hon. J. B. Atkinson at hte price of $7,500 upon which a payment of approximately $750.00 was made during that administration and since that time no payments or interest payments had been made until the present administration took office and during the present administration, the sum of $2,000.00 on the principal has been paid and $731.17 interest.

During the two years that I have been mayor, there has been no paving or public improvements made, assessing the property owner or taxpayer, and if I am re-elected, I will use my vote and influence wherever possible against any such public improvements or assessments.

During our administration the books of the town have been audited twice and sworn to by certified public accountants and a financial statement was published in the county papers during the year 1931 and there will appear, within the next few weeks and before the expiration of our term of office, another statement showing the financial status of the town, as we believe the business of every citizen and each citizen should be fully appraised of the financial standing of the town. We appreciate the advice and assistance the citizens have given us in the operation of the town of Clanton, and if I am re-elected, I will continue to apply business methods in the operation of our town, decreasing the debts wherever possible and at all times operating the town as economically as possible and always with the idea in view to reduce taxes, licenses and water rates whenever possible.

Your vote and influence will be appreciated.—J. Lee Smith.

WINTER LEGUMES INCREASE YIELDS

Figures For Chilton County Crops Are Given Out By County Agent

Within six years plantings of winter legume seed in Chilton county have increased from 1,000 pounds to 40,000 pounds. The reason assigned by County Agent C. E. Stapp for this big increase is that hairy vetch and Austrian peas have demonstrated their outstanding value to farmers of this county. They have paid handsome returns. It is expected that 40,000 pounds will be planted in this county this fall.

To illustrate these advantages he said that farmers in this county who planted winter legume seed last fall and plowed the crop under last spring to enrich the land are making 18 bushels to 25 bushels more corn per acre as a result. Those who planted cotton following winter legumes expect to harvest an increase of 600 pounds to 1,000 pounds of seed cotton per acre.

The reason for these increases in yields is that these winter legumes enrich the land, adding all the nitrogen that cotton, corn, and other crops need. A large amount is added in addition to the nitrogen. Winter legumes are also good for early spring grazing as well as a splendid hay crop when mixed with oats and other small grains, the county agent explained.

Mr. Stapp is enthusiastic over the present prospects for planting winter legume seed in this county this fall. Farmers are ordering seed, preparatory to planting. They are also buying fertilizer, using basic slag, a by-product of the steel industry of Birmingham. It is preferred to superphosphate by the experiment station at Auburn.

Among those who are now active in their support of the winter leume movement in this county are W. C. Robinson, J. N. Dennis, W. L. Popwell, W. L. Parrish, B. Lawrence, H. S. Shaw, W. I. Mullins, all of Clanton, and Dr. C. N. Parnell of Maplesville, W. A. Gulledge of Verbena; Cecil Baggett, and Leon Popwell, Thorsby; L. W. Allen, S. C. Sloan, L. G. Posey and J. N. MOST SUCCESSFUL REVIVAL CLOSES AT PROVIDENCE, 16

With the baptizing of fifteen converts at Providence last Sunday afternoon came to a close what appears to be one of the most successful revivals ever held at that church. There were twenty-eight additions in all.

Most of the preaching was done by the pastor, Rev. J. D. Hughes, however four sermons were preached by Rev. W. E. Robinson of Birmingham and two were preached by Rev. W. W. Robinson of Providence.

After the baptizing Sunday afternoon the people returned to the house and extended the right hand of fellowship to the new members. A short conference was held in which the calling of a preacher was gone into, the result being the choosing of the same pastor and clerk—Rev. J. D. Hughes, pastor and James Mose Robinson, clerk.

EVENING SCHOOL FOR THE FARMERS

Will Be Taught At Collins Chapel By Prof. J. P. Montgomery

Prof. J. P. Montgomery, teacher of vocational agriculture at the Jemison High School, announces that he will conduct an evening school at Collins Chapel schoolhouse, beginning Monday, August 29, at seven o'clock, p.m.

The control of insects and plant diseases of truck, garden and orchard crops will be featured. Among the lessons to be taught are demonstrations on:

(1) Treating fruit trees for borers; (2) Spraying for scale and peach leaf curl; (3) Summer spraying of fruit trees; (4) Pruning an orchard. These demonstrations will be given some time during the course at the home of a farmer in the neighborhood.

Demonstrations at the schoolhouse will consist of: (1) Treating seed potatoes, both Irish and sweet, for diseases prior to bedding or planting; (2) Selecting and mixing garden spray materials; (3) The use of spray guns and dust guns.

The main insects of the garden and truck crops will be discussed at the meetings. The farmers of Collins Chapel community are urged to attend. County Agent Stapp will cooperate in this work, and is going to stress the soil-building program by planting vetch and peas.

There is no charge for a school of this kind. It is part of the work of a teacher of vocational agriculture. Mr. Montgomery has just returned from Auburn with his M. S. degree. He has been ten years getting this degree, going to school a few weeks each summer, and taking extension courses and other field work at home. He received his B. S. Degree from Mississippi A. & M. College in 1915.

Miss Louise Burnett and Miss Ruth Higgins of Elmore were guests of Miss Roberta Childress last week.

Stapp Warns Against Securing Government Flour By Fraudulent Statements

In June I requested a few citizens from each Beat in the county to meet at the courthouse and decide whether or not we should ask our government for flour. A second meeting was held one week later at which time I was asked by Mr. S. L. Gibson, chapter chairman of Chilton County Red Cross to order out some of the government flour. A committee was named to distribute the flour. The present committees are as follows:

Central committee: S. L. Gibson, chairman; L. H. Reynolds, Chas. Foshee, Willie Shaw, Dr. H. M. Nix and Dr. A. A. Conway.

Beat Committees: Beat 1, Chas. Cox and O. R. Mullins; Beat 2, C. W. Scott, W. N. Thomas, L. W. Allen and Dr. A. A. Conway; Beat 3, D. O. Manning and C. B. Lenoir; Beat 4, J. H. Jackson, John Jones, John Smith, S. M. Devaughn, Geo. Willis and R. M. Foshee; Beat 5, W. A. Gulledge, Sid Gibson, J. C. Pattillo and Rev. E. A. Norris; Beat 6, Chas. Wilkins and L. C. Keen; Beat 7, W. M. Oden, W. E. Northrup and Jake Wallace; Beat 8, Geo. Walker and D. T. Parnell; Beat 9, E. R. Piper, Rev. Each, Sam Collins and Alex Maddox; Beat 10, G. S. Miner, J. B. Logan and Hugh Taylor; Beat 11, W. M. Cleckler, and J. L. Miner; Beat 12, P. M. Martin, Jim Dorminey and Posey Cleckler; Beat 13, Willie Shaw and Bernie Killingsworth; Beat 14, L. G. Posey and B. F. Raspberry; Beat 15, E. G. Caldwell, J. L. Abbott, W. M. Headley and M. F. Wagoner; Beat 16, W. W. Robinson and Monroe Parrish.

Before the arrival of the first car of flour I sent each Beat committeeman a questionaire to determine approximately the needs of each Beat. Upon receipt of the replies from the committeemen I found that more than one thousand families in the county were requesting the flour.

Warning

The act of Congress providing this flour specifically states that it is for people who are in need and distress and who are unable to get flour otherwise.

Practically all of these signed statements have been turned in by the committeemen and checked. Many reports are coming in that certain individuals who were not entitled to do so, received flour of the last shipment. I have tried to make it clear to these people that if they sign these sworn statements and obtain this flour when they can get it otherwise, that they are obtaining it under false pretense.

I would dislike very much to have a federal investigation in Chilton County over a little flour and I appeal to the readers to explain to your neighbors who do not get the county papers just as I have above, who is and who is not entitled to this government flour.

A second car of flour is expected in a few days, and I am anxious for every family that does not have flour and has no way of getting any, except as it is given, to get some of the flour. You can help by telling those whom you know are unable to provide for themselves to see one of the committeemen of your beat.

If you know of cases where people were able to get flour they needed but received flour from the last shipment, you might suggest to them that they replace same with some member of the committee and get a signed receipt. It might avoid them trouble later.

I appeal to you to help avoid any of our people getting into trouble by obtaining this flour under false pretense.

Trusting that I have made myself clear and assuring you that I am glad to do what I can to help those who are in distress, I am, yours very truly.—C. E. Stapp.

The Clanton Baptist Church is being organized in a concerted campaign of preparation for the revival meeting which will run from September 4 to 11, inclusive. The visiting preacher will be Dr. John R. Sampey, president of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, at Louisville.

It is considered a rare treat for the Baptists of Clanton to have Dr. Sampey with us in this campaign. All people of the community and of the entire county are earnestly invited to attend and join in the services.

SALVATION ARMY ISSUES WARNING

Public Advised To Be Careful About Solicitors For Relief Funds

Charitably inclined individuals in Alabama and especially those who have a soft spot in their hearts for the Salvation Army, were issued a warning yesterday by Major C. J. Hickney, commander of the army's activities in this state.

Numerous reports from friends of the army (who know that funds are not being solicited at this time) are being received at Army Headquarters every week, stating that persons purporting to be accredited representatives of the Salvation Army are soliciting funds to carry on the work of the Army. Major Hickey branded such solicitors as either misguided and unauthorized friends or imposters.

Major Hickey made a request to friends of the army, that they report to headquarters at Birmingham any information that may reach them concerning fund solicitations for the army. The imitation of the Salvation army by other organizations was attributed at the army's headquarters to the unavoidable consequence of popularity, and although in the words of one of the officers, "this imitation is a sincere form of flattery," yet army leaders realize that these imposters are bringing discredit to the army and are most anxious that the public will protect it along his line.

Accredited solicitors for the Salvation Army are supplied with proper credentials signed by Major C. J. Hickey. Contributors would be protected by asking for these credentials.

DRANK SHOE POLISH

EZELL TO FINISH TEN YEARS HERE

Special Anniversary Service Is Planned At The Baptist Church Sunday

You are especially invited to come to Sunday school and preaching services at the Clanton Baptist church next Sunday. The occasion will celebrate the termination of the tenth year of the pastorate of Dr. S. J. Ezell, and it is earnestly hoped that a capacity attendance will be present for all the services of the day.

This invitation is extended not only to Baptists of Clanton, but to members of all other congregations, both in Clanton and adjacent communities. The work of Dr. Ezell in the past ten years has brought to him the friendship and admiration of people all over Chilton County in all the different denominations. His church invites all the people to come with them next Sunday in this special celebration service.

Again the effort will be made to have 500 in the Baptist Sunday school. This has been attempted several times since Dr. Ezell has been in Clanton, but it has not been accomplished. The church feels it is due him this mark of appreciation, and everybody is invited to help in the effort to reach the goal on next Sunday.

Among the outstanding achievements during the ten years of Dr. Ezell's pastorate are mentioned the payment of about twenty thousand dollars on the church plant; built and paid for the Sunday school annex; reorganized Sunday school, B. Y. P. U. and W. M. S. with more than 100 per cent increase in attendance; 633 have been received into fellowship of the church.

Rev. Ezell and Mrs. Ezell have taken an active part in all Associational work during the time they have been here. The achievements of the W. M. S. under the leadership of Mrs. Ezell is one of the outstanding accomplishments of the Baptist women of Alabama.

At the morning hour next Sunday Dr. Ezell will bring a special message of interest to the church. An effort is being made to have every member of the church present.

A special effort is being made this week to enlist for church membership 17 new members, which would bring the total ingathering for the 10 years pastorate up to 650.

WE'VE GOT ENOUGH

The publishers of the Union-Banner are very sorry to have to call a halt on the publication of letters from pupils in the Opportunity Schools. This is necessary, however, because we have been so flooded with them.

If we were to publish all these letters we have received, we would not have room for anything else in the paper.

What It Costs in Cotton To Run Government of State of Alabama

In 1918 state government in Alabama cost $7,832,939. In 1931 state government in Alabama cost over $36,000,000. That's an increase of about 362 per cent in 13 years.

But even this incredible advance in state governmental costs does not really measure the added burden actually imposed on Alabama citizens. To give the true story, the figures should be stated, not in dollars, but in the value of commodities—then and now—from which taxes must be paid.

The chief source of income of the greatest number of our people is cotton. In 1918 when the cost of running our state government was $7,832,939, cotton sold for 30 cents a pound.

In 1918 it took 52,219 bales of 30 cent cotton to pay the cost of government in Alabama. In 1931, when government costs had mounted to $36,000,000, cotton sold for about 6 cents per pound.

In 1931 it took 1,208,931 bales of 6 cents cotton to pay the cost of government in Alabama.

In brief, it took over 23 times as many bales of 1931 cotton to pay the 1931 cost of our state government as it did in 1918.

Or put it another way: In 1918 it took about 6½ per cent of Alabama's total cotton crop, amounting to 800,622 bales per year to pay the 1918 cost of our state government. In 1931 it took about 85 per cent of Alabama's total cotton crop of 1,430,000 bales to pay the 1931 cost of government in Alabama.

But in this hard times year of 1932 it would take even more—in fact, it would take all of Alabama's cotton crop to meet the cost of government in Alabama, provided it remains at the 1931 figure of $36,000,000.

Figure it this way: Preliminary govergnmental estimates place Alabama's crop this year at 950,000 bales. The present price in Alabama is about 7 cents a pound or $35.00 a bale. If the cost of operating Alabama's government this year is $36,000,000, it will require 1,028,571 bales to pay it. That is 78,571 more bales than it is estimated Alabama will produce in 1932.

Think of it—over 230,000 Alabama farmers, working 3,030,000 acres, can't raise enough cotton in one year to pay the cost of our state government for one year.

The foregoing figures are for state government alone. They do not include costs of county governments or of city governments. Add these and it is evident that many other crops besides cotton would be required to foot the bill for government in Alabama.

These figures are commended to the legislature, which is meeting now in extraordinary session, to consider ways and means of getting greater public revenues from empty private pockets.

DAT BLOOMIN PREACHER

This Week's Blossom:

—o—

Jesus sa: In my Father's house are many mansions.
Ah sa: Lots ob church folks will hab to make out wid a cabin on de riber.—The Elder.

Ah wants to talk to you dis mawnin bout divine callins, or de callin ob God. Ah will read fur a lesson, a part ob de 12 chapter ob Genesis, fum de 1st to de 9th verse. (Reads lesson.) We is now gwyin to stan an sing "Footsteps ob Jesus.". Now be seated.

Ah am so thankful fur de words in dat song whut sa "We can hear Thee callin cum follow me." In Hebrews 3:1, we read "Wherefore, holy brethren, partakers of the heavenly calling, consider the Apostle and High Priest of our profession, Jesus Christ." Dar am lots ob difrunt kinds ob callins. Dat is, God calls men to difrunt work because all are not fitted fur de same job. Evybody has his talent, an God recognizes his fitness fur a certain work, an calls him to dat work. God mus hab had in His mind de raisin up ob a nation to hisself when He called Abraham. He knowed dat Abraham wud be faithful to Him, an wuz de very one to become de father ob a nation ob people dat he cud call his own. Do you remember how he, Abraham, wuz called on to offer his only son, Isaac, on de alter? Dat wuz done to try Abraham. Rite here Ah wants to sa dat God nevah makes a mistake. He is sure ob His man befo He calls him.

Next we hear God callin Moses. in Exodus 3:10, God says to Moses: Come now therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharaoh, that thou mayest bring forth my people, the children ob Israel, out ob Egypt. Dis wuz a special task for which Moses wuz peculiarily fitted, because ob his trainin in de house ob Pharoah. Shoah, Moses tried to get outen it by sayin dat he wuz slow ob speach, but God remedied dat by gibin him his Brother Aaron. Next we hear God callin David. David wuz de sweet singer ob Israel an had in him de makins ob a great king. He wuz de one man whut cud unite de people. David turned ovah to his son, Solomon, a united kingdom.

Next we will take Isaiah. In de 6 chapter he has a vision, he says "I saw also the Lord sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up, and his train filled the temple." In dat vision he wuz terrified, an wuz confirmed for his message. An den in de 8 verse, he says, "Also I heard the voice of the Lord, sayin, whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Then said I, here am I; send me." It is a thrilling experience indeed, to hab de Lord call unto us, and pick out de work dat He wants us to perform. Ah beliebe dat God has His man fur evy emergency, an if dat man will sho Him dat he is willin, den He will fit him to do de thing whut He wants him to do.

Now les look at some ob de callins in our churches. Ah has knowed some men whut God called to be deacons, an atter a little while da stop gwyin to church, an wont hab nothin to do wid it. Da seem to forgit dat da hab cum under de hans ob de presbytery, an by de church set apart to de work ob a deacon. Next we will notice de ministers. Sum folks dont beliebe in a God called ministery. Des lak da wud make de sacirfices dat da is called upon to make, an take upon dem selves all ob de troubles ob de churches, an take all ob de abuses heeped upon dem, jes fur whut little glory da mought git outen it. One deacon sed to a preacher not so long ago dat he wished dat he cud jes hear one God called preacher. Dat showed dat he didnt beliebe in a God called ministery, an dat deacon wuz not attendin his church services at all. Ef I had bin dat preacher Ah wud hab sed to him, yes, an Ah wud like to see some God called deacons, deak a little.

De next thing Ah want to sa is dis. When you has a case in cote, you git a lawyer; do you begin to dictate to him how he shud prosecute de case? When you git sick an send fur a doctor, do you try to tell him whut medicine he shud gib you? When you employ a carpenter to build a house, do you try to tell him jes how to build it? Do you try to instruct de teacher how to teach yoah chillun? No, you employ desemen because da no how to perform de things fur which da is hired. Now when you call a preacher to de care ob yoah church, why doubt his call to de ministery; especially ef he is doin de work ob a minister. When de church calls him, da beleibe dat he is capable ob instructin dem an leadin dem in de rite path. Ef you beliebe in yoah doctor as a medical advisor, why cant you beliebe in yoah pastor as yoah spiritual advisor? It seems to me dat Ah had rudder risk de preacher's advice than de doctors, cause de doctors mistake mought prove fatal, while ef de preacher makes a mistake dar is no body hurt, cause da dont take his advice no how.

Now, my siner frins, Ah want to tell you bout how de Lord calls you. In Matt. 11:28, Jesus sa "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." God calls de whole worl ob lost souls through His son, Jesus Christ, an has Him to sa dat da can git rest through Him. Ah want to sa dat dar am no rest fur de werry in no other wa than through de death, burial an resirection of Jesus Christ. You is called today to come to Him. Why will you put it of? Hear Him callin you now my frins.

You no how bad you want a doctor when you are sick, an how you will take de medicine whut he prescribes. Will you take Jesus, which is a certain cure fur yoah soul.

Ah mus close; now stan an be dismis.

IN MEMORY

On December 17, 1897, God planted a little rosebud in the home of Mr. Tom Powell. He called this little flower Pharoah. As the years flew by, she grew into a beautiful, full bloomed flower.

In 1912 she was married to Mr. Arthur Mims, son of Mr. William Mims. There were born to them 10 beautiful children, 3 of which have gone to the great beyond. She was known as a fine and noble mother.

On July 27, 1932 at 9 o'clock p.m. God called her to go be with her mother and 3 little children. She is missed by each and every one. Even the little children of the community misses her, but our loss is heaven's gain.

She met all her troubles with a smile. She was always ready to share her part in any and all things. She was a faithful member of Refuge church. Oh, how we miss her in Sunday school and church.

She leaves to mourn her loss, husband, seven children, five sisters, three brothers and a host of relatives and friends.

On July 28, at 2 o'clock, she was buried at Walnut Creek church. The funeral was conducted by Rev. M. Lockhart, Rev. J. W. Jones, of Thorsby, and Rev. M. J. Parrish.

Miss Lena Mims of Birmingham is visiting her mother here.

DR. GUY E. SNAVELY IS STRONG AGAINST REPEAL

Dr. Guy Snavely was asked to give in a few short paragraphs, his views on the repeal of the 18th amendment. He replied: "If the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed and we return to the open saloon, this country will see an incalculable setback from several points of view.

There will be a great loss financially and much suffering in many households. The habit of wastage of household economies in the saloon by the head of the family was one of the saddest sights I remember from pre-Volsteadian days.

"The intemperance that will be encouraged by the repeal of the 18th amendment will tend greatly to weaken the physical stamina of our people. I am sure there is no debate in anyone's mind about the evil results in this particular.

From the moral and spiritual side, the evils of intemperance will be more pronounced than in any other phase of our existence. In the wake of intemperance will follow, as it did in the old saloon days, murder, wrecked homes, thievery, and other crimes."

Sunday was our regular preaching Sunday. Rev. W. P. Lowery preached a good sermon, after which he was the dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charley Stroud.

Our singing society will meet again next Sunday afternoon. On account of bad weather we did not meet the second Sunday afternoon. We invite all singers to come and help us out.—Reporter.

GIFTS FOR BUILDING THE TABERNACLE

GOLDEN TEXT—Honour the Lord with thy substance, and with the first fruits of all thine increase.

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 35:4-36:7.

PRIMARY TOPIC — The Meeting Place That Love Built.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Meeting Place That Love Built.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Giving Our Best to God.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Giving in Church Life.

1. The Plan of the Tabernacle (Exod. 25-27).

It was a rectangular structure thirty cubits long, ten cubits wide and ten cubits high. It was divided into two rooms: the Holy Place, and the Holy of Holies. These rooms were separated by the vail. The tabernacle was within a court one hundred cubits long and fifty cubits wide. Within the court, before the door of the tabernacle, was situated the brazen altar; between the altar of sacrifice and the door was the laver; inside the Holy Place the candlestick and table of shewbread; directly in front of the vail the altar of incense which was closely connected with the brazen altar in the contact of fire and blood. In the Holy of Holies was found the Ark of the Covenant, the most sacred object of the entire tabernacle.

II. The Meaning of the Tabernacle (Exod. 28-30).

The tabernacle was the symbol of God's dwelling place. The bond of union affording a medium of communication was the priesthood. The priest was the mediator between God and the people. The tabernacle typified the incarnation of God in Christ (John 1:14). The furniture of the tabernacle, beginning with the brazen altar, symbolized the spiritual history of the worshiper, making clear the sinner's method of approach unto God. The position of the brazen altar at the door of the tabernacle indicated that no one could draw nigh unto God except by way of that altar. The question of sin must be settled before man dares approach God. The laver typifies the sanctification of the believer. Sanctification was effected by the washing at the laver, prefiguring the influences of God's Word. The candlestick with its central shaft and its extending branches indicated the unity and diversity of God's people. The candlestick also shows the purpose of the sanctification of the believer; namely, to shine for God. The table of shewbread was for a memorial unto God of his chosen people, one loaf for each tribe. The altar of incense symbolized communion with God in worship. The putting of the blood from the brazen altar on the altar of incense shows that acceptable prayer rests on the ground of the atoning work of Christ. The vail symbolizes the flesh of Christ. The rending of the vail at the time of Christ's crucifixion shows that the death of Christ gives access to God. The mercy seat upon which the blood of the sin offering was sprinkled indicates that the claim of God's law had been satisfied.

III. The Offerings for the Tabernacle (Exod. 35:20-29).

1. The motive of giving (v. 21, cf. v. 5). "Whosoever is of a willing heart, let him bring it, an offering of the Lord." Giving which meets God's approval must spring from the heart (II. Cor. 9:7). The offering must not only be made of a willing mind, but it must be as unto the Lord, an expression of love and godly fear.

2. Who had part in giving (v. 22). "They came both men and women." It was God's purpose from the beginning that women should unite in the support and care of the worship of God.

3. What was to be given (vv. 23-28). Two features characterized the giving: measure and variety.

a. The measure. They brought what they had to bring. No one is under obligation to give that which he does not possess. This is emphasized in such expressions as "every man with whom was found," "all the women who were wise hearted." What one has to give is clearly the measure of one's duty in giving.

b. Variety. They brought jewelry (v. 22), gold (v. 22), fine linen (v. 23), goat's hair and rough skin (v. 23). Wise hearted women would spin with their hands (v. 25). The rulers brought the expensive things that were needed (v. 27).

IV. The Workers Who Constructed the Tabernacle (Exod. 35:29-36:7).

1. Wise hearted women (35:25, 26).

2. Skilled artists (35:30-36:4). Bezaleel and Aholiab, with others, executed this task. Their wisdom and skill were the result of the Spirit of God upon them.

WORDS OF WISDOM

The devil does not have to worry about the children of a card-playing mother.

I see that spirituality of mind is the main qualification for the work of the ministry.—Urquhart.

The superintendent of a modern cemetery fells morally obliged to inform those who come to him at the time of bereavement of the merits of the various vaults used to protect the casket from the elements. CHILTON COUNTY ABSTRACT CO.

M. D. FOSHEE, Manager

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth.

However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

Century Old Theories Exploded By Science

Startling Discoveries Reveal New and Amazing Facts About Disease

Human Body Composed of Only 16 Elements. Deficiency of Any of These Destroys Health.

Strange as it may seem, these wonderful bodies of ours consist of a very limited list of fundamental chemical elements. Contrary to age-old theories, it is now known that only eleven minerals and five gases are needed by Nature in building the strongest man or the most beautiful woman.

OUR BODIES ARE ROBBED

All of these essential Minerals and gases are present in natural foods but improper cooking and an unbalanced diet rob us of these vital elements. The system becomes charged with acid. Indigestion and Constipation follow. We become nervous and irritable; subject to headaches, fail to get the proper rest at night, become weak and listless and good health deserts us.

NATURE DEMANDS HELP

When any of the essential Minerals are deficient, Nature demands help. Harsh laxatives, "patent" medicines and "pain killers" won't do. You must feed into the body those missing elements that Nature demands. LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND, the new scientific formula, contains a balanced supply of Minerals, in combination with vitamins and it is surprising how quickly the system responds to this Natural health building formula.

Make This 10 Day Test
Convince Yourself!

Stop dosing yourself with "patent medicines," harsh purgatives, oils and cathartics for just 10 days. Go to your nearest Druggist and secure a bottle of LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND. Take it regularly, and watch the results. You'll be amazed at the feeling of renewed strength and vigor that soon appears. No narcotics or alcohol to "boost you up" but a natural method of restoring health and energy.

LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND
With Vitamins
SWEEPS THE SYSTEM CLEAN OF IMPURITIES

Drives Out Dangerous "Toxic" Poisons, Eliminates Excessive Acids That Destroy Health. Supplies the Body With Essential Minerals, Builds Rich, Red Blood, New Strength and Energy. Restores the Appetite and Aids Digestion. Helps You Enjoy Life to the Fullest.

We've cracked the depression in the gasoline business—cracked it wide open by offering the public a new Sinclair Regular Gasoline stepped up 70% in anti-knock—a gasoline which is actually superior in anti-knock to some premium gasolines selling at several cents more per gallon. It cost us $18,000,000 in new refinery equipment to do it—but how the public likes it! Sales on the new Sinclair Regular jumped 30% the first month in the first city where this new ace of high-test motor fuels was announced!

Try this bargain in gasolines for 30 days. Let the results convince you.

NOTE: For best results use either SINCLAIR OPALINE MOTOR OIL or SINCLAIR PENNSYLVANIA MOTOR OIL. Both have been de-waxed and also freed from petroleum jelly at as low as 60° F. below zero.

AUBURN WILL BEGIN 61ST TERM SEPT. 6-8

Auburn, Ala., Aug 23.—The sixty-first session of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn will open on September 6. 7, and 8. The first two or three days will be devoted to registration of students and on the third day regular class work for students will begin.

This brief announcement was made by the Administrative Committee, composed of Dean John J. Wilmore, chairman; Prof B. H. Crenshaw, and director L. N. Duncan, selected by the board of trustees to act as president until a permanent successor to Dr. Knapp, resigned, is elected.

The committee said that there will be no interruption in the service at Auburn, and that an excellent year is anticipated. The faculty is optimistic and a large enrollment of splendid young men and ladies are expected.

The committee pointed out that with present conditions now is an ideal time to attend college and prepare for future careers by getting fundamental training. It was explained that the value of getting education continues to increase and that because of this boys and girls are wise in doing everything they can to obtain a desireable education at Auburn.

Letters received from old students and applications from those who finished high school this year bespeak a large enrollment.

ALABAMA FARM NEWS

David Chapman, Grove Hill, estimates a harvest of 40 bushels of corn per acre on land following his crop of vetch.

Cormer Borland, a Dale County farmer, says that oats and vetch hay will keep his mules in good condition all through the summer, and that the stubble makes good corn.

Henderson Johnson prefers vetch for enriching his Dale County farm lands, having grown vetch 6 feet tall and produced wonderful crops of corn following. He uses oats and vetch for grazing spring pigs, turning the cover crop late in the spring and planting to corn.

By planting peas and vetch to enrich soil the state farm atJackson has increased the yield of cotton from 11 bales on 125 acres to 48 bales on 52 acres in three years. Farmers near the farm say their corn yield is so poor that they will not plant any more corn unless they can grow cover crops.

J. E. Armistead, Clarke County farmer, planted Austrian winter peas in the fall of 1930; in the fall of 1931 he gathered four bales of cotton from three acres where the peas had grown, no other fertilizer being used. Mr. Armistead's 1930 demonstration caused a large acreage in the Morvin community to be planted to Austrian peas in the fall of 1931.

FALL AND WINTER GARDEN

How is your garden now? Have you made plantings recently to supply you with early fall vegetables? With most of us these questions cannot be answered in a very satisfactory way. This may not be due to a lack of effort but is due to a lack of moisture in the garden plot. Most gardens are located near the house which is usually on a higher elevation than the rest of the farm. This makes late summer and early fall gardening difficult.

For the late summer and fall garden select a low, moist location, or a plot approaching nearest this condition. Break the area broadcast, lay off in rows, and apply about 5 pounds of 8-4-4 fertilizer to the 100 feet of row. Barnyard manure may be substituted for a part of this fertilizer. Then, with favorable moisture conditions, plant the following crops:

Turnips—Plant the purple top globe and Japanese varieties. The first named variety is the best for the production of turnips, is fairly hardy, and produces a large amount of greens. The Japanese variety is the best variety for fall greens due to its resistance to lice. It yields a large amount of greens.

Kale— Siberian kale should be planted due to the fact that it produces a large amount of green and will stand more cold weather than any other vegetable.

Tendergreen—An excellent early fall vegetable that produces greens quicker than any other vegetable.

Spinach—Resistant to cold. Will stand light freezes. Thick-leaf variety best for winter.

Mustard—Good for fall but will not stand freezing temperatures.

Collards—This is late in the season best results will be obtained by setting the plants.

Lettuce—Plant Big Boston or New York varieties. Latter variety is the best for head lettuce. Heavy fertilization necessary. Thin to stand at least 15 inches apart in the drill.

Beets—Plant one of the Egyptian varieties.

Carrots — Plant Chantenay or Danvers variety. Will usually survive the winter in the open garden.

Radish—Handle same as spring crop. If planting late use the China Rose variety, which is for winter use.

Onions—The Perennial Tree variety, a green bunching onion, is most resistant to cold and should be included in the fall planting, particularly by those in the northern half of the state. The Bermuda is excellent, but should not be used where it will be subject to the winters hard freezes, such as usually occur in the northern half of the state.

Bush Snap Beans—These may be planted within two months of your first killing frost in the fall.

In the northern half of the state many of the vegetables here discussed should be stored in the late fall for winter use. Beets, carrots, radish and turnips may be dug, the tops removed, and stored in the banks in the same manner as sweet potatoes. More detailed information on storage will be gladly furnished upon request.

BOOMING

If you happen to pass through West End on Saturdays you will wonder if there is really a depression in existence. You will see so many cars parked along the street and people buying and selling stuff from several business houses you will wonder where the "panic" has gone. First you will see the "wheels of industry" in progress over at Mr. Harris Hardy's place of business, where you can buy your groceries, have your corn ground into meal or have it crushed into feed for your cattle, etc. Then across the street you will find Mr. J. H. Broadhead's store where several people are employed to take care of his customers and serve them right. He also grinds corn into meal and has an up-to-date line of groceries and a modern sanitary meat market. Then back across the street, a little further up the street is Mr. Joe Grooms. Mr. Grooms has been in West End for several years and has made a host of friends, both in town and in the country, and is doing a nice grocery business here.

FARM AND GARDEN QUERY BOX

(By K. C. Davis, Knapp School of Country Life, Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn.)

Q.—Please give suggestions regarding the growing of fall and winter gardens for home use.

A—After same of the heavy rains the ground will be moistened enough for sowing such crops as turnips and dwarf Essex rape. Use the seven top turnips so they will produce abundant greens for late fall and winter use. Dwarf Essex rape also furnishes greens, both for table use and for livestock. Lettuce and radishes may be planted now or very soon. They should mature before the heavy freezes of December. This is also true of early carrots and early beets for table use. A little later set out cabbage plants and celery plants to develop before Christmas. The white plume variety of celery is probably best for this time of year. Early Jersey Wawefield plants or other early varieties are best for fall growth.

Q.—Please give reference to directions for making a good sweet potato curing house and storing house.

A.—Ask you congressman for farmer's bulletins Nos. 970 F, 1,142 F, and 1,267 F. Sometimes an old building can be adapted to this purpose, for example a tobacco storehouse or a barn which is no longer used for other purposes. The potatoes are usually stored in crates which are filled in the field. This requires less handling and makes less bruises. A stove must be provided in the curing house, and the house should be heated to a temperature of about 90 to 100 degrees for a period of about ten days or two weeks until the potatoes quit "sweating." After that they need no special heat, if the house can be kept warm enough to keep them from freezing.

Q.—What rules should be followed in collecting garden seed for next year's planting?

A.—Select seed from the most promising specimens of melons, cucumbers, cantaloupes, tomatoes, okra, etc. Earliness of maturity is also important. Resistance to disease must always be considered. Good size, shape, and smoothness are important. With potatoes and sweet potatoes, select speciments for seed from hills that are prolific. U. S. farmer's bulletin is helpful regarding the saving of garden seed.

BACK TO MULE COLTS IS PLEA OF DR. CARY

Auburn, Ala., Aug., 23.—The old practice of a farmer keeping enough brood mares to raise all the colts he needs, and perhaps a few to sell may be resumed in Alabama. In fact Dr. C. A. Cary, who has spent 41 years in livestock and vetinary work in the state, is advocating it with emphasis.

As dean of veterinary medicine at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute and State Veterinarian, Dr. Cary has been an important factor in livestock developments in the state. He has kept in touch with it elsewhere. He said that Alabama farmers who have kept brood mares and who are producing mule colts have acted wisely. He advises them to continue this and that farmers who have not done so, buy mares and get started in raising colts.

During the last decade many important changes in the use of mules have been made. Production in Missouri, Kentucky and Tennessee has declined until it has become necessary to ship mules into Alabama from western states and at a much bigger freight charge.

"With farm prices as they are," continued Dr. Cary, "it is necessary for farmers to hold their expense down to the very minimum. One way to do this is to raise their mules and also to raise the feed for them as well as feed for the other livestock."

Dr. Cary says that it is not difficult to get brood mares but that it is rather difficult to obtain satisfactory jacks. He believes, however, that this can be done.

By planting several acres to Austrian peas and vetch in the fall of 1931, R. L. Hitt of Boligee produced the following spring six weeks' grazing for his herd of cows, increasing the milk production and decreasing his feed bill. The land was planted to corn and despite a month of drought at a critical time, he estimates a yield of three or four times as much corn as will be produced on equally as good land but having no winter legume.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

President Hoover's address accepting the Republican nomination for the Presidency was a logical and convincing recitation of the things which the national administration has done toward counteracting the depression and a lucid and direct statement of the principles for which the president stands and on which he will wage his campaign. Those who have not paused to sum up the efforts which the administration has made to check the depression will be surprised at the number and extent of the constructive steps which have been taken. And on the question of party principles President Hoover shows that he stands squarely on the Republican platform as an advocate of time honored Republican principles. He is for the protective tariff and against a competitive tariff for revenue, which he says, will place the American worker and farmer in competition with the poorly paid worker and peasant of Europe. He is opposed to debt cancellation and is unqualifiedly in favor of national defense. His efforts toward limitation of armaments and the preservation of peace have been made with our defensive needs in mind, and with the thought that there shall be no intereference, in a political way, with our time honored principle of American freedom in international policy without foreign entanglements.

One of the most striking portions of the president's address was that which pointed out that it has been his aim, in fighting the depression, to see to it that American principles of individual effort and state and local responsibilities were not interefered with. In his speech Mr. Hoover said:

"The function of the federal government in these times is to use its reserve powers and its strength for the protection of citizens and local governments bu support of our institutions against forces beyond their control. It is not the function of the government to relieve individuals of their responsibilities to their neighbors or to relieve private institutions of their responsibilities to the public, or of local government to the states, or of state governments to the federal government. In giving that protection and that aid the federal government must insist that all of them exert their responsibilities in full. It is vital that by the use of public revenues and public credit in emergency the nation shall be strengthened and not weakened.

"And in all these emergencies and crises and in all our future policies we must also preserve the fundamental principles of our social and economic system. That system is founded upon a conception of ordered freedom. The test of that freedom is that there should be maintained equility of opportunity of every individual so that he may achieve for himself the best to which his character, ability and ambition entitle him. It is only by release of initiative, this insistence upon individual resonsibility, that we accrue the great sums of individual accomplishment with which to carry this nation forward."

In this matter of preserving individual liberty of action and state and local responsibility, with federal aid and control only where necessary, we have one of the most distinctive achievements of the national administration in the present crisis. It is well to remember that in these years of depression and economic injury through which we have been passing, American principles of government have remained unaltered. Three-fourths of the people of the globe have changed their government since the world-wide economic breakdown began. There have been revolutions everywhere. More men are living under dictatorship now than has been the case for generations. In many instances constitutional provisions have been set aside that the economic and political unity might be preserved. In others, millions of people, as in the case of Russia, are ruled by authority and desires of one man alone. The regular processes of government have been set aside almost everywhere in order that the nations might save themselves.

But in the United States, where the storms of depression have blown as hard as elsewhere, the American Constitution and the American principles or orderly government and individual freedom have remained unaltered. This is due of course to the great patience of our people and their love for American institutions, and the fact that our government has sought by every means possible to preserve the American ideals which were handed down by our forefathers. Here is real patriotism and real achievement of the highest order, far more vital to our people than the rapidly shifting values of securities. These latter can be restored and will be restored. But the spirit of freedom, once lost, may be gone forever.

I LIKE THE DEPRESSION

I like the depression. No more prosperity for me.

I have had more fun since the depression started than I ever had in my life; I had forgotten how to live, what it meant to have real friends, what it was like to eat common everyday food, Fact is, I was getting just a little high-hat.

Three years ago, only one man of the News-Globe organiaztion could be out of town at a time. He had to leave at the last minute and get back as soon as possible. Many times I have driven 100 miles to a banquet, sat through three hours of bunk in order to make a 5 minute speech, then driven the 100 miles back so as to be ready for work the next morning.

Nowadays as many News-Globe employees as are invited make those trips and we stay as long as we want to. The whole outfit could leave the office now and it wouldn't make any difference.

I like the depression. I have time to visit my friends, to make new ones. Two years ago when I went to a neighboring town, I always stayed at a hotel. Now I go home with my friends, stay all night and enjoy home-cooking. I have even spent the week end with some of the boys who have been kind enough to invite me.

I am getting acquainted with my neighbors. In the last six months I have become acquainted with folks who have been living next door to me for three years. I am following tthe Biblical admonition, "Love your Neighbors." One of my neighbors has one of the best looking wives I have ever seen. She is a dandy. I am getting acquainted with my neighbors and learning to love them.

Thre years ago I ordered my clothes from a merchant tailor—two or three suits at a time. All my clothes were good ones. I was always dressed up. But now, I haven't bought a suit of clothes in two years. I am mighty proud of my Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes. When I dress up, I am dressed up, and I don't mean maybe. I like the depression.

Three years ago I was so busy and my wife was so busy that we didn't see much of each other, consequently we sort of lost interest in each other. I never went home to lunch. About twice a week I went home for dinner—at 6:30 o'clock. I never had time to go anywhere with her. If I did go on a party I could never locate her, and since there was always a "blonde" or a "red-head" available I didn't worry much about it.

My wife belonged to all the clubs in town. She even joined the young mothers club. We don't have any children, but she was studying—and between playing bridge and going to clubs, she was never at home.

We got stuck up and hifalutin. We even took down the old family bed and bought a set of twin beds—on the installment plan.

When I came home at night, if my wife was at home, she would already be in her bed and I would crawl in mine. If she came in last, it was vice versa.

We like the depression. We have come down off our pedestal and are really living at home now. The twin beds are stored in the garage and the old family affair is being used.

We are enjoying life. Instead of taking a hot water bottle to bed these cold nights, she sticks her heels in my back just like she did before Hoover was elected.

I haven't been out on a party in eighteen months. I have lost my book of telephone numbers. My wife has dropped all the clubs. I believe we are falling in love again. I am pretty well satisfied with my wife. Think I'll keep her, at least until she is forty and then if I feel like I do now, I may trade her for two twenties.

My digestion is better. I haven't been to see a doctor in a year. I can eat anything I want to.

I am getting real honest to goodness food. Three years ago, we had a filet mignon once a week, now we have round steak and flour gravy. Then we had roast breast of guinea hen, now we are glad of sow bosom with the buttons on it.

I like the depression. My salary has been cut to where I can't afford to buy lettuce and spinach and parsley and we can't afford to have sandwiches and frozen desserts and all the damfoolishness which has killed more good men than the World War.

I like the depression. Three years ago, I never had time to go to church. I played golf all day Sunday and besides I was so darned smart that there wasn't a preacher in our community who could tell me anything.

Now I am going to church regularly, never miss a Sunday.

And if the depression keeps on, I will be going to prayer meeting before long..

I like the depression.

MORAL ECHOES

(By D. W. Haskew)

I stood by the grave of a man who had left his record in the community. A friend read along the epitaph that was carved on his tombstone and then remarked: "That fellow who is four feet below that marble slab was not like that wording." In a cemetery a man was buried after having taken the life of twenty-six people. He was shot down while on his way to kill another man. His loved ones wrote on his marble slab, "Beneath the green turf here lies one whose stainless soul has gone to be forever with God." When Gabriel shall come and shall call that man to judgment, he is not going to be judged by the epitaph that was found on his tomb. A loving mother may have had those words chiseled on his tombstone, but they will not hold at the judgment. A little boy was with his father as they walked through the cemetery and after reading the epitaphs on many stones the boy inquired, "Father, where do they bury all the bad people?" Guess it would not do to always carve in marble the kind of a guy who sleeps beneath.

In a church conference a pastor was asked, "What have you and your people done on the question of missions?" The pastor hung his head and in an undertone replied, "Nothing." "Nothing done" is a record of which we would be ashamed when a task is assigned. At the judgment God is going to ask, "What have you done on the matter of salvation?" Will you answer, "nothing?" Only one thing can be worse than that and here it is. "I lived for thirty, forty, fifty years and I worked and lived against the ideals of God." Nothing can be more tragic in this world than for a man to spend his days not only neglecting salvation, but promoting wickedness. It is bad enough to do "nothing" but it is worse to spend our years fighting against God.

Saturday had come on the farm and the father said to his two boys, "Now boys, I am giving you this bucket of seed corn and when you have planted it, the rest of the day will be yours." One boy followed the plow, the other dropped the corn. The squirrels were playing about on the trees and the boys were anxious to go hunting and fishing. The corn in the bucket lasted and finally the youngster dropping the corn decided that he would dig a trench at the rows end buried about half of the seed corn. He did this and was soon able to announce to his father that they had planted all the corn. Off to the woods the two boys went, being assured that no one would ever know. About ten days later the father was passing the spot where the corn had been buried and he saw the ground being lifted for some cause, and on investigation, he discovered more than a gallon of sprouting seed corn. He understood why it was there. These boys had agreed to deceive their father by making way with his corn, but they could not keep their deception hid. There is no truer statement made in the Bible than this one: "Be sure your sins will find you out."

The doctor came into the room where I was visiting a very sick man. He made a close examination and finally said to the man, "Every drop of blood in your body is charged full of malaria germs. Several weeks ago an infected mosquito punctured your skin and planted the germ in your blood, and since then those germs have multiplied and now you are charged full of malaria germs." The doctor and the patient had a desperate fight to win. A mosquito can carry the yellow fever germ and plant it into the blood of a human and soon the patient is in for a fight to live. The government is sparing no effort and no expense to stamp out the infested mosquito. However, I would like to say that an immoral person is more dangerous to society than an infected mosquito is to health. Parents try ever so hard to keep the children of their home morally clean and healthy, but they come under the power and dominion of an immoral person, and before the parents know it, the mind and soul of their children are poisoned with the low ideals of the infected person. More effort should be put forth to restrict the morally unfit than is being put forth to crush out the germ carrying mosquito.

There was a fine community on the banks of a beautiful stream. The parents in that community were happy and prosperous, and their children were being educated and trained in Christian ideals. Along came a company with unlimited wealth and threw a dam across the stream. The water backed up in every section above the dam, and a large body of water was created. A large dance hall was built on the back water, motor boats filled the lake and hundreds of the baser sort crowded into that locality on Saturday and Sunday to fish, drink and carouse. I was in that community preaching and visiting from house to house. In every home I heard the sad story of disturbed Christian citizens as they related to me the awfulness of such a mass of corruption being thrust at their door. They owned their homes in that community, and were powerless to prevent them being swamped under the corruption of that gang who came there under the power of whiskey and pleasure. We wonder why the government fails to protect her best citizens.

The MAN in the MOON

Looks Over All—
Overlooks None.

I Got A Letter

Yes, sir, believe it or not, someone has at last written to The Man in the Moon. Time and again I have asked my readers to write and tell me how they like the old column. And, if they don't like it, I'd like to know that, too, so that I might know to change it up a bit. I don't know who the sender of this letter is, though, as he failed to sign it—just said he reads my column every week, and likes it. However, inasmuch as the letter contained quite a bit of poetry, I can't use it, as the Banner isn't so long on this poetry business. I appreciated the letter, however, and am glad to know that I have at least one reader. And, by the way, I'd like to have several letters—let me know whether you like the column or not. If you are pleased with it, fine; if you have a brick to throw, let that come, too, and I'll know I must try to get a little better in some way.

The Flying Deputy

Down in Dallas County the distillers would do well to take a lesson which the soldiers in the World War had to learn. At first, the artillery would just set up their guns and start firing away at the enemy. Pretty soon, though, the enemy planes began flying over, spotting them, and then dropping bombs on them. The fellows learned to "camouflage" their guns—cover them over with green branches, etc., so the war birds couldn't pick them out so easy. Now Dallas County has a "flying deputy"—a deputy sheriff who takes off at Selma, flies around over the woods, spots all stills in operation, lands and hurries over and nabs Mr. Moonshiner right on the job. Mr. Moonshiner might shut down and clear out before the deputy lands and gets to his his place, if he could know it was the law's plane that was flying over, but he has no way of knowing whether it is the deputy or just another plane which happeps to fly over him. So, to be safe, he'll have to cover himself pretty well or run a chance of being caught just after a plane pays him a visit. And with the number of planes flying around now, it might put a crimp in his business to have to shut down operations every time he heard a plane buzzing around overhead. This flying deputy business seems like a pretty good idea. Imagine how much territory "Jimmy" Gillespie or Norris could cover in a few minutes with one of these air buggies.

Slogans and Emblems

I notice Editor Davidson of the Fort Payne Journal, "the official organ of the Democratic party in Dekalb County," wants an appropriate slogan for the forthcoming race. Judging from this, he must have decided that the age-old and time-worn "white supremacy" and "solid South" gags don't seem to get the Demmies anywhere, and that they must try to dig up something new. And he is offering his readers prizes to think up something better than they have ever been able to think of themselves. To tell you the truth, I hope someone thinks of a good one for him. I'd like to see just what an original Democratic idea would look like. While Mr. Davidson is at it, though, he might get someone to think of an original idea for a Democratic emblem too. They already have two, but there is nothing to either of them. The little bantam rooster flaps his wings and crows, but it's always early in the morning—too early—later in the day, when everything gets real warm, you'll find the rooster hunting a cool spot somewhere. And you'll never hear him crowing late in the day, after everything is over. Then too, the old "jass-ack" knows nothing but to bray and kick, and that doesn't get him far. But boy—oh boy! Just consider the actions of the old elephant. He browses around all day among his herd, looks after them all day, and just before nightfall, after the "doings" of the day are all over, you can hear him as he lifts his mighty voice in one long, resounding, awe-inspiring roar of victory and confidence which seems to carry this message: "Here am I—masterof all this domain. I have mastered all the difficulties of the day, and am now preparing to rest. But if there be any who may be spoiled for a scrap, let him come. I am master—and prepared to prove it!"

"Bull" Ray's Prayer

Walking down the street a few days ago, I heard somebody praying, and oh, boy, he was making a swell job of it. "Please, Mr. Weather Man", he pleaded, "don't let it rain. We've already beaten Cooper two games, and we're all set and primed to take 'em into camp again this afternoon. We're well prepared for this game—maybe better than we'll ever be again. So let us by this time. Hold the sky-weeps until night, any way. If we can keep a dry field long enough we'll all try like all rip to take this deciding game, and then give fifteen cheers for the good old weather man the first thing after it's all over." But "Bull's" prayer availed nothing. He must not be on speaking terms with the weather man. About ten minutes after he closed his prayer the clouds assembled in one dense mass over the town and the bottom dropped out. I believe one could have taken a bath anywhere on Second Avenue, or in the ball park either. I asked Bull why his prayer was not heard, and here is the reply. "I can't understand it, unless all the Cooper team were praying for rain at the same time. I couldn't get any of the Clanton outfit to help me, and Cooper just had me outnumbered." Good for "Bull".—Man in the Moon.

"Spittoons" Are Noisy Things

Have you noticed how much noise is caused by "spittoons" or "cuspidors" in the courthouse? Every few minutes somebody will make a move and a shoe comes into collision with a spit-box. What a noise it makes! And it always happens just when you are straining your ears to hear what is being said. I know nothing that can be done about it. Lawyers, like ball players, have to chew tobacco. If it were not for the hateful "spittoons" they would have to spit on the floor or drown. They certainly do not want to do either. May we entertain hope that some genius will rise to the need of the hour and invent a noiseless "cuspidor"—one that can be kicked over without disturbing the peace and dignity of our chambers of justice.

This Is a Clean-Up Session

Judge F. Loyd Tate is engaged in a clean-up session of his circuit court docket in Chilton County. A bit of congestion has been caused in the court's business this year. The storm of March 21 made it necessary for the spring term to be postponed. At a subsequent session of the court a few weeks later Judge Tate was called away on account of the severe illness and death of his daughter. This week and next he will be engaged in disposing of much business that has accumulated from the postponements heretofore made necessary by circumstances beyond human control.

We Always Get the Odd Things

"Why do folks always bring in the odd and unusual things?" This question was asked by a man as he looked at a stalk of cotton eight feet high with a dozen mature bolls on it. The specimen was brought in by Arthur Tippett, of Concord. The growth of the stalk marks it as an extreme or extraordinary sample—odd, you might say, and far from the average. Cotton prospects can not be judged by such samples. However, the general opinion prevails that Chilton County will produce this year not much more than half the cotton of last year. Undoubtedly cotton would bring a fair price this year if it were not for the big surplus carried over from the previous years.

Dr. Neighbors Here At Court

Dr. T. H. Neighbors (Coos), of Goodwater, was here Monday to answer a summons to serve as a juror in the circuit court. Judge Tate excused him from service on grounds that he has moved out of the county, and ordered that his name be taken out of the jury box. One must have lived in the county for the past twelve months to be eligible for jury duty.

"Hoover and Starve"

We notice some of our enthusiastic Democratic neighbors are displaying on their automobiles a sign which reads "Hoover and Starve." I suggest to them a fitting companion sign to go with this one would be "Roosevelt and Ruin." Democrats and Republicans as well might keep in mind this slogan: "If you want a bigger and better depression vote the Democratic ticket in November."

Another Grave Yard Story

In our Moral Echoes column this week the writer gives us some very fine thoughts gleaned from reading epitaphs on tombstones. This story came to my mind also: A Jew and his friend were going through a cemetery. They came to a monument on which was carved these words: "Here lies the remains of Robert Sanders, a lawyer, and an honest man." The Jew remarked to his companion, "It looks to me like they had plenty of room in this grave yard, and I wonder why they buried three men in the same grave."

THORSBY SECTION

(S. E. Norton, Manager)

The special revival meetings at Thorsby Baptist church, which have been in progress all last week, and will probably close Wednesday night of this week, have had unusually large congregations day and night. Audiences estimated at 500 have frequently filled the house and often many came who could not get in.

The whole community seems to be interested. Some merchants close their stores during the morning service hour. A meeting called for nominating the town officers last Saturday night was postponed till this week, Friday night. At the Congregational church, preaching service last Sunday morning and the Wednesday night meeting for this week have been ommitted, to give the people liberty to attend these meetings.

The preacher assisting Brother Jones in conducting these meetings is Rev. Harris, pastor of a large church in Ensley. His addresses are appeals to reason and conscience of the people rather than emotional, and are a character likely to be remembered for years by all who hear them.

On Monday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Laurell were given a surprise party and house warming by a number of friends in Thorsby who wished to congratulate them on the restoration of their home, seriously damaged by the cyclone on March 21st. Provided with refreshments and dominoes the party arrived about 3 p.m. and spent a very enjoyable season inspecting improvements, conversation and games. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Laurell, who were enjoying their first surprise party, Mesdames Gerald, Butler, C. S. Howard, Norton, J. O. Johnson, Soberg, C. C. Peterson and Lucas. Messrs. Each, Butler, Norton and C. C. Peterson.

The monthly social of the Ladies Guild of Thorsby will be held Thursday of this week at the home of Mrs. J. O. Johnson.

The delegates from Thorsby Congregational church, to the district conference, held at Union church, 7 miles east of Mt. Creek, arrived home Saturday afternoon, and report the meetings were interesting. On Friday evening Miss Dorothy Butler took down there, Mary Ella Gerald, Frances Wilson, Messrs. Fred McCain, Lloyd Howard, Conway Thornburgh and Oliver Lyon, who presented a play, entitled "Mother Earth and Her Children," who have been rehearsed by Miss Fairbank, and each did their part well, delighting the audience.

Thorsby Baptist Sunday school had an attendance of 251 last Sunday. This is the largest attendance in the history of the church.

There will be all the regular services at both the Baptist and Congregational churches next Sunday.

Mrs. H. O. Bean and her son and daughter, J. E. and Willodean, spent Friday in Jemison visiting Mrs. Bean's mother, Mrs. J. Hayes.

A letter was received in Thorsby from Dean Rogers of Piedmont College, of Demorest, Ga., which will be of intehest to parents and students who are planning for college next year, especially as so many students of Thorsby Institute have graduated from this college in past years. Dean Rogers recently paid a brief visit to Thorsby and spoke in high praise of Thorsby Institute graduates as desirable college students. As they are always of high standard of scholarship and leaders in all good college activities.

What is especial interest is substantial reductions and favorable terms of college expense. Total for the year for all items of college expense for boarding students is $273. Special monthly payment provisions have now been made. For particulars write Dean Rogers, Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga.

Mrs. Hattie M. Gerald had as her guests on Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Moody of Birmingham and Sumner Gerald and wife are her to spend a week with his mother.

HYDROFINED

OIL REPLACES "STANDARD" MOTOR OIL

Hydrofining, developed by Standard Oil scientists, is an advanced process which makes the hydrogenation of motor oil commercially possible at the price of ordinary motor oils. Briefly, the process of making hydrofined ESSOLUBE consists of mixing a high grade crude oil fraction with pure hydrogen gas compressed to 3500 pounds per square inch.

This mixture is fed into a fired coil of pipes where it is heated to an extremely high temperature — 800 degrees Fahrenheit. It is then passed into a reaction chamber where, in the presence of a secret "catalyst" or "transforming agent," the oil molecules are ripped apart, the hydrogen reacts and changes the basic chemical structure of the oil. The mixture is then cooled, and whatever hydrogen or other gas is present is removed.

The partly finished oil is run into stills where, under vacuum, the gas-oil and gasoline are removed and the lubricating oil divided into several "cuts." Each cut is then de-waxed and treated to insure stability and remove any remaining impurities.

Since the oil is subjected to high temperatures and enormous pressure during the manufacture, only the parts of the oil that can withstand these conditions—many times more severe than occur in any automobile engine—are left for ESSOLUBE.

This insures an oil that will stand up under severe operation more perfectly than any motor oil ever before produced.

Colorful Charleston Visited By Noted Food News Expert

JUDGE GORDON
Radio Food Marketing Authority

I WENT down to Charleston, South Carolina, a short time ago, for a very delightful visit. The city is so quaint that it is difficult to believe that you are still in the United States. The streets are narrow, bordered by garden walls overhung with vines and flowers, and through beautiful wrought-iron gates I caught a glimpse of secluded gardens, delightful with magnolia trees, flowers and fine old houses with long piazzas.

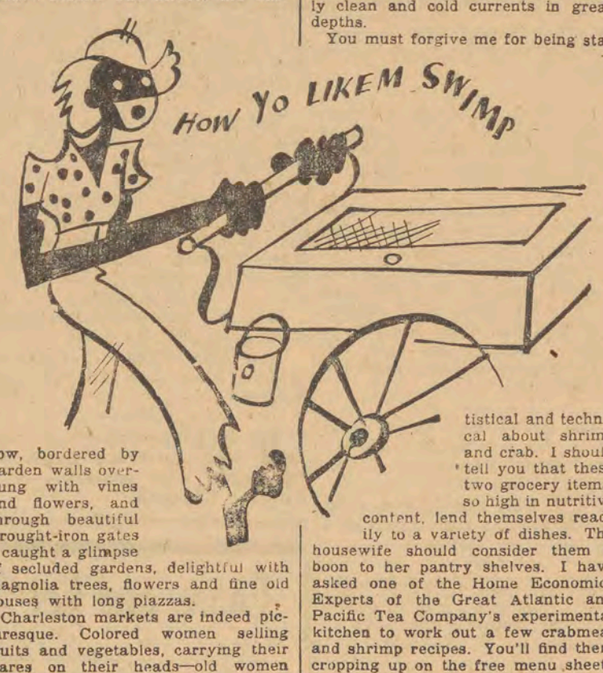
Charleston markets are indeed picturesque. Colored women selling fruits and vegetables, carrying their wares on their heads—old women smoking corn-cob pipes—strapping fishermen auctioning off their catch to the highest bidder.

Some of the fish buyers were colored lads who would take their purchases and go through the streets singing, "How you likem swimp, likem swimp, likem swimp." Yes, I said "swimp," and I am reminded of an incident from a Julia Peterkin novel—a story of negro life on a South Carolina plantation. Uncle Wes, one of the characters, tells Aunt Missie he aims to squeeze his 'cordion an' sing a new song what de singin' machine played at de store. "Don' say singin' machine, Wes," Aunt Missie corrects him. "Victoria is his name. You is bad as dat store man what calls swimps shrimps."

The restaurants in Charleston feature shrimp dishes and crab dishes and believe you me they are worth coming many miles to taste.

America does not produce sufficient crabmeat for its own use, this being the case where the demand is greater than the supply. Therefore, a great deal of crabmeat is imported from off the Asiatic coast. So that the meat may be brought to this country in condition to fulfill all the standards of the Pure Food Act, it is shipped in cans. The most popular crabmeat imported in this country is from the King Crab which lives in exceedingly clean and cold currents in great depths.

You must forgive me for being statistical and technical about shrimp and crab. I should tell you that these two grocery items, so high in nutritive content, lend themselves readily to a variety of dishes. The housewife should consider them a boon to her pantry shelves. I have asked one of the Home Economics Experts of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company's experimental kitchen to work out a few crabmeat and shrimp recipes. You'll find them cropping up on the free menu sheets in A. & P. stores, and here's a good one for you to start with:



Deviled Crab

2 cups crabmeat
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup cream or rich milk
1 teaspoon mustard
Salt, cayenne, nutmeg
1 egg
Buttered crumbs

Either fresh or canned crabmeat may be used. Make a sauce of the butter, flour, and milk. Add the mustard, and season with salt, a dash of cayenne, and a few grains of nutmeg. Mix with the crabmeat, add the beaten egg yolk, and fold in the stiffly beaten white of egg. Put in crab shells or a shallow baking dish, cover with buttered crumbs, and bake until the mixture is hot and the crumbs browned. Cooking sherry may be added to the sauce if desired.

NEW HOPE CHURCH

We had the best revival at New Hope church this time we ever had. We had old time shouting and praising God, and our great Savior, His son, who gave his life upon the rugged Cross of Calvary that through His death and suffering, we might have eternal life. And I want to say just here that I saw the most happy people and heard the most shouting and praising God here during the revival that I have ever seen in my whole life. We had people here who lived 30 miles away; so it was well said by our Lord, "If I be lifted up, I will draw all them unto me."

So we should hold up our Lord each day we live. Our pastor is Rev. J. N. Scott, and he had the pleasure of baptizing 21 new members. And I want to say that he enjoyed the services, and there was shouting at the baptizing. It made us all think back to the old time services years ago. So, as Paul of old, we ask all praying people to pray for us and come and help us over at New Hope.

So I ask that God's abiding love and the communion of the holy spirit abide with us all now and forevermore, is my prayer.—A member.

INTEREST IN VETCH AND PEAS

County Agent Stapp reports that the interest being shown in vetch and peas in Chilton County is very fine. He has held several demonstrations on farms in different parts of the county, and the attendance has been much better than was anticipated.

Friday afternoon this week at two o'clock Mr. Stapp will hold demonstrations at the farms of Newt Childress and F. C. Woodley, in Pleasant Grove community west of Jemison. All farmers in that neighborhood are urged to attend the meetings.

CLANTON METHODIST CHURCH

The time has come when we must get away from the vacation spirit and every member should get back into his place in the church. We hope that you have had a pleasant summer, Surely you have been missed at church. We want Clanton to turn over a new leaf and make for yourself a reputation of church loyalty. We can if we will.

Service begins next Sunday with Sunday school at 9:45. Preaching by the pastor at 11 a.m. and 7:45 p.m. We vary our form and plan of preaching and try each Sunday to give you something new to think about. Remember this: you are never needed anywhere else more than you are needed in your church at the appointed hours or worship. If you do not make God first, He refuses to be made second.

POLK BROTHERS HERE 20 YEARS

Popular Cotton Firm Here Has Long and Active Record Of Service

According to Geo. C. Polk, this cotton season represents their 20th anniversary in the cotton business in Clanton. He moved here in the fall of 1912 to buy cotton for a Montgomery cotton firm.

Soon after the World War he and W. M. Polk formed a cotton partnership under the firm style of Polk Brothers., with offices in Clanton and Columbiana. In 1923 they entered the automobile business, but continued their cotton business. About a year later they decided to close their Columbiana office, W. M. Polk moving to Clanton so that both partners could give their full time to the Clanton office.

We are glad to learn that the Polk brothers are now buying cotton direct from the farmers, and we see no need of any Chilton County farmer carrying his cotton to any other market for we understand that Polk Brothers have local mill and export connections that will enable them to pay the farmer as much if not more for his cotton than he can get elsewhere.

We extend our best wishes to the Polk brothers and wish them much success on this, their 20th anniversary.

CLANTON METHODIST CHURCH

We have a full day for next Sunday. Sunday school meets at 9:45 a.m. At the beginning of the preaching service Sunday morning, we are going to celebrate the Lord's Supper. The morning sermon will be preached by the pastor. Subject, "I am the Christ."

Sunday night Dr. N. B. McLeod, our presiding elder will preach for at 7:45. Following the service he will hold our fourth and last conference for the year. We want to urge our people to help the officials in making a good report.

Last Sunday Clanton people clearly proved that they can go to Sunday school when they make up their minds to that task. If Clanton could turn out last Sunday, one of the hottest of the year, they can go every Sunday. If the Baptists can go to Sunday school, the Methodists can. God is not going to judge us by the spurts and flurries in our Christian life, but by the way we act every Sunday and every day of the year. Our church should average 250 in Sunday school every Sunday, and we should have the same number in church services. If all were as faithful as a few, we would have them. Why not you be faithful?

MOTHER DROWNS SELF AND GIRLS

Horrible Tragedy Enacted At Tuscaloosa A Few Days Ago

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Aug. 29.—After telling her three small daughters, "Come on I'll show you how to baptize," Mrs. William A. Simmons, 25, wife of a watch repairer, drove to a lake near here last night and drowned herself and two of the children.

Mrs. Simmons, who sells religious literature, drove to Tuscaloosa from her home 16 miles away to visit her mother and father early last night. Finding them absent from home attending a tent revival, she drove to the lake a mile from here where the drowning took place.

Louise, 10, said her mother walked into the lake with Dorothy, 8, and Marjorie, 6, in her arms and drowned them. She said her mother attempted to drag her to her death but that she broke away and saved herself by wading to a small island in the middle of the lake.

The girl was found an hour later by the driver of an automobile who stopped at the lake to fill the radiator of his car. She was removed from the island and directed searchers to the place where her mother and sisters disappeared.

The body of Mrs. Simmons and those of her two children, dressed in underclothing, were recovered. Coroner S. T. Hardin said he had uncovered no motive for the woman's act and that he would withhold a finding pending completion of his investigation.

The Simmons family lives 16 miles from Tuscaloosa, on the Columbus, Miss., highway. Simmons is employed as a watch repairer in a local pawnshop.

Funeral services for Mrs. Simmons and the children will be held this afternoon at Antioch church, near here.

JUDGE TATE RELIEVED BY JUDGE LEON McCORD

Judge F. Loyd Tate caught a severe cold while holding court here last week. He came back Monday to take up his criminal docket, but the extreme heat got the best of him.

At noon he called to Montgomery for relief from the duties of the week, and Judge Leon McCord was sent to take his place. Judge McCord arrived here about 2:30 Monday afternoon and took the bench, proceeding with the business of the court without interruption.

The many friends of Judge Tate hope his illness will be light and of short duration.

MRS. L. C. WARR TAKES THE PLACE OF MISS NELL WELLS

Miss Nell Wells made an enviable record as an English teacher during the past four years she taught in Chilton County High School, but recently resigned her position to go into another field of actiivity. She will be in the Child Welfare department at Jasper, Walker County. While we regret to lose Miss Wells, we feel we are fortunate in securing the wide range of educational advantages and training of Mrs. Warr. She was for eight years supervisor of the teacher-training department at State Teachers College at Troy. In addition Mrs. Warr has taught everything from the first grade through college. She is an authority in English.

FEDERAL AGENTS SWOOP DOWN ON LIQUOR DEALERS

Victims Carried To Montgomery To Answer Charges In Federal Court

Wholesale raids by federal prohibition investigators beginning Thursday afternoon and continuing throughout the night, Friday had resulted in the arrest of approximately 40 persons in Chilton, Coosa and Autauga counties.

About 30 of those arrested, a majority said by the agents to have been involved in the sale of liquor in large quantities, had been arraigned before U. S. Commissioner H. F. Irvin by early afternoon for preliminary hearing and bound over to the grand jury.

The sudden round-up, following close on the heels of similar activity in Russell and Lee counties last week in which 40 arrests were made climaxed two months of undercover investigation during which, according to testimony before the commissioner, the agents negotiated for liquor amounts as high as 100 gallons.

Among those arrested was Frank Calloway, who was wounded during a still raid last September by Charles F. Fridge, at that time a prohibition officer. Calloway brought charges of assault to murder against Fridge following the raid, but the charges later were dismissed. Fridge, however, was discharged from the service.

Calloway, who has a 15-months suspended prison sentence hanging over him, has several new charges against him as a result of the latest activities, including possession and sale of liquor and maintaing a public nuisance. Oscar Mims, arrested with him at the time he was shot, also is among those taken in the current clean-up and has several charges against him.

The agents testified that during the investigation they purchased liquor in amounts ranging from several pints to 20 gallons and on one occasion negotiated for 100 gallons, although it was never delivered. Boats and automobiles were used to deliver the whiskey, many of the raids occuring near the Coosa river between Coosa and Chilton counties.

Investigators working out of the office of W. K. Johnson, deputy prohibition administrator for the middle district of Alabama, were assisted in rounding up the prisoners by Sheriff W. H. Gillespie, of Chilton county, and deputies L. A. Gillespie, James Gillespie, W. A. Norris and P. L. Robinson. Most of the arrests were made in Chilton.

The round-up brings to about 125 the number of arrests made this month by Johnson's men. A partial list of those arrested Thursday night, a majority of whom had been bound over, includes Calloway, Oscar Mims, Will Moore, M. C. Moore, A. R. Giles, Clarence Baker, Ollie Bonner, Clifton Wright, Jack Nix, Sam Littleton, Burton Tyus, Reed Gilon, Julius Culp, Jesse Manuel, Henry Cleckler, Tommy Lewis, Lobis Blackman, Lee Mims, Elijah Mims, Dewey Price, Madison Davis, Horace Mims, Tom Bates and Henry Clayton.

The others were being arraigned Friday afternoon as rapidly as possible. A few of the defendants are negroes.

Calloway, who was convicted following the raid during which he was wounded, was described by an official of Chilton County during the investigation of the shooting as a prominent farmer.

While a majority of those arrested were charged with posession and sale of liquor, a conspiracy involving 8 or 9 of them is under investigation, Mr. Johnson said.—Alabama Journal.

WORLD'S GREATEST EPIC RECALLED BY NEW FILM

Spectacular scenes of a kind that have never been flashed on the screen "before or since" will be witnessed by Wadesonian Theatre audiences on September 14 and 15 when "Forgotten Commandments" comes there for 2 day's run.

This stirring dramatic romance about ultra-modern life in a present-day big city contains, as a logical sequence in it's fast action story, excerpts from famous Cecil B. De Mille classic, "The Ten Comandments."

CHILTON COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL OPENS MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 12

Recent legislative developments indicate that schools throughout the state will be relieved of the embarrassing situation in which they have been placed, and that we will all be in fine shape another year.

The Chilton County Board of Education is doing everything in its power to run full terms this year. It will take the full cooperation of all patrons and others interested in education to help us out. With the above in view, our high school will open as usual with the expectation of running nine months. We are beginning early enough to give each pupil an opportunity to earn his half unit's credit, should we unfortunately have to close down at the end of the first four and one-half months.

With all the old teachers re-elected again, with the exception of two, the future promises to be the best year we have had. Experience in the school room with the pupils and with everything in general is a great asset to any teacher when he begins his work. We feel that the patrons of the Chilton County High School are doubly benefitted in this respect.

The personnel of the faculty is as follows:

Mr. L. C. Warr, principal; T. H. Walker, University of Alabama, manual arts and athletics; J. B. Varnell, Howard College, science; L. E. Little, Howard College, history; Miss Bernice Williams, Womans College, mathematics; Miss Bonnie Clyde Griffin, University of Alabama, home economics; Mrs. L. C. Warr, Peabody and Columbia, English; Miss Margaret Kendrick, Womans College, languages; Miss Sarah Colley, Judson, social studies; Miss Josephine Martin, Birmingham Southern, junior high work.

School will open promptly at 8 a.m., Monday morning, September 12. Registration will begin Friday, September 9, and continue through Saturday. Every pupil must register during these two days and be ready for school work Monday morning. There will not be a long drawn out formal opening, but all patrons and friends are urged to be present at the regular assembly period, 10:20 Monday morning, to enjoy a special program.

Incidental Fee $5.00

The local board of trustees has decided to reduce the incidental fees another year to $5.00. This certainly is in reach of everybody. There is not anything worth while that does not cost money. If the schools could be run without expense, we certainly would be in favor of it. The most unpleasant thing connected with our school is the collection of incidental fees. Did you know that the average cost per pupil in most city systems is around $25.00 per year, and yet we have a few patrons who complain about paying less than one-third of that amount. If you will check closely, you will likely be amazed to learn you will spend that much on a week end trip.

We don't want to be embarrassed, neither do we want to embarass you. We want the money. This is due the first day your child enters school. If it is not paid at the end of the first month, your name will be handed to an officer for collection. There are debts hanging over the schools that must be paid. These debts were made over a year ago with the faith in you that you would pay the small incidental fee asked of each student in school. These debts are long past due. The citizens of Clanton who are patrons of the schools owe for these debts just as they would to a merchant who extended him credit in a like manner. Let's be good soldiers and keep our school out of the "red." After everything is said and done, your child is all you have. Give him a chance to fight tomorrow's battles. They will be greater than yours.

Two New Teachers

It is with a great deal of pleasure that we announce the names of the two new members of our high school faculty for 1932 and 1933. Mr. Luther E. Little of this county and recently of Clanton, has for a number of years been one of the outstanding junior high school principals of the county, was honored with the degree of Bachelor of Arts from Howard College last June, where he majored in history and economics. It is a great opportunity for any pupil to get the advantage of the splendid training, experience and personality of Mr. Little. We feel our school will be greatly strengthened by the addition of this young man.

We are also glad to announce the addition to our faculty of Miss Sarah Colley, of Troy, Alabama. Miss Colley is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. O. Colley, who are known for their genial spirits and public interests throughout central and south Alabama. Miss Colley is a graduate from the Judson College with two years teaching experience, and will exert a great deal of influence for good among those with whom she comes in contact.

ALL-TIME RECORD FOR CLANTON IS BROKEN SUNDAY

End of Tenth Year Brings Joy To Heart of Pastor Ezell Here Sunday

The tenth anniversary of the pastorate of Dr. S. J. Ezell at the Clanton Baptist church last Sunday brought the attainment of a goal that eclipses anything ever accomplished in Clanton.

The drive to bring 500 to Sunday school got under way with such a full head of steam until the count ran to the unexpected total of 683. This accomplishment overtook Dewey Rockett in his challenge of $50 against 500 and he coughed up the half a bundred bucks right in front of the great throng that accomplished this defeat. A loud cheer greeted him as he handed over the check to Dr. Ezell.

Renfroe Mullins also got stuck for $50 on the 500 challenge. W. W. Wingard thought Dr. Ezell was shooting high Saturday night when he predicted 600 and he issued a challenge of $25 against 550.

This record-breaking attendance in Sunday school brought gladness unbounded to the hearts of the faithful. Time and time before there have been efforts to reach 500; but always there lacked a little. When things did get right the victory was overwhelming and decisive.

A record crowd remained at church for the morning service in which Dr. Ezell brought his message of farewell to the past ten years. This sermon was the crowning glory of his work here. His subject was "What will You do with this Man Jesus, Who is the Christ?" It was a message that was masterfully presented as a complete review of his work. Twenty-four additions were made to the membership of the church; 17 joined Sunday and 7 Sunday night.

During the ten years there have been a total of 657 additions to the membership of the church.

BUD BOSWELL CASE NOL PROS

The case of Bud Boswell, charged with manufacturing liquor and possession of a still, was nol prosed on motion of the state in the circuit court Monday.

The case against Mr. Boswell was made by Sheriff Collins and his deputies in 1930, when they found some beer and parts of a still near his home.

The jury for trial of the case was qualified Monday afternoon, and testimony was taken from Deputy George Murrah, and Mr. Collins. When the Solicitor had proceeded far enough to convince him the state did not have a case against Mr. Boswell, he asked for a nol pros, which was granted by Judge Tate.

WALTER CLARK IN CANADA

Walter Clark, of Shelby and Chilton counties, is back where it is wet again, according to a letter received from him in Waukegan, Illinois. He says he has covered 28 States and traveled 53,000 miles since leaving Clanton April 1st, with Downie Brothers Circus.

"I will be back in Alabama in time for Santa Claus," he writes, and extends greetings and best wishes to all his friends in Shelby and Chilton counties.

REVIVAL SERVICES AT THE CLANTON BAPTIST CHURCH

Revival services at Clanton Baptist church will begin next Sunday at eleven o'clock. The preaching will be done by Dr. John R. Sampey, president of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky.

The meeting will contiue through the week, closing Sunday night, September 11. Services will be held both morning and night.

Everybody is urged to attend the meeting. It is certainly a rare privilege for the people of Clanton to hear such a renowned preacher as Dr. Sampey. Not only the people of Clanton, but the entire county, should come. Clanton Baptists will be glad to have the people of the county come and join in this meeting.

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY

Greensboro, Ala.—An official welcome to Greensboro from Mayor L. J. Lawson will be given students of Southern Military Academy when the fall term opens September 12th.

This gesture of the city officials of Greensboro will be an indication of the new relations which have been created between the officials of Greensboro and those in charge of S. M. A. and is expected to be very helpful, not only for the school but also for the city. Mayor Lawson, being able to recall the renown which Southern University brought upon Greensboro, believes that S. M. A., the high school successor to the famous university, will, with the proper cooperation between the city and the school, recreate in a measure that good will and feeling which contributed so much to the lasting fame of Southern University.

"Semptember 12th of this year will mark a new era in our educaonal advancement," said Mr. Lawson, in speaking of the forthcoming opening of S. M. A. "The Academy is in charge of some of Greensboro's most accomplished and public spirited citizens and is directed by educators known in every part of the state as men of leadership and ability. With these two factors contributing directly to the upbuilding of S. M. A., it only remains for the City of Greensboro to make the young men who come here feel at home. We intend to encourage every uplifting recreation. We also propose to see that, as far as the municipality is concerned, no distractions will keep the students away from their proper work. And, as of old, we will welcome the boys into this community of refinement, Christian living and culture, in the same measure that was offered the boys of old Southern University, hosts of whom have gone into the world equipped with character which the citizens of Greensboro feel that they helped to mould."

To The Citizens of The Town of Clanton, Ala.:

In the announcement of Mr. J. B. Atkinson as a candiate for Mayor of the Town of Clanton in the local papers on August 11, 1932, certain statements were made with reference to the handling of the Town's affairs during his administration from October 1, 1926, to October 1, 1928.

The undersigned are interested in arriving at the truth with reference to certain statements made, and in order that the citizens of the Town may be informed we will ask Mr. Atkinson the following questions:

1. You state in your announcement that "The town purchased and paid for the warehouse and lot near the Methodist Church." Will you please state if it is not a fact that this property was deeded to your wife, Ada M. Atkinson, on December 11, 1926, and on December 14, 1926, you put through the council a resolution whereby the Town purchased the property from your wife, and did you conceal the fact from the council at the time this resolution was passed that this property had been deeded to your wife, and that you were making a profit of more than $500.00 in the deal?

2. Is it not a fact that on December 14, 1926, the Town council, by resolution, authorized you and the clerk to borrow $1,500.00 from the First National Bank to pay the owner for this property and this loan was secured by a mortgage on the property, and said mortgage is now due and unpaid?

3. You state that no paving was done during your administration, but is it not a fact that you were a member of the Town council and actually maneuvered the proceedings to pave the streets and sidewalks of the Town of Clanton, even though this was not done during your incumbency as Mayor?

4. You state that "The water rates during the time I was Mayor were not raised, and if elected Mayor I will use my influence and vote to reduce the water rate." Is it not a fact that during your term as Mayor the Town of Clanton had no filtering plant and the water furnished at that time was of very poor quality, being red and muddy at times, and is it it not a fact that you maintained during your entire administration a minimum charge of $1.25 for 1,000 gallons of unfiltered water, whereas the minimum charge for water is $1.50, at present, for 1,500 gallons, or $1.00 per thousand gallons?

5. Is it not a fact that on or about the 1st day of July, 1931, that you discontinued using city water and refused to pay the Town of Clanton a water bill of $3.52, and installed a private water system on your premises, and advised some of your friends to do likewise? Would it not be impossible for the Town of Clanton to operate a water works or fire department if all other water customers should follow your example?

6. You speak of public donations for schools and your willingness, if elected, to assist the school authorities in running nine months schools, but is it not a fact that you failed and refused to pay the incidental fees due the Clanton Grammar School, and withdrew your children from the city school and sent them to a private school?

J. LEE SMITH, Mayor.

H. S. Shaw, W. L. Popwell, Grady D. Broadhead, Reedie Taylor, H. G. Heflin, Councilmen.

U. S. FOREIGN TEAMS IN 3 RIFLE MATCHES

Washington, D. C.—Abandonment for this year of the Camp Perry National Rifle and Pistol Matches will not interfere with three big international small bore rifle matches in which the United States annually engages, according to an announcement of the National Rifle Association.

As usual, the American teams will fire their scores at Camp Perry though the hugeness, but not the small bore sharks' enthusiasm, will be missing. The camp will be the scene of one of the regional shoots initiated by the National Rifle Association as a substitute for the National Matches.

The three matches are the Dewar Trophy match, which will be fired September 5; the International Railwaymen's match, scheduled for the same day, and the Fidac Inter-Allied champion ship, to be fired September 3.

The tryouts for the Dewar team will be held September 3 when the American Dewar team will be selected. All aspirants to the team will have to fire their trial scores the same day at Perry which means that many small bore riflemen from many parts of the country will be at the Camp Perry regional shoot.

First fired in 1909, the Dewar match is the chief of the international events. The trophy, still in possession of the shooters of this country as a result of their victory last year, has been won by the United States 15 times and by Great Britain three times. It is on display at the headquarters of the National Rifle Association here.

In the railwaymen's match, the United States has won four times and Great Britain once. This match was started in 1927. The Inter-Allied match is competed in by teams of World War Veterans of the Allied Nations. Statrted in 1930, the match was won by the American Legion both that year and last year.

The three matches are fired by the teams of the competing nations in their own country, targets are exchanged and the winner then determined.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

FARM SITUATION IS BETTER IN ALABAMA

Auburn, Ala., Aug., 30.—The recent advance in the price of cotton added several million dollars to the value of the Alabama crop and, as a result, a better business is expected this fall. Farmers will be able to pay more debts and do more buying than was thought possible in the early summer, even though the size of the Alabama crop is estimated to be about two-thirds as much as was harvested in the state last year.

Another bright spot in the agricultural picture is that the production of feed crops will be as much or more than that of 1931. In some counties farmers are making more corn and hay while others are making less, weather being an important factor.

A better livestock situation is reported also. Cattle, sheep are in better condition than usual for late summer. This is due to better pastures during the summer, rain being the particular factor in making such pastures.

In the meantime farm women have been painstaking and untiring in their efforts to save and conserve food products, by preserving, canning, drying and other methods. Reports from the home demonstration agents show what canning in Alabama this year is far in excess of the amount in any recent years.

Encouraged by better prices for cotton Alabama farmers are now preparing to plant winter seed legumes and also small grains. Most of the winter legume seed will be planted for soil improvement while some will be planted for hay and for grazing. In this way winter legumes will improve production of crops by reducing production costs next year, and also promote livestock development.

ALABAMA IS SEARCHED FOR PINK BOLL WORMS

The United States Department of Agriculture will cooperate with the Alabama Department of Agriculture in keeping Alabama free of pink boll worm, reports Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture and industries.

At present a search is being carried into every county of Alabama to determine whether or not there are pink boll worms in the state. The survey is under the direction of B. P. Livingston, Montgomery, and F. I. Jeffers, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington.

The federal agent is visiting gins all over the state with a thrash machine which separates all kinds of worms from trash removed from the cotton at gins. The various kinds of worms are identified by Mr. Jeffers or his representative.

In addition 2,400,000 green cotton bolls will be gathered from every county in the state to be sent to laboratories at San Antonio, Texas for tests for worms.

The survey is being made in Alabama as a result of a discovery of the pink boll worm in southern Fla.

CORN PRICES RAISED BY HOGGING IT DOWN

Auburn, Ala., Aug., 30.—Farmers who have more corn than they will need and are looking for a market are being advised by F. W. Burns, extension animal husbandman, at Auburn, to market it through hogs by allowing them to harvest it and then market the hogs. The same advice is given by county agents. It is based upon the studies covering 17 years during which "hogging-off" corn was more profitable in all but three of the 17 years.

An average for this period shows a profit of $5.37 per acre or 39c per bushel in favor of the "hog" method of harvesting and marketing.

"An average price," said Mr. Burns, "of $1.37 per bushel of corn in the field would have been realized during the past 17 years if corn had been marketed through hogs."

With lower prices of hogs this average price would have been less but the fundamental fact is that "hogging-off" was more profitable 14 of the 17 years. It will be more profitable this year, he declared.

The caluculations by Mr. Burns were based upon 6½ bushels of corn and 36 pounds of tankage per 100 pounds of pork. Experiences at Auburn have shown this to be sufficient under field conditions.

With corn and other crops to finish the spring litter of pigs and a combination of a winter legume (either hairy vetch or Austrian winter peas) to finish the fall litter in the spring hog raising in Alabama should be a profitable business, Mr. Burns added.

MORE TURPENTINE COMES FROM UNBURNED WOODS

Montgomery, Ala., Aug., 30.—Turpentine in unburned woods yield from five to thirty per cent more crude gum than in pine stands where the operators rake about the tree and burn the forest floor, according to investigations made by the Alabama Commission of Forestry. Every year more and more turpentine operators discard the old costly method of raking around each tree and then setting fire to the woods and adopt instead the more profitable method of keeping fire out of the turpentine area altobether, states the commission.

It has been found that unburned stands not only yield more crude gum but also produce cleaner gum, since the protective covering of leaves and pine straw prevent dust and trash from blowing from the ground into the cups or onto the faces. Cleaner gum produces lighter colored rosin, which brings higher prices and is more in demand than the darker grades.

The cost of operating turpentine woods under protection is much lower than that entailed in raking and burning. The higher yield and better quality of naval stores produced from unburned woods give the progressive operator a greater margin of profit than that derived from the older methods.

NEWS IN BRIEF

There was a slight decline in forest fires in the United States in 1931 from the 1930 figures. Fires in 1931 numbered 186,894 against 190,980 in 1930. The area burned decreased from 52,266,460 to 51,578,310 acres.

The U. S. Department of Labor says that July was the first month of 1932 to show a really noticable expansion in industrial activities, adding that "a more optomistic feeling prevailed, with the outlook for August considered encouraging."

Reports of the Chilean Government at Santiago and Valparaiso have been conferring with commercial attaches of the United States looking to barter of at least 40,000 tons of nitrate for about 2,500,000 bushels of wheat held by the federal farm board.

Doors of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn will open for the 61st annual session September 6 and 7, followed by class work on September 8th. Chairman John J. Wilmore of the administrative committee says that a year of splendid work is expected at Auburn.

Recent press dispatches from Ottawa, Canada, say that Canadian farmers are getting the benefits "coming and going" in the trade agreement signed on August 21 between the Dominion of Canada and the United Kingdom. The dispatch reported that Dominion farmers will have selling concessions in the United Kingdom and they expect to get lower prices on the goods they buy.

4. Resistance to evaporation losses at high temperatures. (Low Consumption)
5. Stability of lubrication value over long periods of use. (Long Life)

IT makes no difference where an oil comes from—who makes it or sells it. If it does not meet every single one of the five requirements listed above it is not suited to modern high compression engines. Only Essolube meets all five requirements.

One of our grumbling married friends says his better half is as big as a two-ton truck but he didn't mind that if she wasn't as noisy as one.

The fellow who sits in his oil heated house on the avenue, grumbles because he lost a little money in 1929 and longs for the good old days when he was a boy forgets how he used to have to carry wood for the heating stove from the snow covered back yard.

Now that Nicholas Murray Butler and Henry Ford have both approved of President Hoover's statement on the liquor question, that ought to just about take the issue out of Republican politics.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

There can be no question that the protectionists will welcome the challenge if the question of tariffs is to be made an issue in the campaign. No part of President Hoover's acceptance address aroused more widespread approval among the Republicans than his blunt declaration in favor of the maintenance of the protective tariff principle in American economic life. Following this has come more recently a declaration affirming his faith in protection by Charles Curtis, the Vice Presidential candidate. In speaking of the tariff, Mr. Curtis said:

"We should not retain our home market, but we should build it up and increase it as much as possible. This is necessary not only to give American labor employment, but also to procure for agriculture a just reward for its labor. If the farmer can not sell, he can not buy. Likewise if American laborers are unemployed they can not buy and when these two are unable to buy there is a decline in the demand for American made goods.

"The extent to which the wage earners of the country can purchase depends upon the extent of their employment and the amount of wages earned by them. There must be an ability to buy, whatever may be the price, high or low, at which the thing desired is sold. So the two great problems which we must solve are to secure employment and to make a market for the products of the farm and factory. The application of the principles of the American system of protection is necessary in order to keep out of our country goods which come into competition with our home-made goods and home-grown products."

For more than a year the free traders inside Congress and out, those who think more of our ten per cent foreign trade than our ninety per cent domestic commerce, have been making a great ado about the Smoot-Hawley tariff, which they blamed for a world-wide depression which came a year before the law was enacted. They have announced from the housetops their intention of making the tariff an issue in this campaign. The protectionists through President Hoover and Vice President Curtis, have accepted the challenge. If the free traders want a battle on the issue they are to have it.

But now that their ballyhooing about low tariffs has succeeded in arousing rather than silencing the protectionist sentiment in America, it is doubtful whether the professional free traders will be anxious for a battle on the subject as they at one time indicated. For even the wildest free trader must realize down in his heart that this is after all a protectionist country. He must understand that the American people realize the difference in wages and living conditions in America and the rest of the world, a difference which has raised an American standard of living which cannot be maintained without a protective tariff.

When the free traders begin their general drive for lower tariffs they are apt to receive some very embarrassing questions for answering. Among these questions will be several asking them just what schedules they intend to reduce, if they get the opportunity of lowering the tariff. Here is where the trouble for the free trade orators will come in. It is allright to talk about free trade as a college textbook theory but when it comes to naming specific instances of what ought to be done in the way of lowering tariffs, the free traders immediately find themselves treading on dangerous political ground. If Governor Roosevelt, for example, advocates tariff reduction, will he favor repeal of the new tariff tax on oil and copper, the new repeal or lowering of the tariff on dairy products, wool, hides, meats and other agricultural commodities, or will he confine his lowering of duties to shoes, textiles and steel? Here are some of the things the people interested in various industries will want to know, and the answering of these questions may be decidedly embarrassing to a candidate for public office this year, if he is traveling on a free platform.

FACTS ABOUT THE BONUS ARMY

In a statement given out by Secretary of War Hurley certain important facts concerning the bonus marchers who assembled at Washington and the riots which led to their excavation are stated which the public should read and remember.

1. Among the 12,000 men who were in Washington for the purpose of demanding the immediate payment of the bonus, inspection showed that approximately one-third were not veterans and had not served in any capacity during the war.

2. Of the actual veterans one-fourth were already receiving compensation from the Veterans Bureau.

3. Of the real veterans 5,500 took advantage of the provisions made by Congress for their transportation and went home.

4. A number of the marchers had occupied some old buildings that were scheduled to be demolished to give way to new construction. On two different occasions the marchers were asked by the civil authorities to vacate these buildings, an interval of several days elapsing between these orders. Each time the marchers refused to vacate.

5. Finally, on July 28, the police again appeared and asked the marchers to vacate, and upon their refusal attempted to oust them. The marchers then attacked the police. Thousands of other marchers who were encamped at Anacostia, east of the Capitol, marched into Washington and joined in the attack. The leaders of the veterans protested to their followers and to the public that this attack was led by radicals and that the veterans participating in the attack were not under the control of their veteran leaders, but were entirely controlled by Red agitators whose sole purpose was to bring about disorder, riots, bloodshed and death.

6. There was a brief interval in the rioting about mid-day, but in the afternoon it was resumed and one man was killed and another (who has since died), was wounded. Thereupon the District Commissioners notified the President that they were unable to enforce law and restore order and a detachment of U. S. troops were ordered to the scene.

7. After the arrival of the troops not one shot was fired and no person was seriously injured.

8. The statements later made that the billets of the marchers were fired by troops is a falsehood. They were fired by retreating radicals. The tents that were burned belonged to the District of Columbia National Guard and had been loaned to the men who burned them.

9. The statement that women and children were excavated by troops is false. On contrary the buildings occupied by women and children were protected and no one was permitted to molest them. The Red Cross immediately took charge of the women, their children and their husbands, gave them shelter and food and transport to their homes.

10. More than 600 of the veterans who remained in Washington after Congress adjourned were receiving compensation through the Veterans Bureau.

11. Under the circumstances but two courses were left open to the President. One was to acquiesce in the violence and surrender the government to the mob. The other was to uphold law and order, protect the lives of the people and suppress the mob. The political propagandists who are now criticising the President for following the latter course would have assailed him with even greater violence (and justly), if he had pursued the former.

FARM ELECTRIFICATION MARCHES FORWARD

A recent survey of farm electrification showed that 11.1 per cent of American farms are now served by electric light and power companies. When individual farm plants are included, the percentage of electrified farms reaches between 15 and 16.

The 11.1 per cent represents, in number, 698,786 electrified farms, as compared with 177,561 served with power in 1923. Michigan heads the list of states showing an increase in electrified farms, with Illinois second.

These are interesting figures, when it is considered that much of the extension of the movement has taken place at a time when agriculture was not blessed with prosperity, and that now one out of nine American farmers has at his beck and call an unlimited supply of reasonably-priced mechanical power.

As a matter of fact, the farm electrification movement is producing results that few of us realize. It has made possible better standards of production at a lower cost. It has made great changes in the domestic and social life of the farm by bringing to it the advantages of the city home, as far as convenience and comfort are concerned, plus the peculiar advantages possessed only by the rural dweller. Electrified farming really does mean a new agricultural era.

MORAL ECHOES

(By D. W. Haskew)

The big mogul that was to pull the special was backed under the shed and coupled to the ten steel coaches. The engineer dropped to the ground with an oil can in his hands. In looking over that polished piece of machinery, I started to asking myself the question, "Which part of the engine had you rather be?" There were the drive wheels, the truck, the piston rods, the steam chest and many other importan pieces that made up the mogul. As I pondered the wonders of what man had put together to pull that big train, I observed that the engineer started to oiling each part of that machine out of the same oil can. Where oil was needed the same can was used as the source of supply. Then I started to thinking of that finer piece of machinery—the church of the living God, and I knew that I had a place in that Gospel mogul. My brother at my side had a place also. So did the men of high place and low, and I was delighted to know that all of us received oil out of the same can. When we fill our place the oil of grace is alike to all, and it comes alone from God.

I was standing at the depot on the trunk line of the L & N division when one of those ponderous passenger trains rolled up. As it swung around the curve I noted that it was a double-header. Two tremendous engines moved in front with every cock bursting with steam. The train stopped like a toy under the power of those two engines. After the conductor signalled for the train to move on, both engines threw themselves into the harness and in the length of the train it was almost under full speed. It started off running from the very first. No sanding of rails, no slipping of wheels, no strain or struggle, the train moved on because it was a double-header. Every home in this country should be a double header. When the father and the mother are both steamed with church spirit and are bubbling over with zeal for the kingdom of God, they will find no trouble in moving their families off to Sunday school and church. When the father or the mother is dead-heading it in, the other mogul carrying the load must of necessity slip and slide, struggle and stagger under the weight of home life. Let our fathers and mothers steam up and get in front of their families and swing them over the road of eternal life. Shame on in the heart.

With a friend, I was looking over his either parent when there is no religious zeal big saw mill plant. While standing near the saw that was ripping the logs into planks, I said to him, "I observe that the saw seems to be making the same speed when it is in the log as it is making when it is idling." My friend informed me that my observations were correct and then pointed to some little governors that were playing around over the steam chest. He explained that when the saw struck the log that those governors would let themselves down, and thus throw more steam against the piston rods and without changing rotation the saw would wade through. As soon as the log was through the governors would lift and hold the saw at the same speed. The revolutions of the saw were the same all the time. That engine had reserve power and when that power was needed, it was released to do the work required. How blessed is that church member whose loyalty is always the same. It may be hot, it may be cold, it may be sunshine, it may be shadows, it matters not what may be the thickness and the length of the log of opposition, when reserve power is needed, it can be called into action, and there is not a slowing up of the wheel of loyalty. The engine that carries no reserve power will stop when the saw strikes a log. The church member who has no reserve power will balk and fail when he meets with a difficulty. A church member who is the same all the time is a treasure in the kingdom of God.

I moved into a parsonage and on the back yard there was an old out hose that had not been used in years. It had been filled with rubbish and no one seemed to care to dispose of it. The rains had washed trash and sand against the door and that had to be dug up and carted away before the door would open. After that had been done the hinges on the door had to be oiled before they would let the door swing wide. This was rubbish was removed. Big boy, listen to done and finally the door opened and the me, how about that door to your soul? If I mistake not, there are hearts that are filled with rubbish, the sands of a rolling world have piled themselves against the door, and the hinges, the will power of the soul, have rusted. At that door Jesus is standing and he is knocking for admittance. Better cart the rubbish of the world from the door of your soul and open it and let Jesus come in and make you clean.

I had a neighbor who was a great lover of dogs. He had as many as twenty-seven at one time. This sportsman had a unique way of finding out when his dogs were infected with fleas, or had caught a disease of some kind. He had a rubbing post for them, and when he saw a dog fooling around that rubbing post, he knew to begin doctoring at once. In like manner we can tell when church members are diseased, or infected with the devil's fleas. If you see them rubbing against the pool tables, the dance hall, Sunday picture shows, Sunday base ball, and the like, you may know that they are sin sick and need doctoring. Better stay away from the devil's rubbing posts or folks will know what you carry in your soul.

Things that a fellow think don't amount to a darn, sometimes pile up into a mountain of trouble. Just the other night my wife was working a crossword puzzle and she looked up and said: "What's a female sheep?" and I said 'ewe,' and there was another big war on.

Although there are increasing signs that something may be done about the Volstead Act, up to this time there has been no boom in the brass rail market.

The old fashioned demagogic politician who used to rail at the railroads until he about destroyed that institution is now getting ready to start in on the telephone and power companies. In time he hopes to make a complete wreck out of things.

As we interpret Speaker John Garner's alibi for not talking to Al Smith that important night of the Democratic National-Convention, the reason John didn't answer the phone was that Al Smith called him after office hours.

ROADS AND THE UNEMPLOYED

Here is something that hasn't occurred to most of us—low-cost bituminous road surfacing is one of the best incentives to stimulate employment!

Good weather-proof secondary roads, with bituminous surfaces, can be built for three or four or five thousand dollars a mile, depending on the locality. Many of our states and hundreds of counties are availing themselves of these bargain roads at this time in order to bring the advantages of quick, economical transport to farming areas. Eighty or more per cent of the road dollar goes directly into the pockets of labor. A higher percentage customarily reaches the workmen in building low-cost roads of this type than in construction of expensive main highways.

Had it not been for enlarged road programs, hundreds of thousands of families would have been in dire want in the past two years. The drop in construction costs has made it possible to build appreciably greater mileage of good roads without padding the tax bill. Road work is one of the main keys to unemployment relief—and it is a type of relief that is as distinct from the dole as honest work is from begging.

The MAN in the MOON

Looks Over All—
Overlooks None.

Catcher of A Big Fish

I suppose that President Hoover would be dubbed Bib Chief Catcher-of-a-Big Fish if he ever should stop over with an Indian tribe on one of his western trips. You see Indians have a curious way of naming people according to some extraordinary feat. And a few days ago our big chief, President Hoover, went fishing and caught a sea trout which weighed something like twenty pounds. That would give the Indians good reason to confer the above title on Mr. Hoover. But that is only a sign of what is to happen this fall. You know "coming events cast their shadows before them," and this seems like Mr. Hoover is going fishing this fall and catch a whale, said whale being the President's chair for another four years. Oh, well, you can't keep a good man down forever.

Good for Jumbo

And while I am on this prophet business, I might tell you this one, too. A few days ago, as a crowd was meandering around in a zoo in one of our big cities, an elephant got all peeved and proceeded to kick the tar out of one of the people who were looking him over. It later developed that the man who got kicked was a democrat. Now that might or might not mean something. But, you know, the big elephant has a big habit of kicking Democrats, and maybe Jumbo knows his Democrats and just cut loose from force of habit. And, then, that might be another sign of what is going to happen this fall, when all the elephants make a free-for-all kicking of it and proceed to kick the Democrats all the way out of the picture. You never can tell.

Repeal and Unemployment

Not long ago I heard a man say that the repeal of the liquor law would help out the unemployment situation like nothing else would. I heartily agree, not only that it would help the unemployment situation but the price of raw products as well. It would take thousands more farmers to raise millions of bushels of corn, hops, millions of pounds of sugar and other raw products, for which they should receive millions of dollars. It would give work to millions of people along other lines too, such as distillers, bartenders, etc. The auto factories could go on full 24-hour schedules to replace the cars torn to pieces while being driven by drink-crazed drivers. Thousands of policemen and patrolmen would be needed to cope with the crime situation. More hospitals, doctors, nurses, undertakers and the like would be needed. The Grave-Diggers Union would be looking for new members. More florists would be needed to furnish flowers for the wreaths, etc., for those killed on the highways, and in other ways traceable to the liquor industry. More ministers to preach funerals would be needed. More judges and court officials would be needed to further care for the crime wave. Carpenters and brickmasons would be needed to enlarge the prisons and insane asylums. Yep! The unemployment situation would be helped. Even Hades would have to be enlarged. The only way in which I can see that labor might suffer, is that the Hades Stokers Union would have to disband and be replaced with automatic mechanical stokers to care for the enormous extra heavy load of work which would be inevitable. If our people think we need all these jobs created in order to help the unemployment situation, then vote for repeal. If they think such job creation would be too costly, then vote against repeal. And, by the way, a Democratic vote is a vote for repeal, while a Republican vote is a vote against repeal. Take your pick.

Who is To Blame?

For about three years I have been forced to listen to people lay blame on Mr. Hoover and the Republican administration for very near all the bad things that have happened during all this time. It seemed they couldn't think of anyone but Hoover every time a calamity came along. Nearly everything from droughts and tornadoes to the low price of cotton, high price of gasoline, and excess taxation was laid at his door. No matter what it was, just so long as it was bad, he caused it. Now, since times are beginning to pick up a bit, I just wonder if the calamity howlers will be honest enough to give him credit for the reverse action of the markets. Of course, as any sane person knows, the president, himself, couldn't have much to do with prices and such things, but, inasmuch as he has been blamed for the bad part, he should have credit for anything good that might happen. But if you hear any of them giving him such credit, you may start whistling "Who'd-a-Thought It?"—Man in the Moon.

The Man on the Corner

Some Sights He Saw—
and Some He Saw Not.

With Everybody Else at Court

By invitation of Sheriff Gillespie, extended to me some days ago, I have moved my hangout this week from the corner over to the courthouse. I can't say that I particularly enjoy the change. It is mighty hot in the courtroom with the overflowing crowds in attendance. But I think I will be able to stick to it until the judge says the job is finished. There is an extremely large docket, which will keep the wheels of justice grinding until about Friday afternoon, I guess.

Judge Tate Got Sick

Judge Tate had to take out on us Monday right after noon. He caught a cold while here last week, and the very hot weather Monday soon got the best of him. He called to Montgomery for relief, and somebody down there, whose business it is, sent us Judge Leon McCord. Everybody knows Judge McCord as teacher of the Big Brothers Bible Class in Montgomery. He is a man of deep soul qualities, and his every movement and every word reveals the towering strength of his wonderful character.

Coats Off in the Court Room

Many a sigh of relief was let loose Monday afternoon when Judge McCord announced that any who wished might take off their coats. Otherwise it might have been that somebody besides Judge Tate would have white-eyed.

Big Meeting Next Week

Way back many years ago it was the custom out at Providence, where I grew up, to have big meetings in September. We are to have it in September this time at Clanton Baptist Church. Dr. Sampey begins the campaign here next Sunday. There is no use to try to tell Baptists what a great man is Dr. Sampey. They all know him. I will say it is the hope of Clanton Baptists that the people of the county will come to hear him preach. It is a rare opportunity, one which you will not have again soon.

Ernest Childs Visitor Here

Walking down the street one morning last week, whom should I meet but Ernest Childs? You know who he is. Well, to save my life, I could hardly keep from hugging his neck. It would not, I suppose, be a breach of etiquett, or a social error, or sumpin, for me to say that Ernest Childs is one of the sweetest men I have ever known. He preached at the Methodist Church Sunday, and I did not get to hear him. I was bogged up in that big bust the Baptists pulled off to break the all-time record for Clanton.

That Was Some Sunday School

What do you think of 683 in attendance at a Sunday school in Clanton? Well, it is a wonderful accomplishment, if it did take Ezell ten whole years to put it over. We are glad of it for many reasons. And don't you wish about 75 or 90 per cent of that 683 would make up their minds to come to Sunday school regularly? After all, when you come to think about it, 683 in Sunday school is not much to brag about for a church that has about that many members. Is it?

Ezell Finishes Ten Years

I will not try to find words to properly summarize in a small paragraph the work of Dr. Ezell in the past ten years in Clanton. It has been a period of great and lasting accomplishment of good to the community. He has served his church well. He has served the people of the county well. He has been a blessing to us all. And be it remembered that while he has been busy in his work, he has had the loyal and faithful help of Mrs. Ezell, to whom is credited a great portion of the Ezell accomplishments in this field.

Here's Good News

Schools will open Monday, September 12. That is too bad for the boy who has been hoping there would be no schools, or wishing the schoolhouse would burn down. May we hope that something will happen to make it possible for us to have a full term of school. Surely the Legislature will not let us down.

Well there is one thing the depression seems to have done and that is to lessen the number of cake eaters around the hotel lobbies.

As soon as it was announced that Speaker John Garner was going to Washington in a short time to discuss the campaign, the Republicans began to perk up again.

Ex-Senator Heflin has come out for Governor Roosevelt for President. Another tough break for the Democrats.

Evidently the heat of the sun during dog days is a little more powerful than usual. The Democrats are now claiming Iowa for Roosevelt.

Even if the liquor industry does come back it will take the old bartenders a long time to grow those curling mustaches again.

Gossiping fish are to be exhibited in New York soon. This is a novelty. Usually the fish are the ones who believe the gossip.

UNIMPORTANT

Russia is said to have lifted the ban on gay neckties. But since Christmas has been abolished the concession is of no great importance.

THREE-CENT PIECE

Where is the old three-cent piece? Its coinage began back in 1851 and it went out of existence in 1889. They may have received to pay for the three-cent stamp.

STATIC

Six hundred vaudeville contortionists are out of employment and don't know which way to turn.

PATRIOTIC PRIVILEGE

A free country is one in which the citizen is privileged to "cuss" the government—and then remain at home on election day.

A LOW MINDED REFORMER

Evidently the chap who urges that babies be banned from all public meetings is not a practical politician.

ISABELLA NEWS

A "get together" meeting of the parents and teachers of the Isabella High School will be held Saturday night, September 3rd, at the school, beginning at 7:30. We wish to urge every patron interested to be there as we have some important matters to put before you. Every one who wishes will have opportunity to speak on any matter pertaining to the interests of the school. This is not a meeting to put on a drive for money though the matter of finances might be mentioned. It is meant to be just what we say, a "get together" meeting.

Since the first day of school is a very busy one and we usually have a speaker, it crowds out the parents in what they might want to say, we feel that this will be a fine opportunity for their benefit.

Besides you have an oportunity to speak. Mr. Thomas will have something interesting to say to you.

Be there and let us start together and pull together for the best interest we are investing our lives for.—G. G. Williams, principal.

WILLARD CHESTER VINES

The death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Vines on Monday, August 25 at 7 o'clock in the morning and took from their midst their dear and devoted son, Willard Chester Vines. Dear little Chester was just like a rose. He was just unfolding his petals in this world of trials and troubles and sorrows.

This child was only 7 years old. He was a devoted child to mother and father, but God saw fit to take him away from our midst. Little Chester was loved by all who knew him. Everything was done for him that loving hands could do but our heavenly father has power over the living and the dead, and our father says, "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not for such is the kingdom of heaven."

He was laid to rest at Mullins cemetery with Rev. Metcalf conducting the funeral.

WHEN I'M GONE YOU'LL SOON FORGET

It is a strange thing to me when a poor man or woman dies there is not much said about it; but when a rich man or woman dies, there is much said. Great headlines appear in the papers, and you hear it over the radio and in the mouth of everyone.

If I were to die, I would soon be forgotten, because I am cripple and so poor I cannot dress decently. I am not noticed by the high class. But I trust that in the day to come I shall have just a little place in heaven. God knows I love Him and I know He loves me, because He has proved it.

I feel that I will be known in heaven as well as the rich man is known in this world.

Some time ago I wrote a letter headed "Give me Flowers While I Live." I received several bunches of flowers. It made me glad. But I hate to have to ask for flowers.

Two little boys down near Pletcher sent me some of the sweetest flowers. It makes me glad to know that little children thought of my comfort.

I wonder why I am staying here so long. But I will make the best of it I can, and when I am gone you will soon forget.—Ruby Chasteen, Clanton, Route 7.

PLEASANT HILL

Singing at this place was fine. We had with us some mighty good singers. Directors for the day were as follows: C. N. Oden, L. Sanders, Akins I. Collins Will Northcutt, Amy Boswell, A. H. Glasscock, E. L. Glasscock, Virgil Robinson, Marvin Smith, O. B. Robinson, B. L. Cobb, Andrew Blow, P. M. Cleckler, Mrs. Carrie Shaw and Virgie Cost. Organists were: Jessie Dorminey, Lillie Mae Weldon, Belle Huett, Amy Boswell, C. N. Oden, and Rubye Smith.

We were glad to have so many singers and thank them for their good singing. We believe every one enjoyed the singing fne. So come back. Our regular singing evenings are every second Sunday. We invite every one that can to come and help us out, your help is greatly appreciated.—Secertary.

DAT BLOOMIN PREACHER

This Week's Blossom:

—o—

Jesus sa: "Suffer little children to come unto me."
Ah sa: "But lots ob church folks takes um to de riber."

Ah wants to talk to you dis mawnin bout, "Fault findin." Ah will read fur a lessen Mark 2: 1-12. (Reads lesson.) Bear dis in mind, de fault finder all ways gibs his sef away, cause he is conscious ob de fac dat de one wid whom he finds fault has excelled him in de very thing dat he fins fault bout. Fault finders rarely eber does anything. Their job seems to be to lay roun an watch de udder fellow an fin faul wid whut he does.

Ah knowed ur oman once whut kept de dirtiest house in de whole country, an dar wuz anuder oman in de community whut kept her house as neat an clean as ur pin, an all she cud sa bout her wuz, "Effen she wuz jes as clean inside as she is outside, she'd do better." Sometimes Ah stan roun de white men in Clanton t olissen at em talk, an ob all de fault findin you eber heard you can hear it rite dar. Ah heard one man de uder day talkin bout de Baptist church folks in Clanton, an he foun fault wid evy body fum de choir leader to de preacher, an Ah walked down to where Mr. Rockett stood an axed him if dat man whut wuz findin so much fault wuzent an awful good man, an he sa not dat anybody knows uv. Den he sa, let me tell you whut Ah think bout him, dat is de worst fault finder in Clanton. If you wuz tur walk up to him an gib him ur han full of one dollar bills, he'd ask you why you didnt turn all ob de heads de same way.

Ah knowed ur man whut foun fault wid de wa carpenters built houses, an when he started to cover his chicken coop wid shingles he started at de top. Ah long since decided dat de easiest job dat ur man can pick out fur his sef is "fault findin," cause it dont require any effort, education or brains. You can hear one ob dese fault finders sa, "If Ah had bin doin dat, Ah wood hab done thus an so, but de trouble wid him is dat you nevah catch him doin anything."

Now les see bout de tex: When de word went roun dat Jesus wuz in de house, lots ob folks gathered, and filled de house, and lots ob folks wuz on de outside. Dey wuzent doin nothing. Da wuz jest dar an dats all. An when dim four men cum dar wid dat sick man da couldnt git no whur near to Jesus, an bein men whut beliebed in doin things, da went on top ob de house an tore ur hole in de roof an let de sick man down in front ob Jesus.

Now dese men wuz de kin whut went on wid de work in han, regardless ob whut fault finders an onlookers sed bout it. Jesus culd see their faith. He cud see dat da wuz men whut beliebed in doin things. De fac dat ur man whut wuz sick ob de palsy wuz cured an wuz made able to git up an take up his bed an walk, dident stop de scribes fum findin fault, da sed, "Why doth this man thus speak blasphemies? Who can forgive sins but God only?"

Rite here Ah wants to call yoah tention to one pint whut aint nevah thought uv, an dat is dat when a sufferer fum any disease wuz brot to Jesus he wuzent only cured ob de disease, but his sins wuz forgiben also. An fum dis fac we can almost git de pinion dat dar is some kin ob connection tween sin and disease. Ah will admit dat it wood be ur hard job to prove by de New Testament dat one wuz ur sinner jest because he wuz afflicted wid some disease, or dat de fac dat one wuz sick wuz proof dat he wuz us sinner, but as Ah sed befo, dar is some connection tween de two.

Dis is born out by several references in de Gospels. In evy recorded instance but one (de case of de young ruler) de applicant went away fum Jesus a saved person. Read de las part ob dis chapter, Mark 2, an see whut de scribes an Pharisees sed when our Lord sat down to meat in de house ob a publican. Da didnt care nuthin bout de salvation ob sinners. All dat da wuz lookin fur wuz something to fin fault wid Jesus bout.

Ah has knowed some women to fin fault wid anuder woman's playin ob de organ jest because da demselves wuzent axed to play. De fault finder gibs hissef away nearly evy time.

Ob course dar am some cases whur one is at fault an effen we speak bout it, it aint to fin fault, but merely to call tention to de mistake. It wernt no mistake when dem Pharisees cused Jesus ob castin out debils by Be-elzebub. It wernt no mistake when da cused him ob breakin de Sabbath by castin out a debil on dat day. It wernt no mistake when da clamored fur de crucifiction ob Jesus. De whole thing wuz based on dat one desire to fin fault wid Him.

It sho do make people look mighty little to me when da wont do nothin de selves tur fin fault wid dem whut is tryin to do somethin. Ah knows ur man whut used to take ur leadin part in his church, whut wont do nothin now but fin fault wid evy thing de preacher an de church does. It mus sorter ease his ow nconscious to condemn in others whut he wont do his sef. Ah knowed ur preacher once whut wood drive his wife to church in his car at nite and set out in de car during service, an when Ah axed him bout it he sa dat he wuz watchin, an when de church got atter him bout it he called fur a letter an put it in his trunk an jes kept on findin fault wid um.

Lissen, if you aint gwyn to do nuthin yoah sef, dont fin fault wid dem whut is tryin to do something, cause you jes gibs yoah sef away. Ah will close now. Stan an be dismiss.—Elder Blossom.

EVILS OF INTEMPERANCE

GOLDEN TEXT—Do not drink wine nor strong drink, thou, nor thy sons with thee, when ye go into the tabernacle of the congregation, lest ye die: it shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations.
LESSON TEXT—Isaiah 5.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Evil of Drunkenness.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Wise Man Gives a Warning.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Obey the Law?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Observing and Enforcing Law.

I. Israel, the Favored Nation (vv. 1-7).

This nation's unique relation to God is presented under the figure of a vineyard. Observe:

1. God's peculiar favor (vv. 1, 2). God did for this nation what he did for no other nation in the history of the world. He fenced it when he assigned the boundaries of Israel's inheritance. (Num. 34:1-13.) He gathered out the stones when the Canaanites were exterminated. The choicest vine planted therein was the Israelitish nation which had gone through the disciplinary process in Egyptian bondage. He built a tower in it when under David Jerusalem was made its capital city.

2. The obligation of the nation (v. 2). The purpose of a vineyard is to bring forth grapes. The purpose of God in selecting and blessing the Israelitish nation was that it might bring forth fruit to his glory.

3. It bore only wild grapes (v. 4). Instead of sweet, luscious grapes, they bore grapes of a sour and unwholesome kind. How aptly this symbolizes Israel's life!

4. The desolation of the vineyard (vv. 5-7). Since all efforts had been wasted, the owner of the vineyard now resolved to abandon it. He purposed to take away the fences and leave it exposed to wild beasts, to be wasted and devoured by them.

II. The Sins Which Brought Ruin to Israel (vv. 8-23).

The causes of this destruction are presented under six woes, each woe pronounced against a particular sin:

1. Monopoly and oppression of the poor (vv. 8-10). The crime against which the first woe is directed is that of avaricious grasping after property which leads to the accumulation of wealth in the hands of the few. "Joining house to house and laying field to field" means the sin of the greedy monopolist who buys up the land on every side and ejects the small land holder. In the agricultural district it takes the form of the "land grabber." In the commercial centers it takes the form of the big man crushing out the small ones. This state of affairs met God's judgment in Judea, as seen in vv. 9 and 10, and one day it shall do likewise in America.

2. Dissipation (vv. 11-17). The sin here denounced is drunkenness. Several features are connected with this one sin:

a. Drinking made the life business of some (v. 11). They got up early and continued until late at night.

b. The effort to give their wicked business a show of refinement (v. 12). This is why pleasing music is heard in dens of infamy over our land.

c. Blindness to God's warnings and judgments (v. 12). Their drinking and dissipation rendered them insensible to the dealings of Providence.

d. God's judgments for such sin (vv. 13-17). They went into captivity. The immediate cause assigned was ignorance, but it was a willful ignorance for which they were held responsible. There was a great mortality among those who drank (v. 14). "Hell hath enlarged herself." The records everywhere show a much higher death rate among drinking men. Drinking degrades all classes (v. 15).

3. Unbelief (vv. 18, 19). This woe is directed against the sinner who presumptuously plunges into vice. He persists in iniquity and scoffs at judgment. This is peculiarly common among those who go about wine drinking as a business.

4. Moral confusion (v. 20). This woe is pronounced against those who try to adjust moral conditions to suit their sinful appetites.

5. Conceit (v. 21). The fifth woe is pronounced against the sin of self-conceit, which holds a false estimate of human wisdom and acts without reference to God.

6. Perversion of justice (vv. 22, 23). The sixth woe is pronounced against unjust judges.

III. God's Treatment of Israel for Their Sins (vv. 24-30).

1. He stretched out his hand in anger against them (vv. 24, 25).

2. Chastised by the nations (vv. 26-30). God gave the signal and issued the call for the nations to chastise Israel.

"A man who lives only with himself and for himself is apt to be corrupted by the company he keeps."—Parkhurst.

Joe B. Hicks of Maplesville was a visitor to Clanton Monday.

Clanton is Best Cotton Market—

:—:

Why truck your cotton over long distances to other markets, when you can sell it in Clanton for as much or more than in other markets, and save trucking charge, double weighing, loss in weight, classing and selling charge.

We buy for one of the largest cotton firms in the world. We also ship direct to local mills.

Recently the railroad companies have reduced their rates to local mills and to the port. Therefore with our connections we can pay as much for your cotton as you can get in any market.

We want to buy your cotton and will give you full prices on all grades.

WILL ERECT TWO NEW BUILDINGS

It is announced from the office of the County Superintendent of Education that plans are being carried out for the erection of two new school buildings, one at Cane Creek and one at Vermont. The building at Cane Creek will be a frame one-room structure. The Vermont building will be a frame four-room structure.

Both buildings will be planned according to State designs. The people of the communities are putting up one-half the cost in labor and materials, and the State Aid Funds will take care of the other half of the cost.

There has been a very urgent need for new buildings at these two places for years, and the people of the communitis are very glad they have been able to negotiate plans and terms for construction at this time.

WINNER TAKE ALL

Not until he was assigned the star role in "Winner Take All" had James Cagney realized what it was to crave food, and be forced to do without it, although able to buy it.

Prior to Cagney's entry into his latest Warner Bros. picture "Winner Take All," which is coming to the Wadesonian Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, September 7 and 8, and in which he plays a prize fighter, his manager and a trainer, assigned to him by the studio, whisked him off to Palm Springs where he went through 4 weeks of rigorous training and dieting, which in no whit differed from what a professional pugulist has to go through before a fight.

During the length of time he has been in motion pictures, the said, inactive form of life he led as compared to his former life of trouping as a hoofer, added some flabbiness to his body. As soon as the prizefighter role for his picture was selected, it was decided that Cragney's body would have to be conditioned. Hence the trainer and the diet:

And here is a typical menu in the training life of James Cagney.

Breakfast—1 small glass tomato juice, 1 soft boiled egg, 1 thin slice of toast, 3 apples.

Lunch—Small salad of raw cabbage and head lettuce, fruit salad, 2 oranges, 3 apples.

Dinner — Salad (fruit or vegetable), 3 thin slices dry toast, medium rare steak, side dish of spinach or brocoli, 1 small cup of tea.

As far as drinks with his meals were concerned, he was allowed nothing but water except for one small cup of tea with his dinner. As a result, Cagney was always hungry.

When "Winner Take All" was finally finished, Jimmy had his first real meal in two months. And how he enjoyed it.

LOCAL BOY MAKES GOOD

Joe E. Brown, one of the most popular comedians of the screen, comes to the Wadesonian Theatre, Friday and Saturday, September 5 and 6, in his latest picture "Local Boy Makes Good."

Brown, who has indulged in athletic pictures of many sorts, including football, baseball, and boxing is a track man in "Local Boy Makes Good," and wins laurels for his college — and his lady—as a sprinter, putting the usual number of typical Brown effects into his athletic efforts.

"Local Boy Makes Good," which is based on a play by J. C. and Elliot Nugent was directed by Mervyn Le Roy. Among the supporting cast are many favorites including Dorothy Lee, Edward Woods, Ruth Hall, Wade Boteler, Edward J. Nugent, William Burress and John Harrington.

Mr. Brown's big local following will be agreeably surprised by the human quality of "Local Boy Makes Good" — which does not depend on slapstick for its appeal. Joe provides the laughs—but in a different way. It's his best picture to date, he declares.

RELIEF WORKER TO SPEAK HERE

Meeting At Courthouse Saturday Afternoon at Two O'clock

Miss Loula Dunn of the State Welfare Department, Montgomery, will speak at the courthouse, Saturday evening, September 10, at 2 o'clock p.m., on relief for the women and children of our county the coming winter.

I hope the good ladies of Chilton county will take time to come to this meeting to help us organize relief committees for every preceinct in Chilton County. You know we have no child welfare worker at present and it is impossible for me to look after the distressed in our county as it should be.

Remember that winter time is coming on and I hope we can organize and get ahead of the depression and that we will be able to keep everybody from suffering this winter.

I hope we will have a good representation of both men and women from every precinct in the county. I hope every preacher in the county can be present and I hope every church organization in the county will be represented.

If we all would do our duty this work would not be a burden to anybody but if left to a few they will not be able to aid and assist the distressed this winter as they should be.

Remember the date, Saturday, September 10, at 2 o'clock p.m., at the courthouse.—Respecfully, L. H. Reynolds.

REPORT OF G. A. CAMP

The G. A. Girls of Unity Association gathered at the Clanton Baptist church Tuesday morning, August 16, 1932, and went down to Log Cabin Beach on Coosa river, and enjoyed three days outing. The girls report a great time. We had two mission study classes for the different ages. We were not able to complete our studies sufficiently enough to take an examination and get seals and certificates, on account of the heavy rains while we were there.

We had representatives from six different churches of the Unity Association and one from Chilton Association. We appreciate the cooperation of the parents of the children in helping us to make the camp a success. We wish more of the girls could have gone. We wish to thank Mr. and Mrs. Thomas for their kindness shown us while there.—Respectively, Mrs. J. Z. Mims, young people's leader, Mrs. Dewey Eubanks, assistant.

MAN DROWNED IN LAKE MITCHELL

Timothy Busse, of Maxwell Field, is Victim of Water

Victim of a leaky boat, Pvt. Timothy Busse, 30, in the 51st aviation squadron, Maxwell Field, drowned in Mitchell Lake near Mell Martin's campt at about 3:45 Monday afternoon, after heroic efforts of Miss Frances Berry, Montgomery, failed to save him.

With Sergts. Benjamin Hoffman, B. F. Jablousky and Miss Berry, Busse was rowing on the lake, when the boat sprung a leak. Busse is said to have become alarmed and walked to the stern, upsetting the boat and pitching all in it into the water.

Busse was not a good swimmer. Miss Berry, an expert in the water, towed him to a protruding stump.

"Take care of yourself," he is said to have told her. "Get ashore. I'm all right now."

As the men in the party approached, he sank.

Private Busse, who had been at Maxwell Field for about a year, enlisted in the aviation service at Philidelphia.

Busse, who had one previous three-year enlistment in the air service, is survived by his mother, Mrs. Helen Bussee, 3143 Bellegrade Street, Philidelphia, who has been notified of the tragedy.

Busse's body was recovered shortly after 11 o'clock Tuesday morning when it floated to the surface near where it went down. Seachers dragging the lake believe they dislodged logs on the bottom which may have pinioned the body when it sank.

B. F. Higgins, proprietor of Higgins camp, where the accident happened, and Samuel Martin, of Martin's Funeral Home, Clanton, organized the search, and worked throughout the night until the body was recovered. Martin brought the body to Clanton, and carried it on to Montgomery.

Concord-Billingsley

The singing Sunday afternoon was real good. The directors for the afternoon were Rev. G. W. Stewart, Earl Davis, Melvin Devaughn, William Hicks, Olin and Hudson Williams,Mrs. Bragg Mills, Connie and Sally Shaw and Virginia Little. Organists were Miss Thelma, Olin and Hudson Williams. We were glad to have the visiting singers with us, and invite them back.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Dickinson of Montgomery were visitors to our community Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Olin Williams returned home Thursday after spending several weeks at Lawley.

Miss Nina Mae Harris of Clanton and Mr. O. H. Lawrence spent Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. J. P. Williams.

Miss Ethel Harrel and little Reese Dicknison of Billingsley spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Dickinson.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Popwell of Thorsby were the guests of their aunt, Mrs. Emma Williams, Sunday.

Mrs. Freda Watts and little son, Fred Dull, are visiting relatives in Coosa this week.

To The Citizens Of The Town of Clanton

In the local papers of. Thursday, September 1, 1932, there appeared six questions addressed to Mr. J. B. Atkinson by the present Mayor and Councilmen. And in the Chilton County News of the same issue there was an artcle by Mr. Atkinson in reference to said questions, and we feel that the questions asked were not correctly answered and the facts have not been correctly placed before the people and we would, therefore, like to place some records and facts before the voters of the Town in reference to these matters.

It will be noted that in a very lengthy article in the Chilton County News, Mr. Atkinson attempted to dispose of all six questions in three ways. First, by ignoring some of the questions. Second, by evading some in words and figures that have no relation to the question asked. And Third, some he brands as falsehoods.

It will be recalled that in Mr. Atkinson's announcement it was stated that "The town purchased and paid for the warehouse and lot near the Methodist Church." When this statement was made the Clerk of the Town wrote Mr. Atkinson a personal letter as follows:

August, 13, 1932.

Mr. J. B. Atkinson,
Clanton, Alabama.
Dear Sir:

The announcement of your candidacy for the office of mayor appearing in the county papers of recent date, had a statement that during the period you was mayor that you bought and paid for a piece of property known as the warehouse property.

The records at the Probate Office and at The First National Bank, Clanton, Alabama, show that there is a mortgage of $1267.75 at the present time on the above property given as the purchase price and that only $250.00 has been paid on the above mortgage.

The Mayor and Town Council has instructed me to write you in regard to this matter, and if you paid this mortgage in full during your term of office, that you see The First National Bank and have the records marked satisfied.

Thanking you for an early reply in the matter, I am

Yours Truly,
C. H. PIPES,
City Clerk.

Copy First National Bank.

Mr. Atkinson replied to the Clerk as follows:

Mr. C. H. Pipes,
Town Clerk,
Clanton, Alabama.
Dear Sir:

This acknowledged receipt of your letter of August 13, 1932, with reference to mortgage given by the Town of Clanton, Alabama, to the First National Bank.

I will take this matter up with the bank and ascertain the status of their records and will, in the near future, investigate the minutes of the Town of Clanton, and give you the information and explanation that your letter will need in the premises.

Yours truly,
J. B. ATKINSON.

There having been some misunderstading as to the purchase and payment of this warehouse and lot, which was purchased during Mr. Atkinson's administration as mayor, we feel that the records should be given to the public regarding this transaction, which are as follows:

On December 11, 1926, this warehouse property, together with one acre of land on the Maplesville highway and adjoining the old Morgan home place, was sold to Ada M. Atkinson for a consideration expressed therein of $2,000.00 and other valuable consideration. The acknowledgement of this deed was made in Dale County, the County site being Ozark, Alabama, December 11, 1926. This deed was filed in the office of the Judge of Probate of Chilton County, Alabama, on December 15, 1926, recorded in Volume No. 211, Page 521. The records do not show when this deed reached Clanton, but on the 14th day of December, 1926, the Town Council was called into a special session by J. B. Atkinson, Mayor, and the following minutes appear on page 3 of the minutes of the Town Council.

State of Alabama,
Chilton County,
Town of Clanton.

Whereas the Town of Clanton may at this time purchase the north fifty-five feet of lot six in bock number two of said Town, the said opportunity to so purchase said property will not continue to exist until a regular meeting of the Town Council, as the property owner desires to make disposition of said property immediately, and deeming that the public interest requires it, now, therefore,

I, J. B. Atkinson, Mayor of the Good Samaritan Contest Begins Second Half With This Week

With this issue of The Union-Banner begins the last half of the Good Samaritan Buying Contest, which has been running in this paper for the past five weeks. There is much more interest in the campaign now than has been before, and indications are that it is going to get more lively from now on to the finish, which is four more weeks after this week.

It is still not too late for other churches or organizations to enter. Of course, naturally, those who enter now will have to work harder in order to overcome the headway already made by those in the race; but with hard, consistent work and united effort, it would not be impossible for even a new church or organization to win one of the prizes. You will see in the page advertisement explaining the campaign that there are three prizes—$50, $30, and $20. The first prize, of course, will go to the organization assimilating the most votes, and on down the line.

Nehi crowns have been brought in by the sacks-full, and there have been some Sunlite bread wrappers voted. Some sales slips issued by the participating firms have also been voted by some organizations—and some of these have been large ones, too, from Clanton Motors for instance.

It is the desire of the management of this paper to make this campaign beneficial to all concerned, and in order for this to be done, our friends and the friends of the other business firms must help us. And when you are helping us by bringnig us more trade, you will be helping your church by making its chance better to win one of the prizes. Remember, you must work fast, because these other four weeks will pass off before you know it and some church or organization will walk off with the prize money. The awards will be made at 4 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, October 8th, or as early thereafter as the votes can be counted and checked up.

Here Is A New Idea About Advertising

Mr. Snow at the Sunlite Bakery was struck in the head with a brand new idea Tuesday morning when the two cars ran together at the main crossing just above his place. He said that he was going to get an old Ford, park it in front of the bakery and have someone drive another car into it. "That will get the folks down here," said Mr. Snow, "And maybe when they gather up in front to see the wreck we will get to sell them a doughnut or loaf of bread or something."

The idea may be a little far-fetched, but the fundamental of it is good. In other words, what a fellow wants at his place of business is trade; and in order to get trade he must get folks to come to his place. To get folks to come to his place of business, he must advertise—but to make it pay, this advertsiing must be done in the right way.

Mr. Snow has been carrying an adv. in the Good Samaritan page of The Union-Banner for the past five weeks inviting the people of Chilton county to trade with him. Now, the Sunlite Bakery is a business which Clanton and Chilton County need. Mr. Snow has placed a plant here that can amply handle our bread wants, and we should patronize him. He and his cooks are living here with us, and we should show them that we are glad to have them. The bread trucks that come here every day are no doubt sent here by good people; but how much money do they leave in Clanton? Their business is to take money away from here. Mr. Snow spends his money here, and he deserves as much support from our people as we can possibly give him.

Of course, the stores are going to keep the bread in stock that the people want and call for. So, let everybody call for Sunlite bread, and don't forget that the wrappers count as votes in the Good Samaritan buying contest.

MEMORIAM FOR DEAD MASONS

Resolutions Adopted At Chilton County Masonic Conference

To the Officers and Members of the Chilton County Masonic Conference:

We your committee, beg leave to submit this resolution in memorial of the following deceased brothers:

E. J. Harrell, Century Lodge No. 567; Rev. W. J. Ruddick, Maplesville Lodge No 706; J. R. Northrup, Maplesville Lodge No. 706; Rev. S. A. Adams, Thorsby Lodge No. 759; Rev. C. D. Messer, Verbena Lodge No. 754; A. C. Smith, Clanton Lodge No. 423.

We are constantly reminded of the brevity of life, the changing seasons, the serf leaf, the fading flower, the departing friend; all remind us that life is but a span that leads from earth to glory, connecting the past and the future, the two great eternities.

Though our friends be dead, yet their influence lives on. Of such are those who build monuments which neither rust, corrode, nor time efface.

Therefore, be it resolved, that though we miss their genial presence, their sunny smiles, and their counsel, we can in humble submission bow to the will of God, who gives and takes at His pleasure.

Be it further resolved, that we extend our heartfelt sympathy to all bereaved and point them to the star of hope, the resurrected Lord, who gave this beautiful promise: "I go to prepare a place for you, that where I am, you may be also."

Be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to each of the county papers for publication and one sent to each family of the deceased brothers, and one spread upon the minutes of the Chilton County Masonic Conference.—Respectfully submitted, Dr. E. H. Downs, L. E. Diefenderfer, R. L. Duffy, Committee.

HOHENBERG COTTON OFFICE HAS BEEN OPENED HERE

The office of M. Hohenberg & Co., cotton buyers, has been opened in Clanton, in charge of Mr. Joe Venable, a cotton buyer of many years experience. The Clanton office is located in the Wade Building next to the Alabama Power Company office.

The Hohenberg Company is one of the oldest cotton concerns in Alabama, and it is regarded as a distinct advantage to growers of cotton to have them enter the buying business in Chilton County.

Mr. Venable invites the farmers of this territory to come to see him and get acquainted. And if you have cotton to sell, he will appreciate the opportunity of making a bid on it.

Mr. and Mrs. Venable, with their family, are living in the Boyd residence, on Fifth Street.

STORM RELIEF IS AIM OF PITTS BILL

Measure Introduced In House By Chilton County Representative

Aid and relief through exemption from payment of ad velorem taxes on their property for a period of five years, is provided for those unfortunate Alabamians who had the holdings they then owned, destroyed or injured in the disastrous tornadoes that swept a number of Alabama counties last March, in a constitutional amendment proposed in a bill introduced in the House, Tuesday, August 30, by representative Percy M. Pitts, of Chilton County, where the loss of life and property was heaviest.

The measure would submit to the qualified voters of the State an amendment to the constitution which would authorize this exemption from taxation for a five-year period, beginning October 1, 1932, of real property to the taxable value of $2,000 and personal property to the taxable value of $1,000 of "all persons whose property was injured or destroyed by the tornado occurring in the spring of 1932," and provide for the manner of securing such exemption.

This proposed amendment, if submitted would be voted on at the general election to be held in November.

J. E. Kitchen has moved out to his farm on the Lay Dam road. He recently bought the old Joe Foshee place.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

FIELD SELECTION OF SEED CORN IS URGED

Selecting seed corn this fall will eliminate the necessity of buying seed next spring and will insure a better yield. Seed corn should be selected in the field during harvest. A cotton basket attached to the side of a wagon body or a sack carried on the shoulder may eb used to receive the selected ears.

It is necessary to keep in mind only a few important points in selecting ears of corn for seed. The stalk should be used as the basis for selection. Both ears of a stalk having two well-developed ears and having as much, or less, space as its companion stalks should be selected for seed. Stalks having more space than others will produce a better yield due to the extra amount of moisture and food material.

The comparatively high yield under competition is the important point in selecting seed stalks. Stalks with two well-developed ears are genarally more desirable because if more than two ears from the stalks selected should be borne about midway or lower on the stalk, well covered with shuck at the tip, and free from disease.

It is advisable to select from the field a great deal more seed ears than necessary for planting because it will be necessary to discard many ears on account of disease and undesirable types after the corn is shucked.

HOGS GAIN MORE THAN THREE POUNDS DAILY

Grove Hill, Ala.—The new hog champion of Clarke County is C. M. Hicks, out on R. F. D. 1 from Grove Hill. His litter of six Duroc-Jersey pigs tipped the scales for an average of 323 pounds each on the day they were 6 months old. His record shows that they had gained 103 pounds each since the day they were five months old, or an average of better than 3 and one-third pounds daily per hog per day.

Mr. Hicks used largely home-grown feed, and, by feeding it to hogs, he recived a higher price than he would have received had he sold it as feed. His ration consisted largely of corn and cob meal, wheat shorts and 40 per sent hog protein supplement, the corn meal composing most of the ration. He had a good pasture also.

"I began feeding," said Mr. Hicks, "when the pigs were two weeks old, using a ration of corn meal and buttermilk. When the buttermilk gave out we substituted 40 per cent hog protein supplement. As soon as the pigs were old enough we fed them sweet potatoes which we did not need for home use."

In studying his costs with O. C. Helms, county agent, Mr. Hicks found that at present prices for hogs he will receive a substantial profit on his investment. The litter will be sent to the ton-litter contest in Montgomery on September 15 and 16.

Mr. Hicks' brother, W. J. Hicks, of Whatley, won first prize at the ton-litter contest last year, his nine pigs averaging 235 pounds each when six months old.

FERTILIZER SALES OFF OVER ONE-HALF

Farmers of Alabama this year used 204,000 tons of commercial fertilizer compared with 425,000 tons last year, reports the department of agriculture and industries. It is estimated that farmers this year also used 37,000 tons of cottonseed meal.

Of the total amount used this year 57,980 tons were used as seperate ingredients—that is as side dressing and home-mixed, compared with 93,440 tons so used last season. The amount of ready mixed goods used this year was 183,040 tons against 331,560 last year.

POULTRYMEN MAY HAVE FLOCKS BLOOD TESTED

Alabama poultrymen interested in blood testing their flocks are advised to see their county agent and home demonstration agents about application blanks and rules covering the work.

This is recommended by R. B. Jones, chief of the poultry division of the department of agriculture, Montgomery, who declared that we will be glad to take care of all applications of both flocks and hatcheries to be accredited.

He asserts that the program will be conducted as in previous years.

LIVESTOCK REMINDERS

Try to attend the ton-litter hog shows at Montgomery, September 15 and 16, and Birmingham, September 20 and 21. You will learn much about practical hog production by inspecting the exhibits and talking to the hog breeders about the methods they use.

Sixty-four hogs will pay $32 per ton for peanuts in the field. Experiments at Auburn have shown that 250 pounds of peanuts in the field will produce 100 pounds of pork.

It takes 170 pounds of cotton seed to equal 100 pounds of cotton seed meal in feeding value for dairy cattle. Plan to trade cotton seed for meal and improve your dairy ration.

You need one ton of legume hay and two tons of ensilage to take care of roughage requirements of each dairy cow on your farm this winter. You will save grain and cheapen your ration if you will produce this roughage.

Sixty pounds of corn meal, 32 pounds of wheat shorts, nad 8 pounds of tankage mixed and fed dry or in a slop makes an excellent ration for brood sows that are suckling pigs. Give the sow all she will clean up twice daily of this mixture and watch your pigs grow.

If a cow had a mouth 18 inches wide and started eating grass one inch high, by the time she consumed enough grass to produce 4 gallons of milk she would be 30 miles from home. Think this over and begin feeding grain when your pasture begins to get short.

Every dairyman should construct a bull pen and keep a purebred bull in it. Such pen is health insurance for the bull and life insurance for the owner. The Dairy Department at Auburn will furnish plans if requested for a satisfactory bull pen.

FARM AND GARDEN QUERY BOX

(By K. C. Davis, Knapp School of Country Life, Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn.)

Q.—My neighbors usually do their land drainage jobs on the farm during wet weather. Is that the best plan?

A.—On the contrary, drainage work is more easily done in dry weather. During September there is less difficulty with water while digging ditches. Tile is now rather inexpensive, and this is a good time to plan to install such improvements on the farm, if possible. Open ditches can be dug with very little expense when labor is cheap. Spare time in the following year may be well used in drainage work. A good farmer's bulletin on drainage is U. S. 1131 F.

Q.—Is it better to burn vines and other waste materials from the garden or to save them for fertilizer.

A.—All waste products from the garden, such as potato vines, tomato vines, large weeds, and lawn mowings should be used for organic matter to be rotted in a compost heap. If possible mix barnyard manure with these. Make a layer of waste material, then a layer of soil about three inches thick, then another layer of waste material, and more soil on to that. This can be built to any height desired. Kitchen waste may be added to it from time to time. This keeps flies from breeding in it and makes valuable fertilizer for the garden. Most disease germs and insects, as well as weed seeds, are destroyed during the rotting process. This is a good time of the year to start such a compost. Continue to build it up. Then in the spring fork it over, mix together, and use it for fertilizer.

Q.—At what date should pullets be placed in quarters for winter laying?

A.—The sooner this is done the better. Pullets which have had free range can be trained to roost in new winter laying quarters by shutting them up for a week in the house provided with hoppers filled with dry mash, scratch feed in litter, and plenty of water. They may be released about dusk for a few nights and later given full free range. After they are trained to live in the new place complete confinement is not necessary except in bad weather.

STUMPAGE APPRAISAL

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 6.—It is one thing to grow a crop and quite another to market it shrewdly and advantageously, says J. M. Stauffer forest inspector of the Alabama Commission of Forestry. Probably the timberland owner fares worse than the farmer in the marketing of crops because the latter knows at the outset almost exactly how much cotton, corn, peanuts, hay or other produce he has for sale, while the market reports in the newspapers and over the radio give him a close approximation of actual market value. On the other hand, the timber grower may have difficulty in determining the amount of merchantible growth on his land, and he may not always have a correct understanding of the various elements that make up its stumpage value.

The first essential is the price f. o. b. of the lumber that can be manufactured from the stumpage offered for sale. The approximate value of the stumpage can then be derived by various methods. One of these is to add together the cost per thousand feet of the different steps in the logging, and in the manufacture, handling and loading of the lumber. These costs include, of course, all items of overhead as well as the direct expenditures.

To the sum of these costs should be added ten per cent or twenty per cent or whatever percentage appears to be a fair rate of profit. The total should then be subtracted from the f. o. b. price of the lumber, and the difference may be claimed by the timber growers as the reasonable value for his stumpage.

For example, if felling and bucking costs $1.50 per thousand; hauling to the mill $1.50 sawing and piling $2.00; hauling to market or loading on cars $2.00; depreciation, overhead and incidentals $1.50, the sum of these amounts to $8.50. By allowing a margin of twenty per cent for profit the total comes to $10.20. If the average price received for the lumber is $13.00 per thousand, the subtraction of the total cost including the operator's profit leaves $2.80 to be paid the timber grower as the value of the stumpage.

Another method is to take the final cost of production, exclusive of any allowance for profit, which in the above instance would be $8.50, and subtract this amount from the lumber value of $13.00, leaving $4.50 This difference can then be divided equaly betweent the timber owner and the operator, resulting in a value of $2.25 per thousand board feet for the stumpage.

ISRAEL JOURNEYING TOWARD CANAAN

GOLDEN TEXT—And Moses said unto Hobab, the son of Raguel the Midianite, Moses' father-in-law, We are journeying unto the place of which the Lord said, I will give it you: come thou with us, and we will do thee good: for the Lord hath spoken good concerning Israel.

LESSON TEXT—Numbers 10:11-36.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Following a Shining Cloud.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Wilderness Road.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Camp Life in the Wilderness.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How God Guides His People.

I. Marching from Sinai at the Hand of Moses (vv. 11-28).

The nation had now grown to a great host—the army itself was 603,550 strong. Allowing three persons to every soldier there would be 1,810,650. The moving of such a host required thorough organization. The army was organized into four divisions with three tribes to each division. Each tribe had a commander and an ensign.

1. The signal given to march (v. 11). The lifting of the cloud from off the sanctuary was the signal for the camp to be broken and the march to begin.

2. The signal given to rest (v. 12). Just as the sign to march must be recognized, so the sign to rest must be obeyed.

3. The commander (v. 13). God was the commander through his servant Moses.

4. The order of the march (vv. 14-28). As they marched, the division led by Judah went forward followed by Gershon and Merari bearing the hulkier part of the tabernacle. Then marched Reuben's division followed by the Kohathites bearing the sacred utensils of the tabernacle. These were followed by the divisions of Ephraim and Dan. The ark occupied a central position with the caravan.

II. Moses Seeking the Help of Hobab (vv. 29-32).

Hobab was a shrewd child of the dessert. Moses therefore thought that his knowledge would be helpful. The children of Israel, however, were going forth under the guiding care of the Almighty. Surely he could be trusted. It is a sad thing, indeed, when God is dwelling in the midst of the people that the one whom God had set over them should seek the wisdom and guidance of a man. There seems to be no doubt as to the grave mistake which Moses made in this case, but it is quite certain that he was actuated by a proper motive. Moses made a double plea before Hobab:

1. "We will do thee good." Moses had faith in God's promises to Israel and could well assure Hobab that good would come to him by identifying himself with God's covenant people. All Christians can say to sinners, "Come thou with us and we will do thee good." Hobab's reason for refusing the invitation of Moses was his love for his kindred and home.

2. "Thou mayest be to us instead of eyes." Moses still insisted that Hobab should go along, not only for the good he could get, but for the good he might do. The sinner should come to Christ because he needs salvation not primarily that he may be of some good by joining with God's people. Hobab seems afterward to have yielded to the entreaty of Moses (Judges 1:16).

III. Marching to Canaan With the Lord as Leader (vv. 33-36).

Even though Hobab did go with Israel we never hear of his leading the people. Observe:

1. "The ark of the covenant of the Lord went before them" (v. 33). The ark, the symbol of the divine presence, moved out of its place in the midst of the camp and took its place at the head. It went before them in the three days' journey to search out a resting place for them.

2. The cloud of the Lord rested upon them (v. 34). This was an indication that God was not only leading, but governing and protecting his people.

3. The Lord's vindication (vv. 35, 36). Moses' unbelief brought reproach upon the Lord. This action on the part of God vindicated his leadership. God is the actual and only sufficient leader whose heart is never faint, who never sleeps. Moses gave recognition to this act of God in identifying himself with his people. When the ark set forward he exclaimed, "Rise up, Lord, and let thine enemies be scattered: and let them that hate thee flee before thee"; and when it rested, "Return, O Lord, unto the many thousands of Israel." When we fail by unbelief, may we, like Moses, quietly and graciously accept the rebuke of the Lord and give him recognition as our leader.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

While there has been no general upward turn in our basic industries as yet, we feel that things are going to get better soon because the old American courage is beginning to assert itself. A few months ago we were plunged into the depths of gloom. At the beginning of the summer we were told that America would soon go off the gold standard and that chaos would result. But it didn't happen. The first rift in the clouds came with the announcement that Europe had taken all the gold it could take from the shores and that Uncle Sam still had plenty for his own use. Then bonds began to stengthen in price, to be followed by a rise in stocks.

Many of the temperamental ones, who had been sure only a few weeks before that we were headed for the dogs financially, began to assert that we were again on the high road to prosperity. But the sober minded people, those who had never lost faith in the fundamental strength of the republic, did not join in this procession. They were relieved and satisfied to know that a turn had come in public physchology at least and they felt that sooner or later this would be followed by an upturn in business. There are doubtless yet a few rough places to be surmounted, but with America's courage returned this ought to be comparatively easy. Nothing can be done when the people are despairing. But hope changes all things.

Although there has been little change in our heavy slower industries as yet, there is hope to be found in some lines of commercial enterprise. Textiles and shoes are looking up. And one of the sure indicators of better times and better public physcology can be found in change in the moving picture industry. One of the men who have been persistently bullish on America has been Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, who has consistetly refused to become pessimist. More than six months ago when clouds were darkest he came forth with a statement that so far as his industry was concerned there was no depression which could not be cured by better pictures. Since then the industry has been thoroughly reorganized and is now climbing the hill again following a general industrial house cleaning, with substantial reductions in operating costs on every side.

But what is more important to the public, from the standpoint of our economic physchology, the people are once more seeking amusements in something like old time numbers. Major producing companies are again on full time schedule, so that thousands of people have gone back to work and the results are showing in the box offices. Reports from points as widely distributed as San Francisco, Pittsburgh, Atlanta, Charlotte, Boston, Albany, Kansas City, and Washington indicate that theater attendance is beginning to point back toward normal again.

This is cited as an example showing the changed physchology of the people. Persons who seek amusements are not revolutionists; neither are they pessimists or defeatists. They are people who want to forget their troubles and by momentary relaxation get a firmer grip on life. The financial situation of the theater can be taken as a measure of what state of mind the people are in and what and how well they are doing. An increase in motion picture theater attendance can well foreshadow a general increase in business, one to which the heavier industries should later respond to.

What has been done in this industry can be and is being done in others. Everywhere manufacturing and distributing corporations have been reducing their overhead, rendering their plants more efficient and better able to show profits when the turn comes. Selling the public something better and more useful than it has had in the past will make an industry win in the end whether it be amusement enterprise or one which offers clothing or equipment. Offering the people what they want will eventualy cure any depression, just as Mr. Hays confidentially stated in the dark days of last spring. Mr. Hays' statement, which may have seemed bold at the time, is now proving its truth, all over America.

WHO WOULD VOTE AGAINST THIS BILL? WE'D LIKE TO KNOW HIS ADDRESS—

Percy Pitts is floor leader for the Republican party in the Alabama House of Representatives. And he does not have the divisions on his side of the House that they have on the Democratic side. Posey and Loyd are the only Republicans he had to lead and all three agree before they start going.

We have always said that Percy Pitts ought to be a Democrat. He is without doubt one of the most popular men on the floor of the house, and he is also one of the ablest. Percy is not a long-winded floor-grabber. He does not indulge in rhetorical nothings and hardly ever speaks, but when he does, he has hearers because he has something to say. He has an uncle in the House, Fluger McGraw, of Shelby, a Democrat, who sits right beside him on the floor. Fluger says Percy is his uncle and Percy says Fluger is his uncle, but we know something about Shelby and Fluger is really Percy's uncle.

Percy has a bill to exempt from taxation for the next five years the property of those who were victims of the terrible storm that swept through several counties of Alabama early this spring. He says that folks in the path of that storm have enough troubles to worry them without having to worry about paying taxes until they can rehabilitate themselves. We are not a gambling man but if we were we'd bet there were not two men hard-hearted enough in the whole House to vote against this measure of Percy Pitts, not even one.—Atticus Mullin, in Montgomery Advertiser.

PRACTICAL ROAD BUILDING

The most expensive roads are those which do not serve their communities well. By the same token, the most economical roads are those which best suit local conditions, whether they cost three thousand dollars a mile or thirty thousand.

At this time many states, cities and counties doubtless consider dropping much of their road work as an economy measure. This is a mistake—almost any other government function should feel the axe of retrenchment first. Road construction and maintenance has been one of the most vital factors in fighting distress and unemployment the past three years. And—remember this—every road dollar which we spend, so long as it is spent wisely after due study of conditions, will return continuous dividends in the future. It will do this by improving business conditions, encouraging tourist travel and broadening the markets and opportunities for agricultural sections.

Good secondary roads, which are weather-proof, skidproof and long-wearing, can be built with oil or asphalt surfaces, for less than five thousand dollars a mile. These make perfect feeder arteries for connecting towns and farming areas with the cross-country superhighways. They have been termed the "food" roads of the nation—a title they eminently deserve.

The good roads movement has been one of the most progressive phases of the twentieth century. The necessity of facilities for fast, economical and year-round transport can hardly be exaggerated. And roads will play an even greater part in the future of America than they have in the past.

RAILROADS AND EMPLOYMENT

The public is always the loser when competition is unfair.

The modern industrial axiom is especially in the case of the railroads. Eighty-five per cent of the nation's freight is carried by them—and no other agency could carry it as cheaply and as efficiently. Yet inequitably regulated land and water competition has forced railroad retrenchment, resulting in the passing of dividens by many lines, and contributing further to unemployment.

In the single state of New Jersey there are 16,000 fewer residents in railroad employ than there were four years ago, and railroad payrolls to residents of the state have been reduced $27,000,000 annually. It must be remembered that the earnings of railroads cannot be compared to those of other businesses, inasmuch as during years of prosperity stringent regulation prevents them from making even as much as six per cent on their investment.

We are all interested in the railroads, whether we know it or not. They occupy a position of the first importance in the industrial scheme and their prosperity is directly related to the prosperity, or lack of it, of banks, insurance companies and a multitude of manufacturing and producing industries. What happens to the railroads will, directly or indirectly, affect us all.

An apple a day keeps the doctor away but in the case of the small boy it depends on the color of the apples.

Democrats claim the Republicans are working both sides of the street on the prohibition issue but these days of heavy traffic working both sides of the street is much safer than taking the middle of the road.

We know that the world is not entirely upside down or the Cincinnati Reds would be on top of the National League.

Every once in a while the board of health issues a lot of hints for the care of children but it is our recollection when we were a boy that the kinds whose parents paid the least attention to them were the healthiest.

MORAL ECHOES

(By D. W. Haskew)

In the back yard of the parsonage there was a cluster of asparagus plants. During the winter months these plants die, but in the spring they return in profusion. They grow about five feet into the air and make a delicate, flowing foliage that can be used in creating a background for vases and decorations. The ladies of the church will bring their flowers for the sacred altar, and then they go to this asparagus bed for filling and for a gackground for their decorations. No flowers every bloom on the asparagus stalks, but they are used to make the vases look beautiful. The asparagus is never used until something more beautiful is brought in, and then the foliage is used to make the flowers look more attractive. That is the way with many a person in a community and in a church. There are people who are never admired, but they are used as a "filler-in." They do not make the beautiful vase of service, but they do the things that will add to the work done. Such people are never honored. They are always overlooked. After all they play an important part in the service rendered. Many of us feel that we are the "filler-in," while other people get all the glory.

When I was a lad on the farm, I did not have good eyes. The other boys in the home were blessed with good eyesight. We would go squirrel hunting and it was my job to shake the bushes and turn the squirrel, or pull the vines and make him move. The boys with good eyes and with the gun, would station themselves about the tree, and then with all my strength I would try to disturb the squirrel and make him move. Bang, would go the gun, and down would come the squirrel. The boy shooting would pick up his meat. When the day's hunt was over, each boy yould come home with his string of squirrels, and would show great pride over his results. I had no gun and no squirrels, and really had nothing to say. I always felt that I should have been given some credit for turning the squirrels. All my life I have been turning squirrels for other men to shoot. One man burns a sage patch, and while the thing is burning he exclaims, "What a man am I," but some one must come along and grub up the black stumps left by the fire before a crop can be made. I am wondering when the world will honor the man who turns the squirrels for the other man to shoot, and when the human race will appreciate the man who grubs the stumps from the evil where the other fellow burned the sage.

I spent the night at a farm home. The wind was blowing and all night long I could hear an old wind-mill as it rattled and rubbed and growled over its task. From the noise it made I decided that it was pumping up a stream that would run a grist mill. The next morning I dressed and went out to the old mill to see it bring up its sluices of water. Imagine my surprise when I saw the stream that was coming from the water pipe. All that rattle, groaning and noise and not a stream as large as a lead pencil pouring out. When you listen to the noise, the groans and the tongue rattle of some folks, you would think that they were turning the world upside down. If you will investigate one of those noisy kind of people in your church or community, you will find more noise than results. Blessed is the man who says little and does much.

In my flower yard I saw a beatiful butterfly and a busy little honey bee. The butterfly would spread its shining wings and drift about to sip the honey from the blooming flowers for itself alone. The honey bee was not so beautiful. It made no efforts at display. Hurriedly it visited flower after flower and soon I saw it as it lifted itself into the air and was gone to its home. The honey bee was not working for itself. It was gathering honey for the hive. It was a part of an organization where each lived and labored for all. The social butterfly that flits about in this garden of life, lives alone for herself. The real men and women who are worthwhile in this world are living and laboring to produce the honey that will gladden every heart.

I was crossing the bay on a small launch. The boat carried the mail and for good measure it would carry passengers. It was sometimes loaded to its capacity. Several docks jutted out into the bay, and the little launch would blow its whistle when it was nearing those passenger stations. I noticed that the pilot would always throw his machine out of gear when he would blow his whistle. I asked for an explanation and he informed me that he did not have enough power to run and blow the whistle at the same time. That was a boat that could not blow and run at the same time. There are a lot of church members who haven't the steam to blow and run at the same time. When you hear a fellow doing a lot of blowing, you can just put it down that he is not doing much running.

One day I saw a fly in a large bowl of honey. The fly was not enjoying itself at all. There was too much honey, and too little fly. When a little man get lots of money, he is like the fly in the bowl, he fails to enjoy the thing that he thought that would enjoy. Money paralizes, ruins and gums up a lot of folks.

There can be at this time no greater public service than leadership in arousing public opinion in favor of constructive economy in government.—Calvin Coolidge.

The death penalty for stealing has been authorized in Soviet Russia. Evidently there is something wrong with the old socialist theory that where there are no property rights there will be no crime.

A British writer says that the Bostonians who put on the Boston tea party back in Colonial days were a bunch of Hooligans. Maybe they are getting ready to put in the destruction of this British tea as a set-off on the war debts.

The MAN in the MOON

Looks Over All—
Overlooks None.

Trying To Please

As we go through this sad vale of tears, it is all very nice to strive to please. We can please some people by looking pleasant; others can be pleased by talking pleasant; still others are pleased by our acting pleasant; and then it takes a combination, sometimes, of two or more of these in order to please. I heard a successful man give his life's rule one day last week. He said: "When a man walks into my place of business, I try to look pleasant as I ask him, pleasantly, what he wants. Sometimes people act rude and say real mean things. In that case I try to act pleasant to offset this rudeness. If he persists in this rudeness, sometimes belittling what I speak of and really believe to be bargains, and even insinuating that I am a licensed highwayman, concerning prices, I get rid of him as pleasantly as possible. Even if I should sell him, it is a ten to one shot he will become dissatisfied with his purchase and come back on me with unwarranted demands. So, if I can't please a man, I don't worry. He isn't a desirable customer, even if I do get his money." I know you have heard the saying "you can please some people all the time, and all people some of the time, but you can't please all the people all the time." Think of this when you go to buy something, and measure yourself. Some people seem to believe that people will consider them smart and thrifty if they are hard to trade with. Don't fool yourself. If you are considered as one of this kind, and are so known, the real keen merchant just makes his first price at a figure from which he can work for the wrangle he knows is coming, so you don't save anything anyway. You're only fooling yourself and building a reputation for being penny foolish. Be pleasant—and sensible—it pays.

Our New Day

Columbus did not conquer the uncharted seas and discover America by sitting down and wondering what would happen next. Washington did not win the Revolutionary War and secure our independence by wondering how bad affairs were going to turn out. Our doughboys did not win the World War by "cussing" everything they could think of, from President on down to the rain and mud. All the above performed their seeming miracles by iron nerve and hard work. They were too busy overcoming obstacles to look on the dark side of things. For months lots of people have lost sight of the big job of building national faith and confidence just because they were too busy predicting disaster. And, for the most part, these pessimists have been people who, themselves, were not feeling the depression near so keenly as their listeners. But the gloomy man spreads his gloom, while the optimist spreads his feeling of confidence. Confidence in our people, our country, and our future is our big need at this time. Our national government has taken the big bull by the horns with the intentoin of conquering him. They are making a new day for us. The darkness of our night of depression is past, and we can now see the breaking of our new day. Let us be up and doing—working out our own economic problems, instead of trying to remain in the darkness of the night quaking with fear of what the future holds for us. Lets face our problems as they are and will be—not as they have been. We have another chance. Lets make the most of it. Lets dig!

A Tongue Twister

Anything you go to buy nowadays has some kind of tax tacked on, it seems—anything from your smokes to your new automobile, if you happen to be so well off that you can afford a new one. Even our postage stamps have changed from red to blue for the most part. But, thank goodness, that will last only until Uncle Sammy can see his way clear again. As a general thing, though, everybody seems to be making the most of the situation—even cracking jokes about it. One day last week I was talking to a guy, and he pulled this one. "They tell me its a revenue tax. In that case, I guess I'll call it an infernal, eternal, internal revenue tax." Try that one on your tea-taster—and say it real fast.

Something Keen

Somebody has pulled a fast, keen trick. The causing of Mayor Walker to resign is the incident in question. Just who will this help—the Democrats or Republicans. The Demmies say it will help Roosevelt, because it shows he is a man of power, who does things. The Republicans claim it spells certain defeat for Mr. Roosevelt in New York, because the people of that city feel that Roosevelt has, practically single-handed, removed from office the man they selected as their choice for mayor. I am inclined to believe Mr. Roosevelt pulled a boner, if he prizes New York's 45 electoral votes as worth anything, because I read that the people of New York resent this single handed action, and are just lying low, waiting for a chance to landslide Mr. Walker back into office. Such public action certainly would be a hard bump right on Mr. Roosevelt's political nose. And Mr. Roosevelt can't stand too many thumps right now.

Yellow Streaks

Many are the jokes that hace been centered around the little yellow Chevrolet roadster the sheriff's force uses. It has been called everything from a yellow streak to a comet. Not long ago one of the boys allowed as how he had gotten so used to dodging that particular yellow car that he was afraid to pass a sunflower patch. I wouldn't be sure, but I think he has developed an inferiority complex concerning yellow articles.

Lande's Baseballs

When Maurice Lande was in Chicago not long ago, he got in connection with Jack Hayes and secured a couple of baseballs all decorated with the names of Babe Ruth and the Yankees and Jack Hayes and the White Sox. And, by the way, that Babe Ruth swings a keen pen—almost as well as he does a bat. Something nice to keep, Maurice, and I wish I had a pair like them.

Our Re-Uunion

It seems like Union-Banner reunion week this week. Besides the regular force, I have seen "Shux" Clackler, "Deacon" Clyde Lowe, and Emmett Powell. Besides these, too, I have seen quite a few other Clanton boys, including Dr. Raymond Calloway, who now makes his home in Birmingham. Glad to see them all—come again.—Man in the Moon.

The Man on the Corner

Some Sights He Saw—
and Some He Saw Not.

Mack Broadhead Gone to Maplesville

The store of J. R. Broadhead & Son in Clanton is no more. M. C. Broadhead purchased the interest of his father, J. R. Broadhead, some weeks ago. Mack has moved the business to Maplesville. Thus passes off the stage the oldest mercantile establishment in Clanton. Well over thirty years have Jim Broadhead and his son, Mack, operated their store here without missing scarcely a single business day. Verily, the old order changeth; and as the old negro preacher declared, "the yarth do move."

Dr. Gragg in Town

Dr. V. J. Gragg has established a business office down town in the Hayes Building, next to the Exchange Hotel. He occupies the same space where the Western Union Telegraph office used to be. This office will be maintained for the purpose of consultation and business transactions only. The connections of Dr. Gragg with Central Alabama Hospital will be continued. There he will do surgery and attend to his patients.

Selma Calls for Our Cotton

Cotton concerns of Selma are inviting the farmers of Chilton County to bring their cotton to the Selma market. Likewise local cotton men are assuring the farmers that Clanton offers all the advantages of cotton trade. What the farmer is looking for, we are most sure, is the most money he can realize from his cotton. And the fellow who meets this desire of the farmer will be regarded as the best man to sell cotton to.

New Cotton Firm Here

Our cotton growers will be interested in the coming of the old reliable cotton firm of M. Hohenberg & Co., to Clanton with a cotton office. Mr. Joe Venable is in charge of the Hohenberg office. He has been with Hohenberg for many years, located at Wetumpka. We welcome Mr. Venable and the Hohenberg Company to Clanton. We are glad our farmers will have the advantages this firm offers them.

Special for the Boy Scouts

A special picture program for benefit of the Boy Scouts will be put on at the Wadesonian Theatre in Clanton Wednesday and Thursday, September 21 and 22. Some special stunt attractions will be given by the Scouts, in connection with the program. Mr. Wade has very graciously consented to turn the whole proceeds of the two nights over to the Scout treasury. This will be for the benefit of Scout work throughout Chilton County. Plan now to see the picture, and thereby contribute a mite to the very worthwhile program of building better boys.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Foshee

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Foshee are congratulating them this week upon the occasion of the 58th anniversary of their wedding. They have lived a long and happy span of years together, and I dare say they are better friends today than ever before. True to life, all has not been happiness. They have, of course, passed over some rough and bumpy spots. But it is encouraging to us younger folks to see the serenity, the happiness, that abides with older people who have weathered the storms and are still ready to smile and see the brighter side.

High Life in the Country

The Thompson family (of the Clanton Laundry) has moved to their new home in the country. Mr. Thompson has built a fine stone mansion on the old Mahan Mill Place, on Yellow Leaf Creek. Plans under consideration by Mr. Thompson will make this one of the most beautiful country estates in Chilton County. His place will have all the advantages of water, lights and electric power. The home is on a wooded hill overlooking the old mill site on the creek.

Received Bids on Road

Eight construction concerns submitted bids on hard surfacing two miles of the Lay Dam Road to the Commissioners Court Monday. Carey Read Company of Birmingham and the McCalla & Kenan Company of Montgomery appeared to be the low bidders. Final action on the matter was deferred until the county engineer could examine further into details of the two low bidders. Final disposition of the award of contract will be made by the Commissoiners at a later date.

Elmore's Ready With School Supplies

The store of V. J. Elmore in Clanton, announces that they are ready for school opening with the biggest and most varied line of school supplies ever shown in Clanton. To help reduce the cost of sending the kids to school is the motto of Elmore's. This ought to strike a popular note with the mothers and dads of the community.

Waco to Birmingham by Airplane

Dorothy Duncan has to her credit an achievement which is the envy of many an adventurous youth. About two weeks ago she came from Waco, Texas, to Birmingham, making the trip all the way by airplane. Miss Duncan, who is now a budding young lady, is visiting friends in Clanton this week. She will spend this winter with Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Duncan in Birmingham.

It seems that you can buy about everything in cans now excepting prosperity.

Sae Paulo, the coffee provice of Brazil, is still revolting, and to use the old vaudeville poke they ought to have plenty of grounds for it.

SYMPATHY

Many townspeople feel so sorry for the farmer that they go out and take Sunday dinner with him.

CAUSE OF CURE

An Omaha hospital patient is getting along nicely without a stomach, possibly because this prevents him from taking the doctors' medicine.

DAT BLOOMIN PREACHER

All Ah know is Whut de Bible say Bout Hit.

This Week's Blossom:

God sa: Remember the Sabbath Day to keep it holy. Ah sa: Lots ob people remember it as a day to fish in.

Let me read a lessen foun in de 12th chapter ob Luke, fum de 13th to de 40th verse. (Reads lesson). Now less stan an sing dat good ole song "Lord I care not for Riches." (They sing). De tex is Luke, 12th chapter and de 20th verse. It reads dis way, "But God said unto him, thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee." De subject is "Foolish Folks." Frum ur Bible pint of view, it is remarkable how many foolish people der is in dis worl. De worl ob mankind is made up ob de wise and de foolish.

In Proverbs 1:7 we read "The fear ob God is the beginning ob knowledge: but fools despise wisdom and instruction." An in de same book 9:10 it sa "The fear ob de Lord is the beginning ob wisdom: and the knowledge of the holy is understanding." An urgin in Matt. 25:2, "And five of them were wise, and five were foolish." Now fum dese scriptures an many uders dat Ah cud gib you, it is plain jes how God, de Father an His Son, Jesus Christ, looks on ur person whut wont hear de gospel. It wodnt be becomin to me to call nobody ur fool. You no an ole sayin is, "A fool an his money is soon parted." Ah want to tell you dat ef dat sayin is true dar am lots ob fools in dis country today.

My Brudder Pink rund away when he wuz 18 an went to Berninham an got a job firein on a switch engine. One day de engine run off de track an de engineer tole Pink to go to a watchman's shack an call up de roundhouse an tell de foreman to cum wid some hep to git it back on de track. So Pink wint in de shack an turned de crank ob de telefoam an put dat thing up to his year an de operator sa, whut number? So he looked on de front ob de telefoam an sa dis is No. 43. Den she sa, Whut do you want? An he sa, Ah wants de roundhouse foreman. An she sa, go an git him. An he sa, Ah aint got time. An she sa, Ah aint either. Den she sa whur is de roundhouse. An he sa, Up in de upper end ob de yard. An den she sa, Well whur is you? An Pink sa, here Ah is rite here, cant you hear me talkin? Din de operator sa, You's goofy. An Pink sa, No dis aint goofy. Ah dont know him. Ise Pink Blossom. Din she got mad an sa, Ah dont care ef you is Pink Blossom, or Yaller Blossom, ur whut not, you's ur fool. An he sa, Yassum, Ah spec Ah is, but Ah cant see how you can tell it over de telefoam.

Ah tells dis story to show you dat de way we talk determines ef we's ur fool ur no: Dar am lots ob men dat is wise when hit cums to business an makin money, but is classed mong de foolish because ob a lack ob knowledge ob God. De man in de tex wuz smart, he wuz ur good farmer an knowed how tur manage his farm so as to make money outen it. But when he sed Ah will sa to mah soul, "Soul take thine ease, eat, drink, and be merry," he showed dat he was foolish. Ah tell you dat de most foolish thing dat ur man can sa is whut he is gwyin to do tomorrow. In de tex God sed "Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee."

Has you noticed dat more people are born at night than de day time, an dat more people's souls is required ob dem at night than in de day time? It mought be dat ur man has jes so many days to lib in de worl an when he libs out de las day he dies dat night, be dat as it may. We no dat our lives is in His hans an He can stop it jes when He wants to. God is good an gracious to lost men dat he gibs dem plenty ob space in which to repint ob their sins, an den when He sees dat their whole mind an heart is takin up wid de things ob dis worl an dat da aint gwyin to repint, den He requires their souls.

Ah sot by de bed-side ob ur dyin man one nite an in a very feeble voice he sed, Preacher, Ah got rite wid de Lord today an am ready to go to nite, but my four boys is in de rong road all cause Ah walked in it mahsef. Now Ise got to leave dem tonite an Ah cant hep but feel dat Ah will be held responsible fur de way Ah led dem. Ah feel lak dat it is rite an proper to try to cumilate smpthin in dis life so we can leave our family in a condition dat da can git along widout us, but Ah no dat we shood fust git ourselves rite wid de Lord. Jesus sa "Seek ye first the Kingdom ob God, and His righteousness; and all of these things shall be added unto you." My little boy sed to me, Daddy, when Mr. Price died de other day, he lef lots ob cows an hogs an things. Whut will become ob dem? An Ah tole him dat his two boys wood git dem. An atter he studied ur minnit he sa, Ah guess dem boys is glad he is dead.

Mah friens, is you gwyin to jes keep on getherin togeder de wealth ob dis worl an storin it up an den die an leave it an yoah chillun be glad yous ded so da can hab it an yoah soul in torment on de account ub it. Ah pray dat evy man whut reads dis, who is not ur Christian, will stop an think jes ur little. My only objec in ritin these sermons is dat Ah mought influence somebody to git rite wid God. Should anybody be benefited by these sermons will you please write to me?—Elder Blossom, In care of The Union-Banner.

IN MEMORY

The death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Vines, and carried away from our midst their son, Chester Vines, leaving to mourn his loss, father and mother, four sisters, two brothers and a host of relatives. He is gone but not forgotten. We know his loss is heaven's gain. May God's richest blessing rest on each of us. He lived on earth to bloom in heaven. He was seven years old, born July 30, 1925, died August 22, 1932; was sick four weeks.—By father and mother.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the people of the Temple community for their kindness during the illness and death of our son, Willard Chester Vines. We pray God's blessings on each and every one.—Father and mother.

WALTER PUCKETT, PRES. TREAS. & TREASURER

August 12, 1916.

This certifies that we, the undersigned were present on the 13th day of April, 1916 when a NORWALK VAULT, made by G. L. Cox, was taken out of the ground where it had been buried for 34 days, and the hole kept purposely filled with water during all that time.

This same Vault was so dry on the inside, when it was opened, that matches ignited freely both on the bottom and on the under surface of the cover.

Because we have found the NORWALK VAULT just as represented, and believe it to be a permanent burial receptacle, we are recommending its use in Elmwood Cemetery.

JEMISON TRUSTEES MEET

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of Jemison High School Thursday evening, W. R. Clements was elected chairman. Several matters of interest concerning the improvement of the school and grounds were discussed.

It was decided that an improved water supply was needed for the school more than anything else. This was selected as the major project for the year, and tentative plans were made to begin on this work at once.

The date set for getting the building and grounds in readiness for school opening was Friday, September 9th, at seven o'clock. Those people interested in the Jemison school are urged to assist in this work.

The fees for the high and elementary schools were reduced to $2.50 and $1.00 respectively per semester, per pupil. These fees are due the first day of school, and if not paid by October 1st, the bills will be turned over to an officer for collection. Everyone is aware of the fact that it takes money to run school, and especially one that has to meet the standards of accreditment. It is hoped that these fees will be paid on time and relieve the unpleasant and embarrassing situation to trustees, teachers, parents and students in collecting them. Cooperation in this is one of the many ways you may help to bring about a most successful school year.

BASIC SLAG

THE 6-in-1 SOIL BUILDER

Winter legumes and basic slag produce corn like the stalk on the left on land that would otherwise grow corn like the stalk on the right. Judge H. P. Dudley of Seale is the man.

ANALYSIS

Total Phosphoric Acid	9.10%
Iron Oxide	18.50%
Silica	8.00%
Magnesium Oxide (Lime)	5.50%
Calcium Oxide (Lime)	45.85%
Manganese Oxide	2.87%
Fineness through 100-mesh screen	Over 80.00%

This product is offered as a Soil Builder and Soil Conditioner.

BASIC SLAG

is produced in connection with the open hearth furnace in the process of manufacturing steel. It has been found very useful to the farmer as a soil builder and source of plant food. It contains a large amount of lime which is required to sweeten sour or acid soil. There is a considerable quantity of phosphorus present, the importance of which as a plant food is well known. It has been found that the combination of phosphorus and lime as it exists in basic slag is much more effective in growing legumes than are the same elements obtained from other sources. In recent years it has been determined that manganese under certain conditions is an important factor in plant growth. Basic slag contains about 3 per cent of this element.

"Phosphatic fertilizers are very important in the production of a satisfactory crop of either vetch or Austrian winter peas," said Dean M. J. Funchess, director of the Auburn Experiment Station. "Our experimental results indicate that basic slag is entirely satisfactory for vetch or peas under all average Alabama conditions."

Final Reports From Opportunity Schools

(By H. A. Harris)

We have just closed our fourth summer of Opportunity school for whites and the second summer for negroes. The work this summer has been very successful but not so far reaching as we expected. We did not enroll as many of those who cannot read and write as we had hoped to enroll.

People are very much disturbed over the depressing conditions, not knowing how or where they will get food and clothes, and are therefore hard to interest in going to school.

The attendance has been somewhat irregular—but the accomplishments of those who did enroll has been wonderful. We enrolled 263 whites in ten schools and 65 of those enrolled could not read and write. Fifty-one of this number learned to read and write.

Four hundred and three negroes were enrolled in 12 schools, 139 of these were illiterate and 113 learned to read and write. The work has been so interesting among those who did attend that all communities where schools were located have already petitioned for schools next summer.

The oldest white person who learned to read and write was Mr. J. T. Retherford of the Mt. Pisgah school. The oldest negro who learned to read and write was a pupil in the Chilton Belle school. She was 93 years old and had a brother, 88, who went to the same school and also learned to read and write.

Many other things were taught outside of reading and writing in all schools. Home economics courses were taught at Mt. Pisgah and Cooper by Miss Dennis. The women and girls not only learned cooking and sewing, but learned better methods of doing the things that are their daily tasks to do. More sanitation around the home was among the important things taught in these courses. A quilt was made by the ladies who attended the school at Chestnut Grove. While they were learning to make a new sort of quilt they did not forget that the children need better materials and equipment in order to get the most from their school work this winter. Therefore, the ladies made one quilt to be sold for $4, the money to go for buying a blackboard for the school room. This quilt may new be seen in the window of The Leader, in Clanton.

As a whole, I consider the work very successful and worthwhile.

JEMISON BEGINS ELEVENTH YEAR

Preparing For Biggest Year In History of The Institution

The Jemison High School begins its eleventh year of accreditment on September 12 at 9 a.m. It faces the future with confidence—assured of the soundness of its ideals and the quality of its training by the records of its graduates.

In spite of the financial difficulties, which it is hoped that the legislature will remove, the Jemison High School is preparing for a big year on the belief that the parents realize that education is an asset and that the gruelling economic race will be won by those who go into it best qualified by continued schooling.

The instructors are specialists in their lines of work. They were chosen for their powers of constructive leadership, their cultural and social backgrounds and their scholastic achievements.

The ideal of the faculty for those who enroll is that they do serious work as students and possess high character as boys and girls. The intellectual equipment which they acquire as a foundation will fit them without fail for positions of service and leadership in society.

There has been a continued growth in the enrollment of the Jemison High School since its accreditment until it has become one of the largest rural high schools in the state. The enrollement for the year 1931-32 was 625 students. An increase in enrollment is anticipated this year.

The school extends a cordial invitation to the public to attend the opening exercises. The program will consist largely of music, local and out-of-town speakers, and the awarding of certificates to those twenty-five students who were perfect in attendance last term. —J. A. Peterson, principal.

Misses Peggy Page and Theda Wyatt are spending this week with Mr. and Mrs. George Trotter at Martin Dam.

Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Johnson of Pensacola were visitors to Clanton the past week.

VERBENA SCHOOL

The Verbena High School will open September 12. Monday will be classification day. Tuesday the regular classroom work will begin. There will be no formal opening.

All of last year's faculty will be back except Miss Clemmie Heald. Miss Jettie Ward, a former teacher here, will take Miss Heald's place as teacher of domestic science.

Last year the enrollment increased over the year before. We enrolled 147 and had 9 pupils who were perfect in attendance.

Members of the faculty appreciate the perfect cooperation given them by the parents and student body last year, and will appreciate even more so this year.

Parents are urged to enter their children the first day of school, because the length of term is so very uncertain. The child needs to put in every available day.—W. C. Dubose, principal.

ALABAMA POWER CO.

Announcement is bing made by Superintendent Powers, of Lay Dam, and Superintendent Hollis, of Mitchell dam, that their respective schools will open Monday, September 12. These people feel fortunate in securing the services of the teachers who have been teaching for them before.

Lay Dam—Miss Ethel Mize, Principla; Miss Frances O'Neal.

Mitchell Dam—Mrs. J. S. Ogletree.

These schools are well equipped with materials for better teaching and the Power Company supplements the school term so that they have a term of nine months each year.

COLLINS CHAPEL EVENING SCHOOL IS PROGRESSING

The evening school at Collins Chapel schoolhouse has started off with a good attendance. There are twenty-three men enrolled.

At the last meeting Mr. Montgomery had on hand a number of the most damaging insects to truck crops. He discussed their control.

At the next meeting Mr. Wilbur Bean will give his experience in using spray materials on truck crops and in the control of poultry lice and mites.

The meetings are held every Tuesday and Friday nights.

Friends of Mrs. Arthur Johnson will be glad to learn that she is improving rapidly now.

Maplesville School

The elementary and the high school at Maplesville will open Monday, September 12th. Parents and students are requested to assemble in the auditorium at 8:30 for a short program, after which the registration of students will begin.

The people of Maplesville have built their high school during one of the worst financial panics. They gave their money unselfishly to the cause of education, thus helping boys and girls to better prepare themselves for life.

Last year every department of the high school with the exception of one was raised to meet state standards. This cost the community and the state approximately $2,000.

The elementary school was not forgotten last year. The following additions were made, namely:

1. With the help of the county Board of Education, and the state, a new standard size class room was added at a cost of around $1,650.

2. The P.-T. A purchased the volume library for use in the elementary school, the cost being about $10.

3. A new sixteen volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedias were purchased for use in the elementary school at a cost of $69.50.

4. Maps were purchased for use in the elementary school at a cost of $41.75.

5. New Tables were constructed by the high school wood working classes to meet the needs of the elementary school.

The money has been raised and the order has been placed for the Physics equipment. This order added to the inventory of Physics equipment already on hand raises this department up to state standard, or around $500.00 worth. This was the last department to be raised, and now, since the additions have been made, parents and students may now rest assured that the accreditment of the Maplesville High School is of a permanent nature.

We do not have in our possession a list of the names of the parents and friends of the school who so willingly gave their money last year. If we had that list, it would be our desire to have their names appear in this article. We do have the names of those who made it possible to purchase the Physics equipment this summer. Their names follow:

Dr. F. G. Dubose, Dr. C. N. Parnell, J. E. Wallace, John Maples, G. E. Kesser, W. M. Oden, W. M. Lawley, Crof Shoults, F. D. Nix, H. H. Middlebrooks, Cal Foshee, J. V. Mount, A. D. Latham, E. H. Davis, C. R. Raybon, A. B. Jones, J. R. Walker, J. T. Walker, G. W. Walker, Reedy Taylor, Roy Ealem, Stanley Hayes, Byron Harris.

A. T. Dwason, Rube Bearden, E. N. Shanks, Dr. H. M. Nix, J. J. Hayes, P. W. Boykin, Hill Foshee, T. R. Williams, Mr. Hampton.

Time and space prevents the outlining of the future needs of the school in great detail. Only those most pressing needs will be given here:

High school needs:

1. A separate building to house the home economics laboratories, the wood working shop, the biology, chemistry, and the physics laboratories. This building will cost approximately $3,500, with an additional $500 cost for furniture.

2. Additions to all types of equipment to meet the needs of increased enrollment.

3. A better heating system, a steam heating plant would be the ideal system, since the school has running water in the buliding.

4. At least $100 worth of books should be added each year to the high school library.

5. Approximately $1,000 worth of equipment should be added to the auditorium within the next few years.

Elementary school needs:

The first objective to be reached of course is to meet "C" standard. We hope to meet this standard next year. After this standard is reached the next standard in order is the "B" standard. Then, finally, the "A" rating. A description of these standards and the cost of each would require too much space, however, we might list the outstanding features of the "A" standard, namely:

1. Not less than a nine months term each year.

2. One grade to the teacher, and not over forty students in average attendance per teacher.

3. No teacher with less than two years college work. (Special.)

4. Permanent system of records.

5. Adjustment of curriculum to meet student needs.

6. Elementary school library as required catalogued according to a modified system of the Dewey decimal system.

7. A helping teacher with not less than a masters degree or its equivalent.

8. Entire school to score not less than 900 points.

It is with pleasure that we look forward to the opening of school. Parents and friends will have the most cordial invitation to be present at the opening. It will be our pleasure to have you visit the school at any time throughout the year.

CLANTON SCHOOL STARTS SEPT. 12

Seven Other Schools In County Will Begin On The Same Date

We are glad to have parents come with their children to the opening of school at 8:30 o'clock. We regret very much that we cannot have an auditorium in order that we may have speakers and other entertainment that would go in a formal opening of school. Children will go straight to the rooms where they will be given a list of books and will be instructed by the teacher in charge of the work to be done on Tuesday.

All preliminaries will be over in time for the parents to attend chapel exercises at the high school at 10:30 o'clock.

The lunch room will be continued under direction of Mrs. Browder. Very fine lunches will be served each day for 10 cents.

Fees are due the day that your child enters school. Mr. G. C. Armstrong, treasurer, will issue a receipt to your child when his fees are paid. The teachers will appreciate your child bringing his receipt with him the first day of school.—I. J. Quinn, principal.

The faculty of the school for the coming session is:

I. J. Quinn, principal; Miss Bess Thomas, Mrs. Curry Thomas, Miss Juanita Campbell, Mrs. Barney Burnett, Miss Jewel Vessels, Miss Ruth Sessions, Mrs. C. E. Stapp, Miss Emma Sue Morris.

All members of the faculty besides Miss Campbell and Mrs. Stapp have taught in Clanton Grammar School for two years or more.

Other schools of the county which will open Monday, September 12, are Jemison, Thorsby, Isabella, Verbena, Maplesville, Lay Dam and Mitchell Dam.

LAWRENCE HOPES FOR BEST SCHOOLS

Everybody Enthusiastic For Success Says County Superintendent

To the patrons of the schools of Chilton County:

As the first school openings are near at hand, I wish to urge you to do everything that you can to make this school year the most profitable one possible for your child.

In this week's school page, you see how enthusiastic the pricipals are to begin school. They are willing and eager to take up their work of leading the youth to higher knowlege and powers even when confronted with financial hanhicaps. When we see the interest of these teachers to begin their duties even in the face of the fact that they have had no money paid them for their services since last January, then, I say, I feel that it is time for us, as parents, to offer to them every bit of cooperation possible. Let us work together for the best school year for our boys and girls—the future men and women of Chilton County.—Respectfully yours, B. Lawrence, Superintendent.

NOTICE

Yes, I have lots of bills owing to me and I know lots of the people are trying to find me to pay them; so I have secured an office down town for their convenience. Come one and all, we will be waiting for you in the Hayes Building next door below the Exchange Hotel.

PATES CHAPEL

Mr. and Mrs. Rascoe Maddox and Miss Hazel Maddox motored to Birmingham this week end and both had an operation. Mr. Maddox was operated on and had some of his jawbonue took out. Miss Maddox had an operation for her eyes.

The singing school at this place is progressing fine.

Messrs. James Maddox and Eugene Cleckler and Misses Lucile and Lorene Cleckler and Maude Wallis attended revival services at Pleasant Grove Friday night. It was very much enjoyed.

Those that are attending Sunday school are as follows: James Maddox, Eugene Cleckler, S. E. Maddox, Oscar and Leo Spivey from Thorsby, Roscoe Maddox J. B. Blow. Misses Lucille and Lorene Cleckler, Aupha, Wilma, Ennis, and Lois Robinson, Zelma Hayes, Rubye Maddox, and Maude Wallis.

Saturday night and Sunday morning were preaching days at Pates Chapel. Rev. M. Lockhart, pastor, did the preaching.

The Pates Chapel singing class is going to Liberty Hill next Sunday if nothing happens. So help them out in the evening singing.

Rev. M. Lockhart was re-elected as our pastor for another year.

Central Singing Society

ELECTS OFFICERS

The Central Singing Society started off its third year last Sunday afternoon with the election of new officers for the ensuing year. Prof. Luther T. Grant, chairman for the past year, held the chair until a new executive was chosen, who then came around and finished up the organization. This job was placed on Prof. O. L. Devaughn. For vice president Mr. J. W. Clackler was elected. T. E. Wyatt was re-elected secretary; and the committeemen this ear will be: Marion W. Easterling, A. O. Boswell and S. L. Baker. For Chaplain R. M. Robinson was retained.

The new Stamps-Baxter books were used last Sunday afternoon, and the singing was extra good, considering the fact that no one was acquainted with the books. It seems that this book is going to take well, for there are some mighty good songs in it; they are a little bit hard, but with a little practice most of the class can master them—and when they do, the singing is going to be really interesting.

It seems to be the sentiment of the society that every individual who wishes to sing should buy him or her a book this year and not expect the society to furnish books and keep up with them all during the year. We believe that this will meet with the approval of most of the singers of the society. Everyone who tries to sing should have a book at their home so that they could look over the songs during the week, and then it would not be much trouble to bring the book along to the singings every Sunday afternoon.

YOUTH HELD FOR SLAYING FATHER

Columbiana, Ala., Sept. 5.—A 19-year-old youth tonight was held in jail here pending a Grand Jury investigation of his story that he slew his father to protect his mother's life.

Te youth, William Brewster, is charged with slaying his father, W. B. Brewster, near Caleria, Friday night, September 2.

Brewster told authorities his father had been brooding for several weeks and frequently had threatened to kill his entire family and burn their bodies.

The authorities said young Brewster told them Friday night his father refused to eat and appeared moody and melancholy, remaining to himself.

Later, Brewster told authorieties, he heard his mother scream, and arming himself he ran to her assistance. The youth said on reaching the house, he found his mother prostrate on the floor and his father menacing her with a gun. Brewster told officers he fired once and his father pitched forward dead.

Neighbors were unable to explain the elder Brewster's despondency, saying that he had no financial worries.

Prophecy Corner

Conducted By

L. A. BUTTERFIELD

God claims in the Bible to be the only one able to fortell the future. Says He, "I am God, and there is none like Me, declaring the end from the beginning, and from ancient times the things that are not yet done." (Isa. 46:9,10.) To skeptics the Lord says, "Shew the things that are to come hereafter that we may know that ye are Gods." (Isa. 41:23.) God has challenged anyone and everyone to a prophecy contest, and will abide by the result. God claims to be the only one that can look into the future and make predictions. He tells us He has done this, and offers Bible prophecies as the one great proof of His God-head. Now, is it a fact or is it false, that there is no other book in existence that makes such a claim? Can you produce any other book claiming to contain a set of predictions looking hundreds of years, or even tens of years into the future? If you know of any in any language, produce it. God, Himself, challenges you.

Bible predictions burn all bridges. If the thing does not happen no apology can be offered. In fact, the Bible bases its whole claim to credence on the accuracy of its forecasts. Why have skeptics never made a detailed study of them so that they might expose the fraud of prophetic chicanery to the deserved contempt of the public, if the prophecies are not what they claim, rather than to content themselves with a wholesale, jaunty, contemptous denial, as though it were of no consequence? To doubters of all time Paul says, "Despise not prophesyings. Prove all things; hold fast that which is good." (1 Thess. 5:20,21.) Here you are challenged above all things else to prove prophecy; that is, test it, and if it prove true, hold fast to it.

Skeptics have gone to great pains and expense to disprove the Bible. I will tell you two very simple, effective and final methods of shattering the Bible atoms. First, just disprove the prophecies. Second, produce some other book containing real prophecies. God says neither can be done. To do either will be to blast forever all confidence in the Bible as the word of God. Why is it then, that unbelievers have never done this?

Next week in this corner prophecy will prove the Bible to be true and skepticism will be challenged.—L. A. Butterfield.

IN LOVING MEMORY

On August 2nd, the family of Mr. Jodie Connell was saddened by the death of a sweet little infant baby boy. We don't know why this was done, but God had a vacant place that no one else could fill as well as it could; for we know it is safe in the sweet arms of Jesus. The funeral was conducted by Rev. M. J. Parrish. Burial was at Refuge cemetery. This is the fourth grave at this place.

Weep not dear father and mother and little brother, for the Lord doeth all things for the best. Just put your trust in God and you will meet the little sweet thing some sweet day, by and by.—Nora Mims.

Good Health Depends On Mineral Balance

Lee's Mineral Compound With Vitamins Builds Bodily Strength and Vigor by Supplying Needed Minerals and Vitamins

In the light of recent scientific discoveries, leading Physicians and Health authorities agree that the human race could be practically free from most ailments, and could live to a ripe old age if the system could be regularly supplied with a sufficient quantity of the essential Minerals and Vitamins.

DEFICIENCY OF MINERALS

The process of refining modern foods; bleaching of flour, rice, sugar, etc.; together with improper cooking takes out of our foods the very things that God intended we should have.

ACIDITY DESTROYS HEALTH

As the Mineral content of the body is lowered, slowly but surely the acid content of the system is increased until it finally reaches the point where the organs of assimilation and elimination cannot perform their natural functions. Our powers of resistance are lowered. Disease germs creep into the blood. The system becomes clogged with impurities. Various aches and pains appear, and before we realize what is taking place, we are on the very verge of a physical break-down.

AMAZING NEW FORMULA

Fortunately for humanity, science has found a way to prevent most of these conditions. After years of careful research and experimentation, a new and remarkable formula has been perfected. This preparation, known as LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND is a scientific combination of the eleven most essential Mineral Elements of the human body combined with Vitamins. It is not, in any sense, a patent medicine but is more in the nature of a FOOD VITALIZER. By supplying the system with the necessary Minerals and Vitamins, it aids nature in quickly balancing the Mineral content of the body so that good health naturally follows.

BRINGS QUICK RELIEF

Stomach disorders, such as indigestion, hyperacidity, "heart-burn," gas, and bloating soon yield to this amazing natural compound. Constipation and attendant ills, such as nervousness, headaches, biliousness, bad breath and sallow skin, soon give way to a feeling of renewed strength and vigor.

MAKE THIS 10 DAY TEST

Convince Yourself!

Stop dosing yourself with "patent medicines," harsh pugatives, oils and cathartics for just 10 days. Go to your nearest Druggist and secure a bottle of LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND. Take it regularly, and watch the results. You'll be amazed at the feeling of renewed strength and vigor that soon appears. AT 22, SHE KNOWS PLENTY OF THINGS

Sari Maritza, continental motion picture sensation will appear in her first American made film, Paramount's "Forgotten Commandments" at the Wadesonian Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, September 14 and 15.

When she arrived at New York from London a few months ago, a score of Gotham newsharks gathered around to get her life (22 years) story—and to bask in the sunshine of her sparkling, "It-full" smile.

They learned that she is one of the most cosmopolitan of all the recent Hollywood acquisitions.

She was born in Tientsin, China, March 12, 1910. Her father is English her mother Viennese. She learned to speak English from her parents, and to speak Chinese from their hosehold servants. She was taught to speak French and German by private teachers. At the age of seven she was a proficient ice-skater. This may account for her strong, well proportioned legs. At nine she learned to ride donkeys and long-haired Manchurian ponies.

The first and only movie she saw in China was "The Kid"—Chaplin epic with Jackie Coogan. Greatly impressed, she decided that she loved pictures, but had no ideas, at that time, about becoming an actress.

At the age of twelve, en route from Teinsin to London, she stopped a few days in Hollywood. There she witnessed the filming of a scene in Douglas Fairbanks, "Robin Hood," and promptly determined upon a treatrical career. From that time on, her education, her reading, even her athletic diversions, have been directed toward her objective—success as an actress.

At eighteen, she went to Hungary where she procured her first part in a picture. Several inconsequential roles followed. Then she appeared in a picture made by Sascha Company, which led to a contract with the Gaumont Company of London, which starred Miss Maritza in "Greek Street," "Bed and Breakfast," and "No Lady."

Later she was starred by UFA in "Monte Carlo Madness," which was produced in Berlin. From among hundreds of actresses interviewed for the starring role in the much discussed "Water Gypsies" she won the coveted part. This picture was followed by "Two-Way Street," produced by United Artists in London.

In "Forgotten Commandments" she plays the role of Anya, sweetheart of Professor Marinoff, played by Irving Pichel. Gene Raymond plays the part of Paul, the young medical student, and Marguerite Churchill is his screen wife, Marya. The story deals with modern-life at a big city university.

To The Citizens Of The Town of Clanton

Town of Clanton, Alabama, do hereby call the Mayor and Council in special meeting, to be held in the office of the town clerk of said town at 1:30 p. m., on this, the 14th day of December, 1926, to consider whether said town will purchase said property.

Witness my hand and dated, this, the 14th day of December, 1926,

J. B. ATKINSON,
Mayor.

In a deed which is dated December, 1926, (the exact date not being given) and which is recorded in Volume 211, Page 208, in the office of the Judge of Probate of Chilton County, Alabama, Ada M. Atkinson and J. B. Atkinson deeded the warehouse property to the Town of Clanton for a consideration expressed therein of $1500.00, and which deed was filed in the office of the Judge of Probate, December 17, 1926. Regarding the above transacton and the call meeting, it will be noted as follows:

1. Quick action emphasized.
2. They are desirous of disposing of property immediately.
3. Cannot wait for regular meeting.
4. The owner of the property not mentioned.
5. This property was deeded to Ada M. Atkinson, the wife of J. B. Atkinson, at that time, on December 11, 1926, just three days before the special call meeting on December 14, 1926, and it will be noted that this deed had to come from Dale County to Chilton County. And some of the Councilmen, who were serving at that time, have made statements that they were not informed that the wife of the Mayor had purchased this property at that time and they did not know they were purchasing this property from the wife of the Mayor of the town.

On page four of the minutes of the Town, there appears the following:

A Resolution

Be it resolved by the Town Council of the Town of Clanton, Alabama, as follows:

1. That the Mayor and Clerk of the Town of Clanton, Alabama, be and hereby, are authorized and empowered to purchase the north fifty-five feet of lot number six, in block number two, according to the official map of the Town of Clanton, Alabama, and being lot known as warehouse lot and for the sum of $1,500.00.

2. That the Mayor and Clerk of the Town of Clanton, Alabama, be, and hereby are authorized, instructed and empowered to execute to First Naitonal Bank of Clanton, Alabama, a mortgage on the above described lot, to secure a loan of $15,00.00, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the purchase price for said lot, and said mortgage to be for sixty days and to draw interest at the rate of 8% per annum on said sum of $1,500.00, or the amount so borrowed and the Mayor and Clerk are authorized, after securing said loan, to pay to the owner of said lot the said sum of $1,500.00.

Read and finally adopted, this the 14th day of December, 1926.

J. B. ATKINSON, Mayor.

Attest:
J. H. PLIER, Clerk.

You will observe that from the above the Mayor and the Clerk were authorized to execute a mortgage to the First National Bank for the purchase price of said property. Said mortgage is recorded in Volume 229 at Page 524 in the office of the Judge of Probate of Chilton County and in the face of the mortgage appears the following:

"This mortgage is given to secure the purchase price for said property, and in strict accordance with resolution adopted by the Mayor and Council of said Town of Clanton, Alabama, authorizing this loan."

The officials of The frst National Bank inform us that the mortgage is not paid and has never been paid, and that the amount now due upon said mortgage is $1,000.00, and we are unable to understand, if Mr. Atkinson has paid this mortgage, as stated in his announcement, why the mortgage was not taken up and the records marked "satisfied."

By again referring to the records of the Probate Office in Volume 211, Page 206, you will see that the acre of land which was deeded to Ada M. Atkinson along with the warehouse lot was sold to B. F. Higgins, which deed was dated December ....., 1926, and was filed in the office of the Judge of Probate on December 15, 1926, and expressed a consideration of $500.00. Mr. B. F. Higgins has recently stated to some members of the Council and some other citizens of the town that the amount actually paid by him to Adam M. Atkinson, for the purchase price of said property was $1,025.00. Therefore, it will be observed from the records that $2,000.00 was paid for this property and the sum of $2,525.00 was received for the same. We believe that Mr. Higgins, who is truthful and honest, will make the same statement to anyone who might be interested in knowing the facts in this matter.

Mr. Atkinson admitted that he had installed a private water system and was not using the Town's water, but claimed to have paid his water bill rendered. The books of the Town Clerk show that a water bill was rendered to Mr. Atkinson for April, 1931, on May 1, 1931, for $3.04, and one for May, 1931, was rendered June 1, 1931, for $2.98, making a total for two months of $6.02, and this amount was unpaid on July 10, 1931, and the water was cut off for non-payment. This amount of $6.02 was then paid and also $1.00 which is the usual charge for giving water connection after the same has been cut off, and the water was cut back on. And on July 1, 1931, a bill was rendered to Mr. Atkinson for water used in June, for $3.52, which bill is unpaid at this time.

Mr. Atkinson, in his article of last week in the Chilton County News, rejuested J. Lee Smith to answer two questions and Mr. Smith hereby asks permission to answer these questions as follows:

1. I have never refused to issue warrant for W. L. Popwell, for keeping within the coporate limits a hog or hogs, and I might state that Mr. John Boockholdt, the Chief of Police, has never requested or asked me to issue a warrant for the arrest of Mr. Popwell. I did appoint Mr. W. L. Popwell, chairman of a committee to investigate the official conduct of Mr. Boockholdt, the Chief of Police, in connection with the murder of one, Miss Davis, here in the Town of Clanton, and as the result, Mr. Boockholdt was later released from the Town's services and became offended at Mr. Popwell, but he never requested a warrant for the arrest of Mr. Popwell.

2. The amount of $1,218, $800.00 of which, was pledged by a fromer administration, was contributed to the grammar and high schools of the Town of Clanton during my administration as Mayor.

Respectfully submitted,
J. LEE Smith, Mayor.

H. S. Shaw, W. L. Popwell, Grady D. Broadhead, Reedie Taylor, H. G. Heflin.

FARMERS VISITED LAMBERT PLACE

Greenlands Stock and Seed Farms at Darlington Wilcox County

On last Thursday, September 8th, a group of nine Chilton County farmers, together with county agent C. E. Stapp, went down in Wilcox County and visited the Greenlands Stock and Seed Farm, which is owned and operated by R. E. Lambert and Sons, at Darlington, Ala. The group consisted of R. M. Foshee, W. L. Popwell, Dr. C. N. Parnell, Dr. W. L. Parrish, Dr. P. T. Hinkle, C. E. Stapp, J. Z. Mims, B. Lawrence, J. N. Dennis, and H. S. Shaw.

The Greenlands farm embodies 2,000 acres of land, and they raise seeds, grass, hay and livestock. The visitors were shown the herd of cattle composed of 240 heads of Pollerd Hereford cattle.

Mr. Stapp states that interest in beef cattle is growing in Chilton County. Among those who have some good beef cattle in the county are: Dr. C. N. Parnell, H. S. Shaw, Arthur Martin and J. N. Dennis. Several others are planning to purchase bulls of the beef breeds and breed their grade cows to them, thereby increasing the value of their calves for beef purposes.

County Agent C. E. Stapp thinks that people who are not interested in improving their dairy cattle but merely want to breed their cows in order to have them freshen, should by all means breed them to a good, purebred beef type bull. Mr. Stapp further states that there is lots of land in Chilton County that should be cleared off this winter and seeded to permanent pastures for beef cattle.

We are impressed with a paragraph in the foreword of the catalog put out by Mr. Lamber, which reads: "As this goes to press, the price of cotton is steadily advancing. Conditions look much better. Confidence is being restored. Surely better times are on the way. However, it is to be greatly hoped that the southern farmer will not soon forget an important lesson taught him by the depression. Cotton, or any other one crop, will not give permanent prosperity. Lasting success depends upon, first, food and feed for the farm produced at home; second, soil building, third diversification; and fourth, cooperation. The pillars which support this structure are: phosphate, lime, legumes and livestock. Let us use them liberally."

SINGERS TO MEET AT MAPLESVILLE

County Convention Will Be Held Next Sunday, September 18

The 1932 session of the Chilton County singing convention will be held at Maplesville, Sunday, September 18. Singing will begin at 10:00 o'clock at the Baptist church. Dinner will be spread under the shade trees around the church; and in the afternoon the singing will be held in the school building where there will be plenty of room. The reason for holding the morning session at the church is that a suitable place for spreading dinner will be available, there being plenty of nice shade trees around the church. All singers of the county are asked to take notice and try to arrange to attend. This is a county-wide affair, and it is hoped that the singers from all over the county will feel that it is their own. We hope to make it the best ever held in the county. Quartets from this and adjoining counties are expected.

An invitation has been extended to all of the large publishing houses to have representatives and quartets there. A number of singers from the Birmingham district are expected, as well as those from Coosa, Autauga, Elmore and Shelby counties.

Word has been received from Prof. J. M. Henson of Atlanta that he likely will attend the convention, and that if he cannot attend in person he will send a large supply of the Morris-Henson song books to be used in the singing. Prof. P. B. Shaw of Brookside, Birmingham, has consented to come, and he will bring a supply of the new Stamps-Baxter books. So, everybody bring your old and new Morris-Henson books and your new Stamps-Baxter books, as likely all three of these will be used during the day.—W. G. Culp, chairman; T. E. Wyatt, secretary.

GRAND JURY CONVENES ON MONDAY SEPTEMBER 26TH

The Grand Jury of Chilton County will convene on Monday, September 26, for the purpose of investigating alleged violations of the law which have occurred since the sitting of the last Grand Jury.

Also during the week of September 26, a number of civil cases will be called for settling of pleadings, and pleas of guilty will be heard in state cases.

The regular jury term of the Circuit Court will begin on Monday, October 31st, with the first week devoted to trial of civil cases. State cases on the jury docket will be tried the second week, beginning on Monday, November 7th.

NINE SCHOOLS OPENED MONDAY

Full Quota Enrollment Is Reported by Our County Superintendent

Through the office of County Superintendent Lawrence we have received reports that nine schools of the county opened Monday, with interest running high and enrollment almost up to the full quota of students in the districts.

There was some special programs at most of the schools, with visiting speakers to address the students and patrons.

Rev. D. W. Haskew, of Clanton Methodist Church, was the speaker at Thorsby Public School, with W. T. Bean, principal.

County Agent, C. E. Stapp, went to Isabella, and made the opening speech. G. G. Williams is principal at Isabella.

Rev. Theo. Harris and Superintendent Lawrence were speakers at the opening of Jemison High Scshool, where J. A. Peterson is again principal.

Rev. S. J. Ezell, of Clanton Baptist Church, spoke at the morning chapel period of Chilton County High School Monday.

There was no formal opening program at the Clanton Grammar School. A number of patrons accompanied their children to the school.

The Verbena High School, with W. C. DuBose, principal, opened Monday. We have not received any reports as to the program at this place.

A fine opening program was reported from Maplesville School. Rev. Wallace Cook from Stanton delivered the principal address. Prayer was offered by Rev. Paul Oden.

The schools at Lay Dam and Mitchell Dam opened with no special exercises.

CLANTON METHODIST CHURCH

Next Sunday is, "Sunday School Day" at our church, and we want everyone present. Bring a friend. There is not a reason why we should not have the largest school of the year. Let all the family be present.

Preaching at 11 a.m. and at 7:30 p.m. by the pastor. We never fail to have good services, just the kind that you will enjoy. Come thou with us and we will do thee good.

The revival in our church will begin on October the 9th. We want all the people in Clanton to make plans to attend this meeting. We are not planning anything sensational, but we are planning to do some real constructive Christian work.

"Everybody in his place," is our motto. We need you and you need the church.

PEOPLES CASH STORE IS DOING BIG BUSINESS

"Judging from the way people flock into our store, they surely must be reading our advertisements," allows the manager of Peoples Cash Store. Since opening a few months ago, this store has grown by leaps and bounds, both in popularity and in trade.

Mr. Billingsley and his assistant, Mr. Grady Taylor, wish to thank everybody for the splendid trade given them, and they ask you to read their advertisements in The Union-Banner and see the exceptional values they have to offer.

SEND IN CHURCH LETTERS

Mr. S. J. M. Webb, clerk of the Chilton County Baptist Association, makes a special request that clerks of all churches in the association prepare and send in church letters to the association which meets in a few weeks.

Mr. Webb states that he has blanks for making the church reports and he will be glad to furnish them to any clerk who calls for them. If you want one of these blanks, write to S. J. M. Webb, Maplesville, Ala., Route 1.

ECONOMY LEAGUE OPPOSES ACTIONS OF LEGISLATURE

Sharp Words Contained In Resolutions Passed At State-Wide Meeting In Montgomery Last Week

Resolved by the members of the Economy League of Alabama in meeting assembled at the Exchange Hotel in Montgomery, September 8, 1932 as follows:

1. That we reaffirm the declaration made when the organization was formed, as follows:

"The Association has but one objective—that of securing economy in government, national, state, county and municipal, as the only hope of permanent relief from excessive taxation.

In accomplishing this all officers and employees not essential to efficient service should be dropped and the compensation of those remaining should be fixed at such reasonable amount as may be consistent with existing conditions.

2. That we regret that so far the legislature now in extraordinary session has not given serious considerotion to the above, even by eliminating or reducing the unnecessary expenses of the operation of either body of said legislature, or the elimination of unnecessary functions of government so as to bring the cash out-go of the state, (including provisions for interest and sinking fund on the outstanding unfunded debt of the state) within the present cash income of the state.

3. That we shall continue to oppose the creation of new or the increase of old taxes unless and until there is a reasonable reduction of offices and employees, not essential to efficient service, and the salaries of those remaining fixed at such reasonable amounts consistent with existing conditions. The budget can be balanced without any additional taxation. We, therefore, advise opposition to all matters of taxation submitted to the people for ratificatoin by the present legislature and condemn the efforts being made to enact what is known as a sales tax or in any way connect same with any other tax or matter submitted or to be submitted to the people. Every tax made should stand or fall on its respective merits or demerits; and any effort by the legislature to intimidate or coerce any person by linking two propositions together or otherwise should be and will be resented by the honest people of Alabama.

4. That any effort or attempt by any member of the legislature or officer of Alabama to enact any law in opposition to the will of the majority is an unauthorized conversion of power and violates the highest principles of a representative form of government.

5. That in carrying on the affairs of the state of Alabama and the respective counties thereof, the same business principle should be applied as in private business.

6. That there is hereby created and established a state advisory committee for the Economy League of Alabama, to consist of eighteen members, being one man and one woman from each of the nine permanent congressional districts. The organizing officers of the League are directed to complete the organization of every county in the state as soon as practicable, that the work of the League may cover the entire state and be permanent, as was originally intended.

Resolution No. 2

Resolved by the members of the Economy League of Alabama: That the defeat of the Sparks Bill in the senate on the ground that its passage would antagonize county and city officials against the income tax and bond amendments is a confession by the senators so voting that they, as to said Sparks bill, were subservient to such county and city officers, and indifferent to the wishes and interest of the people generally, and constituted an unjustifiable general assault on the integrity and patriotism of all county and city officials. The failure to enact the Sparks bill, or a similar one, at this session, may have the effect of postponing the fee system and make the fixing of salaries for constitutional officers to be elected in 1934 impossible until the end of their respective terms.

The chairman appoints as the male members of the advisory committee of the Economy League of Alabama from the nine permanent congressional districts, the following named gentlemen:

First, Peyton Norvel, Mobile; second, W. C. Coker, Greenville; third, J. J. Espy, Headland; fourth, James A. Embry; fifth, Benjamin J. Russell, Alexander City; sixth, John A. Rogers, Gainsville; seventh, C. T. Lunsford, Hackleburg; eigth, Ed D. Johnson, Huntsville; ninth, Samuel L. Earle, Birmingham.

Report of Social Service Commission of Southern Baptist Convention

As is our custom we limit our report to a comparatively few of the many things that might appropriately and profitably be discussed in a report on Social Service. It must be understood also that we deal with social service not as related to and including hospitals, orphanages and other benevolent enterprises which are frequently referred to as phases of social service. We deal with social service in the sense that it involves public morality, civic righteousness and the public good. Even in this field we discuss from year to year only a few of the many things that might be discussed. This limitation is necessary that the report may come within reasonable compass. Moreover it is not at all necessary that all matters should be included which might be. Our pastors and people are coming more and more to realize their obligations and privileges touching all matters of citizenship and more and more will express their convictions and their will for the public good and will influence the course of organized society.

The Present Depression

For two years now our people in common with all the world have been passing through a period of unusual depression in economic, industrial and commercial affairs. As in well known to all students of economics these times of depression come in cycles with great regularity. The present depression, which is world-wide in its scope, is one of unusual stress and duration. It is a time of testing. Many explanations have been put forward as to the cause or causes. There are doubtless many contributing causes, perhaps too many for even the best informed authority to be able clearly and certainly to name all of them. Your commission make no profession of superior wisdom. But to us it appears certain that the major causes of our present situation may be named as follows:

1. Destructive War—For many years prior to the World War the energy, strength and resouces of the several nations were devoted to preparation for war, to building up and maintaining colossal war machines. The war broke out and for 4 years the energy, strength and resources of the whole world were given without stint or reserve to the destruction of human life and property. The result was inevitable. It would be humanly impossible that the peoples of the earth could give themselves for such a period to the destruction of the very foundation of economic prosperity without paying the price in worldwide and blighting depression.

2. The Hysteria of Inflation—While war destroys the normal sources of wealth and prosperity it creates fictitious money values, inflates currency and gives the appearance of gain. This in turn inflames the public mind with visions of great and rapidly accumulated wealth. Production is stimulated, buying becomes rampant and credit overreaches itself. Such a condition can go only so far. The collapse is bound to come and when it does come the trough of the sea becomes as deep as the wave was high. In our economic affairs we are simply paying the price of overreaching and speculation which we indulged in with the vain hope of sudden wealth.

3. The Providence of God—Christian men look upon all the world conditions in the light of the sacred Scriptures. Whatever others may think, and however the natural causes just cited have operated to bring about the present conditions, it is not too much for people who believe in God to interpret these conditions as some way related to God and His Providential dealings with the nations. The nations that forget God shall not prosper. May we not hear in the present conditions the voice of God calling us all back to a deeper devotion to Him and His cause and teaching us that the only sure basis of prosperity is to do justly, love mercy and walk humbly with God.

In Good Samaritan Contest Next Saturday and on Monday

We wish to call attention to the fact that some of the firms issuing Good Samaritan tickets are going to give two votes with each cent spent with them for one day soon.

The Clanton Laundry and Cleaning Company has chosen Monday, September 19th, as their double voting day. So their slips issued under that date will count two votes for each cent instead of one vote as usual.

Jesse Baker will issue double votes next Saturday, September 17th. Mr. Baker gives regular tickets, so instead of giving one vote for each cent Saturday he will give two votes.

So, everybody bear this in mind, and do not fail to call for your tickets. Read all the advs. on the contest page and see what the cooperating merchants have to offer. They have an interest in your church or charity organization, else they would not be spending their money for this advertising; so, it behooves you to spend some money with them to help them out in this campaign.

KINDERGARTEN OPENS MONDAY

Mrs. John Durwood Mullins will open a kindergarten at the home of Mrs. Renfroe Mullins on next Monday morning, September 19th. Mrs. Mullins will teach both kindergarten and first grade work; so all who have children of this age should get in touch with Mrs. Mullins between this and Monday. She may be reached over the Bell phone.

LEADER ENJOYS FINE BUSINESS

"We want to personally thank our many friends and customers throughout Chilton County for the fine business they have given us during the past few days," said Maurice Lande, of The Leader Tuesday.

"Our business has been better during the last few week than we have had in a long time," said Mr. Lande, as he gave us the copy for his advertisement this week.

Incidentally, we might remind our readers that Mr. Lande is one of the most persistent and consistent users of newspaper advertising space in Chilton County. He always has a fine collection of bargains, consisting of merchandise of merit and value. And he uses the newspapers to tell the people about it. If you want to know what The Leader has to offer, just glance over your Union-Banner each week, and you will find it.

BIG STILL CAPTURED MONDAY

Sheriff Gillespie and his deputies made a raid in the northern part of the county Monday, in which they captured two men operating a big 200-gallon still east of Minooka.

There was about 12 gallons of whiskey at the still and about 500 gallons of beer. The men who were at the still were arrested and brought to jail.

GINNING REPORT

According to R. J. Jones, cotton census enumerator, there were 98 bales of cotton ginned in Chilton County prior to September 1, 1932, as compared with 14 bales ginned prior to the same date last year.

FOUR ARRESTS MADE

The Sheriff's office reports four arrests made during the past week. All of them were in connection with still raids, and on charges of making liquor and possession of a still.

One raid was made west of Jemison, where a crude little steel drum outfit was turning out a mean sort of liquor. Two men were in attendance upon the ceremonies when the officers took charge.

The other raid was a big outfit in the hills east of Minooka. Two men were also taken in this raid.

It is expected that about sixty or seventy head of pure bred Jerseys will be on exhibit in Clanton on the above dates. The members of the Chilton County Breeders Club are displaying considerable interest in getting their animals in show condition.

County Agent Stapp is visiting the Jersey breeders this week and next helping them select animals to be shown and making suggestions on the preparation of these animals for the show. Mr. Stapp and members of the breeders club hope to make this the best cattle show ever held in this section. Owners of purebred Jersey cattle are requested to get in touch with Mr. Stapp at an early date and make plans to cooperate in making this a real Jersey show.

CARY BOWLES CARRIED TO THE STATE ASYLUM

MUCH INTEREST IN CONTEST NOW

Several Churches Seeking To Win One of The Cash Prizes

It took a good while to get the people interested in the Union-Banner's Good Samaritan Contest, but at last a few communities have entered the race with determination to win. For the first time, we are this week publishing a list of the churches in the contest. According to the order of their entry the churches are: Clanton Baptist, Clanton Foursquare, Concord Baptist, Friendship Baptist, and Walnut Creek M. P.

When the votes were totaled up Monday morning of this week there had been turned in to The Banner office a total of 320,915 votes for all five of the churches. This reprenents an expenditure of $3,209.15, over 50 per cent of which has been traded with participating firms during the past two weeks.

There may be other churches keeping votes with the intention to turn them in later; if this is the case we hope they will make the entry right away, so that the tickets may be counted and posted up, instead of all being held to the last.

All business firms cooperating in this contest are again urged to be careful with their tickets. Be sure that no one gets tickets who is not entitled to them according to the rules of the contest. The Union-Banner desires that the contest be carried on absolutely fair to everybody.

WHAT is the ? value

of TELEPHONE SERVICE

"We wish to express our appreciation for the super-service rendered us Wednesday when we burdened your exchange with the task of calling every telephone in the city . ." writes a bussness man.

"Please accept our thanks for the prompt service during the illness of our little boy," says a parent.

JUST WHAT is the value of telephone service? Does it consist of making it easy to settle emergency problems, or is it in the day-after-day succession of important details common to every business and household?

Probably the answer is that both in emergencies and in the daily routine the telephone plays an essential part, saving time—getting business—arranging for the family's social affairs—rendering service.

Undoubtedly that is why so many folks agree that the value of telephone service so greatly outweighs the cost that it really doesn't pay to try to do without it.

—when you require a tonic

. . . when you feel "tired out" . . . "all run-down" . . . "sluggish" . . . "listless" . . . "no appetite"—it is then time to pause and consider what may be the cause of this condition. If you suspect an organic or functional trouble of a serious nature consult a physician at once.

But if your vital organs are sound and you have thru overwork, worry, unbalanced diet, working conditions, "bad air," lack of proper exercise, unconsciously reduced your vitality and resistance, then restore your vital red-blood-cells and their hemoglobin content so that your blood and tissues may have the oxygen to purify and strengthen your body.

For decades S.S.S. has been the preferred tonic for restoring hemoglobin to the red-cells of the blood. Start to rebuild now. You will surprise yourself. Central Singing Society

The society met at Providence last Sunday afternoon. The crowd was small but a very good singing was had. The new Stamps books were used exclusively, and everyone seemed to like the songs, although they are new and most of them are hard.

There will be no meeting of the society next Sunday afternoon on account of the county convention at Maplesville; as many members of the society as can are urged to attend the convention. The next regular session of the society will be at Friendship the fourth Sunday afternoon. Everybody practice up on the new songs and lets try and have a good singing at Friendship the fourth Sunday afternoon.

The interest in the society seems somewhat to be waning, which we regret to see. This is no doubt caused, to a great extent, by the fact that a big percentage of our leading singers of the section persist in going other places instead of supporting our society. We have stressed this point time and again, but still some of our best singers, on whose shoulders rest much of the responsibility for the success of the society, persist in going off to other counties to sing just because our society happens to meet at a church where these particular singers hold a grudge ten or fifteen years old. Nothing has ever been gained by harboring a disposition like this, and no good can possibly come from the practice of such. Rather, we should do as the good book says—forgive, and we will find that our influence in every good cause will be greater.

The purpose of this little spiel is not to make anyone sore but it is given with the hope that it might bring about a better spirit among our singers and that our society might be made better by it.

WILL PREACH AT FRIENDSHIP

Rev. M. J. Parrish of Providence will preach at Friendship church at 11 o'clock on Sunday, September 18. Everybody in the community is urged to hear Bro. Parrish; and his friends from other communities have a cordial invitation to attend.

A prayer meetings has been started at this place, the first meeting being held last Sunday night. It will continue to be held every Sunday night, except on the fourth Sunday, and the hour to begin has been designated as 7 o'clock. The people of the community have a cordial invitation to attend.

MT. PLEASANT

Editor Union-Banner:

Please permit me space to say a few words about our singing at this place last Sunday.

The house was called to order by singing a song. Prayer was offered by Rev. M. Lockhart, after which J. E. Miner was elected chairman for the evening.

Directors were as follows: Hiram Littlejohn, M. Lockhart, Jasper Oaks, Enoch Traywick, L. F. Cleckler, Mr. Culp from Pleasant Grove, Miss Lillie Mae Weldon, W. L. Sanders, and three songs by the chairman just before we closed.

We had a good class of singers from different parts of the county. Organists were Miss Lillie Mae Weldon and Mr. Earl Williams. We thank them for their services.

We were dismissed with prayer by Rev. Lockhart. We are thankful to all singers who came and took part in the program. We invite all of them to come back again.

Our Sunday school is doing fine. But we are sorry there are so many heads of families who send their children and do not come with them. We could have a much better Sunday school if the older folks would come and help. We are trying to make our community a better place in which to live, and we invite all our people to join us in this effort.—A Reader.

PATES CHAPEL

The singing school came to a close Saturday and, of course, all of the people were sorry it closed. I am sure we all wish and hope Mr. C. N. Oden good luck. I think we all enjoyed the singing school very much. And too, we were glad to have our visitors Friday and Saturday, and cordially invite them back to the evening singings.

We also invite all to come to our Sunday school, and to preaching every first Saturday night and Sunday, which are conducted by our pastor, Rev. M. Lockhart, of Refuge community.

Mr. A. Maddox spent the day with his brother, Mr. Arthur Maddox of Pleasant Grove, Saturday.

The people, especially the ladies, were glad to have Miss Thomasson of Montgomery with us last Wednesday. She made a real interesting talk on missions and the ladies have organized a small W. M. U. at Pates Chapel. The meeting will be the second and fourth Saturday afternoons at 3:30 o'clock. Every woman and girl is invited. Miss Hazel Maddox was elected president; Mrs. E. J. Hayes, vice president; and Miss Maude Wallis, secretary.

Among those who attended the singing at Liberty Hill were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Maddox, Mr. C. N. Oden, Mr. Tommie Maddox, Misses Lorene and Lucile Cleckler and Maude Wallis. It was very much enjoyed by each and every one and we want them to visit our church some time, especially the third Sunday evening in every month, to help build our singing up.

Next Sunday, September 18th, there will be an evening singing at Pates Chapel church. And we invite every community to come and help us out. Every body come and bring someone with you. We are striving to build up our singing society. We have the 1933 song books, "Songs of Praise," also the "Crowning Hymns." We invite you all to come and be with us if you want to sing. The singing will start about 2:00 o'clock.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the many friends for their kindness and help shown us during the illness of my wife and death of our little sweet baby boy. We especially thank Dr. N. S. Johnson and nurse, for we feel like they did all that could be done. We thank all that lent a helping hand. We also thank the people who came and picked cotton for us. May God's richest blessings rest on each and everyone of you, is our prayer.—J. R. Connell and wife.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., Sept. 12. — Coach Frank Thomas expressed himself as well pleased with the first week of football training at Alabama. "They players are rapidly approaching top condition and are making nice progress. The spirit of the men has been excellent.

The work of the first week consisted mainly of the fundamentals and in conditioning. Late in the week tackling and blocking was introduced.

Tom Hupke, guard, reported in fine condition and looks set for another good year. Hupke was a sensation last year as sophomore. He is called the "big little man" in the Alabama line. He is 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighs 184 pounds.

Bill Lee, reserved tackle, is looking better every day. Lee is the biggest man on the squad, weighing 216 pounds. He will undoubtedly see lots of service at tackle.

Another reserve who seems in for a big year is Howard "Slick" Chappell, halfback. Chappell should make them all sit up and take notice this fall. Chappell is fast, elusive and an A-1 passer.

Coach Thomas indicated today that scrimmage would be on the boards for the middle of the week.

University, Ala., Sept. 12. — Funeral services for Dr. George I. Adams, for twelve years head of the geology department, University of Alabama, were held Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Pallbearers included President George H. Denny, Dean C. H. Barnwell, Wr. Walter B. Jones, Dr. Paul W. Herry, Dr. George J. Davis, and Dr. W. P. Ott.

Five members of the University faculty earned Ph. D. degrees during the past summer. They included Dr. A. L. Whitehurst, associate professor of history, degree awarded by University of Chicago; Dr. Marcus Whitman, associate professor of economics, University of Wisconsin; Dr. H. C. Pannell, associate professor of education, degree, Teachers College Columbia University; Dr. W. V. Holloway, assistant professor of political science, University of Washington; and Dr. Claude A. Campbell, instructor in economics, Vanderbilt University.

Miss Alice L. Williams, M. A., Columbia University, has joined the faculty as instructor in art. She succeeds Miss Ruth Parsons. Miss Williams is the daughter of a recognized Chicago artist.

Even college teachers had love affairs in their student days. But only the cleverness of Dorothy Wilson and Richard Cromwell in "The Age of Consent" have got them to admit it as in this RKO-Radio picture.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Cagle, of Stanton, were visitors to Clanton Monday. In the latter part of July Mr. and Mrs. Cagle went to the American Legion Convention at Gadsden. From there they went to their old home in DeKalb County, where they spent a month visiting relatives and friends. They say they had a fine time going to protracted meetings, picnics, singing schools, and eating watermelons.

Prophecy Corner

Conducted By

L. A. BUTTERFIELD

For two thousand years the city of Tyre had been growing in importance until she was mistress of the sea as Babylon of the land. She was in realty the commercial center of the world—the New York of Asia. While thus Tyre was at the height of her glory and power, while it would seem that she must stand forever, along came Ezekial, who phophesied about 590 B. C. and said: "They shall destroy the walls of Tyrus, and break down her towers. They shall make a spoil of thy riches, and make a prey of thy merchandise: and they shall break down thy walls, and destroy thy pleasant houses: and they shall lay thy stones and thy dust in the midst of the water . . . I will make thee like the top of a rock: thou shalt be a place to spread nets upon; thou shalt be built no more: for I the Lord have spoken it." (Eze. 6:4-14.)

Immediately after the giving of this prophecy, Nebuchadnezzar beseiged Tyre, and after thirteen years of effort, took the city and destroyed it, wreaking fearful vengence on buildings and people. Observe that while the ruins of the old city remained after Nebuchadnezzar had finished with it, the prophecy declared that the timbers and rocks and even the very dust would be cast into the sea, leaving a bare rock to be used for spreading nets. This prediction had not been fulfilled by this king of Babylon, and it seemed improbable it ever would be fulfilled; for if Nebuchadnezzar, in his anger, had taken full vengence, and had not thought of this, who was likely to care enough about the ruins of a deserted city to be so violently destructive? It would be the very frenzy of madness. But meanwhile there stood the phopetic words waiting fulfillment. Two and a half centuries pased away, and still the ruins stood a challenge to the accuracy of prophecy. Then through the East the fame of Alexander the Great sent a thrill of terror. He marched swiftly to attack new Tyre, 33 B. C. Reaching the shore he saw the city he had come to take, with half a mile of water surging between them, for it was built on an island. He took the walls, towers, timbers and ruined houses and palaces of the ancient Tyre, and with them built a solid causeway to the island city. So great was the demand for material that the very dust was scraped from the site and laid in the sea.

The prophecy further stated that Tyre was to be built no more. God has had a challenge sounding for twenty centuries, daring skeptics everywhere to rebuild this city and thus disprove His word. A dollar each from the unbelievers in England and America would be sufficient to rebuild Tyre, and thus blast forever the reputation of the Bible as a truth-telling book. Why have they not done this? How is it that only Bible writers are able to guess with perfect accuracy two thousand years into the future? My friends, the Bible is the inspired word of the Living God.—L. A. Bntterfield.

Nature's Own Secret of Health Revealed

Science Discovers That Good Health Depends on Supplying the System with Necessary Minerals and Vitamins.

Medical Science has discovered that the human body is made up of a very limited number of essential elements. All of these are found in the Mineral kingdom and in foods in their natural state. To be exact, the healthy human body is composed of eleven Minerals and when these are present, in balanced proportion, we enjoy good health.

PROPER FOODS ESSENTIAL

Unfortunately, few of us give any thought to balancing our diets, according to their Mineral content, and therefore we must pay the penalty. A deficiency of these elements brings on Indigestion, Gas, Bloating, Constipation, Headaches, Nervousness and a host of other ills. We soon lose strength, go from bad to worse and become disgusted with life itself.

NEW WAY TO HEALTH

For many long years, Physicians and Chemists have been trying to combine, in proper proportion, the eleven essential Minerals with necessary Vitamins. They realized that the preparation must be easily assimilated and supply the system with these elements so necessary to health.

SCIENCE TRIUMPHS AGAIN

Fortunately, for all mankind, this tremendous undertaking has met with success! Science has perfected a most remarkable formula, known as LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND. This preparation supplies the system with the eleven essential Minerals, in combination with Vitamins. It is not, in any sense of the word, a "patent" medicine but is more in the nature of a FOOD VITALIZER. It assists Nature, by restoring a proper balance of the Mineral Content of the body and good health follows as a natural result.

BIG SURPRISE AWAITS YOU

You who are blue, down cast and depressed over your loss of health. You who have tried many medicines and treatments with little or no relief—take new heart and cheer! Prepare yourselves for the most joyous surprise of your lives.

MAKE THIS 10 DAY TEST

Convince Yourself!

Stop dosing yourself with "patent medicines," harsh purgatives, oils and cathartics for just 10 days. Go to your nearest Druggist and secure a bottle of LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND. Take it regularly, and watch the results. You'll be amazed at the feeling of renewed strength and vigor that soon appears. No narcotics or alcohol to "boost you up" but a natural method of restoring health and energy.

For Sale by Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton, Ala., and other good Drug Stores Everywhere. Or send $1.25 to Lee's Laboratories, 365 Peachtree Arcade, Atlanta, Ga., for a large bottle, postage paid.

Jno. A. Boockholdt Defends His Record While Chief of Police

Gives Affidavit Concerning the Charges Made During Recent Campaign

To the Editor of The Union-Banner:

My attention has been called to the recent statements in your paper by J. Lee Smith, that "He had never refused to issue a warrant for Mr. W. L. Popwell for keeping in the incorporate limits, a hog or hogs, and that Mr. John A. Boockholdt, the Chief of Police, had never requested or asked him to issue a warrant for the arrest of said W. L. Popwell."

Believing that the citizens of Clanton are entitled to the truth and facts about this matter, the following is a copy of the affidavit which I have today made, setting forth such facts and I am asking both of the Clanton papers to publish this letter in this week's issue and am offering to pay them therefor, if they require it.

Affidavit

The State of Alabama, Chilton County:

Personally appeared before me the undersigned authority, in and for said county and state, John A. Boockholdt, who having been by me first duly sworn, deposes and says:

That on April 4, 1931, the killing of Miss Davis occurred in the Town of Clanton. That there was some charge that I was negligent in preventing this tragedy. I was not guilty thereof. Shortly thereafter, the present Town Council held a full, complete and public investigation and until this day, I have never heard any judgment of their pronounced upon the matter. Thereafter, from that time until September 1931, I continued to serve as Chief Police for the Town of Clanton.

In about August of 1931, complaint was made to me, that W. L. Popwell, a member of the council of the Town of Clanton, was keeping hogs within the city limits, in violation of law. I went out to Mr. Popwell's home and found a hog penned up within the city limits and I asked him "if it was his hog," and he stated, "That it was." I thereupon stated to him, in substance, "That I had had complaints against him for keeping a hog or hogs within the city limits," and stated to him further: "That you know that it is against the law." Thereupon, Mr. Popwell became very angry and stated, in substance, "What are you going to do about it? Are you going to arrest me," and I stated to him, "That I did not have a warrant, but that I always showed a person in such a position the courtesy of giving them a chance to move the hog out of the city," and he stated in reply, "Well, I am a bigger taxpayer than old man Barrett or all that are complaining and I am not going to move my hog out of the city limits," and I said to him, "Well, that winds me up today, with you." Thereupon, I went back to the Town of Clanton and saw Mr. J. Lee Smith, the mayor, and stated to him, in substance, "That I had been out to see Mr. W. L. Popwell, and found that he was keeping hogs within the city limits of Clanton, and had asked him to move them, but that he had said that he would not do it." Thereupon, Mr. Smith said to me, "That he had had some complaints about Mr. Popwell keeping hogs in the city limits," and stated further that, "I am not going to give you a warrant for him, as he is one of my best friends, and would do anything for me, as I would do for him," and furthermore, Mr. Smith stated to me, "You stay away from out there."

Within a very short time, within thirty days in my best judgment, I was notified by the town council that I was discharged as Chief of Police of the Town of Clanton.—J. A. Boockholdt.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this the 12th day of September, 1932.—E. C. Parrish, Notary Public.

The above are facts about my dismissal, as Chief of Police of Clanton. Let the voters of the town judge the merit of the controversy for themselves. Yours respectfully, J. A. Boockholdt.

It always gives us pleasure to note any real effort on the part of our citizens to improve their holdings or working conditions. An outstanding instance in this line is shown by recent changes made at Thorsby Hardware Company, by systematizing their business into departments and making provisions for attactive display of goods so that people can see at a glance what they have in stock, either by display of the goods on newly constructed tables, conveniently arranged, or by samples attached to the doors in front of shelves where the stock is kept. The whole arrangement gives the place the appearance of an exposition. And And whether one wants to buy or not, it is open and free to the public. One can spend a delightful hour and learn a lot by walking about in the broad aisles and inspecting the goods on display. We suggest that people show their appreciation by refraining from handling the goods on display to avoid disarranging and possible injury. All is so neat and clean with new paint.

WET DEMOCRATS WIN IN MAINE

Two of Three Congressmen And Governor, All Repealers, Beat G. O. P. Men

Portland, Maine, Sept. 13. — An aroused Democracy tonight had shoved a Republican machine—built up through an unbroken 18 years of power in office holding — into the discard and elected a governor and two of the three congressmen in the rock-ribbed Republican stronghold of Maine.

Only 17 of the state's 632 voting precincts were unreported from yesterday's election—which preceded the canvass in the rest of the country by two months—and they held such small numbers of registered voters that they could not affect the results in the gubernatorial contest or those in the second and third congressional districts.

Louis J. Brann, mild-mannered Lewiston lawyer had a lead of 1,378—slender but impregnable with the tabulations so near completion.

The vote from 615 precincts was:
Brann (D), 118,792.
Martin (R), 117,412.

Burleigh Martin, who comes of a long line of political officeholders and was president of the state senate two years ago, lost even his home city, Augusta—the state capitol— in the slowly sapping piling up of votes the Democratic chieftains engineered.

The congressional fights in the second and third districts—both won by the Democrats—saw the third failure for former Governor Ralph O. Brewster, in his efforts to reenter politics and the final arrival of Edward C. Morgan, Jr., young Democrat from Rockland, who lost to the Republican gubernatorial candidate in the 1928 and 1930 elections.

Business man (After interviewing daughter's suitor): I regret I can not see my way to allow you to marry my daughter at present, but give me your name and address; then if nothing better turns up in the near future, you may hear from us again.

Clear-cut provisions regarding employment of labor for Alabama's $5,116,000 federal emergency highway construction program were laid down by Capt. L. G. Smith, state highway director at Montgomery.

The House of Representatives defeated the Goodwyn bill proposing a constitutional amendment to permit certain state officers to run for reelection and succeed themselves, the vote ending in a tie, 46-46.

Tax Collector J. W. Hamilton was denied authority to proceed with collection of more than $215,000 back taxes on the Harvey G. Woodward estate in a ruling by Probate Judge Eugene H. Hawkins, Jefferson County.

Legislation to relieve the state's present financial condition, elimination of useless offices and unnecessary officials and employes, no increase in taxes and strict economy in government operations were embodied in resolutions adopted at a mass meeting of Shelby County residents in the courthouse.

Arrested in Anniston in connection with the slaying of Frank Edmondson, 23-year-old Heflin youth, who was shot to death on a highway near his home last Christmas Eve, Fred Crumby, 30, Anniston negro, has been transferred to the Cleburne County jail at Heflin.

The grindstone and hay fever are both pretty hard on the nose, but hay fever, at least, gives its victims a long rest in between visits.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp. County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

"GIN DAYS" HELP KEEP SEED PURE

Auburn, Ala., Sept. 12.—Farmers and county agents in nearly all Alabama counties are holding or preparing to hold "gin days" this fall for the purpose of saving and keeping pure improved varieties of cotton seed.

The effect of "gin days" in the cotton improvement program promoted by county agents is shown by figures cited by J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

"Only 10 per cent of the Alabama cotton crop was shorter than 7-8 inch in 1931, compared with 38.3 per cent in 1930, and 44.8 per cent in 1929," he said. "The difference from nearly 40 per cent of 13-16 inch cotton to 10 per cent meant an added value of more than two million dollars to the Alabama cotton crop in 1931, despite the fact that prices were drastically low."

During the fall of 1931, 706,762 bushels of seed of varieties like D. P. L. 4-8 and Cook 1627, which averaged 7-8 inch to 1 inch in staple length, were saved at "gin days" by farmers and county agents. Mr. Lowery added, "Every effort should be made this fall to keep the increase from these seed pure.

"The remarkable success attained last year in the "gin days" program should result in increased activity in this connection this fall," he said.

On "gin days" cotton of only one variety is ginned after gin stands, elevators, and other equipment have been cleaned of all seeds from previous ginnings. Close cooperation between a group of farmers and a ginner is necessary in order to make "gin days" a success.

EQUAL IOWA YIELDS BY USING LEGUMES

Auburn, Ala., Sept. 12.—Alabama farmers can change their 10-bushel and 15-bushel corn land into 30- or 40-bushel land by growing and turning under a good crop of hairy vetch or Austrian winter peas. In this way they can grow as profitably as Iowa farmers who produce on the average about 40 bushels per acre, points out J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

"An increase of 20 bushels of corn per acre was made by more than 10,000 farmers in 44 Alabama counties in 1931 by turning under a good crop of either hairy vetch or Austrian winter peas just before planting the corn," Mr. Lowery said.

He recommends that the legume seed be planted from September 15 to October 15.

"For best results hairy vetch or Austrian winter peas should have a liberal application of phosphate at planting time," Mr. Lowery continued. "The Auburn Experiment Station has found that basic slag is always as good as superphosphate and frequently better. The lime content of basic slag makes it superior to superphosphate for winter legumes. Furthermore, basic slag does not injure inoculation and inoculation is absolutely essential to success."

Orders already placed by organized groups of farmers indicate that the plantings of winter legume seed this fall will far exceed those of former years. Reports from farm leaders show that the total plantings may exceed three million pounds of seed.

WINTER LEGUME NEWS

County agents in 29 Alabama counties reported approximately 116,800 pounds of winter legume seed planted in the fall of 1926 as compared to 1,276,000 pounds expected to be planted in the fall of 1932. Total planting for the entire State this year are expected to be in excess of 3,000,000 pounds.

* * *

R. B. Young, Mt. Hope, Ala., says that he has land which formerly produced only 15 bushels of corn per acre. After turning a good crop of vetch he gathered as high as 40 bushels per acre from the same land.

* * *

W. A. Pickens, Lawrence County farmer, told County Agent J. E. Carter that he has found that the best and most economical way to enrich his farm is by growing hairy vetch. Mr. Pickens said, "I have been growing vetch for several years and I find it almost doubles the yields. It will be a great day for the farmers of Alabama when we all produce our own nitrogen by growing vetch."

* * *

Corn following vetch on the 10-acre track owned by T. B. Whitmire of Leeds, promises to produce 50 bushels per acre, and Mr. Whitmire says that the cost of producing the corn will be only 10 cents per bushel.

* * *

"Any farmer who depends entirely on commercial fertilizer in producing crops will become impoverished," said C. E. Oliver of Dadeville. "Every farmer ought by all means to grow from 3 to 5 acres of winter peas or vetch per plow to be turned under and followed with corn. In addition, he should sow at least one-third of his land in fall oats and rye to be saved for feed. Summer peas should follow the oats and rye and should also be planted in all corn for turning under. If this system is followed a judicious use of commercial fertilizer will pay."

Miss Myrtle Rowe was the guest of her brother, G. C. Rowe, last week.

ALABAMA COTTON CROP SMALLEST SINCE 1923

Alabama's cotton crop fell off 114,000 bales during the month of August from a prospect of 950,000 bales on August 1 to one of 936,000 bales on September 1, reports F. W. Gist, statistician for the department of agriculture.

"Present conditions indicate a yield per acre this year of 132 pounds, which compared with 200 pounds harvested last year and an average of 158 pounds for the last ten year," said Gist.

"The very marked falling off in the prospect is taken due to the small amount of fertilizer used this year, unfavorable weather during August, and to the extremely heavy weevil infestation at the present time. August, in Alabama, was a month of frequent scattered rains with no period dry long enough to hinder activity of the weevil. As a consequence in some sections of the state the weevil appeared to be more numerous than in many years. The small amount of fertilizer used has resulted in a small weed, a very light fruiting and remargably small bolls.

The prospects are especially low in that part of the state south of the Black Belt and in the western part of the Black Belt. In the northern half of the state, and in the Piedmont section, the conditions are some more promising.

Present prospects of production in the state are the lowest since 1923 in which year less than 600,000 bales were gathered in Alabama.

REDUCTION OF TIMBER CUT IS NOT WHOLLY HARMFUL

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 13.—The partial timber cutting holiday enforced by the current economic depression carries some benefit to the timber grower and the general public, notwothstanding the temporary investigations made by the State Commission of Forestry. During the period of unusual prosperity the timber was cut much more rapidly than it was being grown, points out Colonel Page S. Bunker, State Forester. Immature stands were being sacrificed in many parts of the state to secure the comparatively high prices then prevalent.

With the large curtailment in buying that occurred at the end of the war time inflation period, young timber has not been so greatly subjected to the saw and the hack, with the result that over most of the areas the samller trees have received a respite of two or three years which has enabled them to put on much more growth and develop into far more valuable material. The increased quantity and better quality of the growing stands will offset to a considerable extent the losses incurred by operators through the temporary limitation of buying.

DALLAS COUNTY PLANTING LOTS OF PEAS AND VETCH

County Agent Stapp states that representatives from Dallas County advise that that county will plant six hundred thousand pounds of peas and vetch this fall. Mr. John Blake, County Agent, is one of the pioneer advocates of peas and vetch, and the acreage planted to these crops increases every year.

Mr. Stapp reports that indications are that the farmers of Chilton County will plant about twice the acreage to peas and vetch this fall that they did last year. There are many places in the county where farmers may see the results of peas and vetch as soil-building and fertilizing crops. Among those who are strong advocates of peas and vetch are the following:

Dr. P. M. Martin, Plantersville; Charlie Mitchell, Stanton; Dr. C. N. Parnell, Maplesville; H. R. Oden, Isabella Community; J. N. Chidress, Pleasant Grove community west of Jemison; S. C. Sloan, north of Jemison; Mr. Morris, near Minooka; Cecil Baggett, Thorsby; J. N. Dennis, Clanton; W. L. Popwell, Clanton; J. W. Hamilton, Clanton; Mrs. Ola Edwards, Fair View community; Walter Popwell, Kincheon community; Tom Hilyer, near Cooper; Jasper Robinson, Verbena; and John Dutton, at the gap of the muntain, on the Lay Dam Road.

Visitors will be welcomed by any of the above named farmers. We believe that every farmer in Chilton County who doesn't already know the value of peas and vetch should visit one of the above places and learn what they can about these wonderful crops. We further believe that farmers of the county should not only learn about these crops from seeing them on the other fellow's place, but that there should be five acres per mule planted on every farm in the county this fall.

OAK GROVE

There will be a chicken sandwich and ice cream supper at this place next Saturday night, September 17. Everybody is invited to come and help us out. Proceeds will go to the church.—W. J. Northcutt.

DAT BLOOMIN PREACHER

All Ah know is Whut de Bible say Bout Hit.

This Week's Blossom:

Jesus sa, Matt. 10:17: "But beware of men."
Ah sa: "An some women."

De tex today is Jeremiah 8th chapter 19-22. "Behold the voice of the cry of the daughter of my people, because of them that dwell in a far country; Is not the Lord in Zion? Is not her king in her? Why have they provoked me to anger with their graven images, and with strange vanities? The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and we are not saved. For the hurt of the daughter of my people am I hurt; I am black; astonishment hath taken hold of me. Is there no balm in Gilead; is there no physician there? Why then, is not the health of the daughter of my people recovered?" De month of September will jes bout clos out all ob de protracted meetins in dis country. Dar has bin some good ones an some not so good, but ef you shood ax some ob dem whut wuz sabed bout it, Ah am shoah dat da wood sa dat it wuz a time ob refreshin fum de Lord.

De churches an preachers wuz made to feel good ovah de fac dat so many wuz sabed. De fathers an mothers ob de boys an girls dat took Christ as their savior felt des lak de Lord had des showered down de greatest ob blessins on dem. Ah no dat Ah rejoiced wid some ob dem mysef. Ah herd dem praisin de Lord fur whut He done fur dem. Nobody can no whut de final results will be, cause it is not fur us to no. Ah sometimes think dat preachers git too anxious bout de sinners an resort to questionable means to induce dem to jine de church. An not only dat, but we aint willin to do our work an leave de results wid de Lord, an lots ob times we sa or think if we dont sa it, dat we made ur failure in a certain meetin, when de fac is dat de results wood astonish us ef we cood no at de time jes whut de result really wuz. Ah remember once holdin a service in a schoolhouse, an atter de service closed ur young oman, de school teacher, cum up to me an sa, "Do you no me. An Ah sa, "Ah dont think Ah does." Den she tole me her name an sed she had jes jined de church de Sunday befo, but dated her conversion back nine years to a sermon dat Ah preached. Ah decided rite den to leave de results wid de Lord.

So since den Ah go rite on an preach de gospel jes de bes Ah can an dont concern mahsef bout de results. Now Brudder Preacher, whut has we got to do wid de results any how? De Lord will sholy take care ob dat. Ah no dat we is human an wants tur see some fruit cum fum our labors, but atter all, dat aint whut we should be concerned bout. Our greatest concern shood be to preach de gospel, an do it in a way dat wood please de Lord, an din leave de results wid Him.

Now, Ah wants to devote de res ob dis sermon to de unsaved. Whut wood you think ob a farmer dat wood plant an work a crop all thru de spring an summer an din when de harvest or gatherin time cum jes set down an let it be lost? His labor fur de whole year wood count fur nothin, sides de crop wood be lost, de summer wood be past, it wood be too late to plant an make another crop. You, mah sinner frin, is de crop, de harvest time is passin fast. Dar has bin a great getherin in de crop fur de las fiew weeks. Lots ob souls hab bin sabed, but fur some reason or udder, you is still widout God, an widout hope in de worl. Des lak de farmer when he made all ob de necessary preparations fur de crop, Jesus made yoah salvation possible by His death, burial and ressurection. You mus hab some good reason fur lettin dis harvest time go by widout bein sabed, whut is de reason? It sholy aint cause you dont want to be sabed. It is cause dar aint no "Balm in Giliad."

Now dat word "balm" means any thing dat heals—a medicine. Sholy you dont think dat dar am no healing fur de soal. Sholy you aint forgot dat de Lord can heal de sin-sick soul. Whut good wood a physician be to a people ef dar wuzent no medicine? Ah am glad Ah can tell you dat dar is relief in Christ fur all ob de ills ob sin, fur de whole human family God's arm is not shortened dat it cant sabe. De remedy fur sin is jes as efficacious as hit eber wuz, it hasent lost any ob it's power to heal. De physician is ready to go, ready to answer de call ob distress at any time. An de beauty ob it is dat dar aint no guess work bout it, he knows whut remedy to apply, He knows whut de sinner needs—de precious "balm of Giliad." Yes my frin, de remedy fur sin is foun only in de atoning blood ob Jesus.

Hear Wm. Hunter as he sings.

"The great physician now is near,
The sympathizing Jesus.
He speaks, the drooping heart to cheer
O hear voice of Jesus."

—Elder Blossom.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

One bit of satisfactory news which may have escaped a great many people in their concentration on the political campaign now being waged in America is that which came from Tokyo the other day to the effect that Vice admiral Nomura, of the Japanese navy, would sail next month from Yokohama on a good will mission to the United States. According to the Associated Press dispatch from Tokyo his mission "is a result of what high naval officials designate as 'loose talk' on both sides of the Pacific concerning the possibility of conflict between Japan and the United States."

That there has been a great deal of talk about such a conflict may surprise those who have not studied the situation. Doubtless a great deal of it has come from persons and newspapers attempting to embarrass the national administration in a political way, and much more of it has come from those who desire to further the interests of Soviet Russia in America, and realize that from the Russian standpoint it would be fine to involve Uncle Sam in some real controversy with Russia's traditional enemy, Japan.

Which leads to the question of what it is all about? The misunderstanding, such as it is, centers around the Manchurian probleft. The Japanese claim that control of Manchuria, either directly or indirectly, is a vital issue to them. They say that Japan's overflow population has been shut out of America, Australia and Canada, and that there is no place for it to go except in the direction of Manchuria. They say further that the Chinese have no orderly government and will not have any in this generation or the next, and that the disordered coditions in Manchuria seriously affect Japanese business and commerce and indirectly the commerce of the rest of the world.

On the other hand the people of the United States have always had an affectionate interest in the Chinese people, because of what seems to be their inherently unfortunate situation. Americans have hoped that the Chinese would eventually find themselves and establish a strong government, thus adding to the peace of the world and the possibilities for foreign trade. For this reason they have resented the incursions of foreign powers into Chinese territory. The present situation was, of course, brought about by the Japanese excursion into Manchuria, which has led to the statement by Secretary Stimson to the effect that the United States will not recognize governments set up by force.

What makes the situation rather delicate is that Great Britain and France, the two leading military powers of Europe, do not see eye to eye with Uncle Sam in this matter. According to political observers in Europe they are willing for Japan to establish itself in Manchuria, feeling that this will go a long way toward pacifying the Orient and will keep Japan so busy she will not be able to interfere with British and French plans or possessions in other points of the Orient. The only European country which is at all apt to dispute Japan's progress is Soviet Russia.

Now those in America who profess to fear a clash between Japan and America claim that when the question is threshed out before the League of Nations it will be found that Uncle Sam is almost isolated in his stand on Chinese affairs, except perhaps for the moral support of some of the smaller countries of Europe. England, France and Italy, they say, will be disposed to let Japan take her own course and will not worry any if she is involved in difficulties with the United States. They add that the discussion of the situation in the League circles is bound to cause bitterness which may even disrupt the League itself.

While the situation from the standpoint of the United States might be fraught with danger of misunderstandings were allowed to develop on both sides it must not be forgotten that there is no disposition on the part of Uncle Sam to go to war to enforce any sort of policy in the Orient, and this disposition will not change. While America may disagree with other powers about the ethics of the Manchurian situation she is not going to war about it, and it is doubtful whether Japan will attack America over the situation especially in view of the fact that she is already in Manchuria and apparently determined to stay there. But because the situation is delicate it is very satisfying to know that the distinguished Admiral Normura is coming to America in an effort to clear up what misunderstandings may exist. He can be assured, in the United States, of an impartial hearing.

A. E. A. SUGGESTS ECONOMY PROGRAM

President Keller of the A. E. A. Monday night authorized the following statement:

At a recent meeting of the Legislative Committee of the Association, attended by representatives of the various educational units of the state, it was agreed, in order to assist with the program of economy which it is recognized is necessary to balance the state's budget, to propose to the Legislature:

That a 20 per cent reduction be effected in all appropriations, (1) to the three major institutions of higher learning and for any and all services administered by them, (2) to the State Department of Education and to all the institutions as well as services under the control of and administered by the State Board of Education. It is understood that these reductions shall not affect any funds administered by the State Board of Education exclusively for the benefit of the public elementary and high schools. It is further understood that the above proposed reductions are not to affect constitutional appropriations nor appropriations for interest on indebtedness arising out of the disposition of lands donated by the Federal Government.

In amplifying his statement, President Keller emphasized the fact that it is the earnest hope of the Legislative Committee of the Association that, in the efforts made by the Legislature to balance the State's budget, there be no reductions in the appropriations to the public elementary and high schools. When asked what educational units would be affected by the above proposed reductions, President Keller explained that the following institutions and services would suffer a 20 per cent reduction in their appropriations:

University of Alabama at Tuscaloosa; Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn; Alabama College at Montevallo; the four state teachers' colleges located at Florence, Troy, Jacksonville, and Livingston, the state normal school at Daphne, the Alabama School of Trades at Gadsden, the A. and M. Institute for negroes at Huntsville, the Montgomery State College for negroes at Montgomery, the State Department of Education at Montgomery, and the following funds administered by the State Board of Education: for the removal of illiteracy, vocational education, for rural school libraries, for the erection, repair and equipment of rural schools.

A. E. A. NOT OPPOSED TO BUDGETARY ADMINISTRATION OF STATE FUNDS

"The Legislative Committee of the Alabama Educational Association representing every unit of the public school system of Alabama," said Superintendent J. A. Keller, president of the Association, "is unanimously in favor of the budgetary control of state finances.

"The teachers of Alabama in the light of the experiences of the past year have greater reason than any other class of people to demand a balanced budget. Apparently that is their only hope.

"It is to be regretted, therefore, that reports have found their way to some members of the Legislature and to some of our newspapers that school leaders are not in sympathy with the esablishment of a sound budget system adapted to Alabama's needs.

"Speaking for the entire profession," concluded Mr. Keller, "we declare our support of a fair system of budgetary control that will guarantee a balancing of the state's budget. Indeed we have gone further by submitting definite proposals for helping in the balancing of the budget by suggesting certain reductions in appropriations."

MORAL ECHOES

(By D. W. Haskew)

On day I was walking along with a friend. We were passing a plank wall, and over the wall we saw the head of a cow lifted high enough to see us as we strolled along. I remarked to my companion, "Do you see that cow looking at us over the fence?" He glanced in that direction, and being mostly of Irish blood, he ventured to ask, "Do you know why she looks at us over the fence?" I confessed my ignorance and listened to his reply, "Why sir, that cow is looking at us over the fence because she can not see through it." I felt my ignorance more than ever. That was a sensible cow. She could not see through a plank fence and she lifted her head and looked over it. If we learn that much about our problems and difficulties in life we would be much better off. It is a good policy, when you can not see through a mystery (and there are things that God never intended that you should see through) for us to lift our heads and look over them.

I was standing by watching the construction of a large bridge. Span after span was being linked together. Timbers and steels of all forms and sizes were being placed in position. The contractor held in his hand his blue print and he knew the place and position of everything that was being worked into the bridge. He made this remark to me, "That bridge is being so constructed as to divide the weight that is on the bridge. Each base and support will have an equal share in the holding up of the burden that passes over the bridge." Since hearing the statement of that contractor I saw where a bridge had fallen and many lives were lost, and the cause was in that the bridge was so constructed as to place too much strain at one point. The burden was not equally divided. In the building of God's church He has so constructed it as to divide the burdens equally among its membership. When one member refuses or fails to carry his part of the load, that puts more strain on some other member. There have been many crashes in church life because some members failed to carry their part of the load. Church loads are equally divided, and why let your part of the load be placed on shoulders already loaded to the limit?

I had a little dog and I won his love. He would romp with me, would trust me and would smile into my face. "Little doggie, why do you love me?" He could not use language, but deep down in his eyes I could read this answer, "Because you are so good to me." I had a fine horse. I won her love. She would call for me to come to the lot where she was. Many a time did she meet me at the gate when I would be coming with the bridle in my hand. In her language she would beg me to put the harness on her that she might carry me out to ride. I gave her bundles of hay and lumps of sugar and she loved me. "You fine, beautiful animal, why did you love me?" It was all because I had been good to her. God has been good to all of us. You may be as mean as old satan himself, still God has been good to you. If being good to a dog and a horse will win affection, tell me why you refuse to be won to God when He is so good to you. The more God does for some folks the meaner they become.

An Irishman was passing a farm house with a pitch fork on his shoulder. A big bull dog made for him, and Pat used his strong arms to jam the steel forks through the body of the dog and pin him to the ground. The owner of the dog came dashing up with words of anger. After much profanity he stormed at the Irishman, "and why sir, did you not strike my dog with the other end of your pitch fork?" Pat replied, "and why sir, did your dog not come at me with his other end?" When the whiskey business comes at us with its teeth end, and we nail it through and pin it to the mud, the whiskey forces howl much about what we are doing. They tell us that the whiskey traffic has a harmless end. When the whiskey business comes at us with its harmless end, we will be ready to deal with it through mercy. However, if the whiskey business has a harmless end I have never seen it. Every time it comes at the guilty or the innocent, it comes with the teeth end. Nail it down every time it comes near.

Before the depression we ventured to have a servant. One was hired who was already lazy and ignorant. The parsonage lady put up with her as long as she could be endured. She was called into consultation and was told that she was not needed any longer. I could see the birl from my study door, and observed that the tears came into her eyes as she said, "Miss, please do not fire me. I know dat I am a no good nigger, but I don't want to be fired." She confessed her shortcomings and promised that if she would be given another trial that she would make good, and she did. Many of you are just as trifling in your place in the church as was that negro girl. You are lazy and indifferent. Suppose that Jesus would say to you, "I have put up with your trifflingness as long as I can stand it, and you may go. I have no further use for you." If He should say that to me I would put up a howl like that negro girl. I would tell him, "Master I do not want to be fired. Keep me and I will show you that I can do my duty so as to please." What kind of a servant are you? Do you need firing because you are so lazy and triffling?

One thing that hasn't come back during the depression is the old-fashioned nickelodeon.

Who remembers the good old days when the girl who smoked cigarettes was only spoken of in a hushed whisper?

Another advantage which the horse had over the modern automobile is that you didn't have to fill him with anti-freeze solution every fall.

Now as soon as the baseball season is finished and the World Series taken care of, we can seriously get down to the business of politics.

The way it begins to look now, it won't be long until King Cotton will be back on his throne again.

If any free trader thinks the present tariff bill is keeping out all the foreign commodities just let him take a trip through the nearest five and ten cent store.

It is very doubtful whether Governor Roosevelt's plan to regulate the sale of securities will add much to the price of hogs.

EIGHT AMENDMENTS

Official advertisements are now appearing in the newspapers of the state setting forth eight constitutional amendments upon which the people are to vote in Alabama on November 8. The eight amendments which are to be passed upon embrace the following subjects:

To authorize a $20,000,000 bond issue for the payment of state debts.

To authorize an income tax on all incomes in excess of $1,500 for unmarried and $3,000 for married persons.

To authorize counties and cities to borrow money from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

To authorize sheriffs of Alabama to be eligible to succeed themselves in office.

To authorize abolishing the fee system for payment of county officials in 13 specified Alabama counties.

To authorize cities of 1,000 to 6,000 population to incur indebtedness equal to 8 per cent of the assessed values of such cities.

To authorize each county of Alabama to have one member in the state senate.

To authorize abolishing the fee system for county officials in Mobile county.

Editorially on September 13th, the Alabama Journal of Montgomery had the following to say regarding these amendments to be voted on in November: "This is not only too many amendments to the organic law to submit at one time, but general election day is not an appropriate time to vote upon them because the attention of the voter is on other things and he is unlikely to give amendments the carfeul consideration that ought to be given to important changes in the constitution."

Senator Allen remarked the other day in a political address that the success of the Roosevelt-Garner ticket would establish the pork barrel as the emblem of our national security. That emblem would go very well with the slogan chosen and paid for by three Democratic senators: "Hee! Haw! We're coming back."

Did you ever hear a fisherman tell the truth?

Yes, I heard one call another a liar.

The Bus and Truck Bill

I understand that a bill is to come up before the Alabama legislature in the near future which will tend to cut down the excess haulage over our state highways. I hope our Hon. Percy M. Pitts will see fit to vote FOR the passage of that bill. It may be seen that unless something is done in the near future, our fine Birmingham-Montgomery highway will be a thing of the past. It already looks like a crazy quilt pattern where the repair squads of the highway department have poured the cracks and holes full of tar, slag, and other kinds of repair material. At last it seems that people are waking up to the fact that this road can not stand up under the abuse it is being subjected to. At least one Chilton County man has already written Mr. Pitts a letter asking that he support this bill—suppose you sit down RIGHT now and write him (Mr. Pitts) asking that he do all he can toward cutting down on the excess loads this highway is carrying. We have been needing some kind of legislation along this line for several years. Let's hope it goes over this time.

What Do They Stand For

H-O-O-V-E-R. H—for Hurricane—the one Mr. Hoover will stage in sweeping Mr. Roosevelt and the other Democrats out with him in his return to office. OO—for the way Mr. Roosevelt must keep his eyes if he expects to even keep in sight of Hoover. V—for victory in the coming election. E—that's for easy—the way Mr. Hoover will win. And R—that's for re-election, just as sure as November comes. Now:

R-O-O-S-E-V-E-L-T. R—for ruin, to begin with; it'll be worse bye and bye. OO—for Oh! Oh!—just too bad for Roosie. S—for Sinking; later it will stand for sunk. E—now, there's two of those E's in the name Roosevelt; I guess we might put them together to help spell the "beer" Mr. Roosevelt's friends seem to want so badly. V—that's for Vatican from which the pope directs his Catholic forces to vote for Mr. Roosevelt. L—for the lost cause. And T—for the tombstone to mark Franklin D.'s political grave after November.

Doing Double Duty

Jess Baker calls around and says let our readers know that all money taken in at his store next Saturday will do double duty in the Good Samaritan contest. That is, if you go to his store and spend a dollar, or pay a dollar on account, you will receive 200 votes, instead of the usual 100, to give to your favorite church in the contest. Don't forget—they count double, whether or not it is purchased or paid on account—next Saturday, September 17.

In School Again

Last Monday morning I went up by the Clanton Grammar School, and what a flock of Johnnies and Marys and Bills and Sarahs there were on hand to enter school. Gee! What a bunch! I didn't wait over to see how overcrowded they were up there, but I know that must surely be the case. Usually the full force doesn't enter until the school is about a month gone—if that proves to be the case this year, it's going to be just too bad for all former attendance records. Go to it, kiddies—you'll be glad later on.

The Rifle Age

Everybody and his brother seem to be getting ready to do their hunting with a rifle this year. I don't think I have ever seen so many fellows carrying rifles around with them. Lots of people are buying new ones. Maybe the depression has made it too expensive to hunt with shotguns. And lots of the fellows are getting their aim in trim by practicing on the big wharf rats down at the town trash pile. Nearly every afternoon you can find a bunch of the boys down there giving the big rodents hot lead. I take a hand in this rifle shooting every now and then, too. Believe I'll go see if I can find a rat still enough to hit.—Man in the Moon.

Mrs. Wade Coming Home

James Wade tells me that his mother, the beloved "Miss Belle", will return home in a few days, after a visit of several weeks with Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Collier, at Modesto, California. I am sure Mrs. Wade has had a most wonderful time on her trip. She will have lots of talking to do when she returns and begins to tell her friends all she saw and learned about the "Golden West."

Use Corn for Fuel

A news item in the papers says that the Commissioners of Colfax County, Nebraska, have decided to heat the courthouse and 62 county school buildings with corn the coming winter. They figure it will provide a ready market for the farmer's surplus of corn, and save the county some money at the same time. They can buy corn on the cob at $8 per ton, the dispatch said, while they have to pay $12 a ton for coal. The Commissioners urged that home owners throughout Colfax County use corn for their winter fuel.

A Mighty Low Price

One member of Alabama's Legislature is quoted as saying if he were not worth $8 a day to the State of Alabama, he would resign from the legislature and go home. To which the Birmingham News remarks if it were left to the people of Alabama to estimate, they would likely say the whole legislature is not worth $8 a day. I agree with John Temple Graves, of the Age-Herald, that the members of the legislature ought to be and could be worth considerably more than they are getting. But still The News is about right as to how the people of Alabama fell about it at this time.

We Are Just Weak that Way

It is awful sad that we poor mortals can't always stop and think before we say the wrong thing at the wrong time in the wrong place. What a mess we get into when we have to back up and try to "fix" some fool thing we have said. As a rule, the more we try to "fix" such a mistake, the worse we make it. Stop, look, and listen is good advice at a railroad crossing. Think twice before you speak is good advice for those of us who need to bridle the unruly tongue.

Percy Wants You to Know

Percy Pitts, our representative in the legislature, says he wants the people of Chilton County to know that he is not one of the members of the House who are opposed to cutting the pay of members of the legislature. "I promised when the special session was called, to vote to cut the pay of members of the legislature," said Mr. Pitts, "and I did that very thing."

Some Ham and Chickens Left

It is a sign of satisfaction to know that Dr. Ezell was able to go out bright and early Monday morning and come back home in a few minutes with a sack full of frying chickens under one arm, and a big country cured ham under the other. This in spite of the fact that a big meeting had been in progress here the week before, with a couple of visiting preachers to be fed. The resources of this community surely are unlimited. From what I heard Ezell say a while back I judge there was not a yaller leg nor a ham left in twenty miles of Bagdad, Kentucky, when he finished a ten-day meeting there in July.

A Compliment to Dr. Haskew

A publishing concern in Terre Haute, Indiana, gets out a book each year, composed of fifteen of the best sermons submitted by a large number of ministers. They call upon Dr. Haskew, of Clanton Methodist Church each year to submit a sermon. He was gratified a few days ago to receive a copy of the book with his sermon in it. This is the fifth time in the past ten years that Dr. Haskew's sermon has appeared in the book.

Better Keep the Farm Agent

I notice down in Autauga County, the economy bug has bit the County Commissioners, and they forthwith voted to cut off the County Agent, as a means of retrenchment. It is all right to retrench. Many of the counties need more of that kind of medicine. But there is a right place and a wrong place to apply the knife. To put it on the County Agent is applying it at the wrong place. During these kind of times our farmers need the County Agent more than ever. The people of Autauga are going to ask the Commissioners to keep the Farm Agent, and here's hoping they do.

Lande is Pleased

The sharp revival of local trading as manifested in the stores of Clanton during the past week brought a big broad smile of satisfaction to Maurice Lande, of The Leader. The continual ring of the cash register, and the stream of people passing in and out of the store brought back to Mr. Lande a little glimpse of the good old days. "But people are thoughtful of what they buy now," said Mr. Lande. "They do not spend their money and take no thought of the morrow. Every dollar a man spends now, he is doubly sure he gets one hundred cents worth of value, and we are amply able to satisfy that kind of buyers at our store," he said.

The extremity of hard-boiled charity seems to have been reached at Salina, Kan., where local workers have decreed that automobile owners will have to surrender their license tags before they can receive further aid.

The Republicans have got used to "Silent Cal," and they rather like it. But "Silent Al," is a new one for the Democrats, and how they do worry about it!

With 250,000 more votes cast in the Republican primary in California than in the Democratic primary where the contest was equally hot, the Democratic forecasts that the Golden State will go for the Roosevelt Garner ticket seem just a trifle strained.

Arthur Brisbane is authority for the statement that one New York house has $200,000 to bet on the election, but is making few wagers because the Roosevelt people demand "such intolerable odds." It you are looking for straws in the wind, take a glance at that.

AGRICULTURAL CORPORATION IS SET UP IN MONTGOMERY

An agricultural corporation organized under Act of Congress is being set up at Montgomery with sufficient capital to be State-wide in its service and operation.

While this is primarily designed for the purpose of enabling farmers to have more and better livestock, it will also be used for crop production.

Our understnding is that the government will demand business-like and conservative loans, but the purpose is to assist in increasing our agricultural earning power.

We think that each county should thoroughly investigate the opportunities offered by the credit corporation and we are very glad to bring this to the attention of our people, that the farmers, merchants, bankers, and the agricultural workers may acquaint the people with the operation of the credit cooperation.

Our pastor was absent Sunday morning and Rev. Homer Carroll filled his place and delivered a wonderful sermon. It was enjoyed very much by those who were present. If the young people would follow the footsteps of this young man, Brother Carroll, this word would be a pleasant place to live in.

The singing was a great success Sunday afternoon. The directors were; J. W. Lowery chairman, K. V. Lowery, Marvin Lowery, D. T. Melton, Earl Williams, Cornelious Hand, Houston Melton, Chester Maddox, and a ten-year old boy from Thorsby, and Roscoe Maddox. Frank Calloway Gets Four Years

Thirty-three defendants, nearly all of them prisoners in the county jail and charged with violation of the prohibition law yesterday entered pleas of guilty and were fined or sentenced when arraigned before Judge Charles B. Kennamer, of the United States District Court.

The heaviest sentence was meted to Frank Calloway, of Chilton County, who received four years in the Atlanta penitentiary on charges of distilling and other allegations pertaining to violation of the prohibition law. Calloway was the victim of an "accidental" shot fired by Federal Prohibition Agent Fridge about two years ago during a raid on a still. He was at liberty under a suspended sentence at the time, but the court did not put the sentence into effect as the shooting was considered sufficient punishment at the time, and the charge of assault to mured was nol prossed. Calloway was again arrested about a month ago and new cases docketed against him.

Judge Kennamer in opening court yesterday requested all men who had been made trusties in the county jail to stand. Seven white men and 15 negroes arose. They took their seats, however, when Judge Kennamer explained that by "trusties" he meant those who were allowed to walk about within the office or without the locked entrance to the jail.

The poll of the prisoners was taken following the recent escape of Edgar Hoyle, who was a trusty and who escaped when the jailer did not lock him in the trusty's cell.

Judge Kennamer announced that the court would not tolerate the practice of allowing prisoners to walk around in an unlocked section of the jail. The court has no objections to prisoners having privileges, he said, but the Federal Government will not tolerate Federal prisoners getting out and walking around in the jail unless there is a locked door leading to the outside.

Prisoners held for felonies should be locked in cells, he declared, and those held for midemeanors may walk around in the corridors provided they remain behind locked doors.

Judge Kennamer said he had received complaints of mistreatment of prisoners in the county jail and requested those in the courtroom to make their complaints to him. No complaints were made. The judge declared that the court would see that all prisoners were treated humanely but they need not expect hotel accommodations.

In addition to the prohibition defendants pleas of guilty were entered for two other offenses. Willie Mosley pleaded guilty to forgery of a government check and was sentenced to a year and a day at Chillicothe.

William Ranck pleaded guilty to the theft of an automobile and the case was continued for sentence.

Andrew Hogue, held on a charge of impersonating a Federal officer, was exonerated when the Grand Jury declined to return an indictment against him, and he was ordered discharged from jail.

Others who plead guilty to violating the prohibition law were:

Oscar Mims, two years in Atlanta; Fate Cleckler, Leonard Cleckler and Harlod Mims, continued for sentence; Eleazor Mims, a year and a day in Chillicothe; Ralph Harrell, 2 years in Chillicothe; George Williamson, eighteen months Atlanta, five years probation; Clifton Wright, 18 months Chillicothe, suspended, five years probation; Calvin Watson, year and a day at Chillicothe; Lloyd Massey, year and day at Chillicothe; B Ward, six months jail suspended, probation; George Churchwell, to report September 19; Robert Taylor, continued for sentence; Berkley Burns, continued for sentence; Allen Perry, five years probation; Jesse Pollard, five years probation; Columbus Young, five years probation; Tom Pickett, continued for sentence; Allen Cothell, $50 fine, four months jail, suspended, probation; O. C. Lesson for September 18

THE REPORTS OF THE SPIES

GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? the Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?

LESSON TEXT—Numbers 13:17-14:45.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Two Brave Spies.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Scouting Through the Promised Land.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Brave and the Cowardly Scouts.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How Faith Gives Courage.

I. The Spies Sent Out (13:17-20).

Less than two years have passed since the Israelites were delivered from Egyptian bondage. They are now at Kadesh-barnea within sight of the Promised Land. Moses urged them to go in and take immediate possession (Deut. 1:21). But they failed to do so because of unbelief (Heb. 3:19). The record in Deuteronomy 1:19-25 shows that God did not take the initiative in sending out the spies, but that the people, because of lack of faith, made the request. There was a threefold purpose in sending out the spies:

1. To see whether the land was as God had told them (v. 18).

2. To see whether the people who dwelt there were strong or weak, few or many (v. 18).

3. And to see whether the cities were made up of strongholds or of tents (v. 19).

II. The Commission Executed (13:21-23).

They entered the land from the south and traversed it to its northern limits. On their return they gathered some specimens of fruit.

III. The Spies Rendered Reports (13:26-33).

On their return this committee of explorers rendered both a majority and minority report to the entire congregation (v. 26).

1. The majority report (vv. 26-29)

a. "The land floweth with milk and honey" (v. 27).

b. The people who live there are strong (v. 28).

c. The people live in walled cities (v. 28).

d. The land is inhabited by giants (v. 28 cf. v. 33). In comparison with the inhabitants they saw themselves as grasshoppers. Furthermore, they saw the people so distributed that it seemed impossible to conquer them.

2. The minority report (vv. 30-33). This report in part agreed with the first. It did not ignore the difficulties nor dispute the facts, but it did deny the conclusion of the majority. They did not minimize the task before them, but asserted that with God's help they were well able to get possession of the land, and therefore urged immediate action.

IV. The Rebellion of the People (14:1-44).

1. This rebellion began by crying (vv. 1-3). They even wished that they had died in the wilderness or in Egypt. God took them at their word. He sent them back to wander in the wilderness for thirty-eight years, during which time all of that generation died except Caleb and Joshua.

2. Proposition to return to Egypt (vv. 4-10). They proposed to select a captain as their leader. Joshua and Caleb protested against this, which so exasperated the people that they were about to stone them when God manifested his glory before all Israel in vindication of the loyalty of Joshua and Caleb.

3. God's wrath upon the people (vv. 11, 12). Because of their unbelief God purposed to smite them with pestilence, disinherit them, and supplant them with a nation mightier than they.

4. Moses' intercession in behalf of the people (vv. 13-19). Moses plead with God against this judgment because the Egyptians would hear of it and blaspheme and this they would pass on to the other nations, saying that God was not able to bring them into the land.

5. The Lord's response to Moses' plea (vv. 20-30). He assured Moses that he had granted pardon according to his intercession but told him that although he would bring them into the land according to his promise, yet with the exception of Joshua and Caleb the men of that generation should be debarred.

6. The presumption of the people (vv. 40-44). Having in unbelief refused to go up at the command of Moses, they now in presumption go.

V. The People Smitten by the Amalekites and Canaanites (v. 45).

Because the people refused to heed Moses and presumptuously attempted to go up, God permitted the Amalekites and Canaanites to come down upon them to their destruction.

Says No Promise of Jobs Has Been Made To Anyone

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space to say a few words to the voters of Chilton County.

It has been rumored, so I understand, since the primary that I have promised jobs to some certain people and that some had asked me to promise them jobs if they would support me.

Now, none of this is true. As I have stated before in the paper, I have promised no one a job neither have I promised any one any special favors in return for their support or otherwise.

If I am elected in November, I will have no strings tied to me. I am not now neither will I be obligated to anyone except the whole people as impartially as I know how.

I will be free to serve the people and all the people to the very best of my ability and judgment.

If I am elected I will not be commissioner for any one man or for any set of men. My obligation as I see ti will be to serve all the people, and serve them all alike from one side of the county to the other.

I realize now and have from the beginning, that should I resume the duties of the office to which I aspire, tied to any one or to any set program, by promise or otherwise, I could not serve the people as a whole. I am giving you my word and honor that I will not assume the responsibilities of that or any other office under such conditions. I feel that should I do so I would be most ungrateful to the people who have placed their confidence in me. All I ask is that you give me a chance to prove that the charges are false.

Permit me to say again I appreciate to the fullest extent the confidence bestowed in me in the primary, and it is my purpose never to betray that confidence.

In conclusion let me insist that we all put our shoulders to the wheel, so to speak, and push on to the greatest victory for the Republican party we have ever had.

Yours for the success of the Republican party.—C. D. Duke.

ACTRESS PRESENTS A FINE PERFORMANCE

Outshining even her previous successful performances in "Golddiggers of Broadway," and two productions for Trem Carr in which she played starring roles, Helen Foster presents remarkably brilliant performance in "The Ghost City," Monogram Western, to be shown at the Wadesonian Theatre, Friday and Saturday, September 16 and 17.

Miss Foster, who appears in "The Ghost City" as Bill Cody's leading lady, was seen in "Should a Girl Marry," and "Sweet Sixteen," for Trem Carr, who also supervised the Monogram picture. She also appeared in "So Long Letty" as well as other major productions.

"The Ghost City," which stars Bill Cody and 12-year-old Andy Shuford, like other Monogram Westerns, is action from start to finish. Opening with a thrilling cross-country chase, the story carries on through, gunduels, safe crackings, thrilling rides, hand-to-hand battles, a duel in an abandoned mine, a gold stampede and a mine explosion, all leading up to a thrilling denouement, which makes it, without doubt, the most thrilling picture of the year.

Others in the cast are the versatile Walter Miller, Kate Campbell, Charles King, Walter Shumway and Jack Carlyle. Harry Fraser directed fro his original story. "The Ghost City" is Fraser's fourth "Bill and Andy" Western.

AGE OF CONSENT IS COLLEGE LOVE DRAMA

A college love match is the basis of the drama in "The Age of Consent," RKO-Radio picture which is coming to the Wadesonian Theatre Monday and Tuesday, September 19 and 20.

Betty (Dorothy Wilson) and Michael (Richard Cromwell), students at a small Eastern coeducational college, are engaged. But the gay, half promiscuous life of the campus disrupts their romance.

Betty finds secret pleasure in the attentions of Duke, the college Casanova (Eric Linden). Michael is kidded into escorting home Dora (Arline Judge), a pretty waitress at the campus drug store.

A bottle, some innocent necking and a sudden outburst of emotion sends Michael and Dora into a situation which Dora's father declares must be given legal approval by a justice of the peace. The wedding is just about to take place when Betty and Duke are badly injured in an auto accident.

The wedding party moves to a hospital room where in a climactic scene the conflicting motivation is worked out to a satisfactory conclusion.

Arline Judge, playing the role of Dora, a waitress, in RKO-Radio pictures' "The Age of Consent," has a line that makes hard-boiled sophmores blush.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL

Football practice got under way in dead earnest last Monday at Chilton County High School, with 23 aspirants answering the call. Limbering up exercises, passing, punting, line charging and other preliminary workouts have been the principal items on the menu thus far. Only seven letter men are back on the scene around which to build a team for this year. Only four or five others have had as much as a year's experience, and most of them are rather light, but the entire squad is extremely enthusiastic with several recruits making bids for berths.

The Tigers' schedule is as follows:

Sept. 24—Ramsey Tech, at Legion Field, Birmingham.

Sept. 30.—Selma, at Selma.

Oct. 7—Shelby County High, here.

Oct. 14.—Autauga County High, at Prattville.

WINTER PROGRAM TO HELP NEEDY

Several Meetings To Be Held Friday Afternoon at 2:30 O'clock

The program for relief of unemployed, suffering and distressed people in Chilton County this winter is moving forward steadily. At a meeting at the courthouse last Saturday, a representative from the State Child Welfare department was present and rendered very valuable aid in outlining the program.

Judge Reynolds, W. L. Sanders, and C. E. Stapp were appointed as a committee to carry further organization plans for the coutny-wide movement that is caluculated to bring relief to those in need in-o-bring relief to those who need help of various kinds during this winter.

The primary purpose of the relief program is first to make a definite survey of conditions, and find out who it is that will need help and where they live and what their conditions and circumstances are. As a first step in this direction, a group of citizens from the various parts of the county were called to a meeting Tuesday afternoon. Those invited to this meeting were:

J. E. Cobb and Miss Lizzie McNeil, Jemison; E. G. Caldwell, Pletcher; L. H. Reynolds, C. E. Stapp, F. J. Callen, J. C. Page, B. Lawrence, Clanton; Hugh Taylor, Cooper; Mrs. F. C. Shanks, J. P. Payne, Maplesville; E. R. Piper, Carl Petersen, Thorsby; S. L. Gibson, Mrs. Irby Deramus, Mrs. H. B. Oliver, Verbena; W. L. Sanders, Clanton, Route 1; Frank Reynolds, Stanton; J. R. Owen, Clanton, Route 3.

At the meeting Tuesday afternoon it was determined to call meetings at various places in the county for carrying into the localities the program of finding out the people who will need help.

Meetings were called for Friday afternoon this week at these places: Providence Beat 13, Minooka, Union Grove, Blow Graveyard, Thorsby Town Hall, Collins Chapel, Jackson's Chapel, Fairview. A member of the county campaign committee named above will be in attendance at each of these meetings Friday afternoon.

In each of the communities it is especially desired that the unemployed people, and those in needy circumstances will be present in order that they may be listed. All citizens of the communities are urged to come to help with suggestions in completing the survey for those communities.

The above committee will be permanent to act throughout the period of necessity. Later on it is probable that a committee in each locality will be appointed to report on conditions as they actually exist and call for help.

The cooperation and hearty interest of every citizen in this movement is urgently needed and solicited. There is indication that much will be needed by suffering people in our country this winter. Diligent preliminary work is needed at this time in order that full information may be at hand when the critical time comes later on.

IS NOT THE ONE

Mr. George W. Williamson wishes to announce that the George Williamson who was convicted for violating the prohibition law is not he. The above George Williamson is the son of the late John Williamson, who died a few years ago. He lives at the old Mahan place, near the Cane Creek community.

FOURTEEN-FOOT SORGHUM

C. W. Gray of Bethsalem brought to the Banner office Saturday two stalks of very fine sorghum. The variety was Georgia Seeded Ribbon Cane and the two stalks were fourteen feet long. It had just headed and would have grown a foot or two taller. Mr. Gray says he will make it into syrup in about a month.

GRAND JURY CONVENES ON MONDAY SEPTEMBER 26TH

The Grand Jury of Chilton County will convene on Monday, September 26, for the purpose of investigating alleged violations of the law which have occurred since the sitting of the last Grand Jury.

Also during the week of September 26, a number of civil cases will be called for settling of pleadings, and pleas of guilty will be heard in state cases.

The regular jury term of the Circuit Court will begin on Monday, October 31st, with the first week devoted to trial of civil cases. State cases on the jury docket will be tried the second week, beginning on Monday, November 7th.

Hear Mr. Comer!

The Men's and Young Men's Classes of Clanton Baptist Sunday school on next Sunday morning will have the pleasure of hearing an address by Hon. Hugh M. Comer, of Sylacauga.

Mr. Comer is a son of the late Hon. B. B. Comer, one of the greatest governors Alabama has ever had. Hugh Comer is a worthy son of an honored and distinguished father. It is a rare privilege for the men of Clanton to hear him make an address.

Everybody is urged to take note of this announcement and make a special effort to get every man possible to attend the class next Sunday morning. Remember to be there on time promptly at 9:45.

WORKERS BUSY FOR CHURCHES

Votes Are Piling Up Fast In The Good Samaritan Contest

Last Saturday saw more activity than ever before in the Union-Banner's Good Samaritan buying campaign, and all through the first of this week, workers for various churches have been busy gathering votes. The double voting days put on by some of the merchants recently stimulated trade and activity greatly. Some more double voting is advertised by some stores for next Saturday; look up the advs., and see who they are.

We wish to urge the girls and others working for the different churches not to carry their vote-soliciting on in such way as to hinder or interfere with merchants. In fact, we believe it advisable that no soliciting be done within the stores, but rather, people should be urged to go to the stores giving tickets to do their trading, and after the votes are obtained by the buyers, then they might be turned over to those working for the favorite churches. And certainly in no case should a store clerk solicit votes while they are on duty. These are not rules of the contest, but The Union-Banner believes that it would be best for these suggestions to be observed by those interested in the contest.

You see, this is primarily a buying contest, intended to stimulate business for the participating merchants and business firms. It is intended to bring trade to these merchants that they would not get otherwise; and merely to ask for votes after the purchases are made does not help in this direction any. So, everybody interested in the contest please co-operate with us as best you can to stimulate business for the merchants and business men who are making the scheme possible by paying their money for the advertising.

Below we publish a list of the churches that have entered votes, and the number accredited to each Wednesday at noon:

Clanton Baptist	109,773

Concord Baptist	90,930

Hoover The Country's Best Bet for President

Editor's Note—If you are one of those persons who believe President Hoover has done nothing in the past four years to deserve the support of his countrymen in his campaign for re-election this year, we submit for your careful and serious consideration the article below. It was written by United States Senator, Arthur Capper, of Kansas. Mr. Capper is one of the most able statesmen in the United States Senate. He has had occasion to observe the administration of President Hoover closely and intimately. He is doubtless far more able to appraise the Hoover record than most of us who stand at a remote distance. We invite you to read what he says and think seriously about it.

It seems to be a true commentary on history in general that the peoples of most nations have usually been slow to recognize great leaders in the times of crisis that brought them forth. In our own short history, we know that Lincoln, much critised and humiliated, believed he could not be elected to a second term, although he was re-elected. Cleveland was scandalously abused, even by his own party. Roosevelt received more recognition while in office than most presidents, but probably was not appreciated at his true worth during his lifetime. And it still is disputed whether Woodrow Wilson will or will not be classed as a great President.

In the White House at the present time, the country has a man who is not a spectacular President. President Hoover, as I know him, is too honest to be a grandstander. He has courage and backbone plus. His knowledge of world affairs, of our own affairs, probably is surpassed by no other American. But he doesn't show off. He does not burn any red fire. He doesn't put on any sort of show, or stunt. He simply works at his job just as we work at ours, only longer and harder than most of us, and lets it go at that. Party politicians have always complained that Hoover never has tried to "sell" himself to the country. They want him to dramatize himself, as they call it; do some posing before the public once in a while, as some pretty good Presidents have done to show us they were Presidents and get a hand when perhaps they needed it.

Not so with Hoover.

There has been drama enough in his life, goodness knows. He has met and overcome more appalling difficulties in the last 18 years than some of the great figures in history. The present occpant of the White House has done plenty of things to entitle him to the limelight, before, during, and since the War. But he takes these things as a matter of course in his methodical matter-of-fact way. He cannot or will not pose.

So recently as the last nine months, Hoover has been our pilot through a series of tremendous national emergencies. Two of these emergencies were unprecedented; we have never seen their like before. One of them threatened the total collapse and impoverishment of this nation. It came after economic distress and credit prostration, resulting in panics, had brought about revolutions in 20 countries. Three-quarters of the population of the globe was affected.

The whole world had been shaken. Not one country escaped and it was our turn.

At one of the gravest moments of our own uncertanity, some of our good men and true became alarmed, then frightened, then lost their heads. But the President kept his.

At a White House conference of Republicans and Democrats from both houses of Congress, now nearly a year ago, President Hoover virtually made known his entire program of financial and economic relief.

It is when you see a man in action day after day under stress, as I have seen Hoover, that you really come to know him for what he is.

The critical moment I have in mind, was when winter was upon us last year. Millions of men were out of work, our public revenues had nearly dried up. To a large extent private incomes also had disappeared. Then foreign countries began withdrawing more than 2,400 million dollars from the United States. This included one billion dollars of our gold reserve. Where was it going to stop? Fear seized the people, they took more than 1,600 million dollars of their savings from the banks and hid the money.

The storm was world-wide, an after-war collapse, which, in our case, followed a colossial wave of stock market speculation and gambling. That only made it all the worse for us.

Many of us are only now beginning to appreciate how the President met all this with what may truly be called "the most gigantic program of economic defense and counter-attack" ever evolved in our history. Had the President failed us, had he weakened, it is not too much to say there would not be a bank open in America today. The whole economic and industrial fabric of the country would have been wrecked or paralyzed, and we ourselves would have gone down in the wreck.

Critics to be sure, have been free to criticize. They criticized even more in Lincoln's time. But they have been extremely backward about proposing any plans of their own. They have had little to offer except criticism.

During those trying months no one saw Hoover flinch or tremble. His courage and backbone were of the kind called for by the occasion. He stood grimly at his post. He stood over Congress for 8 months with his program that has saved us—until his patience and persistence won. Until, as William Allen White puts it, "he won more than any other President ever won in any other 8 months." It was legislative leadership "unmatched in American history."

During these crucial 8 months the President had to resort to heroic measures to block the famous Garner "pork barrel" bill. The Garner bill would have compelled us to tax ourselves for more than 3,000 millions of dollars for thousands of unneeded postoffices and for an enormous number of unremunerative public enterprises. During this time also President Hoover succeeded in cutting down national expenditures more than 700 million dollars. Imagine what it would have meant to the country to put 4,000 million dollars more on the tax bill this year! Hoover saved us that, a saving too enormous to comprehend.

Only recently has the president told us the story of those 8 months in his own way in his speech of acceptance. Mark Sullivan, the historian and political writer, finds nothing like it in all our history. He calls this address the most unvarnished, straight-forward state paper of its kind ever written. Hoover's honest frankness sticks out all over it.

In his document, the earnestness, the determination, the devotion of the President to the country, is evident. But it is the plainest kind of

A screen presentation of the talking picture "So Big," is being put on at the Wadesonian Theatre Wednesday and Thursday nights of the week. The entire proceeds of the house for the two nights will be given to the Boy Scouts of Chilton County.

The communities of Thorsby, Lay Dam, Mitchell Dam and Clanton, where Scout work is being done, are urged to turn out to see this program and thereby help the Scouts in their financial program.

CHILTON FARMERS SHOWING INTEREST IN BEEF CATTLE

County Agent, C. E. Stapp announces that on Saturday, September 24th, Chilton County farmers who are interested in beef cattle are invited to meet at his office at 7:30 and visit Dr. C. N. Parnell's farm at Maplesville.

There they will meet a committee who will inspect Dr. Parnell's beef herd and select such animals as they can approve to be put in the feeder calf sale in Montgomery at a later date.

Mr. Stapp thinks this will be of interest and very educational to the farmers who are interested in growing some beef cattle.

Among those who will likely make this trip are: H. S. Shaw, Dr. W. L. Parrish, J. N. Dennis, Geo. McCain, Leonard Easterling, Lorenza Popwell, B. Lawrence Arthur Martin, J. Z. Mims and C. E. Stapp.

Mr. Stapp urges any other farmers who are interested to either meet him at his office at 7:30, the 24th, or meet at Dr. Parnell's place at Maplesville by 8:00 o'clock.

A NEW BUSINESS FIRM ORGANIZED

Will Handle Popular Line of Farm Implements and Machinery

The Clanton Tractor and Implement Company is the style of a new business organization here, which will handle the McCormick-Deering line of farm implements and machinery. Buford Lawrence and Curtis Billingsley are the organizers of this business, and Mr. Billingsley will be the active manager.

The business will be located in the Maddox Warehouse building on the highway near the railroad bridge. A large line of McCormick-Deering farm implements will be carried in stock to meet the demands of farmers in this territory. Anything and everything in the McCormick-Deering (International Harvester Company) line of machinery will be handled by this concern, including International trucks, Farmall tractors, Chattanooga Plows, reapers, binders, wagons.

A repair service department for all farm machinery will be maintained in charge of Jimmie Lecroy, an expert and well-trained mechanic. This repair service will include work on trucks, tractors, and all kinds of automobiles.

A sales and business promotion department will be in charge of Mr. Leon (Shorty) Mullins. Mr. Mullins has spent several years in selling McCormick-Deering implements.

This concern extends an invitation to the farmers of Chilton County to visit them and study their farm needs. McCormick-Deering offers the most extensive line of implements and machinery for farm use, and it should prove a distinct advantage to farmers of Chilton County to have the splendid services which will be offered them through the organization of the Clanton Tractor and impelment Company.

BILLINGSLEY SCHOOL FINISHED

Charles and Brady Cooper, of Mt. Creek, who operate The Empire Construction Company, announce that they have finished the job of building a new $15,000 brick school building at Billinsgley.

"We had fine luck on the job," they said. "The work went through without a hitch, and not a man so much as mashed a finger. The building has passed official inspection by the state, and we are gratified that the inspector gave it rating as one of the best jobs in Alabama."

SINGERS MET IN ANNUAL SESSION

Chilton County Singing Convention At Maplesville Last Sunday

The county singing convention held at Maplesville last Sunday was one of the best that has ever been held in the county, both as to the quality of the singing and interest and attendance. The large auditorium of the Baptist church was filled to capacity, all the seating and standing room being occupied from the very beginning of the service.

The meeting was called to order about 10:30 o'clock by Mr. J. E. Wallace, postmaster at Maplesville, with a few very chosen remarks in the way of a welcome to the singers to his town. W. G. Culp, the county chairman, then sang the opening song and prayer was offered by Mr. W. E. Northrup of Maplesville. The voice of the gathering was taken as to how the program for the day should be arrived at, and the result was that the chairman should take the whole thing in hand and, without a committee or a fixed program, proceed with the singing.

Among the notable composers and directors of sacred song who were present and took part on the program were: Prof. J. M. Henson, Prof. B. L. Whitworth and Miss Virginia Powell, all of Atlanta, Ga.; Prof. P. B. Shaw of Brookside, Jefferson County; W. W. Bolin, Wilsonville; J. D. Stone of Shelby County; J. D. Deason of Bibb County; and Prof. J. B. Hammonds of Elmore County. Profs. Henson, Whitworth and Shaw were given unlimited time on the program, once in the forenoon and once in the afternoon. Three duets were sung by Prof. Henson and Miss Powell, and one duet was sung by Prof. Whitworth and Miss Powell. All were very feelingly rendered by these noted singers. In the afternoon a song was directed by the little nine-year old girl of Prof. Shaw, which was one of the most applauded features of the day.

Local directors who were given a place on the program were: A. H. Glasscock, L. T. Grant, I. D. Huett, O. L. Devaughn, Marion Easterling, H. W. Lowery and T. E. Wyatt. It was a regret of Mr. Culp and the convention as a whole that more local directors could not be used, but it was explained by the chairman that the convention felt obligated to give the visiting singers as much time as they would take, inasmuch as they had made a great sacrifice and gone to considerable expense to attend the gathering. This, of course, made it necessary to cut the local people short on their directing, which it is hoped was understood by the great number of singers present who could not be used on the program.

Shortly after noon a few minutes were taken to elect officers for the coming year, the result being the re-election of all former officers: Chairman, W. G. Culp; vice chairman, O. L. Devaughn; secretary, T. E. Wyatt.

Just preceding the close, a number of announcements were made, one of which was the state convention which meets in Birmingham the second Sunday in November and Saturday before. Mr. Culp also announced that two sessions of the Chilton county Singing Convention would be held next year, one in the spring and one in the fall.

The duet by Prof Whitworth and Miss Powell was the closing song, and the benediction was invoked with fitting and touching prayer offered by Rev. Paul Oden.

The convention was indebted to Messrs. Henson, Shaw and Glasscock for furnishing books for the singers. We trust that they did not lose many of their books but that they found purchases for lots of them.

FRIENDSHIP CHURCH

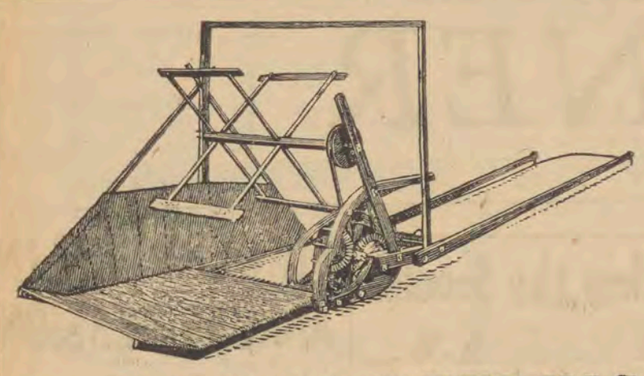
The pastor will preach at Friendship Saturday night, Sunday and Sunday night. Everybody has an invitation to attend. The Union Grove B. Y. P. U. will put on a program before preaching Sunday night. The singing society meets here Sunday afternoon.

VOCATIONAL BOYS AT JEMISON

Prof. J. P. Montgomery reports the largest enrollment of vocational students ever registered at Jemison High School. He has a total of 56 students in his department this year.

The boys have already completed some field trips in which they made studies of field insects and diseasses of cotton.

During the past week the class carried through the treatment of two large flocks of poultry for worms. At present they are engaged in making cuttings for home beautification. Innoculation for vetch will be studied by the class.



McCOMICK-DEERING

Farm Machines and Implements

We are pleased to announce that we have taken over the agency for the McCormick-Deering line of farm implements and machinery in Chilton County. We are prepared to serve the farmers with the best of every kind of farm implements.

Our place of business is at the old Maddox Warehouse on the Highway, near the Railroad Bridge. You are invited to come to see us when you are in Clanton.

We will maintain a repair and service department in charge of Mr. Jimmie Lecroy. This department will cover work on all farm machines, tractors, and automobiles and trucks.

REFUGE NEWS

Our Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. are moving along nicely.

Mr. J. S. Easterling and family were the dinner guests of S. J. Powell and wife Sunday.

Clark Powell and Mrs. Martha Jane Gentry dined with Miss Cleedie Easterling Sunday.

A large number of people enjoyed a birthday supper at the home of Mr. T. B. Easterling, given in honor of Mrs. T. B. Easterling and little Fannie Marie Lockhart's birthday. There were 17 cakes served.

Mrs. J. L. McDowell and children visited her daughter, Mrs. T. B. Easterling, of this community Saturday night.

Next Saturday and Sunday are our regular preaching days at this place. Everybody come and bring someone with you, for this is our regular communion day and we would like to have a large crowd.

CANE CREEK NEWS

I would like to publish a few word in regard to the good work going on at this place. Sunday school is improving rapidly, as everyone seems to be more interested in it. We had a good attendance last Sunday, and pray they will come regularly.

We had preaching on last Sunday a week ago by Rev. Lockhart of Refuge. It was a very impressive and ably delivered sermon. We were glad to have him with us, and we welcome him back to our church any and all times.

Last Sunday, Setember 18, brother Hull, of Coosa County, brought to us two very illustrated sermons; one at eleven o'clock a.m., and one at eight o'clock p.m. We were also glad to have Rev. Hull with us, as we feel he did much good in this community. The church was filled at both services. We especially invite brother Hull back with us any time he feels like it.

We had visitors from Walnut Creek, Friendship and other places, which we were glad to have. Visitors are always welcome to our church. Come and worship with us and receive a blessing you will be thankful for.

I must not leave out our prayer meeting. We have, I think I can say, a standard prayer meeting each Sunday night. Next Sunday night will be at Mt. Springs. We people have come together as one, and through the cooperation we find we can do more and have good prayer and praise services at both places. Next Sunday and Sunday night will be preaching at Mt. Springs. Let's all go out and hear Brother Nelson, as we all know he always brings a message worth hearing. We just hope our pastor, Rev. Trice, will see our piece from Cane Creek, and see the progress this church is making and best of all, he is the one to be praised over it.

He took our chuch when it was most tron up, and he has it going better than it has for many years. He already has baptized 19 this summer and 2 more to be baptized next first Sunday morning at Mt. Springs pond. And we have heard of more that will be added that day.

Remember our services at all times and bear in mind we need you to help us. So come and bring someone with you.

Mrs. J. A. Hester returned recently from Mobile, where Mr. Hester is under treatment. She brings encouraging reports from him.

Mrs. W. H. Connell of Stanton spent the first of this week with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cagle at Mitchell Dam.

REVIEW: MOSES HONORED IN HIS DEATH.

GOLDEN TEXT—Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints.

LESSON TEXT—Deuteronomy 32:48-52; 34:5-8.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Moses Goes to Live With God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Death of a Great Leader.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What We May Learn from the Life of Moses.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What the World Owes Moses.

I. Moses Debarred From Canaan (32:48-52).

This act of God strikingly displays the tragedy of an unfinished task. Moses was loyal to God and faithfully served him through a long life. Though his "eye was not dimmed nor his natural force abated," he was obliged to leave his work unfinished. This is true of all of us. However, the tragedy is only apparent. Life is a probation. The question is not of finished tasks, but fidelity in service and growth in divine grace.

1. The reason for (v. 51). It was sin. The nature of this sin is given in Numbers 20:1-13. It was his failure to sanctify the Lord at Meribah. This penalty, while severe, was not too severe, for the righteousness of God demands the meting out of penalty upon every transgression. This was too glaring a sin for the Lord to pass over, though Moses had served him faithfully for many years.

2. God's treatment of Moses (vv. 49, 50). While it was severe, it was yet most tender. It was in keeping with God's nature. While God cannot pass over sin, he is always as gracious as his justice will permit. He appointed the place of Moses' death on the mount of vision. Moses was gathered "unto his people."

II. Moses Views the Promised Land from Mount Pisgah (34:1-4).

At the Lord's bidding Moses ascended the mountain of Nebo from which he got a view of the promised land. He obeyed though he knew that he was to die there (32:50). He greatly desired to go into the land (3:25), but submitted to the will of the Lord. Though he was not permitted to enter the land, God gave him a view of the fullest dimensions of the land which was to be the inheritance of the people he had delivered and led for forty years. While Moses suffered this severe penalty, we should remember that his salvation was not affected. He was debarred from entrance to the land at that time, but we see him in the land some fifteen centuries later in a state of glory discoursing with Christ on the loftiest theme of the universe: namely, the death which he would accomplish at Jerusalem (Matt. 17:1-5; Luke 9:28-31).

III. The Death and Burial of Moses (34:5-8).

1. His death (v. 5). Though he died in the vigor of manhood, his work was done. God put him into the world for a purpose and as soon as that work was done he called him home. It is stated in verse five that he died according to the word of the Lord.

2. The burial of Moses (v. 8). God buried him. Moses had no human help or sympathy in his dying hour, but he had something better. The Lord was with him. His grave was concealed to prevent his people from making it a shrine.

3. The time of mourning for Moses (v. 8). They mourned for thirty days. It was customary to mourn for the dead from seven to seventy days. It is not wrong to lay away earthly friends even with tears, but as Christians we should not mourn as those who have no hope.

IV. An Encomium upon Moses (34:10-12).

In this eulogy Moses is given a place at the head of the Old Testament prophets. With the exception of the greater prophet (Deut. 18:15-18) of whom Moses was a type, he stands as the greatest prophet of Israel.

1. Because of his intimacy with God (v. 10). "Whom the Lord knew face to face."

2. He was great in that he gave to the world a code of laws unequalled in the world's history.

3. He was great as a general in that he liberated the Israelitish nation from the oppression of the greatest nation of the earth.

4. He was great because he led two or three million Israelites through the desert for forty years.

5. He was great because he gave to us in the book of Deuteronomy three orations, which, according to the judgment of competent critics, stand at the head of the world's literature.

Dr. and Mrs. Merrit Clements of Birmingham were visiting friends here Sunday afternoon.

ONE TELEPHONE LINE HAS EFFECTED GOOD PRINCIPLE

Word has reached the officials of the Peoples Telephone Company that the people on a line that runs from here up through the Mt. Pleasant and Liberty Hill communities have instituted a regulation that is intended to get everybody on their line to bear their part of the expense of the line and also to keep their central fees paid up. If their plan works successfully, and we see no reason why it should not work, this line will be setting an example that is well worth the emulation of other lines now coming into the central here.

When these people started to rebuild their line a few weeks ago, they got up a contract and went around and got everybody they could to sign it, agreeing to pay their part of the expense, and further agreeing to keep their central fees paid up. As a penalty for the breach of this contract, it gives the other members of the line, or their director or representative, a right to cut the phone of any such member loose from the line. The central operator is asked to keep the directors informed as to anyone on the line who tries to evade this contract.

The Board of Directors of the Peoples Telepone Company commends the action of the people on this line and recommends it to the other lines coming into the central. The greatest hinderance to the whole system is that individuals will not do their duty to their lines and to the central office. This is a matter that must be attended to by the groups of people on the individual lines and not by the company in general. Every line needs to be strictly organized, with officers elected with authority to act. It is no good for everybody to have equal authority and no one be vested with any executive rights; however, everone should carry his share of the load. And failure to do so should be sufficient grounds for such phoneholder to be disconnected from the line. If this rule were passed and every one understood it, it would not be out of place for it to be rigidly enforced.

The Board of Directors urges other lines to take this or similar actions. The annual meeting is not far off; and we hope to have the system in good working order by then. There has been lots of work done already this summer, and there is still more needed doing. Try and get your lines built up and organized by the time of the annual meeting about the first of November.

Mrs. C. Fenn Jones and Miss Frances Higgins were in Montgomery Sunday and visited the Big Brothers Bible Class, taught by Judge Leon McCord.

FARMERS ENDORSE SLAG

Thousands of Alabama farmers have found that basic slag actually does make a big difference in growing hairy vetch and Austrian winter peas for soil improvement. "I have received good results from basic slag with my legumes," said Edward Gowens, Rt. No. 2, Gadsden. "I applied 600 pounds basic slag per acre, inoculated the seed, and got a good stand of winter peas," said R. D. Pelton, Citronelle, Ala. He added: "The corn following has a fine chance to make 60 bushels per acre." E. L. Sitz, Alabama City, said, "I think it pays well to use slag with winter legumes."

PATES CHAPEL

Mr. C. N. Oden who has been in Pates Chapel community teaching singing school, returned to his home Friday morning in Birmingham. Mr. C. A. Maddox carried him in his car, and Misses Hazel Maddox and Myrtis Chestine accompanied them.

We are sorry to say that Misses Lucille and Lorene Cleckler are ill with diptheria. Her little sister has just recovered from it. We all hope and wish her a speedy recovery.

Misses Maude Wallis and Rubye Maddox and Mr. Roscoe Maddox spent Friday night in Pleasant Grove community with Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Maddox.

I think Mr. Popwell has been busy this week in Pates Chapel. He has given nearly every man and boy work to do, I believe, and the roads surely needed work.

Listen every community in Chilton County. I am a reader of The Chilton County News, and would like very much to hear from each and every community, especially Refuge, Liberty Hill, Oak Grove, and Center Hill.. Hope some one will take notice and print these pieces in the Chilton County News. Of course The Union-Banner is a good paper, nothing wrong with it, but I take the Chilton County News. I would thank you very much.

The singing at Pates Chapel Sunday evening was splendid. Our chairman, Mr. C. A. Maddox, and organists, Misses Hazel Maddox and Rubye Smith. Directors for the evening were Messrs. C. A. Maddox, Roscoe Maddox, B. O. Blow, Eugene Cleckler, Marion Smith, and Misses Emily Pate, Zelma Hayes, Rubye Maddox, and Emma Robinson.

The songs were sung from the new Morris Henson "Songs of Praise." We enjoyed having all the visitors and singers. You are cordially invited back to Sunday School every Sunday, and preaching services every Friday, Saturday night, an dSunday mornings at 11 o'clock, and especially every third Sunday evening.

Misses Matha Hayes and Carrie Bolton were the dinner guests of Miss Mildred Hayes Sunday.

Miss Smith, of Thorsby, visited Miss Emily Pate Sunday afternoon, also was present at the singing.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Hayes and little son, Virgil, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Maddox Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Riley Hayes were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hayes Sunday.

We were indeed glad to have our teacher for this term to be with us Sunday. She and her family were present at our church Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Rainwater and three children. They were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Blow.

God, in His wisdom and love, has released the spirit from its tenement of clay and taken him to be with Him forever.

91% of All Human Ills Originate In Stomach

Failure to Supply Body With Essential Minerals Allows Excessive Acids to Destroy Health and Vitality.

Medical science, constantly searching for ways to prolong life, frequently come forward with startling statements of their findings, but no more astounding announcement has been made in recent years than the statement of an eminent Chemist who now declares that "There is no natural death. All deaths from so-called natural causes are merely the end point of progressive acid saturation."

TIMELY WARNING

An amazing statement indeed but a warning, that if heeded, should improve the health and well being, increase the joy of living, and prolong the lives of millions of men, women and children who might otherwise drag through a weary life to an untimely end.

ACIDITY KILLS MILLIONS

Health authorities now agree that 91% of all diseases originate in the stomach and are caused by poor cooking, improper diet, and the eating of highly refined foods. Your doctor knows that the 11 essential Minerals and all Vitamins are contained in foods in their natural state and could he live with you constantly, carefully select and prepare everything you eat, you would never need medicines of any kind. This being impossible, science has been searching for years, trying to compound a formula that would make up for the deficiencies of these vital elements—and at last their efforts have been rewarded.

AID TO NATURE

LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND, a new and revolutionary formula, actually supplies the system with these vital elements so necessary to health and happiness. It contains the eleven essential Minerals in well balanced proportion, together with Vitamins, and is an invaluable aid to nature in the building of blood, bone, nerve and tissue.

ELIMINATES POISONS

It will rid your system of excess acid, sweep away the dangerous poisons, supply the body with the needed minerals, stimulate the organs of digestion and assimilation, build rich, red blood, clear the skin, give you a keen, hearty appetite, help you to get sound, refreshing sleep, restore health, strength and vitality and enable you to enjoy life to the fullest.

MAKE THIS 10 DAY TEST
Convince Yourself!

Stop dosing yourself with "patent medicines," harsh purgatives, oils and cathartics for just 10 days. Go to your nearest Druggist and secure a bottle of LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND. Take it regularly, and watch the results. You'll be amazed at the feeling of renewed strength and vigor that soon appears. No narcotics or alcohol to "boost you up" but a natural method of restoring health and energy.

For Sale by Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton, Ala., and other good Drug Stores Everywhere. Or send $1.25 to Lee's Laboratories, 365 Peachtree Arcade, Atlanta, Ga., for a large bottle, postage paid.

DANGEROUS LEGISLATION

If either House Bill 145 or the substitute for this bill shall become law, it will remove effectively every vestige of power the department of insurance now has to protect policy holders. Both the original bill and the substitute purport to be a complete law governing burial associations. This is ridiculously true to the extent that it will give the companies a free hand to do absolutely as they elect—to rob the policy holders if they choose; to laugh at administrative officers and the Courts, because the remedies of both have been removed. For example: There is no provision for declaring a company insolvent; none to protect the public if it has exceeded its power; no remedy to use if its proceedings shall be hazardous to prevent rebating; none to stop discrimination; none to prevent gross misrepresentation; none to prevent the company from issuing contracts of insurance which will absolutely deceive the policyholders.

On the other hand, both the original and the substitute will specifically permit burial companies to issue a contract which will not show on its face the value of the commodities and services which it purports to render. This will legalize a fraud and is specifically set out in Section 4 of both the original and substitute bill. It is difficult to conceive how anybody familiar with insurance is willing to assume responsibility for enacting into law provisions so adverse to the policyholders' interest.

The original bill specifically states in Section 5 that a company can fix its own rates. While the substitute bill in Section 5 undertakes to set out a schedule of rates, which is absurd on its face. For example: The substitute bill provides the same rate from ages 18 to 60 inclusive. The death rate of people at age 60 is approximately four times as great as it is at age 18. Therefore, to charge the person age 18 the same rate as the person 60 for the benefits is legally to permit gross inequity.

Section 8 of the original and the substitute bill will legalize fraud, for this section states that the reserve shall be $1.50 per $100.00 of insurance. For example: A 15 pay life burial contract for $100.02 purchased at age 66 would have a reserve the second year, according to the present law, of $4.29. This money which belongs to the insured, but which the company could take all except $1.50. The reserve the 15th year would be $377.72 while the proposed law sets out 71.50. This will give the company the right to take $76.22 of the insured's money. If this isn't legalizing a fraud, what is it? Both the original and the substitute bill states specifically that the company can include accounts receivable, pre-paid licenses, taxes and insurance as assets. This provision will permit a company to use accounts not barred by the Statue of Limitations, and to use them regardless of their value as assets to protect policyholders. It will permit licenses and taxes paid the state to be counted as assets of the company. Under such a provision a company could show in its statement hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of assets of no value whatever.

Both the original and the substitute bill provides that the state must pay either the whole or the major portion of the cost of examining these companies. This further increases the financial burdens of the state, and it seems to have more now than it can bear.

Moreover, the original and the substitute bill provide that we can not make an examination more often than once a year. The present law gives us the right to make examinations at any time, and this is wise. We are now required by law to make an examination at least once in two years. The provision for making examinations but once a year is an exceedingly dangerous provision from the viewpoint of public protection.

Section 6 of both the original and substitute bill will, in my judgment, prevent approximately fifteen to seventeen of the small companies from qualifying. They have issued contracts they are obligated to discharge. This provision is manifestly unfair in the first place, and almost useless in the second place.

There are other objectionable provisions in the bill which time and space prevent including here. Both the original and the substitute bill are, in my sincere opinion, exceedingly dangerous from the standpoint of public protection. Both ought to be seriously condemned by the public that they will not be enacted into law.—Respectfully yours, Chas. C. Grier, Superintendent of Insurance.

Emmett Singleton has returned from the Veterans Hospital at Hines, Ill. He says he is much improved in health.

Mrs. Lillie Belle Davis has accepted a position with The Fair Store. She invites her friends to call on her.

A LITTLE BUNDLE OF SUNSHINE

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your next issue for the following:

The citizens of Clanton can be mighty proud of their youngest social worker they have in their midst unknowingly. The little cheery 9-year-old daughter of your leading pastor, little Grace Ezell, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. S. J. Ezell, has been spreading sunshine in the jail for sometime past and making our burdens lighter with her cheery smile and sunny disposition. And we have come to look forward to her little visits.

She brought back to me memories of my childhood days, and a quotation I heard when a boy "A little child shall lead them," which I have always thought of in later years. whenever I see grownups with children, for the children can always lead us and we all know a child will never lead us wrong. And in closing, I wish to congratulate the Rev. and Mrs. Ezell for their kindess in allowing their little one to call on us and I thank little Grace for her pleasant visits.—Andy Gerber.

40 MEN IN NIGHT SCHOOL

According to Prof. J. P. Montgomery, the night school at Collins Chapel is a record-breaker. The enrollment of regular attendance has reached 40 men, and there is a large number of visitors at each meeting. Visitors are always welcome, said Mr. Montgomery.

The class meetings are held at seven o'clock on Tuesday and Friday nights of each week. Demonstrations have been made in the use of dust guns and spray mixtures for small fruits. Analysis of fertilizer for strawberries has been the subject of much interest, as the farmers attending the school are in the heart of Chilton County's strawberry section. "Work on a Live-at-Home Program" and other valuable subjects will be taken up as the school progresses.

Miss Leacy Newell, of Jemison High School, conducts a night school for women at the same time and place. There is a large enrollment. They study subjects about clothing.

Recent visitors to the night schools were Superintendent B. Lawrence, County Agent Stapp and Mr. C. J. Hayden, agricultural agent of the L. & N. Railroad.

KEMP-DIAL WEDDING WAS IN MONTGOMERY TUESDAY

While a fifteen-minute period of the program over WSFA was being rendered in dedication to them, Mr. Tom Kemp of Clanton and Mrs. C. L. Dial of Montgomery were joined together in the holy bonds of matrimony. The ceremony took place at the home of Mrs. Dial's brother, Meadow Lowery, at 609 South Court Street, Montgomery, and it was very fittingly performed by Dr. S. J. Ezell of the Clanton Baptist church. The hour was between 4:30 and 4:45 Tuesday afternoon.

Nearly everybody in Chilton County knows Tom Kemp as a successful merchant and a staunch Christian gentleman. Mrs. Dial formerly lived here. She is the daughter of Mr. T. L. Lowery, who for a while was manager of the Nettles grocery store in Clanton.

THORSBY SECTION

(S. E Norton, Manager)

During the past week Thorsby has had several interesting public meetings. The opening exercises for the 27th year of Thorsby Institute was Wednesday morning. The auditorium of Jenkins Hall was fairly well filled with members of the faculty, students, old and new, many citizens of the town and several visitors from outside. The principal address was made by Rev. Gerald Harris, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Green Pond, Ala., whose address was well received by the audience. Others having a part on the program were Miss Jenkins, principal of the Thorsby Institute, Rev. E. W. Butler, who always has something worth hearing on such occasions. The singing of Alma Mater, composed by Miss Perry, a former member of the faculty, gave evidence that vacation days had not dimmed its lustre. Mr. Maddox, registrar of Thorsby Institute gave a spirited talk, somewhat of a whoop-it-up nature. Miss Helen E. Phillips, the new member of the faculty in charge of the music department, who recently graduated from the conservatory of music at Oberlin College, Oberlin, Ohio, delighted the audience, not only with her personal appearance, but with evidence of her skill in the use of a piano. Altogether it was considered an auspicious opening for another year of Thorsby Institute.

On Friday night of last week the annual reception, given by the Ladies Guild of Thorsby, to faculty, students, alumni, trustees and their wives and contributing friends of Thorsby Institute, brought out a fine audience ready, not only to be entertained, but to help as they could in whatever way. The unique program for an outdoor moolight affair the ladies had engineered, was carried out with such success that there was not a dull moment. An enjoyable feature was the presence of J. O. Johnson and his Thorsby Concert Band, who made their initial appearance in public and did it well and plenty. They were far more generous than Miss Phillips, who gave one number with the piano. While the audience evidently wanted more, Miss Phillips evidently decided that conditions were not favorable to do justice either to the audience or herself, by playing against a wind which carried the music away from the audience. There have been many expressions of appreciation and votes of thanks to the Ladies Guild for the occasion.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

FOREST PROTECTION AFTER LOGGING

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 20.—At no time in the life history of a forest is absolutely fire protection so essential as during and immediately following the logging operation, according to J. M. Stauffer, Forest Inspector of the Alabama Commission of Forestry. At this critical time the determination of what species shall occupy the site is directly dependent upon the attitude or policy of the landowner. Even the so-called light surface fire should be eliminated, or the inferior or weed species such as the scrub oaks are apt to predominate in the new stand.

During the various steps in logging an area, such as cutting, swamping, skidding and hauling, the forest floor is stirred up, mixing the humus of high fertilizing value with the mineral soil and exposing the latter in many places. In this condition the soil is highly receptive to the seed fall and high percentage of germination may be expected. The new seedlings, together with those from the preceding year's seed fall, under the influence of direct sunlight and elimination of root competition soon flourish and cover the site. During succeeding years the vacant spots will seed in. "It must be remembered, however," says Mr. Stauffer, "that sufficient seed trees must be left on the area, otherwise the process will require a much longer time. This can be accomplished by cutting the timber to a 12 or 14 inch diameter limit, which will leave enough seed trees and at the same time be the source of future additional profit to the landowner."

BETTER BUTTER PLAN

Auburn, Ala., Sept. 20.—In an effort to raise the standard of Alabama butter, Prof. A. D. Burke, of the Auburn Dairy Department, has developed a plan for giving State endorsement to butter of superior quality. The state department of agriculture is cooperating in the effort.

Under the plan creamerymen who wish may submit samples of their butter to Prof. Burke who examines and scores it. If it attains the desired score the creameryman is permitted to sell his butter in a carton bearing the state stamp, by which consumers know that it is a superior product.

WINTER BEST TIME TO PLANT GROUNDS

Auburn, Ala. Sept. 20.—County farm and home demonstration agents are planning to assist many Alabama rural people in planting their home grounds during December and January, which, according to Sam F. Brewster, extension landscape specialist of the Alabama Poltechinc Institute, are probably the best months for doing this work.

Mr. Brewster said that many people make the mistake of waiting until spring to plant their home grounds and thereby run the risk of losing a large number of shrubs. Although December and January are the best months for shrub planting, plantings may be made with success as early as November and as late as Feoruary, he said.

Mr. Brewster mentioned several rules to be followed in home-ground planting. He said that both evergreen and deciduous plants should be used because if only evergreen plants are used the planting may seem too elaborate and expensive for a small home.

"The tallest plants and largest masses should be placed at the corners of the house," he continued. "The coarse textured plants should be used behind fine textured plants; and shrubs should be planted in irregular lines rather than in straight lines. Plants should be 'stepped down" that is high plants should have medium height plants set in front of them and low plants should be set in front of the medium height plants.

"As a general rule accent points of a building should be planted first," he added, and explained that corners and spaces between windows and porch columns are the more common accent points.

He said that tall plants may be used in front of accent points but that care should be taken not to set tall-growing plants in front of windows.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Rockett made a brief visit to Birmingham recently.

Wallace Jones has returned to Montgomery after a visit to his mother, Mrs. Willie Phillips Jones.

CUT FERTILIZER BILL

Dora, Ala., Sept. 20.—J. E. Hawkins a truck farmer of this community has made his entire farm rich by planting vetch. He has increased his corn yield from 12 to 15 bushels per acre to 40 and 50 bushels per acre.

Before he began to plant vetch in 1927 Mr. Hawkins' fertilizer bill was around $1,500 per year. After planting vetch three years, he found that his annual fertilizer bill had been cut to less than $500, and that his yields had been doubled.

FARM AND GARDEN QUERY BOX

(By K. C. Davis, Knapp School of Country Life, Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn.)

What are the best dates for the sowing of small grains to avoid damage from Hessian fly insects?

A—For Tennessee and northern part of the Gulf States the date is about October 10-20. Sowing grain later than the middle of October is usually safe from attacks by Hessian flies. If the soil has not yet been plowed or otherwise prepared for the crop, it should be done as early as possible. Leave it in a fallow condition from now until the middle of October. Harrow it a few times during that interval with a spike-toothed harrow. This will kill the weeds and many insects in the soil. It will gather plenty of moisture so the grain will start quickly.

Q.—In the southern region there are many waste fields spoiled by erosion. The gullies are not fit for farming. How can this be prevented?

A—Terraces run around the hill or across the slope of land will prevent washing. They are easily made, and this is a good time of the year to do it. With the use of a carpenter's level in which two sight nails have been driven at the end, you can sight across the field and make a level line easily. Have one person to hold a pole and place stakes, while another does the sighting. Thus a level line or a line nearly level may be run around the hill very quickly. After the stakes are placed, plow a number of furrows on each side of these stakes. Then use a V-shaped drag which will push the plowed soil up toward the center. This will build up a nice terrace which will prevent the water from running down hill rapidly. Place the next terrace above or below this one, so that one is about two feet higher in elevation than the one below it. On a steep slope this throws the terraces closer together than on a gentle slope. A terraced field will produce enough more in the first year to pay for the labor and the cost of terracing.

Q—What bulletins are available for help in canning and saving garden products?

A—In many places the Red Cross is supplying leaflets that are helpful along these lines. Send for U. S. Farmer's Bulletin 879 F on storage of products for winter. Two that are helpful in drying peaches, apples, etc., are 916 and 984. A good bulletin on pickling is 1159 F. The best canning bulletin is 1211 F. Ask your Congressman of the United States Department of Agriculture for these bulletins.

NITROGEN PLANTS ON 100,000 ACRES

Auburn, Ala., Sept. 20.—Nitrogen factories in the form of legume plants will be in operation this fall and winter on more than 125,000 acres of Alabama lands.

Reports received here indicate that around 3,250,000 pounds of seed of hairy vetch or Austrian winter peas will be planted in the state this fall. Cooperative purchases will total 2,500,000 pounds, according to John E. Ivey, general manager of Farmers Marketing and Exchange Association, a farm bureau cooperative, and conservative estimates show that at least 750,000 pounds of seed will be secured from other sources.

This will be the largest planting of winter legume seed ever recorded in Alabama and the remarkable increase over former years is attributed by J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist of the Alabama Pilytecanic Institute, to the fact that farmers have found these legumes to be excellent soil builders.

Mr. Lowery says that farmers who plant legumes this fall and turn them under next spring may reasonably expect to get an increase in yields of about 20 bushels of corn and about 350 pounds of seed cotton per acre. County agents recommend winter legumes as the cheapest source of nitrogen known.

The Auburn Experiment Station says that for best results vetch and peas should have a liberal application of phophate at planting time. Basic slag is preferred because of its lime content and because it does not injure inoculation.

IN MEMORY OF FANNY TAYLOR

On Sunday p.m., September 11th, about two-thirty, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Taylor and carried away their darling little Fannie May. She was three years old.

Fannie May was the shining star of the home. Oh we miss her, but she is resting in peace with Jesus. How lonely it will be here without Fannie May. Our loss is heaven's gain. So weep not, dear ones, for little Fannie May is resting with Jesus. We can never see her face any more on earth. We can live for Jesus and meet her in the sweet heavens above, where we can be happier than we have ever been here on earth.

She was laid to rest at Chestnut Creek cemetery. Rev. Hughes preached the funeral. She leaves to mourn her loss her father and mother, one sister, Ruby, two brothers, William and Emmett, all of Cooper.—One who loved her.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Prince and son, Wilbur, spent Sunday with relatives in Alexander City.

DAT BLOOMIN PREACHER

All Ah know is Whut de Bible say Bout Hit.

This Week's Blossom:

—o—

Bible sa, Rev. 22:5, "There shall be no night there."
Ah sa, "But dat wont suit some folks,"

Each week dis year Ah has preached you ur little sermon in de Banner. Ah do hope dat all ob de readers has enjoyed de readin as much as Ah has de ritin. Ah figures dis way, if jes one outen each family dat gits de Banner reads de sermon, Ah preaches to more people dat way than to all others combined, but Ah feels shoah dat more dan one in each family reads it, sides dat Ah know ob several families dat loans de paper to their neighbors, dat wants to read "Elder Blossom."

Ah believe dat Ah can safely sa dat at least five thousand people reads de sermon each week. Jest think what a congregation dat wood make fur ur preacher to talk to.

De tex is foun in Genesis, 4th chapter and de 16th and de fust part ob de 17 verses. Dis is de way it reads: "And Cain went out from the presence of the Lord, and dwelt in the land of Nod, on the east side of Eden. And Cain knew his wife; and she conceived, and bore Enoch." Dar has bin lots of discussion bout who Cain's wife wuz. Some sayin dat Cain married ur munkey or ape or a baboon. Some goin fur nuff to sa dat wuz de startin ob de nigger. It has always seemed strange to me how some people will try to tangle dimselves up when da reads de Bible. Some people seem to think dat because he left home an wint to de lan ob Nod dat he went whur he couldn't see nobody but his sef.

It may be true dat dar wernt nobody livin in dat part ob de country at de time. Now Ah wants to stop here long nuff to sa dat sin dont jes separate one frum God, while dat is bad nuff, yet it separates him frum dose who he loves bes and dose who les him best. My frin, if you is in sin, tho you lib wid yoah parents, yit you is separated frum dem. Dat is, if da is Christians, cause da blong to one family an you blong to anohter. On de account of Cain's sins he had to leave his parents, kinsfolk an frins, an go out into a lonely place all by his sef. An de reason dat he went by his sef, wuz de crime dat he had committed.

Now de nex thing dat Ah will call yoah tention to is dat his wife had to suffer wid him. She no doubt disliked to leave her people an go into a strange land whur she cud nevah se nobody. Now Ah no dat you is wondering how Ah knows dat Cain had ur wife, dat is de pint dat Ah wanted to git to. Dont de tex sa dat Cain knew his wife? Does you think dat means dat he formed her acquaintance dar in de land of Nod. Now if you will take dat word "knew" an run de references in yoah Bible you will fin dat it has an untimely difrunt meanin.

Now atter you has examined de references den turn to de tex an read de first sentence which reads: "And Cain knew his wife; (den de next one.) And she conceived and bore Enoch." You will git de exact meanin. Ah has heard men sa dat since dar wuzent but de two sons ob Adam an since Cain, de oldest son killed Abel, dat des lef Adam, Eve and Cain in de worl. Will you look at de 4th verse ob de 5th chapter of Genesis? You will see dat Adam had other sons and daughters. We no dat in order to people de worl frum jes one pair it wuz necessary fur men to marry their near kin. Now you mought want to ax me who Cain's wife wuz. Now why ax dat question? Why not ax who wuz de wives ob all de men mentioned in de 18th and 19th verses which follow mah tex, or who wuz Seth's wife, as mentioned in de 26th verse. Dar is jes as much reason in axin bout dem as dar is in axin bout Cain.

Ah wants to drop back to de fust words ob mah tex, "And Cain went out from the presence ob the Lord." De turnin away frum de Lord is de undoin ob de souls ob men, de lives ob Cain's posterity growed wus an wus as time went on. As time went on we fin proof ob dis in one ob his desendants, Lamech, by name, had two wives an killed two men. And in de 24th verse ob de 4th chapter ob Genesis we read, "If Cain shall be avenged seven-fold, truly Lamech seventy and sevenfold." It seems frum de readin ob dis chapter dat God wuzent known among de desendants ob Cain.

Mah frins, des supose dat dar hadent nevah been no Bible, nor no church. Suppose dat de Gospel had nevah bin preached. Whut wood be de conditions today? Or suppose dat we should do away wid preachers and churches—wid all prayers an religious songs—des fur one generation, whut wood be de consequence? De jails is so full now an de cort dockets is nevah clear ob criminal cases as it is. Dar comes rite outen de homes ob Christian people, boys who go to de electric chair or to a life term in de penitentiary.

If dar wuz no preachin an no readin ob de Bible an no prayers an good songs jes fur ur few years, dis country wood degenerate to de very lowest level of crime an debauchery. Ah thank God fur de religion ob Jesus Christ, an fur his church here in de worl. Well Ah mus close now. May de good Lord use dis to hep some poor lost one to His redemption through Jesus Christ, is de prayer ob Elder Blossom.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

Republicans all over the country are naturally delighted with the endorsement of President Hoover and his administration by former President Calvin Coolidge, in his article under the caption "The Republican Case," in a recent issue of the Saturday Evening Post. Mr. Coolidge not only endorsed the administration—he "gave reasons." And the literary effort which he produced will go down through the campaign alongside President Hoover's acceptance address as a constructive political document.

Mr. Coolidge discussed every phase of the economic situation during the past four years, explaining the development of the depression step by step, with the remedies sought to be applied by the administration. And he did it in a calm and lucid way that will doubtless make a profound impression on the country—especially upon those Republican voters who may have been uncertain about their procedure in the coming election. The Coolidge article is designed to repair breaches in the Republican line, to assist in the building of a solid front for the coming campaign. This is sound campaign strategy, for if the Republicans do present a solid front, they will win because of their natural numerical superiority.

One of the principal points of attack of the shallower critics of the administration has been efforts of the government to relieve the economic situation. Appealing to what they regard as popular prejudice these class agitators have charged that the administration has bent its efforts toward relieving the big financial institutions and the giant corporations, and has not attempted to rescue the "little fellow". The argument is silly and demogogic and falls of its own weight, if the record is actually examined. Administration speakers have sought to counteract it and have met with some success but its constant repitition makes its appeal to those who never take the trouble to reason for themselves.

One of the high points in Mr. Coolidge's article it the terse and lucid way in which he answers this class prejudice appeal. After pointing out that many unreasoning critics have criticised the administration because help has been afforded the banks, the railroads and the insurance companies raththan individuals, Mr. Coolidge says:

"When a person is suffering from hunger the common-sense method for relief is to put food into the stomach, whence it is sent into all parts of the body. Under the method of relief that is proposed for the body politic by the critics, instead of providing food in this way to nourish the hands and the feet, I suppose that the needle would be used to inject the nourishment into the fingers and the toes. Under such treatment the whole body would soon perish and the fingers and toes would become useless. The policy of the President has been to place nourishment in the digestive organs of society in order that through the natural channels already in existence the whole body would be strengthened and able to function in the usual way."

Here is an illustration so simple and logical that anyone can appreciate its force, followed as it is in the discussion by a comparison of the present situation in the United States with that of other nations of the world where currencies have depreciated and revolution has run riot.

Mr. Coolidge's defense of the protective tariff is admirable and the figures he quotes successfully contradict the arguments of the free traders that the Smoot-Hawley tariff has runined our foreign trade. And Mr. Coolidge effectually disposes of the bitter personal criticism which has been directed against the President by pointing out that criticism no less personal and no less violent was directed during the official life against George Washington, Abraham Lincoln and Woodrow Wilson. Of the latter Mr. Coolidge naively remarks, in speaking of the "defeatists," "Wilson had them during the war to such an extent that he found it necessary to turn the conduct of important legislation to Republican leadership. We have them at the preseht time doing their best to capitalize distress and preaching the overthrow of our system of econimics and government."

NOT A SPARK OF TRUTH IN IT

Because of the fact that Montgomery is on the verge of a wild week end in sports, I am passing along a concoction to you that has made me dizzy. It is an example of modern prohibition in the home:

"I had 12 bottles of whiskey in my cellar and my wife made me empty the contents of each and every bottle down the sink, so I proceeded to do as my wife desired and withdrew the cork from the first bottle, poured the contents down the sink with the exception of one glass which I drank.

"I then withdrew the cork from the second bottle and did likewise, with the exception of one glass which I drank.

"I extracted the cork from the third bottle, emptied the good old booze down the bottle, except a glass which I devoured.

"I pulled the cork from the fourth sink and poured the bottle down the glass when I drank some.

"I pulled the bottle from the cork of the next and drank one sink out of it, then threw the rest down the sink.

"I pulled the sink out of the next cork, and poured the bottle down my neck.

"I pulled the next bottle out of my throat and poured the cork down the sink, all but the sink which I drank.

"I pulled the next cork from my throat and poured the sink down the bottle and drank the cork.

"Well, I had them all emptied and I steadied the house with one hand and counted the bottles which were 24, so I counted them again when they came around again and I had 74, and as the houses came around I counted them and finally I had all the houses and bottles counted and I proceeded to wash the bottles, but I couldn't get the brush in the bottles, so I turned them inside out and washed and wiped them all, and went upstairs and told my other half all about what I did, and Oh Boy! I've got the wifest little nice in the world."—Stewart Stevenson in Montgomery Advertiser.

WHICH WOULD BE HURT?

Gov. Roosevelt's keynote speech came out for a reduction of the tariff walls, "to enable Europe to pay off its war debts with goods." Farmers in the Northwest wonder if the walls are to be lowered on farm products so that Europe can pay its debts at the expense of domestic agriculture, and the working man is wondering whose job among the factories that program would strike. Tinkering with the tariff always is dangerous policy, and especially is so when the nation is jost coming out of its worst economic upheaval. It would produce nothing but uncertainly for business if such a program were attempted right now, and America's scaling down of tariff walls would not bring any guaranty that Europe would do likewise.

MORAL ECHOES

(By D. W. Haskew)

In the midst of the depression of 1932 a certain merchant had charged on his books the sum of four thousand dollars. He was aware that the most of the customers due this amount of money were not able to pay it, and out of the goodness of his heart he checked off all of those accounts and published the fact so that all who were owing him would know that the old accounts were settled. Five months after this fact became known to those who owed the honest debt, I ventured to ask this merchant, "How many of those people who were benefitted by your liberality have come to you and expressed a word of gratitude?" The merchant hung his head and in a low tone replied, "Not one sir." On the ledger of that merchant there must have been as many as two hundred customers, and out of that number not one man come to say, "Thank you," when the debt that he owed was marked paid. I heard a man say one day, "The more I know about folks, the more respect I have for my little dog." Kindness to a dog is rewarded with gratitude. How sad to witness the lack of gratitude on the part of human beings.

A prominent doctor decided to play a prank on his six-year old daughter. He had a skeleton all hooked together in a closet in his office, and on hearing the child coming up the stairway he slipped into another room, leaving the door to the closet open. In the room where the doctor was there was a pull rope that was attached to the skeleton, and when the child reached the doctor's office, he started to jerking the pull rope and the skeleton started to snapping its jaws, shaking its bones and dangling its legs. The child saw that unusual sight and screamed. She ran down the stairway, screaming to the top of her voice. The doctor realizing what he had done, ran out of his hiding place and came down the steps after his child, calling to her, "Come back my darling, I was only fooling you." The child glancing back saw the long gangling strides of her scrawny father cried the louder, "Go back, Go back, you are the same old devil, only you have on clothes." In these modern times we have had a vision of the whiskey business. We have seen him snap his teeth, rattle his bones and shake his legs. At Washington they are trying to clothe this old skeleton with garments of an official robe. If the wet forces of America succeed in clothing the whiskey business with official robes, he will be the same old devil dressed up. Governmental rags will not make a saint out of the whiskey business.

I was standing in a country store. The merchant had just informed me that he was giving twelve cents a dozen for eggs. In came a negro girl. She took from her pocket one egg. In wondered what she was going to buy. As she handed her property to the merchant she said, "Give me an all day sucker." When the exchange was made the girl in black rammed the all day sucker deep between her jaws and left the store as happy as a lark in the sunshine. Surely it takes a mighty little to satisfy some folks.

Not many months ago there was a terrific explosion on an oil barge near the Hathaway bridge at St. Andrews Bay, Florida. Two men were on board the barge, and when the explosion occurred one of them was badly burned. When he regained consciousness the flames were leaping and licking to and fro over the water. He was in great danger still, but he did not think of himself, he thought of his comrade in danger. He braved the burning oil that he might find his comrade, but it was too late. The explosion had silenced the voice of the other man, and there was no answer to the calls that were made. After all, this is not such a bad world. When every thing is going well with us, we are inclined to show but little heart, but when our fellowman is in need, we think of him and not ourselves. When we learn to look upon the unselfish sacrifice made for the needy, we will see that the human race is not altogether selfish.

An old Jewish father came home one day with a Bible, a ten dollar bill and a bottle of good whiskey. He called to his wife, "And vife we vill now see vot Ikey is going to be. We vill put the Bible on the table and if Ikey comes in and takes it he vill be vone priest; we vill put the ten dollar bill by its side, if Ikey takes the money he vill be vone business man like he daddy; we will put the whiskey by the money, and if Ikey takes the bottle he vill be vone vagabond." The Bible, the money and the whiskey were all placed on the table to await the coming of Ikey, and the parents hid to see what would take place. In came Ikey and seeing the things on the table he took the Bible and put it in his pocket, he grabbed the ten dollar bill and rammed it deep into his jeans and then he took the bottle of whiskey, held it long to his lips and hugging it tight, walked out of the room. The old father observing the actions of the boy, came out rubbing his hands and in an excited way said to his wife, "Vell, vife, Ikey is going to be vone politician." It seems that the politicians of today are the people who can carry the Bible, the bottle and the greenback under their skirts.

Governor Roosevelt invaded Vermont the other day in his presidential campaign and the natives are said to have been much interested in seeing just what a real live Democrat looks like.

The Democratic presidential candidate now claims Vermont in the coming election. Up to this time, so far as can be found out, he has omitted to claim the Virgin Islands.

"I've had a lot of fun with a single five dollar bill," writes a man with a speculative turn of mind from Council Bluffs, Iowa. "Every time I hear a man make the crack that Roosevelt will be elected I pull out my five and offer him a bet. I've pulled it on at least twenty-five fellows and I still have the five. That's what I call making a little money go a long way."

"Do come and spend the evening with us. My daughter will sing and play, and at nine o'clock we have supper."

"I will be there at nine o'clock, prompt."

"What's happened? Have you had an accident?

"No. I just bet Hans he couldn't carry me up a ladder on his back, and I won."

The MAN in the MOON

Looks Over All—
Overlooks None.

A Good Joke On All Of Us

Last Saturday about noon the big fire siren in Clanton went of, and nearly everybody went to looking to try to see where the fire was, like we always do. Just north of town a big cloud of black smoke was billowing upward, and nearly everybody spotted it at once and began rushing that way, sure that there was the big scene. Just as the street became very near blocked (as always happens at a fire, too) one of the L. & N.'s locomotives, the cause of all the smoke, began chugging merrily down the line, stringing its cloud of smoke as it went. I looked around to see if anybody else right close looked as foolish as I felt, and I reckon they did. I never saw such a big crowd of sheepish-looking suckers in all my life. The fire was at one of the gins, on the other side of town, but we didn't find that out until it was too late and we had already fallen for the joke.

One Good Bill, At Least

In talking to Hon. Percy M. Pitts, Chilton's representative in the state legislature, I was informed that a bill has passed, and lacks only the Governor's signature to become a law, which will provide for the classification of automobiles according to weight instead of horse-power, as heretofore. This bill is intended to put all light cars in one class, which will lower the cast of license plates on the majority of light cars, according to the license plate cost schedule. And then there will be other classes to take care of the heavier cars, with their license plates selling in proportion to their weight. I think this is a good bill, in that it places the greater cost on the driver of the car which puts the most weight on the road. Too, Mr. Pitts says he would like to know how Chilton County people would like to have him vote when the bill regulating the weight of busses and trucks comes before the legislature. This bill would take many trucks and busses, which are tearing our surfaced roads to pieces, off the roads, or force their owners to pay a special tax which would take care of the expense of keeping these roads in repair. Mr. Pitts would like to know the people's wishes along this line, as he says he wants to represent Chilton County people and their desires as intelligently as he can understand them. Let him know how YOU feel about this matter. It is to your best interest, as taxpayers, to do so. I believe this is one of the most constructive pieces of legislation our law body has considered in quite a while. Really worth while.

"Quit Riding the Democrats!"

A very good friend, and a Democrat, offers me some advice. He says: "I think the Man in the Moon ought to quit riding the Democrats so hard and regular. He makes me think he is becoming scared of what may happen soon, and is whistling in the dark, like a little bay passing a graveyard after dark." I can't think, though, that this is his reason for wanting us to stop riding the Demmies. If it is, and they are getting a kick out of it all, why would they want the fun stopped? It must be getting under their hides; this is the first time I ever heard of anyone wanting a good show stopped.

A Good Pointer

From time to time people say: "It couldn't hurt anybody to elect Roosevelt; we're in about as bad shape now as we can get to be." The people who reason along this line, I would like to set out a few words, and then ask for an explanation. A few days ago cotton, wheat, corn, etc., the "money crops" of the different sections of the country, were steadily rising in price; maybe only a few points a day, but yet a steady daily climb, which would surely have put us back on our feet in time. And then came the Maine election, with its reversal of Republican control of that rock-ribbed Republican state. The result of that election will have to be admitted as pointing, in some degree, to a big Democratic year. And what happened as soon as news of the Democratic victory flashed over the country? This steady climb of prices on the money crops stopped—dead—and worse than that, began to fall in just about the same ratio as they had been climbing in the immediate past. If prices begin to fall on report of what MAY happen (that Roosevelt and the Democratic party come into power) pray tell me what we may expect if such possibility should become a fact? In other words, if the mere shadow of the cloud stops our upward climb from the depths of depression and pushes us backward again, how low shall we fall when the cloud, itself, enshrouds us? I would like to hear someone explain that. But I don't expect to hear it. It can't be done.

Some Will Rogers Logic

Will Rogers, a Democrat, and a great critic and humorist, has something to say every day in regard to some topic of the day which is interesting to us all. Not long ago, Will was commenting on Mr. Roosevelt's "farm speech" in his western tour, and he had this to say, in substance: "Mr. Roosevelt made his 'farm speech' yesterday, just as they always do. But nobody can promise the farmer whether his produce will sell for a low price or a high one. Supply and demand, and not political speeches, govern that. The only way you can help the farmer is in taxes—work it like the income tax—if you make it, you pay tax on it, and if you don't make it you don't pay on it. The political speeches can't remedy the situation, yet lots of farmers will waste lots of valuable time this fall running about listening to speakers who can relieve them of nothing but their votes." And that's that—from a Democrat, talking about Roosevelt. Apples for sale, folks—green or crab. Which do you like best?—Man in the Moon.

Chilton County High School

I had the pleasure of a visit to the Chilton County High School one day last week. The appearance of everything about the place, and the orderly manner in which the students went about their work impressed me that the school is a business institution composed of a group of people with a purpose, an aim, an ambition. The boys and girls who compose the school, and the teachers who direct them are to be congratulated upon the making of such a beautiful and effective co-ordination of their efforts toward a good purpose.

Constitution Week Observed

The American Legion Auxiliary joined with the High School last Friday in a program commemorating the ratification of the Constitution of the United States. Prof. Luther E. Little, of the high school faculty, made the address of the occasion. Mr. Little gave a very vivid and interesting word picture of events that brought the States, one by one, to the adoption of the greatest document ever devised by the minds of men. "There must have been divine inspiration in the minds and hearts of the fathers of our Constitution," said Mr. Little. He made a pointed reminder that no amendment to the Federal Constitution has ever been repealed.

Will Keep His Walking Stick

Mayor J. Lee Smith will keep his walking stick to help himself up the stairway to the city's business office. "I was going to throw it away," he said, "if I got beat, but I am grateful that my friends stuck to me in such splendid fashion and decreed that I should keep it another two years." Mr. Smith's majority of 126 was beyond the calculations of his most optimistic supporters.

Georgia's Youthful Statesman

Everywhere people are pouring out admiration for Richard B. Russell, the youthful statesman, of Georgia. Aside from the issues that may have been paramount in his political career, it is singular that a man can attain such a position of honor at the age of Mr. Russell. He was graduated at the University of Georgia at 21. At 23 he was a member of the Georgia State Legislature and was speaker of the House at 27. At the age of 32 he was elected Governor of his State. Last week he was triumphant victor for United States Senator at the age of 35. Russell's achievements are a challenge and an inspiration to the youth of our land.

Mrs. Yeager Here Last Friday

Mrs. Yeager, of the Yeager Studio, Montevallo, was a visitor to Clanton last Friday. She stated that she has finished her summer vacation and opened her studio for business again. Mrs. Yeager has many friends in Clanton. She has made pictures for many of our citizens, who regard her work as the paragon of quality, art, and distinction. "I appreciate my friends in Clanton," she said, "and I want them to visit me anytime they are in Montevallo."

Lamar Calloway to Philidelphia

A letter from Lamar Calloway says he is leaving Duke University at Durham, N. C., and going to Philidelphia to take a special course for four months. Lamar is pursuing his study of medicine with consistent regularity. He takes no vacations. He must have an enormous capacity for work and study. He is interested in his job, which fact makes him able to conquer every problem he meets. When a boy is interested in anything, there is no use to try to block him. That is what makes it so important that we see to it that boys become interested in things worth while.

The Goode Appropriation Bill

Representative R. J. Goode has prepared and introduced in the legislature an appropriation bill which he says will bring the state's expenditures within its 1932 income; provide a sufficient surplus to pay interest on all outstanding warrants; and retire the principal in not exceeding ten years—all without raising any new or additional taxes." With his bill Mr. Goode has outlined a budget that proves the bill will do what it says. It is very plainly evident that the Goode Bill embodies the very thing the people of Alabama want done. Surely the members of the legislature know it is what the people want. They should enact the Goode Bill without delay, and adjourn and go home. The Goode Bill is a good bill.

"Business Is Good

A front-page streamer head line in the Fayette Banner says "Business is Good in Fayette." I wonder if the Banner is moved to this remark by circumstances like Dief related to the other day. He said tourists on the highway have a habit of driving into his filling station, get water and air, rest a few minutes, ask "How is Business?" and get in their cars and drive away. In order to keep his employees from being disturbed and bothered about anything, Dief says he is going to have a big sign painted saying, "Business is Good." By this addition to his service, Dief hopes to be able to supply his customers with everything they want without causing them to have to ask a single question.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., Sept. 20.—The importance for a definite objective and the formulation of real purpose in college training so as to know exactly one's destination and to make definite progress from day to day in that direction was stressed by Dabney S. Lancaster, dean of men in an address to freshmen at Freshman Night activities at University of Alabama recently.

Four members of the University facutly are celebrating the twentieth anniversary of their coming to the University. They are Dean A. J. Farrah, of the law school; Dean Geo. J. Davis of the college of engineering; Dr. John M. Gallalee, professor of mechanical engineering; and Prof. Shaler C. Houser, treasurer.

The reports of eleven of the fourteen Class I railroads operating in Alabama show that gross revenue earned on traffic originating, terminating, or carried through Alabama during 1931 were 24.1 per cent less than in 1930, according to Wendell M. Adamson, statistician for the University of Alabama Bureau of business research.

One hundred and thirteen courses will be offered during the coming extension period, according to Dr. R. E. Tidewell, director of extension. The fall semester begins October 1 and the spring semester February 1.

Cadet Col. E. J. Lyman, son of Major E. J. Lyman, Sr., Fort Benning, Ga., will command the brigade in the University ROTC during the coming session. Major E. H. Underwood, commandant, has effected reorganization of the cadet corps, and a three-regiment brigade is the result of the turn-over.

With the first game of the season just over the horizon, coach Frank Thomas is giving the Alabama football candidates intensive drill in both offensive and defensive work.

Coash Thomas is holding scrimages daily in order to smooth out the rough spots in the tide offense. There is lack of coordination and polish, but with the big doses of scrimage meted a gradual improvement has taken place.

The blocking is still spoty but is improving. Coach Thomas believes firmly in the fundamentals and his men get work in them until they are almost letter perfect.

With several guards injured in the scrimmages, coach Thomas has shifted Pal Cochrane, quarterback, to a guard post. Cochrane is fast, a good blocker and aggressive, and fits in well at a guard position.

"Shorty" Frey, senior guard, is the worst hurt of any of the casualties. Frey received a dislocated left elbow and will be unable to take part in the rought work for several weeks.

The first game is set for September 24 against Southwestern of Memphis in Denny Stadium. The Southwestern team is coached by Jimmy Haygood, former Alabama frosh coach. He is aided by John Miller, star guard of the 1930 Alabama eleven.

Coach Haygood has a good team and is bending every effort toward the contest with Alabama Saturday. He is reported to be shifting several men in order to have his eleven strongest men on the field at the same time.

It is likely that Coach Thomas will use several combines in an effort to find his strongest one. He will also be able to get a line on his players which he has not been able to do in scrimage.

Report of Social Service Commission of Southern Baptist Convention

Depression and Prohibition

Prohibition is to be discussed later in this report but it seems proper, if not indeed necessary, to make mention of it in this connection. Of all the false explanations of the present depression, the chief one, seemingly malicious, is that given by those who advocate the destruction of prohibition and the return of the licensed beverage liquor traffic in some form. It is charged by these friends of liquor, who are enemies of the home, of good government and of human welfare, that our present depression in the United States is due to prohibition.

They do not undertake to explain the depression in all other countries where liquor in all forms flows like a river; they fail to recognize that industry and economic conditions here are incomparably better than in any other country; they ignore the fact that all alcoholic drink is a destructive force and that destruction cannot bring prosperity; they ignore the testimony of such economic and statistical authorities as Prof. Irving Fisher, Roger Babson and Henry Ford, who assure us that prohibition saves our people from $6,000,000,000 to $12,000,000,000 a year by the conservation of our material resources and manpower, and by increasing our power of production as a nation. The claim that prohibition has brought about or contributed to the present depression is of a piece with all the false and malicious propaganda of the liquor interests here and abroad who would gladly barter the welfare of humanity, both material and moral, to satisfy human appetite and human greed.

International Peace

The last annual report of the Social Service Commission of the Georgia Baptist convention carried a very strong and timely statement concerning International Peace and Disarmament. We find our own sentiment, and what we believe to be the sentiments of our people, so well expressed in that report that we quote from it the following paragraphs:

"The honor of our country is pledged to disarmament. It was the program of Woodrow Wilson, never relinquished by his party; and it is the cornerstone of the foreign policy of President Hoover. It is the official, accepted policy of the United States.

"The world at this moment is not disarming, but quite to the contrary There are 5,000,000 more men in arms today in the countries which participated in the World War than there were in 1914. Every major country in Europe except Germany, as well as the United States and Russia, is continuing its pre-war rate of increase in armament costs—Great Britain shows 64 per cent of increase; France, 55 per cent; Italy, 85 per cent; Russia 21 per cent; United States, 166 per cent. France is more heavily armed today than Germany ever was.

"In nearly every country of the globe the federal budget for expenditures for arms exceeds that for all other purposes put together—the United States, 72 per cent (of the whole); Great Britain 65 per cent; France 69 per cent.

"Seventy-two cents out of every dollar in our country for cost of past wars and the preparation for future wars, one-half a cent for foreign relations, one-fourth of a cent for aids to labor, one and one-half cents for aid to agriculture, one-third of a cent for industry and trade, two-thirds of a cent for the public health, and one-third of a cent for education."

The cost of war is trmendous. The direct and indirect cost of the World War, both sides, was $337,000,000,000.

The horror of war was never so great as now. We came to know about airplanes, submarines, and the poison gases during the years of 1914 to 1918. Since that time war's instruments have become even more fiendsh, so that now adequate defense is impossible.

Some things that delay the abandonment of war are, competition in armaments, trade rivalries, unfriendly traffis, imperialism, control of natural resources, the influence of shipbuilders and manufacturers of munitions including the deliberate cultivation of war-scares, and military training in the schools.

The belief that competition in armaments is a means of preservingpeace is now held by a few professional war-mongers. President Coolidge said: "I am not unfamiliar with the claim that if only we had a sufficient military establishment no one would ever molest us. I know of no nation in history that has ever been able to attain that position. I see no reason to expect that we could be the exception." Practically every President from Washington down could be quoted against a large military establishment in this country.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our thanks to those who were so kind and thoughtful toward us during the recent illness and death of our dear husband, son and brother.

We thank all the doctors and Mr. Brand also, for their kindness. —Mrs. J. B. Mullins, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Mullins and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Bice.

PLEASANT HILL

A large crowd attended the pounding we gave our pastor Wednesday night. He received many gifts for which he extends his heartfelt thanks. I am sure his heart was made to rejoice for the effort we put forth to show our appreciation for his service at this place. Church members, let's strive to do more in the future for our pastor than we've ever done in the past. Sometimes we neglect our duty. So let's be more thoughtful from now on and prompt to act in time of need. We had the best revival at this place we've had in a long time. Forty-seven new additions to the church were added for which we are thankful. Also I want to say we have a good Sunday school and a large crowd. Let's strive to make it the best we've ever had.

Our singing Wednesday night was fine. It was the best singing we've had lately for the amount of singers.

Saturday night and Sunday are our regular preaching days. And we have prayer meeting every Sunday night. Everybody is invited.—Secretary.

Prophecy Corner

Conducted By

L. A. BUTTERFIELD

The minutest details of Bible prophecy will bear close investigation. Please note the following words from Isaiah 13: "And Babylon, the glory of kingdoms, . . . shall be as when God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah. It shall never be inhabited." Also these from Jeremiah 51: "Her cities are desolation, a dry land, and a wilderness, a land wherein no man dwelleth."

That such a land, peopled with the world's most highly civilized inhabitants, the "golden city," situated in the most fertile spot of the known world, should become a wild, unproductive and uninhabited desert, was from a human viewpoint utterly impossible. The positions of the world's most important cities are usually so well chosen, so rich in natural advantages, that population clings to them. Dwindle and decay as they may, some collection of human dwellings still occupies a portion of the original site. Damascus, Jerusalem, Athens, Rome, Antioch, Alexandria, Sidon, Byzantium, have all remained continuously cities of consequence from the time of their foundation thousands of years ago to the present. But it remained for the greatest, richest, most powerful of all to sink into utter oblivion. "Without inhabitant" said the prophet. How true, how wierd, uncannily true! For today there is not in Babylon a single inhabitant. How do you account for that, and for the fact that this was all foretold so long ago?

Note the apparent contradiction in the following verses: "Her cities are a desolation, a dry land, and a wilderness." "I will also make it a possession for the bittern, and pools of water." Skeptics often read these verses and then ask: "How can a place be a desert and dry land, and at the same time be covered with pools of water? How can it be dry and wet at the same time?" Logically it was an improbability that pools of water would ever cover these ruins. Many hundreds of years passed without its happening: why should it ever happen? But it did! The very embankments and canals, which made the waters of the Euphrates a defense and not a danger, obstructed the river hundreds of years later, and annually during the past few hundred years the Euphrates has overflowed and covered half of Babylon with "pools of water," as the prophet said, and likewise half is still a "dry land, and a desert." Thus during the past few hundred years, and every year now, paradoxical, antithetical, contradictory predictions are regularly fulfilled.

The prophecies presented in this corner are more than can be found in all other books of the world combined, but we have only entered the doorway of the great prophetic temple. Every fullfilled prophecy proves that the Bible is God's Word.

Next week in this corner you will find that the present struggle between capital and labor was prophesied in the Bible. —L. A. Butterfield.

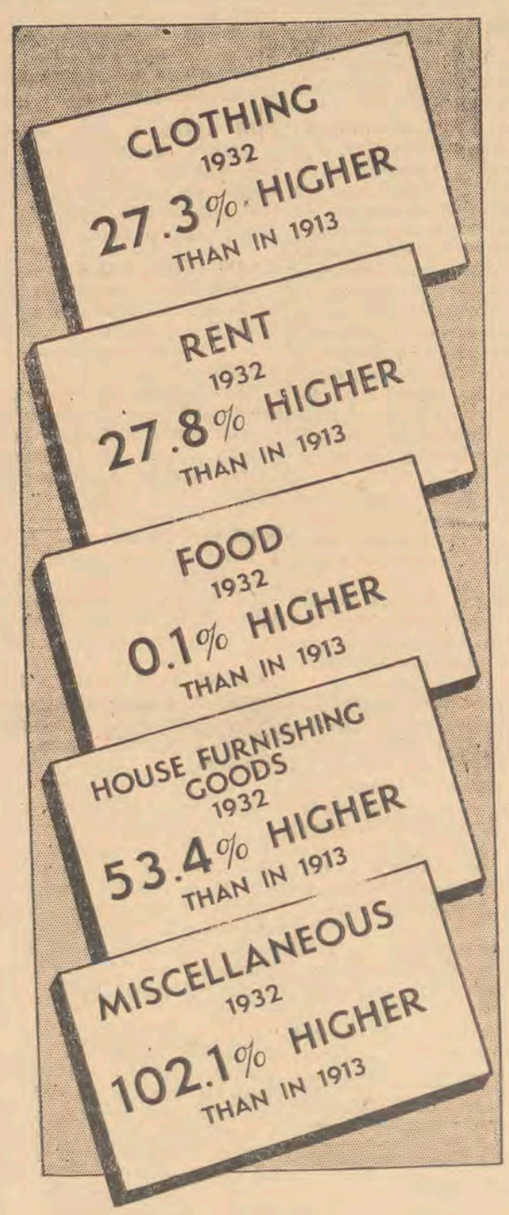
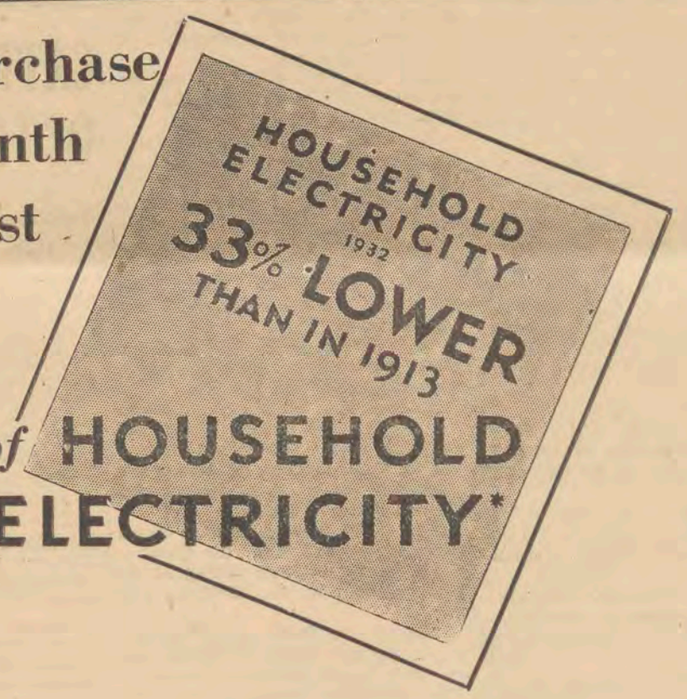
You Made Only One Purchase Of Necessities This Month That Was Lower In Cost Than In 1913....

That was your purchase of HOUSEHOLD ELECTRICITY*



Above calculations based upon national figures of U. S. Bureau of Labor Bulletin, July 27, 1932, and National Electric Light Association.



PRACTICALLY every item in the cost of living is still far ABOVE 1913 pre-war levels except one. That is household electricity. The average rate paid for this indispensable service throughout the United States in 1932 was 33% BELOW the 1913 pre-war level.

The bills pictured on the left of this advertisement show how much MORE is actually paid by the average citizen in 1932 for clothing, rent, food, house furnishing goods and miscellaneous commodities, than was paid back in the pre-war days of 1913. The bill pictured in the upper right hand corner shows how much LESS average rate per Kilowatt hour the household user of electricity throughout the nation pays now than he paid for the same unit of service back in 1913. Household electricity is today's biggest bargain—and practically the only item of living costs for which the average rate is still below pre-war prices.

* The price of household electricity to customers of Alabama Power Company in 1932 is more than 16% below the average price of household electricity in the U. S. A. as a whole.

talk. I do not believe anyone can read this acceptance address without being convinced of the true greatness of the man; without having his faith renewed in American principles.

I am unable to find any good reason for dispensing with the services of such a President at such a time, to put in his place a man of less experience and far less attainment. What great corporation would change its president under such circumstances? Would it be a wise move at this time for the people of the United States to turn over the entire administrative government of this nation to a lot of new and inexperienced hands?

There is a time-honored American adage of pioneer days which counsels us against swapping horses in midstream. Our troubles are not over. We have got to rebuild, got to restore the entire country. This is not the time to dispense with the services of the man who knows all about the biggest job of reconstruction that has confronted a President since Civil War times.

For 10 years Mr. Hoover has had in mind a plan to simplify our entire system of national government. He has it all mapped out in a chart that can be understood at a glance. But he has so constantly had to contend with emergencies that he has had to defer putting this plan into execution during his first term of office. One of the last bills passed by Congress gave the President authority to begin this work at the next session. Our last four Presidents have recognized the need of a drastic reform of this kind, but we have never before had a President who knew how to go about it.

Sa far as politics is concerned, the country may well face the facts. Herbert Hoover, tried by fire, tested by adversity, strengthened by responsibility, fitted now by training and by responsibility, is the country's best bet in the four years of reconstruction that are ahead of us. We cannot spare such a man at such a time.—Arthur Capper.

PLAN MADE FOR SOLVING STATE'S PROBLEMS WITHOUT AN INCREASE IN HTAXATION

Representative R. J. Goode of Wilcox County, has introduced a series of four bills in the house of representatives which he declares will solve the state financial difficulties without any increase in taxation.

Realizing that there should be no additional taxes and that the people of Alabama are in no financial condition to pay more taxes, Mr. Goode has evolved a program which reduces the state expenditures to less than $25,000,000 in 1933. This would leave a surplus for the year of nearly $4,000,000 for payment of interest and outstanding warrants.

"The plan is so arranged that if the income tax and $20,000,000 bond issue are ratified by the voters in November, it would not interfere with the program, it being contemplated that the proceeds of the bond issue will retire the registered warrants," Mr. Goode said. On the other hand, if either or both of these constitutional amendments are defeated, the state will be able to operate without the necessity and expense of another legislature session and without creating any further deficit.

These results are accomplished without seriously imparing the efficiency of any state agency or institution, the public schools being given preferential treatment.

Mr. Goode stated after introduction of his bills that enough money would be saved under his plan to avoid the necessity of making any reduction whatever in appropriations to public schools.

TRAPS OF PROHIBITION AGENTS ARE ATTACKED

Washington.—The right of prohibition agents to set traps to catch law violators will be determined by the Supreme Court of the United States at its Fall session.

The issue of entrapment is raised in two appeals, and in one case the government has joined with attorneys for the convicted man in requesting the high court to review the case.

While the court has previously decided that a man cannot be convicted if he is induced to violate the prohibition law by dry agents, when he would not do so if let alone, the cases before the court raise new questions.

One one case, C. V. Sorrells, a war veteran, living in the country near Clyde, N. C., is appealing from a conviction and a sentence of 18 months in prison because he sold liquor to a dry agent.

He was visited on a hot Sunday by a dry agent and three residents of the community. The dry agent was introduced as a furniture dealer on vacation. He asked Sorrels to get him whiskey and the latter refused.

During the conversation, however, it was discovered that the "furniture dealer" and Sorrells had served in the same division in France during the World War. Sorrells warmed up. After repeated requests he went out and bought a half gallon of corn liquor, which he sold to the dry agent for $5. He was arrested for this sale.

The government, during his trial, charged a sale after this time and also found about six gallons of whiskey near his house. The government maintained that Sorrells had a reputation as a rum runner.

When Sorrell's lawyer raised the defense of entrapment, the trial judge overruled it.

Solicitor-General Thacker, in informing the high court that the government does not oppose review, said that the question is arising frequently in all parts of the country and there is a difference in the rulings of various federal courts.

He said in his brief that it appeared that the judge should have allowed the jury to say whether Sorrels was an innocent man who had been trapped into law violation.

In the other case, Robert I. Flynn, a St. Paul dentist, appealed from a six-year sentence in Leavenworth, Kan., prison on the ground that he was "hounded" in to buying liquor by dry agents.

After dry agents on several occasions unsuccessfully sought to buy liquor from him, Flynn accepted $48, left them and returned a little later with liquor.

Flynn's lawyer said that the evidence showed that he had sold a little whiskey because he was "hard up" but at most he was only a casual offender.

A QUESTIONNAIRE RE "HOLD 'EM JAIL"

Do you believe in coddling convicts?

Do you think burglars should be told bedtime stories by radio?

Would you parole a bigamist if his first wife died?

Where were you on the night of . . . oh, no, that's a different questionnaire. Wait a minute. Here it is:

What do you think should be done to stem the crime wave?

Every light-minded citizen with a vital interest in prison forces should see "Hold 'Em Jail," the new Bert Wheeler-Robert Woolsey travesty coming to the Wadesonian Theatre.

In it the pressing problems of penitentiary life are raucously revealed.

Should Sing-Sing refuse to play Leavenworth on this year's football schedule, and is the federal prison proselyting among Chicago gangsters?

Would you rather have Edgar Kennedy or Edna May Oliver for the warden of your model jail?

Have you had your irony today?

You can get it in "Hold 'Em Jail!" the RKO-Radio Picture burlesqueing the "big house." It is at the Wadesonian Theatre, Wednesday and Thursday, September 21 and 22.

LEADING WOMAN STILL IN SCHOOL

Imagine! A leading woman who is still a school-girl and comes to work with her books under her arm!

This is Betty Grable, the fetching ingenue of "Hold 'Em Jail," co-starring Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey.

You see, Betty won't be 18 until December 18, 1932, and the California law, by which Hollywood is more or less regulated, requires that she go to school until she's 18.

So, during the making of "Hold 'Em Jail," which also has Edna May Oliver, Rosco Ates, Paul Hurst, Edgar Kennedy, and Warren Hymer in the cast, Betty had to report to the studio schoolhouse for two hours every day and take her high-school course in history, English, General Science and French.

"SO BIG" FEATURE FOR TWO NIGHTS

Picture Program Being Sponsored By Boy Scouts of Chilton County

Selina Peake, whose mother is dead, is taken to Chicago by her father, a gambler, and sent to a finishing school. Shortly after Selina's graduation her father is killed and she is left penniless. Julie, a particular chum, persuades her father to get Selina a job as a school teacher in a small Dutch settlement.

She lives at the home of a crude farmer, whose son, Roelf, she helps with his lessons and who adores her. Eventually Selina marries one of the Dutch farmers, Pervous Dejong, and her life becomes that of a farmer's wife—but instead of thinking it drudgery she sees beauty in everything connected with the soil. Finally a boy, Dirk, is born and her whole hope is centered on him. She takes him to the fields with her and daily measures his growth, calling him, "So Big."

Pervous dies and leaves Selina nothing but the farm. She goes to work with determination to make good for her boy. She sends him to school and college and finally establishes him in business as an architect. Selina has grown into a fine character, whom everybody loves.

Dirk is a weak character. He falls in love with Paula, a married woman, who persuades her husband to give Dirk a job in his office—and then with Dallas O'Mara, a beautiful young girl and talented artist. She will not marry him because he is weak.

In the meantime, Roef, who had left the farm at his mother's death, has become a great artist. Returning from Paris, he meets Dirk and learns that he is Selina's son. He immediately asks to be taken to her and they go to the farm, taking Dallas with them. Selina has a fine sense of values and sees what a fine character Roef has become, at the same time realizing the faults of her son. She sees that her hopes for her son are blasted but rejoices in the fineness of Roef. Her eyes are sad, but beauty has not faded from her soul.

NIGHT SCHOOL AT COLLINS CHAPEL

Special Study Is Made Of Vetch and Peas For Winter Crops

Prof. Montgomery and the farmers of the Collins Chapel night school were pleased to have a visit one night last week by County Agent C. E. Stapp, Mr. J. N. Dennis and Mr. W. C. Robinson.

Mr. Stapp gave a demonstration of inoculating vetch seed, and made a very interesting and helpful talk on methods of obtaining the best results from winter legumes. The farmers present manifested very keen interest in the subject. People of Collins Chapel, as well as other parts of the county have become interested in vetch and winter peas through the fine work Mr. Stapp has done since he came to our county.

At the night school Mr. Dennis made a talk about vetch. He spoke from experience. He was the first farmer in Chilton County to plant vetch. This was several years ago. He stated that he has planted it every year since, always with highly satisfactory results. He will plant 100 acres in vetch and peas this fall.

Mr. W. C. Robinson who is also one of the county's largest farm-operators, stated that he has become interested in winter legumes, and will increase the use of same on his farms in the future.

PLANT PEAS OR VETCH

County Agent Stapp again calls attention that we are now in the middle of the planting season of peas and vetch. During the past two months Mr. Stapp has called attention to fields in various sections of the county where farmers can see the results of peas and vetch turned under for soil building and fertilizing purposes.

Mr. Stapp states that a recent check-up shows a much larger planting of peas and vetch in Chilton county than ever before, but again stresses the fact that only a small percent of the farmers in the county seem to be really in earnest about the planting of peas and vetch this fall. Many of the leading farmers of the county join Mr. Stapp in his plea for every farmer to plant at least five acres in peas or vetch to the mule this fall.

Mr. Stapp points out that the recent rain makes the land in an ideal condition for planting now.

OLIVER'S OPINION ON TRUCK BILLS

Verbena Man Says The Heavy Trucks Are Damaging Highways

Through "The Man in The Moon," of the Union-Banner this week, Mr. Percy Pitts invites the people to advise as to the Truck and Bus Bill now before the Legislature.

The heavy trucks are damaging the roads and, of course, weight should be materially reduced. Most trucks, of all sizes are dangerous to the ordinary traveler along the highway, and we all know the many wrecks resulting in the loss of life and property just because of no lights to protect or downright "hogging" the road. So a vote for this law would be a step, at least, to save life, property and roads.

While on the subject of legislation, if Mr. Pitts had, at the beginning of the session, introduced a bill to cut the salaries of the legislators 25 to 50 per cent and cut out 50 per cent or more of clerks, the taxpayers of Chilton and throughout the state would have called him blessed.

He doubtless has no fear of the "office holder's bloc" because only a short time ago—after many weeks—he actually voted for a dollar per day cut in his $56.00 per week salary.

I hope he was not one of the boys that Horace Wilkinson frightened with his injunction. By the way Judge Wilkinson will attend to that little matter so important to the state later.

The taxpayers who vote would gladly go to the polls in November and cast a ballot favorable for income tax and bonds. Yes, why not many high salaried people of the state, some in the employ of the state, and who have income aside from salary, should be willing to bear the burden with the rest of the people, and in the final analysis reduce the ad valorem with this fund? This should have been done long ago.

The sales tax? If necessary, yes, but as a last resort to raise funds to meet the budget.

The voters want the following:

A cut in all salaries, state and county, from Governor down, beginning, of course, with the legislators.

Dispose of unnecessary employees in each department. In short, "cut out all dead timber," consolidate where it can be done.

Abolish the Court of Appeals and other needless offices.

Arrange to pay all debts, and run the schools nine months, with provisions to pay the teachers who have waited and contiue to wait for their pay after salaries had been cut, while others in the education department were paid promptly, and secure teachers who are competent to instruct without having supervisors or whatever title they may possess, come around to instruct the instructors how to instruct.

Then a law (the Fletcher Bill will take care of that) to balance the budget. And if they do not secure them, will defeat at the polls everything submitted.

They would probably not require each and every measure mentioned above, but in substance, about what I have set forth.

This is about the recommendation of Gov. Miller, and who will say he is not a safe, sane and honest official?

A great many of the boys sent to Montgomery to represent the people and who have been able to hang around the lobbies and sing, "Happy Days are Here Again," will remain at home four years hence.—Yours truly, H. B. Oliver.

Mr. Thilo Fiering, of Chicago, has been spending his vacation with friends in Clanton the past week.

Criminal Cases Tried In The Federal Court

Several Chilton County Men Included In Disposition of Cases In Federal Court of Judge Kennamer In Montgomery Last Week

The criminal docket of the United States District Court was closed yesterday following conviction of about six defendants in prohibitions cases during the day. Sentences ranging from 13 to 18 months were meted by Judge Charles Kennamer.

Civil cases will be heard beginning with a large number of war risk insurance claims on the docket.

Zeb Mims, of Chilton County, Monday was convicted of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law in collaboration with Henry, Fate and Leonard Cleckler. The Clecklers had pleaded guilty and took the stand in the defense of Mims. Mims was given a sentence of 13 months in Chillicothe. Henry Cleckler was sentenced to 18 months in Atlanta and Fate Cleckler was sentenced to 18 months in Chillicothe. Leonard Cleckler was placed on probation for five years.

Loide D. Hines, negro, was convicted of possession and transportation of 10 gallons of liquor and sentenced to 15 months in Chillicothe.

Judge Kennamer directed a verdict of not guilty in the case of Frank Roper, charged jointly with Charlie Gregory with the sale of a quantity of liquor. Gregory absolved Roper with any connection with the transaction and had previously pleaded guilty and received a sentence of 15 months in Chillicothe.

Jesse R. Faulk, of Crenshaw county, who had pleaded guilty to three counts involving possession of stills, Monday was convicted of manufacturing liquor. He was sentenced Tuesday.

Judge Kennamer revoked the parole of Ted Jones and ordered into effect a sentence of four months in the Montgomery jail.—Montgomery Advertiser.

The case against Tom Bates, of Chilton County, charged with possession and sale of a quantity of liquor to agents of the prohibition bureau, consumed part of the federal court in Montgomery in session last Wednesday. Bates pleaded not guilty and contended that it was a case of mistaken identity and that the officers apparently had confused him with some relatives by the same name in Chilton County.

His defense was made with such earnest appeal that Judge Kennamer directed one of the agents to revisit the house in Chilton County where the liquor was purchased and to make sure whether it was the home of Tom Bates. The case was reopened during the afternoon and the agent testified that the home was occupied by Tom Bates and his family, and introduced neighbors as witnesses to substantiate his testimony. A verdict of guilty was returned by the jury. Bates was sentenced Saturday to five months in Chilton County jail.

Jury verdicts of guilty also were returned against Ed May negro, of Lowndes County; Lizzie Manuel, negro of Chilton County; Albert Frazier, Montgomery; Charlie Bayne of Montgomery and Joe Turner of Montgomery in prohibition cases.

A verdict of not guilty was returned in the case of Charlie Gregory, charged with violating the prohibition law.

Other pleas of guilty in prohibition cases were entered by the following: Cecil Calloway, son of Frank Calloway, of Chilton County, who is serving a four-year sentence in Atlanta; case continued for sentence in December; Oliver Ware, to be sentenced Saturday; Carl Montgomery continued for sentence.

ENJOYED COMER'S SPEECH

A large gathering composed of members of the Mens and Young Mens Classes of Clanton Baptist Sunday school last Sunday morning had the pleasure of listening to an address by Mr. Hugh M. Comer, of Sylacauga. The assembly was in the main auditorium of the church.

Mr. Comer related the story of God's chosen people in their progress to the land of Canaan, and applied the lesson to the plans of God to prepare his people, by the experience and teachings of this life, for the immortal life hereafter.

Daily reading and study of God's Book was urged by Mr. Comer as the only safe and true guide for humanity in preparation for the life hereafter.

Mrs. Wesley Danforth has returned home after a visit with her daughter, Erin, in Birmingham.

1,000-GALLON STILL TAKEN

Wetumpka, Ala., Sept. 26.—Sheriff J. H. Golden, of Elmore county, and his deputies captured a 1,000-gallon capacity still Saturday afternoon between Henry Cobb's place and the McQueen Smith Farming Company, near Millbrook.

The still was in operation but the operators escaped, leaving their hats coats, flashlight, tools, and about 60 gallons of whiskey. The officers found a tall tree near the still with a bucket of water and a bottle of wine at its foot, indicating it had been the lookout for the watcher who gave the alarm to the distillers.

NEW SQUIRREL LAW

Maybe it was a defense measure on the part of Alabama legislators—but at any rate, the squirrel-hunting season in the state will open a month earlier than usual.

Alabama game wardens announced Monday that Governor B. M. Miller had signed the Hooten bill, changing the opening of the season from November 1 to October 1, and closing December 31.

The bill was introduced at the request of Alabama hunters.

SHAW, PARNELL FARMS VISITED

Study of Successful Pasture and Legume Projects Made

On last Saturday morning County Agent Stapp and a group of farmers visited Dr. Parnell's place in the morning and Mr. H. S. Shaw's in the afternoon. Among those who visited Dr. Parnell's place were:

A. B. Jones, Woodrow Jones, Mr. Walker, Mr. Cook, D. Martin, H. S. Shaw, Dr. W. L. Parrish and L. D. Popwell. This group inspected Dr. Parnell's pasture and Hereford cattle. In the afternoon part of the above crowd and others visited Mr. Shaw's farm across the river. Mr. Shaw has a splendid farm operated by W. N. White. They have several things of interest to show farmers who visit their farm.

Among the things of interest seen Saturday were a fine field of corn following peas and vetch, a comparison of peas and nitrate of soda as fertilizer for corn, sweet potato curing house, trench silo and sorghum to fill same, and a fine new pasture being grazed by some good grade Hereford cattle. It was pointed out that Mr. Shaw is cooperating with the experiment station at Auburn in growing pure Whatley corn for seed.

The crowd was very much impressed with the splendid pasture work Mr. Shaw and Mr. White are doing. They have 20 acres of pasture which was thickly covered with timber last year and which they cleared off last winter and seeded to pasture grass in February this year. Thirty-four head of cattle were grazing on this pasture when the crowd was there Saturday and had plenty of grass.

Among those who visited Mr. Shaw's place were D. Martin, Arthur Martin, Earle Thomas, Tug Willis, Geo. Willis, J. R. Owen, W. J. Easterling, Leonard Easterling, C. D. Easterling, R. M. Foshee, J. M. Kelly, Arthur Tippett, E. W. Miller, H. F. Downs, O. R. Mullins, H. B. Glenn, Joe Cox and Dr. R. S. Sugg. Dr. Sugg is a livestock specialist of Auburn and was in the county to select beef cattle for the beef cattle sale in Montgomery October 27 and 28.

REPORT WRONG ON M. C. MOORE

In last week's Union-Banner we reported that M. C. Moore had been given four months sentence in the Montgomery county jail. This was incorrect. It should have read "M. C. Moore, continued for sentence." We understand that last Friday, however, the sentence was pronounced by Judge Kennamer and M. C. Moore was not given any time but was placed under five years probation.

Stout Lady—Take some yourself, lad, and then you'll be better bred.

BURGLARS FAIL TO REACH CASH

Attempt To Break Into Safe At Office of Clanton Motors

Robbers attempted to break the safe of Clanton Motors Monday night, but did not succeed in their efforts. Entry to the building was gained by breaking through a back window.

They went into Hardy Hurt's locker and obtained some drills, with which they proceeded to operate on the big steel safe. A hole was bored through the door near the lock. The combination lock was broken off. For some unknown reason the job was stopped just as they had practically gained entrance to the safe. They left without opening the door behind which was concealed several hundred dollars in cash.

The same gang went into the Robinson Machine Shop, next door to the Ford place, and obtained a sledge hammer and perhaps some other tools. The hammer was left by the safe at the Ford place.

The same night burglars entered the plant of the Clanton Laundry and took away a number of items of clothing. Up to this time no clue has been found as to who the robbers were. Indications were that it was doneby somebody who was reasonably familiar with the Ford place. They apparently knew exactly where to find the tools they needed to do their work with.

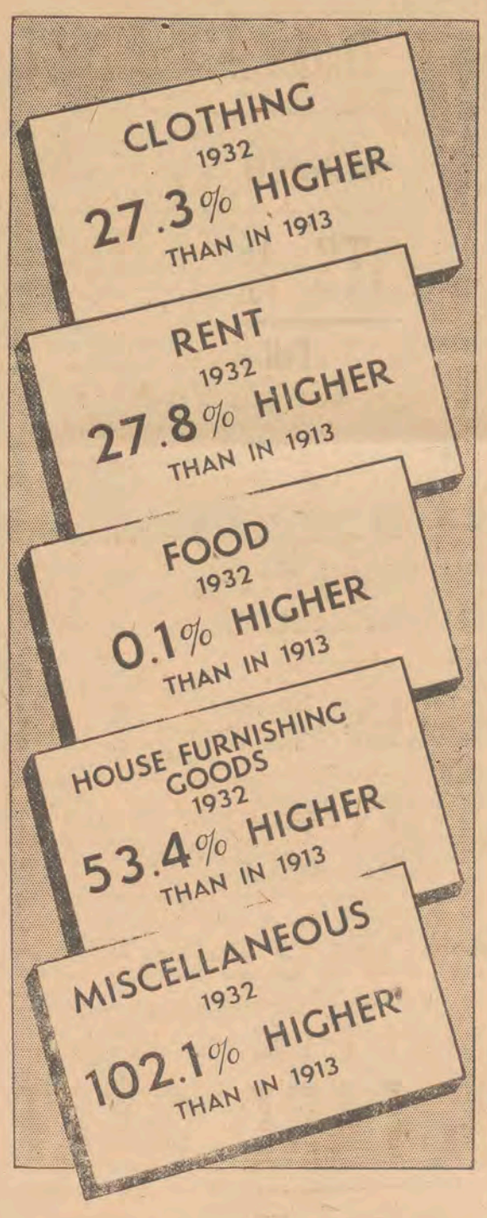
You Made Only One Purchase Of Necessities This Month That Was Lower In Cost Than In 1913....

That was your purchase of HOUSEHOLD ELECTRICITY*

HOUSEHOLD ELECTRICITY 1932 33% LOWER THAN IN 1913



Above calculations based upon national figures of U. S. Bureau of Labor Bulletin, July 27, 1932, and National Electric Light Association.

PRACTICALLY every item in the cost of living is still far ABOVE 1913 pre-war levels except one. That is household electricity. The average rate paid for this indispensable service throughout the United States in 1932 was 33% BELOW the 1913 pre-war level.

The bills pictured on the left of this advertisement show how much MORE is actually paid by the average citizen in 1932 for clothing, rent, food, house furnishing goods and miscellaneous commodities, than was paid back in the pre-war days of 1913. The bill pictured in the upper right hand corner shows how much LESS average rate per Kilowatt hour the household user of electricity throughout the nation pays now than he paid for the same unit of service back in 1913. Household electricity is today's biggest bargain—and practically the only item of living costs for which the average rate is still below pre-war prices.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

One of the most forceful pleas to the taxpayers of America to busy themselves in saving the nation from intorerable burdens of taxation and bureaucracy has come from Charles F. Williams, president of the Western and Southern Life Insurance Company, of Cincinnati, in a leaflet entitled, "Time to Call a Halt." Mr. Williams presents the case of the long suffering taxpayer with logic that is unanswerable and points out the mounting danger to the very fabric of the nation. In pointing out the trmendous increase in governmental burdens during the past twenty years, Mr. Williams says:

"The present paralysis of business with its attendant unemployment crisis is due in large part to the fact that municipal, state and federal taxes are consuming the capital upon which business and industry operate. The load is unbearable and the resulting conditions have become intolerable. Make no mistake about it—increased taxation produces business stagnation and unemployment.

"Here is the situation: In 1912 the cost of government—federal, state and local—was two billion dollars, or 6 per cent of the national income. In 1931 it was twelve billion dollars, or 22 per cent of the national income, and it is headed upward. Where will we land at this rate of increase? One adult out of every ten in the United States is on the public payroll. One day's earnings out of every five goes to pay the cost of government. One dollar out of every three of profit of a corporation or firm goes to taxes.

In paying his respect to bureaucracy and the staggering load it has fastened on the American people Mr. Williams is no less forceful and convincing:

"The government is now engaged in many expensive pursuits that don't come within the scope of the government. Small, well organized groups have succeeded in getting appropriations for activities that have no relation to government. In the course of time a small research body becomes a major government bureau with a staggering annual appropriation and with an ever-lengthened payroll of officeholders — and how they hold.

"This extravagance cripples all industry. Nobody escapes taxes. When the government taxes industry the tax is passed on to the consumer, and that makes everybody a taxpayer. The government is all of us and each of us. When the government borrows money it does so in your name and mine. We indorse the note and must pay it with interest."

There can be no question as to the soundness of Mr. Williams' arguments and the conclusions he draws therefrom. If the present business depression, which everyone now hopes is drawing to a close, can give to the public mind the definite realization that the only real way to lasting prosperity is through economy in governmental activities, so far as private business is concerned, it will be worth all that it has cost us.

Already there are indications that the people are beginning to realize that something is wrong and are going about the business of remedying it. Salaries of public officials are being reduced, their number is being cut down and unnecessary public activities curtailed. But a great deal more remains to be done. Bureaucracy like every selfish interest which is firmly entrenched will fight back with all its might, and has the ear of a great many self serving politicians. We cannot do the job without an aroused public conscience. The efforts of men like Charles F. Williams, in arousing this conscience, are invaluable. If their efforts succeed they will be real saviors of their country.

THE INCOME TAX

Glaring signs are not wanting that the fight to be made against the adoption of the income tax principle in Alabama is to be the most aggressive and the best financed in the state's history.

These signs were plain in the successful campaign waged in the legislature last year to prevent the voters even having opportunity to express themselves upon it.

They were plain again this year when the pressure from the powerful groups made it so difficult to get action by the legislature.

They are evident from day to day in the trading and sparring and trafficking in the legislature where income tax oppenents seem willing to trade off anything for aid in fighting the amendment.

They are evident in the announcement of a former attorney general of Alabama that he has accepted from anonymous and unnamed petitioners chairmanship of the campaign seeking defeat of the amendment.

They are evident in the editorial flagellation being given the income tax amendment by the journalists spokesmen of big business and favored interests.

What is this income tax amendment which enormous sums are being raised to defeat? It is simply a form of taxation based upon "ability to pay." If you haven't the income you do not pay the tax. The principle is endorsed by the national Democratic platform. It is endorsed by all those who believe taxes should be paid in proportion to ability to pay them, and that the heaviest portion of the tax load should not be carried by those least able to carry it.

The income tax amendment provides for lowering ad valorem taxes as rapidly as returns from the income tax justify. It seeks to relieve some of the heavy ad valorem taxes being paid by the farmer, the small business man, the little home owner. It will make those of large income, many of whom now pay no taxes, bear their share of the expense of government.

Those who favor this fair and equitable method of taxation should be warned now of the formidable fight being made against it. The fight will have unlimited funds contributed by those who must pay the tax. Let the overburdened small taxpayer be not deceived. The men and interests of large income are going to make the battle of their lives to keep taxes on the shoulders of the burdened ad valorem payers.

Citizens should remember, however, that they are Democrats; that there is no sounder or fairer basis of taxation than that of "ability to pay," that the income tax is soundest of all because no man has to pay the tax unless he has the income and that incomes of unmarried persons up to $1,500, and heads of families up to $3,000, are exempt from taxation under the Alabama amendment.—Alabama Journal.

A MASTERLY SPEECH

We have met a few leading newspaper men of New York City who are hard-boiled as to speeches and they express the personal opinion, not for publication and not warped by any political bias, that the Hoover acceptance speech was one of the ablest state papers ever written.

Much variance is noted, of course, as to its paragraphs on the liquor question. On this subject there are innumerable variations of personal opinion, most of them tinctured by past expressions and personal opinion. "But," as one of the most prominent editors in America said to us a day or so ago "as a discussion of national affairs, and as a statement of views on the issues of the world itself, it dealt with larger problems and dealt with more positively and more sanely than anything I have ever heard or read before."

The acceptance speech, in short, was that of a leader. Like it or not, it was masterly. It sets Mr. Hoover above all question of oratory, all small issues of personal charm in public speech in a class among the great expositors of statesmanship in history.—Lewiston Journal.

WHERE CREDIT IS DUE

"It is not the critic who counts; not the man who points out how the strong man stumbles, or where the doer of deeds could have done them better. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena, whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood; who strives valiantly; who errs, and comes short again and again because there is no effect without error and shortcoming; but who does actually strive to do the deeds; who knows the great enthusiasms, the great devotions; who spends himself in a worthy cause; who at the best knows in the end the triumph of high achievement, and who at the worst, if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly, so that his place shall never be with those cold and timid souls who know neither victory nor defeat." — Theodore Roosevelt.

A Texas police force tried to chase a skunk out from under a warehouse with motor exhaust gas. Trying to gas a skunk must be like trying to choke a cat to death with cream.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Looks Over All—
Overlooks None.

Just To Show You

I didn't really intend to say so much about politics this week, but it seems there isn't much way to get around it, in view of facts, as they present themselves. You will remember we called your attention to the way cotton, wheat, etc., dropped in price just as soon as news of the Maine catastrophe got around. Well, just to prove that we were right when we said that it wouldn't have happened if those Maine folks hadn't flew the coop, along comes Wisconsin a few days later and returns to the good old Republican fold, after several years of wandering in the wilderness, and prices jump right back up again. It may or may not mean anything to you, but you can't get around the fact that it does look quite convincing that Republican rule is the country's best bet for the next four years.

"Uncle Remus" In Town

"Uncle Remus" was in town last Tuesday, and dropped around to saw a few words. Our good old uncle must have had trees and roots and things like that on his mind. The first thing I heard out of him he was telling something about a big gum root, which he said ran abbut 75 feet before it went in the ground, and was about four inches through where it entered the ground. "Uncle Remus" first said it was four feet through where it entered the ground, but he changed it to four inches when we looked a little skeptical, I reckon. And then the good old fellow told us one about a log he knew of, out there near his home, which he said was 150 feet long. Just looks like he was hankering for an argument, or to try to get somebody to telling big ones, but failing to do so, he bid us adieu, and strolled on up the street. Good old "Uncle Remus."

We're Getting On the Map

Yes sir, it's a fact. We're getting on the map, for sure, now. We're getting so well known and noticable that we're having robberies and things like that—had one last Monday night, when several places were broken into. This burglar must be a real he-man, too—he wants things like machine shop tools, auto parts and such, judging from the places he enetered. He, or they, must have entered Robinson's Machine Shop to get tools with which to break into the Ford place. Then their minds turned to money. I suppose, for I hear they tried opening the safe there. Failed, however, and being spick-and-span cusses, they decided to wash up and put on clean clothes after the night's work, so they dropped around to the Clanton Loundry and took on two or three suits of clothes. Maybe we're getting a bit over-advertised.

Peckerwood Corner

You will remember that some time ago The Man on the Corner told you all about the peckerwood which had taken to the big post up there near the skinnery (thanks to John Page for that name) and kept busy, day by day, pecking holes in the post. Since that time the corner where that post stands has taken on the name of Peckerwood Corner. Marion Gore don't like for you to call it that, but he can't help himself—the name has stuck. And you just ought to stick around Peckerwood Corner a bit—you'll learn things. There has been more advice given right there, and more bumper crops made and gathered on that corner than any place I can think of, right off. You can hear anything discussed, from who we need for president on down to the best and fastest way to kill mites, mosquitoes and other pests. Come around and sit with us sometimes. We'll do you good, and maybe help you, too. Just inquire for Peckerwood Corner—nearly anyone can direct you to it. And you'll be glad you came, too.

"Be Sure Your Sins—"

Somewhere in the Bible you may read "Be sure your sins will find you out." A few nights ago I left my flivver on a down-town street, and some geezer came along and relieved me of my light bulbs. About 9:00 o'clock I decided to drive home, and got no light when I turned my light switch. Now, the joke was on the thief, for only the dim side of one of the bulbs would burn, and the other bulb was completely burned out, so he only got half a bulb—and a dim half, at that—for all his trouble. So, his little sin didn't find him out, that time, but it very near left him in the dark, same as it did me.

The "Switched" Engine

I have just heard a fairly good one on our ever-present source of fun and foolishness—the Democrats. It seems that a young fellow was reading a newspaper report of Mr. Roosevelt's great campaign through the West when he came to a report that the engine which was pulling the would-be president's special campaign train quit on the job just outside a large city, and had to be "switched" out and a new one put in. When he came to the part where the engine had to be "switched," raising his head, he inquired of his father: "Does it mean they "switched" the engine, like we do Maud and Mike, when they balk?" The father explained what was meant by switching the dead engine, and the little fellow resumed his reading with the remark: "I don't blame the engine for quitting—I'd have been ashamed to pull such a bunch into town, too."

"In the Air" Again

Democrats certainly are air - minded. Again I read where they feel victory in the air. Better there than nowhere, I suppose, but, honest, folks, they make me tired—all the time feeling, seeing of hearing victory in the air, and never being able to bring it down to earth where it can do them some good. And, then, maybe a wise and all-seeing Providence knows what is best for all of us, and keeps their victories in the air where they can do the least harm. They certainly are gluttons for this "air" business—mostly of the hot variety.

Grass In the Street

Somewhere in this town of Clanton, right smack-dab in the middle of the paved street, things have gone Democratic. Yes sir, believe it or not, a big bunch of crab grass, or crap grass, whichever you care to call it, grows and flourishes right in the middle of the paved street. Don't shake your head—it's there. I'm going to leave you with it, now, and just see how many can find that bunch of grass. You needn't go poking around the edges—it isn't there—it's on one of the busiest corners of the "city". Now hunt it.—Man in the Moon.

Of course if Governor Roosevelt had of known that Maine was going Democratic he would have made that Yankee speech in Maine instead of Vermont. What an opportunity he missed.

A young married couple had received many presents from their friends. One day two theatre tickets arrived with a note which read, "Guess who sent these?"

They were delighted with the surpise gift and went to the theatre. When they returned all their presents and everything else of value in the house had been taken. . . and on the dining room table was the note, "Now you know."—Everybody's Weekly.

Judging from the timeliness of his recent article in the Saturday Evening Post, we are of the opinion that Calvin Coolidge employed the old Yankee custom of saving his fire until he could see the whites of their eyes.

Evidently the stock market didn't like the election news which came from the Pine Tree State. As Maine goes so goes American Can.

MORAL ECHOES

(By D. W. Haskew)

The good ladies of the Missionary Society bought a nice oak table for our dining room. It was supposed to be solid oak and was a thing of beauty. The table held its own until the heat of summer and then it started to blistering and bucking up around the edges. On close examination it was found to be a veneered table. It looked fine but it proved not to be solid oak at all, and the one who sold it was asked to come and make it good. Since that time I have met many people who looked to be the finest made, but like the table, they proved themselves to be veneered in the time of testing. A true man, like a real oak table, will be the same in the heat and the cold, the sunshine and the shade and in the darkness and the light. If the moral life is veneered, that deception will soon be revealed.

Billy Sunday tells of a mother in Pennsylvania, who rebuked her two sons for wanting to become missionaries after hearing a bishop preach on God's call to evangelize the world. This mother informed her sons that they must give up this idea, as she had no sons to give to mission fields. A few days after this the two boys went swimming. They were caught in a whirlpool and both were drowned. Their comrades fished the bodies out of the water, and then put them into a wagon and carried them home to their mother. She fainted with grief. Billy Sunday says, "God wanted those two boys to preach his Gospel in heathen lands, but that mother said, "You shan't have them." God knew that the mother was not fit to have two boys, so he said to her, "You shan't have them either," an so he took them to heaven." God has a program for every human life, and parents should be very careful not to interfere with His plans. Train your children so that God can use them where they are needed most.

I heard a prominent Judge say a few days ago, "We have sentenced men in our courts to the penitentiary until all the prisons of the state are overflowing. Our jails are now filled with men who are wating for trial and sentence, and I do not know what to do unless the judges of the state will start to sentencing men to church and Sunday school." That judge was a man with a keen vision. It is a fact that when our churches are empty our jails and penitentiaries are crowded. If the parents of the children in our country would sentence their own flesh and blood to twenty one years of church attendance—if parents would lead their children to Sunday school every Sunday for twenty-one years, then our jails would be empty and but few would ever find their way to the penitentiary. When a Spartan boy went wrong, the mother of that boy was punished with him. The problem of today is not a young people's problem. It is a parental problem. When you hear of crowded jails and conjested penitentiaries, when you hear of empty pews at church, just know that parents are failing in their duty to their children. "Train up a child in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it." Fill our churches and empty our jails and prison camps.

When George Stewart was a young minister, he held a prayer service for many months in a little church at the foot of a mountain. Every Wednesday night a man from high up on the mountain side would attend the service, and every time he would beg the young minister to go home with him. One night he accpeted the invitation, and together they climbed the mountain side, the man going on before, holding high his torch light. The blaze was burning low on the fat lightwood splinters, and the man stopped by a rock and snuffed his splinters and made them to take on new light and fire. As he did this he remarked to doctor Stewart, "What the snuffing of my splinters on that rock meant to the flame, your prayer service for these months have meant to my soul. During the travel of a week the fire of my soul burns low, but you snuff off the dead embers every Wednesday night and I burn more brightly for days to follow." Yet some folks say that going to church does not matter. The member who wants to carry a light that shines must of necessity keep his soul snuffed of all dead embers by attending divine worship.

A young bull was put into a three-acre pasture to graze. A boy of eighteen decided that he would cross the pasture, but fearing the bull he secured a hickory sprout and carried it in his hand. When he was about the middle of the plot of ground, the bull saw him and made a wild dash for the boy. A persimmon tree was near and the lad thought to climb it, but the bull did not give him time. He ran around the persimmon tree with the bull right in behind him. The tree being small the boy was in reach of the bull's tail, while the horns of the bull were almost in reach of the boy's rear end. The lad grabbed the tail of the bull and lit in on him with his hickory sprout. Around and around the bull and the boy ran. All the time the boy was beating the bull. Finally the bull started to bellowing. The boy stormed at him, "Shut your mouth, who started this racket." The wet forces of America have decided to gore the civilization and the Chrisianity of this age and they seem to have the church running circles, but we have the old hickory on our side. Prohibitionists want to know who started this racket.

Potatoes in the Back Yard

We have had all sorts of specimens of potatoes sent to us, but Mrs. M. A. Mullins, an 80-year old resident of Clanton has broken the record with a sample submitted from her little back-yard patch. From one hill she dug a total of 22 pounds, 12 potatoes, all in a bunch. The size of the potatoes ranged from the size of cocoanuts down to goose eggs. The whole business was exactly one coal scuttle full. Mrs. Mullins bought the plants from Bob Evans, and cultivated them in the back yard of her home in Clanton.

Why Go to Other Places?

Why should people go to other places to see the latest pictures when they can get them right off the reel at the Wadesonian Theatre in Clanton? Mr. Wade has made arrangements whereby he is running the best first-run pictures at his theatre here. To prove this, I see in the Chicago American where "The Most Dangerous Game" is being shown at the Palace Theatre in Chicago this week. Mr. Wade has it booked to run in Clanton next Monday and Tuesday, October 3rd and 4th. Another big picture, "Bring 'Em Back Alive," which appears in Montgomery next week will be at the Wadesonian October 21 and 22.

The Proof of the Pudding

It is an old saying that the proof of the pudding is in the eating thereof. I am a living witness that the same kind of test can be applied to cake. Last week Mr. Marion Marcus, of the Sunlite Bakery, brought me a nice cake baked at the bakery, telling me he wished I would eat it and then tell my readers what I thought about it. I accordingly made due and ample preparations to render a proper verdict. I saved it for my Sunday dinner dessert. With it I had a glass of fine muscadine wine. And I assure you there are no words in the King's English that can adequately describe the pleasure which came to me from eating this cake. I can say, however that I can fully recommend Sunlite cakes to my friends, and I hope you will get one of them and try it. I have been eating Sunlite bread, too, and it is O. K. People of Clanton should buy Sunlite Bakery Products.

A Peep at Alabama

A friend of mine in Florida sends me a clipping from The Panama City Pilot of recent date in which the editor of that esteemed paper takes a peep at Alabama. Severely castigating the legislature of Alabama (which is more or less deserved) The Pilot concludes thusly: "This legislative body had rather force Alabama into bankruptcy than to set an example of retrenchment in salary, which demonstrates a greed that is a disgrace to many of their forefathers." Rather harsh words, you might say, from our neighbors who peep at us from across the state line. But after all, you can read pretty much the same thing between the lines of that address Governor Miller made to the legislature a few days ago.

It is Looking Better Now

And by the way, one might find reason for encouragement in the attitude of the legislature since Givernor Miller read the riot act to them. There are indications that they will get around to some sort of business before it is utterly too late. The Fletcher Bill has been passed, wiping out all State appropriations. Now, it would be some relief if they did fool around and fail to do anything else. No appropriations at all for a while would be about as well as that kind which carries the expenses of the state beyond its income.

Cotton Ginning Report

According to the census enumerator, R. J. Jones, there were 2,799 bales of cotton ginned in Chilton County from the crop of 1932, prior to September 16, as compared with 1,588 bales ginned prior to the same date in 1931. And this reminds me that we were being told along in the summer that our cotton would come off several weeks later this year than last. There is absolutely no use to indulge in predictions about this cotton business in any respect. You just can't tell about it.

Chilton County is Popular

Mr. Ben Cheeseman, of the Cheeseman Realty Company, in Birmingham, has consummated the sale of the Will Plier place on Yellow Leaf Creek. While here Mr. Cheeseman ventured the assertion that he finds property in Chilton County is of more than the average attraction to people who are in the real estate market. He has a number of prospects who are right now interested in farm property in this section. He wants to get as many pieces of property listed as possible right away. He has an advertisement in The Union-Banner this week, asking for listings.

Mr. Sloan Wants a Place

Mr. S. C. Sloan, of North Chilton, was a visitor to Clanton Tuesday. He says he has sold his farm, located on the highway four miles above Jemison, and wants to locate on a small improved farm down in the central part of the county. Mr. Sloan is a man of very fine qualities. He has been living in Chilton County only a few years, but he has proven to his neighbors and friends that he is a citizen of which any community would be proud. We hope he finds a suitable place without having to go outside of Chilton County.

ALL DAY SINGING TO BE AT PLEASANT GROVE

There will be an all day singing at this place on the first Sunday in October. Everybody is invited to be with us. We have the promise of the Clanton Quartet and several good singers. Come and bring your books. Don't forget the time and place, 8 miles southwest of Clanton. —A. M. Devaughn.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank all the people who have helped us to get our cotton picked. Last Wednesday there were thirty-six picking that morning and twenty-two that evening. They picked 3,700 pounds. Some had already come and picked before that time. Also we thank Mr. Edwards for giving us the ginning on one bale. May God bless you all, is our prayer.—Mrs. Julius Mullins, Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Bice.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this means of expressing our appreciation and gratitude to our neighbors and friends for their kindness and sympathy shown us during the recent illness and death of our beloved husband and father, F. M. Price. We thank them for the beautiful flowers. We also thank Mr. Martin for his splendid services.—Mrs. F. M. Price, Mrs. R. M. Foshee, Mrs. Miner Littlejohn, Lonnie Price, J. D. Price, J. C. CARD OF THANKS

Editor Union-Banner:

Will you give me space in your paper to express my appreciation and heart-felt thanks to the people of Mineral Springs church and community for the gracious pounding, which they gave me on Friday night, September 23, and for their many acts of kindness shown me and my family since being their pastor. It is a great pleasure to preach to people that seem to appreciate a pastor as you do. May the richest blessings of heaven rest on each one of you. —H. D. Durbin.

"—my skin became clear..."
—and you don't know what a happy day that was in my life." Then why not pause a moment and reason in a common-sense way the cause of many skin troubles. Such common ailments often result because of a lowered resistance below the skin surface—frequently due to lowered blood vitality.
Increase the red-blood-cells and their hemoglobin content and more of the life giving oxygen is carried to every part of the body—even to the skin. "Step up" the ability of the resisting cells to devour infectious pimple germs. Then you will have laid the foundation for a sounder physical condition.

Central Singing Society

One of the best singings of the season was held at Friendship last Sunday afternoon. There were a number of visitors present both from the society and from other parts of the county. We were very glad to have the help of some members of the United Singing Society as well as a supply of the new Morris-Henson books. This contributed greatly to the success of the afternoon's service. We were also glad to have two numbers from the Clanton Baptist quartet; they would have been called upon for more numbers had it not been for the large number of directors. This quartet is composed of Jesse C. Jones, Cleve Powell, Jasper Jones and Tom Frank Teel. Miss Mary Ellis played for one of their numbers and Marion Easterling played for the other one.

Directors were: I. D. Huett, R. M. Robinson, E. L. Glasscock, G. C. Powell, T. E. Wyatt, A. O. Boswell, J. W. Clackler, A. H. Glasscock, L. T. Grant, Fonza Clackler, Chester Wyatt, W. L. Sanders and Marion Easterling. There were four more names on the program—J. R. Robinson, C. H. Robinson, Dr. J. B. Williams and S. V. Miller—but on account of the time being almost up, these gentlemen relinquished their places. It was indeed a regret that all could not be used, but time would not permit. Prof. O. L. Devaughn, chairman of the society, presided. The program was arranged by A. O. Boswell, assisted by T. E. Wyatt. Mr. Boswell was the only member of the committee present when the program was called for, so he asked the secretary to help him arrange the program. However, J. R. Robinson, another member of the committee, came in shortly after the singing started.

The society is very grateful to Providence church, Prof. A. H. Glasscock and Prof. O. L. Devaughn for lending their books. It is hoped that everyone will have one each of the Stamps and Henson books real soon so that we will not have to borrow from anybody.

The singing next Sunday afternoon will be held at Chestnut Creek. All singers have a cordial invitation to attend.

BETHSALEM SUNDAY SCHOOL

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely. We met Sunday at 10 o'clock, with a large number present. We had a number of visitors and new members. The new members were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Langston and little son and daughter, Hoyt and Virginia. Visitors were Mr. Bill Langston, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Brigance. We were glad to have them, and invite them back again any time they can come.

We have been stuyding the life of Moses for the past 3 months. Mrs. A. L. Bearden talked on the quarterly, after the classes, which was finished. We invite all who can to come and be with us at all of our services.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Wilkins and family were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Bearden.

The singing society met at Bethsalem Sunday afternoon at 2:30, with a real good crowd. Our president was absent, and Mr. Raymond Brigance served as president. We had a real good singing. We had a number of visitors from different communities. Directors for the afternoon were as follows: Mr. Raymond Brigance, Miss Ella Mae Jones, Miss Josephine Billingsley, Miss Maudie Jones, Miss Etta Bell Billingsley, Miss Louise Patrick, Miss Willie B. Hubbard, Mrs. Mills. Organists for the afternoon were as follows: Miss Louise Patrick, of Montgomery, Miss Willie B. Hubbard Miss Mabel Wilkins, and Mr. Raymond Brigance.

We had a special duet rendered by Mrs. Mills and Miss Willie B. Hubbard, which was enjoyed by all. We were glad to have all the visitors and invite them back again.—Reporter.

Mr. W. E. Thomas of Sylacauga was a visitor to Clanton Sunday. He came here with Mr. Hugh M. Comer, who spoke to a gathering of men at Clanton Baptist Sunday school. Mr. Thomas lived in Chilton County before he moved to Sylacauga.

FAITHFUL WORKERS MEETING

There will be a meeting of the Faithful Workers class of Clanton Baptist Sunday school at the church on Tuesday afternoon, October 4, at 3 o'clock. All members of the class are urged to attend.

TO CONFEDERATE PENSIONERS

On account of the fact that the general fund of the state has not $306,000, (amount of the October pensions) to advance to the pension fund, and the fact that collection of pension or soldier tax for the new fiscal year has not yet begun, announcement was made at the state capitol today that pension warrants to Confederate soldiers and their widows to be delivered October 1st, cannot be paid for several weeks.

The soldier tax is one mill, or ten cents on each hundred dollars of ad valorem tax. This is collected from October 1st, to September 30th, each year.

Pensions are paid in advance, for irstance the October 1st payment being for the months of October, November and December. The January payment for January, Feb. ruary and March, etc. However, on the first day of the fiscal year, and before any soldier tax is collected, the first quarterly payment of pensions falls due. The general fund of the state usually advances the money for the pensions, and is repaid gradually as the soldier tax is collected. At the end of the year (or the July quarter) the general fund pays any deficit in the pension fund, the soldier tax not being sufficient to pay pensions in full.

Pension warrants will be delivered by the probate judges as usual, but these warrants cannot be paid at the state treasury until money is secured for same. Notice will be given through the press when the pension warrants may be presented at the treasury for payment.

PATES CHAPEL

The W. M. U. met Saturday evening and was enjoyed by a few members for the first meeting. But we hope for it to be better next time. It meets every second and fourth Saturdays at 2:30 o'clock. Everybody come and help us out, and be with us.

Mr. Leonard Pitchford is visiting his uncle and relatives this week in Pates Chapel community.

We are glad to make the report that the Misses Lorene and Lucille Cleckler have recovered from diptheria.

Mr. and and Mrs. Herbert Maddox are visiting Mrs. Maddox's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Childress, this week.

There will be preaching here Saturday night at 6:30 and Sunday at 10:00, with Rev. M. Lockhart in charge. Everybody who is interested is invited to come and be with us. We appreciate any help.

Miss Hazel Maddox accompanied Miss Margaret Davidson, of Thorsby, to Mt. Springs Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Hayes and little girl, Mary Evelyn, and Misses Lucille and Lorene Cleckler enjoyed a birthday dinner at Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hayes's Sunday.

Among those who attended the singing at Center Hill Sunday were: Mr. Ervin Pate, Misses Emily Pate and Zemma Hayes, Mr. Harvey Ray, Misses Minnie Childress and Lorene Cleckler, Lucile Cleckler, Mildred Hayes and Mr. and Mrs. Chester A. Maddox, all of Pates Chapel.

Mr. Alex Maddox had dinner with his sister, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hayes Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Maddox and children spent Saturday night with Mrs. Hesterann Merchant of Thorsby.

Everybody remember the singing at Pates Chapel every third Sunday. It will be October 16th this time. Everybody come and bring some one with you. Bring your new and old books if you wish. We mostly always use the new Morris-Henson "Songs of Praise."

Lesson for October 2

THE CHRISTIAN'S DEVOTIONAL LIFE

GOLDEN TEXT—But grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. To him be glory now and for ever.

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 6:5-15; Daniel 6:10; II Timothy 3:14-17.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Talking to God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—What Real Prayer Is.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Christian's Devotional Life.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Means of Christian Growth.

The Christian's growth is by means of his devotional life. It requires the symmetrical development of his understanding and heart. Bible study and prayer go hand in hand. The believer's affections need proper direction and exercise.

I. The Christian's Prayer Life (Matt. 6:6-15).

In Christ's teaching in this passage on prayer we note:

1. False prayer (vv. 5-7). This consists.

a. In one praying to be seen and heard of men (v. 5). Many prayers uttered in public are false, for the supreme consideration is what the people think rather than what God thinks. Men who thus pray get a reward but not from God.

b. In using vain repetitions (vv. 7, 8). This does not mean that we should ask but once for the thing desired, for we have examples of Christ and Paul praying three times for the same thing (Matt. 26:39-46; II Cor. 12:7, 8); but rather that the use of meaningless repetitions, reiterations of empty sentences be avoided.

2. True prayer (v. 6). Real prayer is communion of the child of God with his heavenly Father. Life for its fullest development needs both solitude and companionship. God, our Creator, knew what our natures require. Therefore, he commands both public and private prayer (Heb. 10:25; Matt. 6:6).

3. The model prayer (vv. 9-13). This was given in response to the disciples' request that the Lord would teach them to pray (Luke 11:1).

a. A right relationship—"Our Father" (v. 9). Only those who have become children of God by faith in Jesus Christ can pray aright.

b. A right attitude—"Hallowed be thy name" (vv. 9, 10). When one realizes that he has been delivered from the power of darkness and translated into the kingdom of his dear Son (Col. 1:13) by being a child of God, he cannot help pouring out his soul in gratitude and praise, intensely longing for the kingdom, the righteous rule of Christ on the earth.

c. A right spirit (vv. 11-13). This spirit involves

(1) Trust which looks to God for the supply of daily need. We are dependent upon him for our daily food. With all man's boasted progress he cannot make a harvest.

(2) The spirit of love which results in forgiveness of others. God will not listen to the prayers of one who has an unforgiving spirit.

(3) That of holiness which moves one to pray and not to be led into temptation and moves him to long to be delivered from the Evil One.

(4) Regular prayer (Dan. 6:10). Though prohibited by royal decree from asking a petition from any god or man except the king, Daniel did not depart from his regular custom of prayer to God three times a day.

II. The Christian's Bible Study (II Tim. 3:14-17).

This scripture exhibits the value of the Holy Scriptures. Devotional life undirected by the Scriptures will develop in a wrong direction. The affections need to be disciplined through the understanding.

1. The Scriptures able to make one wise unto salvation (v. 15). Salvation is in Christ alone. It is secured through faith in his finished work on the cross. True wisdom leads to Christ crucified since "there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved" (Acts 4:12), "and without shedding of blood is no remission" (Heb. 9:22).

2. The Scriptures discipline the life (vv. 16, 17). In the Scriptures doctrine is set forth, the standard of conduct which is absolutely needed. The only place to find God's standard of life is in his Holy Word. It not only exhibits the divine standard, but it reproves; that is, refutes error. The way to deal with error is not denunciation, but the positive presentation of truth. Then, too, it corrects; that is, sets straight many of the dislocations of personal and social conduct. The Word of God not only sets straight, but instructs in righteousness and equips for service.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

If you expect to get to heaven you must go in that direction.

* * *

Do not pray for easy lives; pray to be stronger men and women.

* * *

If I take care of my character, my reputation will take care of itself.

* * *

It is one thing to see the way you should go, and quite another to go the way you see.

Prophecy Corner
Conducted By
L. A. BUTTERFIELD

The world today, because of the continued ominous struggle between capital and labor, is facing a precarious situation. The wealth of the world has come to be controlled by a few individuals. For example: Seven men control a large part of London, and 4,000 men own half of England.

It used to be that foreigners coming to our shores who were accustomed to the degrading distinctions of the old world were astonished at the universal, individual prosperity of the new.

When a noted French author visited America in 1831, he made the following remark: "Nowhere else have I seen so equal distribution of the country's wealth, and so marked an absence of capitalists." But how is it today?

There are in the United States more than forty families that have over $100,000,000 each, over one hundred families that have more than $50,000,000 each, and more than three hundred families that have more than $20,000,000 each. A statement published by qualified authorities in 1923 gave a conservative estimate that 95 per cent of the wealth of the United States was controlled by 5 per cent of the population. But now, only nine years later, it is estimated by a United States senator who has investigated the matter, that 99 per cent of the wealth of our nation is controlled by 1 per cent of the population.

It is indeed difficult for us to understand the wealth of some few men in the world today. The Wall Street Journal states that the business of Henry Ford can be capitalized for two billion dollars. It is not easy for the average mind to comprehend the magnitude of this vast sum of money. If Adam, who lived about six thousand years ago, were still alive and had saved $500 a day during six thousand years of his life his fortune would not yet equal that of either Henry Ford or John D. Rockefeller.

Because of tis amassing of wealth by a few the gulf which now separates capital and labor is widening and deepening as the days go by. On the one side men and women are living in ease and luxury, having everything that heart could wish for of this old world's store. On the other side every passing day sees more sorrow, more hunger, more unemployment, with all that word implies. Benevolent societies and churches are unable to cope with the situation. What do these things mean?

The Ladies Home Journal some time ago said, "Confused, beaten down, dazed and discouraged, a bewildered world is calling as never before fo rthe voice of a prophet—a prophet to tell us the meaning of the times and the conditions."

Well, we have just such a prophet, and here is his prophecy: "Go to now, ye rich men, weep and howl for your miseries that shall come upon you. Your riches are corrupted, and your garments are motheaten. Your gold and silver is cankered; and the rust of them shall be a witness against you, and shall eat your flesh as if it were fire. Ye have heaped treasure together for the last days." James 5:1-3. The prophet saw in vision what we see in the world today. It is a sign of the last days.—L. A. Butterfield.

Five Places Will Give Double Votes In Good Samaritan Contest Saturday

If you will read the page Good Samaritan adv. this week you will see that there are five concerns giving double votes Saturday of this week. They are: Clanton Motors, The Leader, Calloway Drug Company, Sample Shoe Store and Deloach's or the Clanton Cash Store. The Clanton Cash Store gave double votes last Saturday, but for some reason not many people had learned about it, so Mr. Deloach prevailed on the Union-Banner to let him have another whack at it.

So, everybody bear in mind that one cent counts two votes at all five of these places next Saturday. We hope that the trading public will make the day worth while for these businesses next Saturday.

The Vote Thus Far

When we went to press Wednesday at noon, the votes turned in by the various church were:

Friendship	505,605
Clanton Foursquare	430,667
Clanton Methodist	253,701
Walnut Creek M. P.	250,255
Concord	227,155
Liberty Hill	64,525

THANKS FOR HELP

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Mims express their thanks to all who contributed to help them while Mrs. Mims was in the hospital.

Mr. Armon Wagoner solocited contributions at Clanton, Thorsby and Jemison. He says he found the people very generous and liberal. He raised a total of about $42.

AN EXPLANATION

Mr. Willie Jackson, of Lomax, son of Mr. J. H. Jackson, requests us to state that he is not the Willie Jackson who was recently reported as charged with violating the prohibition law.

A little miss of four came tearfully to her mother one morning with the complaint, "How can I button my dress when the button is in the back and I am in the front?"

Which reminds me of the fellow who stood in front of a dental display window. "I think I'll get a pair like that," he mused.

"Hush," said the companion, "don't you know it's impolite to pick your teeth i npublic."

C. T. Walker of Shoults was in Clanton Tuesday.

DAT BLOOMIN PREACHER

All Ah know is Whut de Bible say Bout Hit.

This Week's Blossom:

Bible sa, "There is a generation that curseth their father, and doth not bless their mother." Proverbs 30-11.

Ah sa, "An dis is it."

Turn to de 24th chapter ob Isaiah an read it all. Den look at de 17th verse, "Fear, and the pit, and the snare, are upon thee, O inhabitant ob the earth." Whut I want to talk to you bout dis mawnin is, "De Doleful Judgments of God upon de Lan." Dar is no gittin roun de fac dat de worl is des whut de people make it. We could make de worl a paradise to lib in des as well as to make it a hell lak it is. Evybody will gree dat de whole worl is in an awful condition. Dat means religious, social, political and economical.

In looking fur de cause ob dese conditions, I find dat de religious an political conditions is de cause ob de social an economical conditions. Den to simmer it all down to de last analysis, I find dat de religious condition is de whole cause. In other words, if de religious or spiritual condition in our country wuz remided, all other conditions would right themselves. It would be a matter ob impossibility to make either de expert politicians or de students ob political economy see dis.

De following is an apt illustration ob dis pint. Suppose dat a patient, suffering frum tuberculosis wuz turned over to some medical students wid jes one year ob study an no practice. One would say dat de patient's emanciated condition wuz due altogether to mal-nutrition. Another would say dat de trouble wuz a lack ob red corpuscles in de blood, while another would say de trouble wuz high blood pressure an so on. Each one would start givin medicine to cure de effect stid ob de cause. An expert would examine de patient thoroughly, den diagnosis de cause.

Now President Hoover is de daddy ob dis government. He sends out an gits his expers for he has got a mighty sick patient on his hans, an his "Doctors" start in treatin de effect. One says it is high tariff. Another says it is de bankin systim; still another says it's prohibition an so on. The Congress of the United States floundered around in the last session ob that body absolutely helpless, because they wuz not able to properly diagnosis de case. All dat dey done, an all dat de ligislators are now doin at Montgomery is jets treatin de effect. Of course, they help the patient a little, but they can't cure him wid sich medicine as they are now givin.

It is jes like takin aspirin for de headache. It will stop de pain momentarily, but de cause is still there, or lak applyin drops to a diseased tooth. It will stop de pain for a little while, but nuthin short ob de dentist's forceps will cure it.

Whut does my tex sa? "Fear, and the pit, and the snare, are upon thee, O inhabitant of the earth." As we flee from the noise of the fear, we run full tilt into the pit, an then, as we scramble up and out ob de pit, we are taken by de snare. You may believe me or not, but this will continue on indefinitely, or until the patient dies, if de proper remedy is not applied.

"God's Doleful Judgments," as I announced in de beginnin, is not de disease, but de effect. To git at de real cause of our trouble is whut is needed. Can we stan these awful symtoms, "God's Judgments" much longer an live? De patient is gwyn to die jes lak other nations has done in de past if de proper remedy is not applied soon. It seems to me dat one at all familiar wid de old Bible would easily find a parrellel ob de condition today in our country wid those ob de children of Israel, in their disobedience an God's judgments on them.

Now whut is de rite remedy an how can it be applied? In de case ob de tuberculosis patient referred to above, de real physician, de man dat knows what he is doin, will tell de patient dat medicine wont do much good. Dat it will jest relieve him ob de pain an strengthen him while nature, through proper diet and climate conditions, will effect a cure.

We must admit dat our nation is mighty sick, but any an all ob de "quack" remedies bein applied can't effect a cure. Are we willin to apply de rite remedy? If we aint, den we is gwyn to git sicker an sicker till we is willin. What is de remedy? Here it is: Let de people git back to God an worship Him wid true honest hearts. Let de religion ob Jesus Christ dominate de lvies ob men. Le de nation begin to pactice de golden rool of, "as ye would that men do unto you, do ye even so unto dem."

Paul says, "Be not deceived, God is not mocked, for whatsoever a man (or a nation) soweth, that shall he also reap." Proverbs 29:2 says "When the righteous are in authority, the people rejoice, but when the wicked beareth rule, the people mourn." Dis nation has bin sowin to de win long enough. De wicked has bin rulin long enough. We are reapin de things dat we sowed an are tryin to change de fruits of our sowin by "quack" methods. Let us begin to sow good seed, and put Godly men in office, an de doleful judgments ob God will be lifted an de people will begin to rejoice, an de kingdom of our Christ will begin to flourish like a green bay tree an blossom as de roses. Sinners will be saved. De hungry will be fed an clothed, an everybody will love his neighbor an honor God wid his life. I will now close. May de Lord bless us.—Elder Blosom.

Report of Social Service Commission of Southern Baptist Convention

Military Training

"Notwithstanding this traditional policy of our country our military establishment is being increased in a greater proportion than in almost any other nation—267,000 in 1914, 728,000 in 1929, 799,000 in 1931.

"In 1929-30 there were military units in 288 colleges and schools in the country; 145,902 students were taking the courses. Seventeen hundred and sixty army officers were assigned to this work of military training in the schools at a cost for 1930 to the government of $2,677,917.

"However, the states of New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey and Virginia have appointed Commisssions to consider the value of military training in the schools and the Commissions, all alike, have advised against it. Many schools, including such representative schools as Northwestern University, California Institute of Technology, Denison University, and Emory University, have abolished it."

This Commission declares itself as opposed to military training in the schools, as being contrary to our national traditions, provocative of the military spirit, and therefore provocative of war.

Disarmament Conference

The first worldwide conference on Disarmament is now in session in Geneva. It is being participated in by the 57 nations comprising the League of Nations, with the United States and Russia in addition. They are meeting for the purpose of taking definite and special steps to reduce armaments. That they may succeed is the earnest wish and devout prayer of a war-torn, war-disturbed, and war-fearing world.

This Social Service Commission, speaking as well as it may for the nearly four million Southern Baptists, goes on record as in favor of the renunciation of war, the reduction of armaments, and the development of international institutions, such as the World Court, for the peaceful settlement of controversies between nations.

The Communist party officially entered the ranks of Alabama's political parties by filing the names of two presidential electors with Pete B. Jarman, Jr., secretary of state, to be placed on the ballots in the Nov. 8 elections.

Judge W. I. Grubb will convene U. S. District Court in Huntsville Oct. 3, U. S. District Atty. John B. Isbell said. Court will be convened Oct. 24 at Jasper, while the two intervening weeks will be taken up by court at Florence and Tuscumbia.

The American Net & Twine Company, subsidiary at Blue Mountain, Ala., near Anniston, will build two additions to its plant at a cost of $50,000 with construction to begin immediately, it was announced by the Alabama Industrial Development Board

Following are the members of the jury: Rube E. Jones, Charley A. Williamson, Clarence White, Walter B. McNeil, Ed Y. Conway, T. R. Williams, Pink J. Whatley, William G. Rasberry, Homer L. County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

SOW RYE GRASS TO MAKE LAWNS GREEN

Auburn, Ala., Sept. 26.—Beautiful winter lawns are inexpensive in Alabama. They can be had by planting in October seed of Italian rye grass. The first step is to get the seed, and the next is to prepare the lawn, said John W. Hyde, associate professor of landscape gardening at Auburn.

The lawn should be prepared by scarifying it with a rake, after which the seed should be broadcast, sowing one-half in one direction and the other half in the other direction to even the distribution. Where a large area is to be planted a brush rake may be used to scarify.

The rate of seeding is one pound of seed to 30 feet square of space. On this basis a lawn 50 by 75 feet needs 13 pounds of seed. More seed than this will make a thicker stand.

The soil should be either rolled or lightly tamped with a rake or a hoe immdeiately after sowing. Do not scratch the seed under for this may retard germination.

Mow the grass when it is six inches high. If mowed too closely much of the grass will be pulled up by the roots. The second cutting should be with a mower and subsequent cuttings often enough to give it the right appearance.

The soil should contain sufficient moisture for germination when the seed are sowed. Do not water with sufficient force to carry the seed away. Where the lawn soil is poor an application of either barnyard manure or mixed fertilizer will cause a better growth and improve the color of the rye grass.

If Bermuda sprigs are added in the fall they will be protected by the rye grass and be ready to start growth early the following spring.

BUSINESS REVIVAL CAMPAIGN PLANNED

Oneonta, Ala., Sept. 26. — Plans for conducting an extensive business revival campaign throughout Alabama during the week of November 12 to 19 have been formulated by Forney G. Stephens of the Southern Democrat, published at Oneonta, and president of the Alabama Press Association, with the cooperation of Cody Hall, editor of the Alexander City Outlook, Chas. H. Greer, editor of Sylacauga News; L. E. Foster, secretary of Chamber of Commerce, Birmingham; N. C. Cady, Birmingham, Paoli Smith, Birmingham; and P. O. Davis, Auburn.

The plan provides for cooperation among editors, bankers, merchants, county demonstration agents, home demonstration agents, and others, through the press association, the banker's association, merchant's association, Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions, Civitans, Exchange Clubs, and others who are actively interested in promoting business improvement.

Newspapers will offer reduced advertising rates, and merchants will offer special prices. The aim is to start the business ball to rolling and keep it rolling at a normal gait, Mr. Stephens said.

A recent inquiry by Mr. Stephens brought assurances of cooperation from a large number of editors and publishers. Daily and weekly newspapers were included. State officers of Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions, Civitan and Exchange Clubs are requesting cooperation of their respective clubs.

"We hope," said Mr. Stephens, "that the week will result in a general revival in business. As goods are sold more will be bought by merchants, thus improving the business of wholesalers and of manufacturers. It should present many advantages to consumers by offering special inducements to buy."

FOREST TREE SEEDLINGS ARE AVAILABLE THIS FALL

A total of 89,550 forest tree seedlings will be available this fall to tree planters, who are interested in reforestation for timber production, according to Colonel Page S. Bunker, Alabama State Forester. Of the total quantity of seedlings available 7,700 are Slash Pine, 2,800 longleaf pine, 6,100 red oak, 20,200 black locust, 4,950 black walnut and 47,800 white ash. "This is a rather remarkable showing," says Colonel Bunker, "since our nursery has been practically shut down for the past year due to a heavy reduction in the funds available for its operation." Seedlings can be secured by tree planters at $1.50 per thousand f. o. b. Livingston. The planting season extends from about November 15 to March 15 and shipments will be made at intervals during this period.

Application blanks, on the reverse side of which will be found the regulation governing the distribution of the seedlings, can be obtained from the office of the State Forester at Montgomery. Trees are distributed under stringent regulations since it is not the purpose of the State Commission of Forestry to produce shade or ornamental stock for private planting, but to furnish seedlings capable of reforesting blank areas in the woodlands, idle corners on the farm and for afforestation on such areas as the prairie soils.

BRIEF NEWS NOTES

Alabama sorghum syrup is now being sold in Birmingham and smaller towns and cities of Alabama. Dr M. F. Jackson of the T. C. I. Company, Birmingham, said that it is "selling right along in preference to other syrups." Sugarcane syrup will be on the market later.

Retail food prices in 51 cities of the United States, as reported to the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the United States Department of Labor, showed an average decrease of two-tenths of 1 per cent on August 15, 1932, when compared with July 15, 1932, and an average decrease of about 15 and three-fourths per cent since August 15, 1932.

A Chicago dispatch of September 20 states that the Grain Stabilization Corporation advertised yesterday for bids on 62,500 bags of farm board coffee for October delivery. The coffee is a part of the stores received from Brazil in exchange for stablization wheat. Bids will be open until noon September 30 at the New York office of the corporation.

The Bank of England is buying and storing stocks of bar gold in accordance with plans of Montague Norman, the bank's governor, for early return of Great Britain to the gold standard. The bank has increased its gold holdings by 19,000,000 pounds (approximately $66,000,000 in the last four months. Its holdings now total 140,000,000 pounds (about $490,000,000).

The National Research Council says that there is in the oceans of the world about $14,000,000 worth of gold for very man, woman, and child on earth. The painful fact about it is that the best method now known for extracting it requires an expenditure of $50,000 for several years of work for extracting $5,000 worth of gold from sea water.

DEPARTMENT SUSPENDS GASOLINE FROM SALE

Within the past sixty days 275,000 gallons of gasoline have been suspended from sale by the Alabama Department of Agriculture reports Seth P. Storrs, commissioner.

This gasoline was suspended from sale because it was found to be below the state standard, Mr. Storrs said. The department has several inspectors busy at the present time taking samples of gasoline and kerosene sold in the state.

FARMERS SHOULD SAVE SOILS SAYS BENNETT

More than a million acres of Alabama lands have been ruined and practically every sloping field is suffering to some extent from soil erosion, says Hugh H. Bennett of the Bureau of Agricultural Chemistry, Washington, D. C.

Mr. Bennett recently visited Alabama and urged that farmers terrace and protect their soils from erosion. "No farmer or community can withstand such wastage indefinitely," he said.

"Soil erosion is a problem that must be met now. It is not a problem that can be put off for the future generations to solve."

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., Sept. 26—With the close of the third week of football practice at Alabama, Coach Frank Thomas is beginning to get a good line on his varsity candidates. Several positions, however, are still undecided.

The end posts are causing the tide coaches lots of grief. Dotherow is a fixture at one wing, but the other is still up in the air.

Gandy for a time looked like he would fit the bill but he is weak in blocking. Swaim, a vet from 1931, has the edge on him now. Turner and Leach are two others in the battle.

The tackles are uncertain, due to Godfree's knee. If Newt can play, he and Laslie, another senior will hold down the two berths. If not, Jim Dildy will likely fill in for him.

Tom Huppe has one guard post sewed up, but the other is a fight between Sanford, Morrow and Kirkland has the edge but is fragile and may not be able to stand the rough stuff.

Hewes and Houston will hold down the center of the line. Hewes is a chuncky 200 pounder, who would rather play football than go to a movie. Houston, a redhead, is a good sub for him.

Moseley and Holley are having a slam battle for the quarterback job. Holley has been playing with the first team, but is having a hard time stepping ahead of Moseley.

Chappell and E. Walker look good for regular jobs at the halfback posts. Howard, Campbell, Rohrdanx and others are not bothering them much.

Cain is, of course, a fixture at fullback. This, his last year, should be his best. He is in fine shape and the knee which bothered him last fall is entirely healed.

"The Story of Bermuda," by Prof. Hudson Strode, of the University of Alabama department of English, will appear from the press early in October. The work is a descriptive essay of the Bermudas and includes 75 artistic photographs.

Dr. Benjamin Wooten and Prof. Joseph Gelders of the department of physics are preparing a book on "Experimental Physics," for laboratory use. The book will be the culmination of twenty years work on the part of Mr. Wooten. Prof. Gelders has been collobrating for 3 years.

The Mirror, year book of Phillips High Sschool, Birmingham, was awarded the silver trophy by the University of Alabama extension division for the best high school annual in the state for 1932.

The Alabama society of certified public accountants met at University of Alabama September 23 and 24. Thirty members were present. Among the speakers were Dean Lee Bidgood of the University school of commerce; J. B. Haslam of the Birmingham Trust and Savings Company; and C. E. Armstrong, comptroller of Birmingham.

Jim Hardwick, traveling ssecretary for the Y. M. C. A. Southern region, arrived September 24, for a three-weeks lecture series promoted by the Y. M. C. A.

O. K. Lamb, Methodist student pastor and instrucotor in religion, has been appointed dean of the Methodist State Student Conference to be held at Birmingham-Southern College, October 28 to 30. Twenty-one University students will be delegates to the conference.

Road Work Beat 15

Editor Union-Banner:

Will you please allow me just a small space for just a few words?

I just want the good people of Chilton County to know just how Mr. J. F. Anderson used the county's money as he claims he used it to the best advantage of the people. He absolutely did use it for himself and relations. I went to Mr. Anderson and asked for work. He would not give me a day when I absolutely needed it. He claimed he was supposed to work the closest men to him. And he went right in ten feet of my door and got his brother to work.

Now what do you think of that? Was that right or not? And listen, he also turned in Mr. W. W. Adams, hauling gravel on truck, December 5th, $6.00, and he also turned in Worth Adams, shoveling gravel, December 5th, $1.00, which is all the same man. Now is that using the county's money right?

And he also turned in Mr. O. F. Patrick with truck on road, $36.00, and neither one of these men have ever owned a truck. And I am sure there were plenty of hungry, needy children over the county that needed help at that time.

No, friends, I just want to know, do you all call this using the county's money right? I also understands he claims he resigned from his job, but I have a letter from L. H. Reynolds, stating that the Commissioners Court decided it would be best to change overseers in Beat 15. But now listen, people, even if he did resign, don't you think he had a good reason for it? And do you think anyone should have credit for doing a thing like he was forced to do?

Now, people, do you think this is the right way to use the county's money? If you do I am absolutely through and have nothing more to say. And if anyone don't believe this, please go to the record at Clanton and see.—With best wishes, Arthur Carter, Pletcher, Ala.

I am also enclosing a copy of Mr. Reynold's letter. I am sure he don't care who sees this:

Mr. Arthur Carter, Pletcher, Ala.

Dear Sir:

The Commissioners Court decided that it was best for Chilton County and for the working of the public roads in Beat 15 to change overseers. I would suggest that you see Mr. Burnett about a new overseer, as he was instructed to recommend another overseer for Beat 15 at the next meeting. The Commissioners Court will meet in their regular meeting, October 3rd, at 10 a.m.—Yours truly, L. H. Reynolds, Judge of Probate.

Ask Your Doctor Two Important Questions

How Many Minerals Does the Body Contain? Why Are Minerals and Vitamins So Essential to Bodily Health?

When your doctor names the Mineral elements of the body write down the list carefully. Take this list to your druggist and ask to see a bottle of LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND, the marvelous new formula that is bringing health to thousands. Compare the Doctor's list with the label on the bottle and you'll find, without exception, every one of the essential Minerals are contained in this famous compound. That's the reason for its amazing success. It's Nature's own way to health.

OUR WONDERFUL BODIES

Strange as it may seem, these wonderful bodies of ours consist of a very limited list of fundamental chemical elements. It is now known that only eleven minerals and five gases are needed by Nature in building the strongest man or the most beautiful woman.

OUR BODIES ARE ROBBED

All of these essential Minerals and gases are present in natural foods but improper cooking and an unbalanced diet rob us of these vital elements. The system becomes charged with acid. Indigestion and Constipation follow. We become nervous and irritable; subject to headaches, fail to get the proper rest at night, become weak and listless and good health deserts us.

NATURE DEMANDS HELP

When any of the essential Minerals are deficient, Nature demands help. Harsh laxatives, "patent" medicines and "pain killers" won't do. You must feed into the body those missing elements that Nature demands. LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND, the new scientific formula, contains a balanced supply of Minerals, in combination with vitamins and it is surprising how quickly the system responds to this Natural health building formula.

CLEARS THE SYSTEM

LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND, with Vitamins, sweeps the system clean of impurities, drives out dangerous "toxic" poisons, eliminates excessive acids that destroy health, supplies the body with essential minerals, builds rich, red blood, new strength and energy, restores the appetite and aids digestion.

MAKE THIS 10 DAY TEST
Convince Yourself!

Stop dosing yourself with "patent medicines," harsh purgatives, oils and cathartics for just 10 days. Go to your nearest Druggist and secure a bottle of LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND. Take it regularly, and watch the results. You'll be amazed at the feeling of renewed strength and vigor that soon appears. No narcotics or alcohol to "boost you up" but a natural method of restoring health and energy.

For Sale by Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton, Ala., and other good Drug Stores Everywhere. Or send $1.25 to Lee's Laboratories, 365 Peachtree Arcade, Atlanta, Ga., for a large bottle, postage paid.

FINE CORN IS RAISED FOLLOWING VETCH

Jim Easterling of Beat 16 was in Clanton Monday morning displaying two ears of corn, which he said was a sample of what he had raised on an acre from which he cut vetch and planted the corn on June 16th. The variety is Tennessee Red Cob. Mr. Easterling says that it has been estimated that he will gather thirty bushels of corn from this acre. One of the ears brought in measured 10½ inches in length and the other 9½. Both ears were grown on one stalk. No fertilizer was used. The vetch was sown the last of November last year, and an abundance of hay was gathered bofre the corn was planted. Mr. Easterling kept close tab on the cost of this acre of hay and corn. To make both crops he worked five days, and spent $2.40 which was for the vetch seed. He lives on the Bud Robinson place, just beyond the home of his father, J. L. Easterling.

NEW VARIETY OF COCKLEBUR

R. S. Easterling, who lives on the Hodges place, a mile east of Clanton, brought to The Union-Banner office Monday a new kind of cocklebur. It is said that very few stalks of this variety have been seen in this country. They are very similar to the old variety, except the stickers on the burs are considerably more scattering and are longer. This new variety is said to have been imported from Texas and is very prolific.

A few minutes after this stalk was left in the office, we had some information given us about cocklebburs that we did not know before. One man said that there would be no frost until the last bur was matured. Another added: "Yes, and each bur will come up twice. Each bur has two seeds; one of them will come up this year and the other next year. If the stalk gets cut down the other seed will sprout and come up right then."

MORE ABOUT CATTLE SHOW

County Agent Stapp again calls attention to the Jersey Cattle show which will be held at George McCain's barn at Clanton, October 6, 7 and 8. Mr. Stapp states that the cattle will be assembled on Thursday, the 6th, and on Friday, the 7th, at ten o'clock, three boys from each county bringing cattle to the show will compete in the judging contest. Three boys representing each county will compose the teams. The total judging score of each team will be made and the team with the highest score will be declared winner.

The main day of the show will be Saturday. The official judging will be that day, beginning at nine o'clock. Following the judging will be a parade through town, and immediately following the parade will be an auction of purebred bulls. County Agent Stapp advises that this will be a splendid opportunity for those who want a good young purebred bull.

"BRING 'EM BACK ALIVE"

How would you like to see a hungry man-eating tiger battle to the death with a twenty-five foot bone crushing python?

How would you like to see this same embattled tiger step into a pool to slake his thirst and come face to face with the jaws of a sixteen-foot crocodile just waiting for tiger meat?

How would you like to see the meanest of jungle beasts . . . the wily black panther . . . tackle the jungle's most ferocious man-eating tiger?

How would you like to see what happens when the crocodile gets himself wrapped in the coils of a twenty-five foot python?

How would you like to see a lone white man in the heart of the tropic jungle entrap this snake with his bare hands . . . and alive?

These are some of the superior thrills in the Van Buren Corporation's feature film, "Bring 'em Back Alive," the authentic camera record of Frank Buck's famous book of the same name.

There's no love interest . . . no built up drama . . . no sobbing sisters or he-men lovers, in this release by Radio Pictures, directed by Clyde E. Elliot. But there is such excitement as no Hollywood brain-child could ever give. There's real heart-action, for example, when the hunted tiger charges right into a native village and then into a camouflaged trap. There's the heart-stopping moment when Frank Buck jockeys the trapped man-eater into the home-made cage at the risk of his life. As the other big moments, there are combats between age-old jungle enemies that pale into insignificance anything civilization ever threw into a prize ring dominated by electric lights, ballyhoo and the quest for dollars.

A wide-shouldered, ruddy-faced, stocky man merely throws off the garments of the metropolis to trek six thousand miles by land and sea in search of a Royal Bengal tiger. His weapons . . . his two hard hands. His props, a couple of native boys. His cages are hand-made right down in the heart of the tiger country. No nails to hold the bars in place, no forged steel bars wedged in cement . . . but rough-hewn poles tied together with thongs made from the dried bark of native trees. A mounting stampede of intensely interesting action follows the inaugural of this quest as shown in "Bring 'em Back Alive," the premiere of which is set for the Wadesonian Theatre Friday and Saturday, October 21 and 22.

"THE MOST DANGEROUS GAME"

Put a boy and a girl together on a tropical island, set a man-killer on their trail in a hunt in which every second's delay, every tiny handicap, might mean death, and then ask if the boy would risk his own life to save the girl's.

They would give you the correct answer.

Such a test of whether love rules the head as well as the heart in time of peril, forms a basis for the dramatic story of "The Most Dangerous Game," the new RKO-Radio Picture to be shown at the Wadesonian Theatre Monday and Tuesday, October 3rd and 4th.

One of the strangest situations ever devised by screen writers is said to be found in this ennui-wrecking film, which features Joel McCrea, Fay Wray, Leslie Banks and Robert Armstrong.

A society girl and a weathy young sportsman are shipwrecked on an island in the Caribbean. They find a half-crazed Russian Count and his servants and bloodhounds the only occupants of the one house on the island.

Installed as his guests, the shipwrecked pair discover that this madman, bored with the thrills of big game killing and living only for the excitement of hunting, has turned from tracking animals to humans.

He obtains his victims by changing the channel lights near the fatal rocks of his shores, and causing passing ships to pile up in the wreckage.

Hospitably entertained when they first seek refuge with him, the pathetic survivors of these wrecks are fattened for the kill, and then sent out into the jungle to be hunted down like beasts.

The boy and girl learn of this murderous mania of their host shortly after they arrive, and the problem the young sportsman faces is whether to take his chances alone, pitting his hunting skill against that of the madman, or to take the birl with him to risk the chance of death by his side.

The deadly outdoor game of chess these characters play—the young hunter and his girl against their demented host — provides the highlight of this fantastic yet gripping tale. The stake, of course, is the girl, and in "The Most Dangerous Game" one philosophically inclined learns the answer to whether fear is stronger than love.

REVIVAL BEGINS ON NEXT SUNDAY

Will Continue Through Week At Methodist Church In Clanton

A week of revival will begin at the Methodist church in Clanton next Sunday with the morning service. At the request of the official board of the church, Dr. D. W. Haskew will do the preaching at every service. He has selected fifteen special sermons for the week, and the people of Clanton and Chilton county will have a rare opportunity to hear some real Gospel messages if they will make use of their privilege to attend. The Methodist people are extending a special invitation to all members of other churches, and to the people in general to meet and worship with them. Services will be held during the week, each day at 10 a.m. and at 7:15 p.m.

Rev. W. O. Phillips of Grove Hill, Alabama will arrive next Sunday afternoon and will have charge of the choir. He requests that the juniors meet each night at 7:15 for singing. There will be about 30 minutes of song and prayer before each sermon. The morning services will last just one hour, the night services about one hour and fifteen minutes. Dr. Haskew asks us to state that the church means business in this effort, and that if the people will come on time, that he will see to it that they leave on time.

The coming of Rev. W. O. Phillips will add much to the interest of the meeting. At one time he was pastor of the Methodist church at Verbena. He spent six years as a missionary to Japan. While attending the Emory University he was choir leader of the Wesley Memorial church in Atlanta. On Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock Mr. Phillips has consented to speak to the women of Clanton on his experiences as a missionary in Japan, and all women, regardless of denominational affiliations, are invited and urged to attend. A special invitation is given to the women of other sections of Chilton county. The time, Monday afternoon, Ovctober 10th, at 3 p.m.

Keep the meeting before you and give to this effort your presence and cooperation.

SCHOOLS OPEN NEXT TUESDAY

Teachers Institute Will Be Held At High School Monday

All the school of Chilton county will open next Tuesday, it is announced from the county superintendent's office this week. This announcement has particular reference to the rural schools. The city and high school of the county have already been in operation one month.

Teachers of all schools in the county will gather next Monday at the Chilton County High School for a one-day session of the county teachers Institute. It is obligatory upon all teachers to attend the institute, and therefore all schools which have already opened will be vacated Monday while the teachers attend the institute.

The matter of how long the schools will be able to operate is still a question of uncertainty. Nothing has yet been done to settle the State's obligations to the schools. Schools in several counties have failed to open at all. In other counties where the school have opened, they have already been forced to close down.

It is understood that the present program for running the schools in Chilton County is based upon the county funds which will be available from this year's collection of taxes, and when that is consumed, there is no certainty of further schools.

"RED HEADED STEPCHILD"

"Red Headed Stepchild," is the title of a play that bill be given at the Wadesonian Theatre in Clanton Friday night, October 7, beginning at eight o'clock.

The cast of characters who will present the performance is from the Methodist Protestant Church, of Birmingham. It is being sponsored here by the Clanton Methodist Missionary Society.

Advance assurances are that this will be a very interesting entertainment, and the Methodist ladies of Clanton extend a cordial invitation to everybody to attend.

MISS ETHEL GENTRY RECEIVES APPOINTMENT FROM TROY

Miss Ethel Gentry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gentry of Mt. Creek and sister of Miss Alma Gentry, of Clanton, and who for the past several years has been a prominent teacher in this county, has received an appointment from Dr. J. O. Colley, superintendent of the Baptist orphanage at Troy, Ala.

Miss Gentry left for Troy, Wednesday, September 28, to take up her duties at the orphanage, as matron to a large group of young boys, ranging in age from eight to fourteen years. She succeeds a former matron, who has held this one position for twenty years.

This is a highly commendable position and one which Miss Gentry is well qualified to fill. She will be missed in the teaching profession but her many friends extend congratulations and best wishes for her success in this new undertaking.

Mrs. W. I. Mullins has returned to her home from Mobile, where she has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mullins.

GOOD SAMARITAN ENDS SATURDAY

Double Votes Offered By Several Firms On Closing Day

No votes will be counted that come in after 4 o'clock next Saturday afternoon, in the Union-Banner's Good Samaritan buying campaign, as that is the time set for the closing. It is hoped that the representatives of all churches turn in all the votes that they have now on hand on Thursday or Friday, so that the counting will not be so congested Saturday. We therefore urge all to turn tickets in just as hastily as they can be assembled in rather large quantities. No information as to the standing of the various churches will be given out after the paper is printed, until the final count is posted Saturday evening or whenever the count is finished.

All tickets should be assembled in bundles as to denominations and counted. This will greatly faciliate us counting and will enable us to announce the winner much earlier. As soon as the tickets have all been checked, the result will be posted at the front of the Banner office.

We wish to call attentoin to the firms offering double votes on the closing day. They are Watts Hat Shop, The Fair, The Union-Banner, and Alabama Harness & Shoe Shop. It will pay you to center on these places, as every cent there will command two votes.

You can make votes fast Saturday by getting up subscriptions to The Union-Banner. If you can get as many as three subscriptions they will be only one dollar each. Of course, this is not limited to three, but as many above three as you get will be taken at one dollar each; and each subscription, new or renewal, will count 200 votes.

The Vote Wednesday

When the votes were counted up Wednesday at noon, the amount for each church was as follows:

Friendship	505,605
Clanton Foursquare	430,667
Clanton	340,299
Concord	431,262
Walnut Creek M. P.	260,460
Liberty Hill	64,525

Attention Merchants

We again urge you in this last week of the Good Samaritan Contest to assist us in carrying on the issuance of votes in a fair manner to all. Be sure that no votes are carried away from your store that are not earned by the buying public strictly according to rules. If you have a lot of tickets left over near the close of the contest, it will not be permissible for those votes to be given to someone just because you have no furher use for them. So, we urge all merchants giving votes to continue to cooperate with us in carrying on the contest in a fair, impartial manner.

SIX BOLLS COTTON ON TWO AND HALF INCH TWIG

Mr. S. L. Knight, who lives on Mrs. Katie Eiland's place near Mt. Pleasant Schoolhouse, brought to the Union-Banner last Saturday afternon a rather unusual bunch of cotton bolls. There were six bolls clustered together on a little limb just two and one-half inches long, that is, that was the distance between the two outside bolls. The variety was Cook wilt resistant cotton. Mr. Knight said that he had noticed several clusters of bolls, but besides this one he had not noticed more than four bolls in such short limb space.

A PLEA FOR THE REPUBLICANS OF CHILTON COUNTY

John L. Smith Gives Good Reasons Why Republicans Should Be Elected

Editor Union-Banner:

As the election is not far off, I am asking that you permit me to say a few words in your paper in regard to our party.

Much criticism has been placed on our national leaders in regard to depression. This is too big a question for me to solve, but I do know that America is now trying to pay her war debt, which was created by a Democratic president, and that in addition to our debt he created, he loaned Europe twenty-three billion dollars and they have only returned one billion. In my mind, that explains why there is such a shortage of money. Perhaps you will say, "Why doesn't' Hoover make Europe pay?" My answer to that is: "You cannot get blood from a turnip," and there is no use going into another war, creating a much larger debt, and losing thousands of lives, trying to collect from a country who cannot pay. If Mr. Wilson and a Democratic congress had not thrown America into the World War, we would have had our money at home and this panic would not have happened.

The Democratic rule has always meant war, destruction and debts. Not only did they throw the U. S. in debt, but when we realize that 10 years ago Alabama's taxes were only $10,304,000 but were $20,499,000 in 1931, and despite the fact that the taxes had doubled, the debt of the state had grown in that time from $15,230,000 to $82,343,000, or nearly 600 per cent.

It is deplorable to know that our state cannot cash any warrants whatsoever that are drawn on it, not even the pension warrants and yet, statistics show that one-fourth of the earnings of every individual are paid for taxes.

In contrast to our state's debt increase and its increase of taxes under Democratic rule, we have our own county under Republican rule, and the records show the taxes decreased in these years, and that the debt has also decreased from $200,000 to $100,000, and that we have $25,000 in the bank to pay on our debt, which would make the debt actually be only $75,000. Keeping these facts in mind, I do not see how any person could, conscientiously, vote a Democratic ticket, because we know the Democrats are the ones who created Chilton County's debt of $200,000 and we still remember that when they were in power we had to sell our warrants for less than half their value.

It seems to me that the best way to keep our county on a paying basis and to keep it listed as one of the outstanding counties of the state is to go to the polls on November 8th and vote our ticket. We want to keep in mind that the principal thing we will get from2 our officers is service. Mrs. Calloway, our nominee for treasurer, has served us one term and we know the service that she gives. I have never heard any complaint made against her work in any way, but on the contrary, she gives her entire time to the office and seems willing to help humanity in any way that she can.

Mr. Duke and Mr. Atchison, our nominess for Commissioner, are both splendid men. They are capable and worthy of the jobs for which they are asking, and I believe if they are made Commissoners that they will carry on the finances of our county in a way that we will be pround of.

Last but not least, come Mr. Webb and Mr. Wilkins, our nominees for school board. They are two Christian gentlemen and just the type that should guide the hands of those who instruct our children.

After we take these facts into consideration, it seems to me that no one could doubt that the best thing to do is to support our entire Republican ticket through and through.—J. L. Smith.

All churches in the association are urged to have as many representatives present as possible and certainly as many delegates as they are allowed by the constitution.

CATTLE SHOW IN PROGRESS NOW

Will Continue Through Saturday Of This Week At Clanton

The District Jersey Cattle Show will be held in Clanton Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. Final details are being completed by County Agent, C. E. Stapp, who has been chiefly instrumental in bringing this annual event to our city and county.

Headquarters for the assembly and keeping of cattle entered in the show will be at McCain's Barn. Exhibits of cattle will come here from Talladega, Lee and Chambers counties. These, of course, will be in addition to the exhibits furnished by our own county of Chilton.

Thursday will be assembly day. All cattle to be entered in the show will arrive, and will be allotted their places in the barn. The boys who have charge of the animals will devote their time Thursday to dressing them up and getting in shape for the exhibits and contests to follow on the succeeding days.

The cattle to come here from Lee and Chambers counties have already been shown in events of similar character at West Point and Columbus, Georgia. It is expected that these counties will make it a rather warm race for Chilton and Talladega.

Friday at 10 o'clock judging teams from the four counties will compete in a judging contest. Each boy in the contest will be scored on his judging, and medals will be awarded to the three highest scores.

Mr. Stapp says this judging contest may be followed by a showman's contest. This will be a hot number, if it is put on, according to Mr. Stapp. It will be a contest in which the boys compete upon their ability to put on a show of individual animals.

Saturday at 10:00 o'clock judging of the cattle entered in the show will take place on the vacant lot between McCain's Stable and the Shell Filling Station, just across the highway from the Ford Place. Mr. Burns, dairy extension specialist, of Auburn, and perhaps a dairyman from Mississippi will have charge of this part of the show. A list of prizes will be awarded to different classes of winners. This list of prizes has heretofore been published by Mr. Stapp.

Following the judging of cattle, all entries will be shown in a parade through the business section of town. The parade, according to Mr. Stapp, will likely take place about 1:30 o'clock.

A special educational feature pertinent to the cattle business will be shown. A scrub cow with a Hereford calf from a pure-bred bull (from the farm of Mr. H. S. Shaw) will illustrate the advantages of breeding to pure-bred bulls even though the cow is not of high breeding.

All farmers in Chilton County who are interested in cattle raising (and all of them should be) are urged to attend this show every day. It has required much effort, and no little expense to bring it to our county, and the real worth of the event can be attained only by the diligent study and attendance of our farmers.

Remember the dates are Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. It will be worth your trouble to come. It will be an encouragement to the club boys who are putting it on.

The Mass Meeting Held Last Saturday

Resolution Requests County Board of Education To Give People A Chance To Vote On the County Superintendent of Education

A large number of citizens of Chilton County met in a mass meeting at the courthouse last Saturday, and adopted the following resolution:

To the Chilton County Board of Education:

Whereas, we, the citizens and taxpayers of Chilton County, believe that every official who is paid from the public treasury should be elected by the people; and whereas the citizens of Chilton county requested and expected the representative of this county to get a law passed giving the qualified electors the right to elect the superintendent of education for this county; and whereas the representative failed to get this law passed, therefore,

Be it resolved, first, that we, the citizens of Chilton county assembled in mass meeting at Clanton, Alabama on this, the first day of October, 1932, do hereby petition the Chilton County Board of Education to give us a referendum on the election of a County Superintendent of Education, whose term of office will begin on the first day of July, 1932.

Be it resolved, second, that we ask the said county board of education to arrange for such election to be so conducted that whoever is declared elected shall first receive a majority of all the votes polled in said election, even should it be necessary that a second election be held to show such majority.

Be it resolved, third, that we request that said election be held by the use of the secret ballot so that every qualified elector may vote his or her conviction.

Be it resolved, fourth, that it is not expected that any expense of holding said election be defrayed by the said board of education, but that all expense incurred shall be met by donation.

Be it resoved, fifth, that we ask and request that the said county board of education elect for county superintendent of education for the term beginning on July first, 1933, the person whom the qualified electors may elect in said election.

Be it resolved further that if our requests are granted, that we pledge our hearty support in every way to see that a fair and impartial election is held throughout the county. — Signed, R. J. Jackson, Chairman; D. S. Robinson, secretary.

After the resolutions were adopted a motion was carried that the County Board Members and candidates for members of the County School Board state how they stood on the question.

Mr. S. M. Yates, present member of the Board, stated that as he was elected by the people, and that the people knew that the law gave the Board power to appoint the superintendent, that he was going to reserve that right.

Mr. W. L. Sanders, present member of the Board, stated that he did not believe in centralized nor appointive powers, but that it was right to have a government for the people and by the people.

He stated that the boards of education in only about 18 counties in the state have the right to appoint the county superintendent of education, but in the remaining counties the superintendent is elected by the people.

He also stated that in the legislative session of 1931 there were twenty or more local laws passed for different counties giving the people the right to elect the county superintendent of education; but somehow this law failed to be passed for Chilton County.

For the above reasons Mr. Sanders pointed out that it is right for the County Board of Education to give a referendum on the election of the county superintendent, and he would pledge his support to the people's nominee.

Mr. C. L. Wilkins, nominee for member of the County Board of Education on the Republican ticket, said that he was against the Board appointing the county superintendent for more than one reason. He stated through the press in the primary that he was for a referendum on the election of county superintendent.

Mr. Wilkins also stated that if the people's rights were taken away, their interest in the schools would also be taken; and that if he is elected, he would be a servant of the people.

A motion was carried that the chairman, R. J. Jackson, and the secretary, D. S. Robinson, see the candidates that were not present at the meeting Saturday and find out how they stand on this question.

I, R. J. Jackson, as requested, secured the following information from C. R. Foss, nominee for member of the County Board of Education on the Democratic ticket:

That he is in favor of giving the people a referendum on the election of county superintendent; and that if elected, he would submit to the wishes of the people.

Mr. George W. Edwards, nominee on the Democratic ticket, stated that he is for the wishes of the people.

Mr. S. J. M. Webb, nominee on the Republican ticket, stated that he was against the resolution that was adopted at the meeting Saturday; and said that he stood the same way as Mr. Yates on the question of electing a county superintendent of education.

Mr. W. J. Billingsley, present member of the County Board of Education, stated that he is in favor of the people of the county having a referendum on the superintendent of education, if they want it.

Mr. C. C. Conway, present member of the County Board of Education stated that the law gives the county board the right to appoint the superintendent of education, and that he still holds that right. He further stated that he believes the county superintendent of education should be elected by the people, and if the people go ahead and call an election, and then, if the people should choose the right man, he would submit to the voice of the people. But, if they did not make the proper choice, that he would not.

A motion was carried that the chairman and secretary furinsh to both county papers a copy of the proceedings of the meeting, and a copy of the resolutions, and that a copy of the resolution be presented to the County Board of Education.

D. S. ROBINSON, Secretary.

CHILD KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Two-Year-Old Son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Huddleston Is Victim

Billy Gene, the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Huddleston, of Clanton, was instantly killed last Tuesday afternoon on the highway near Clanton, when the automobile in which he was riding with his parents left the road and turned over in a ditch. Mr. and Mrs. Huddleston were uninjured.

The accident was on the Birmingham Highway two miles north of Clanton about 3 p.m. Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Huddleston were in the front seat of the car, and the child was on the back seat. For some unexplained reason the car left the road, plunged into a ditch and turned over.

The child was hurled through a window and was caught under the car as it turned over. He died of a broken neck.

Mr. Huddleston is the wholesale distributor here for Texas Oil Company. Mrs. Huddleston is the former Alma Robinson, daughter of Mrs. W. C. Robinson, of Clanton.

The body of the child was prepared for burial by Martin, and carried to Tuskegee Wednesday, where the funeral and burial was at three p.m. Mr. Huddleston lived at Tuskegee before coming to Clanton with the Texas Company a few years ago.

TWO INDICTED IN SLAYINGS BY CHILTON GRAND JURY

Thirty-two true bills were returned by the Chilton County Grand Jury, which was in session here last week. Forty-five cases were investigated. Two of the indictments were for murder. Others included charges of burglary and grand larceny.

A true bill was returned against Ernest Garner in connection with the killing of his brother-in-law, William Anderson Franklin, near Clanton last July.

The other murder indictment was against Thomas Littlefield, for the killing of his half-brother, Posey Littlefield, last May. Littlefield and Garner have been in the Chilton County jail since they were arrested.

IN MEMORY OF OUR DEAR MOTHER, MRS. IRENE JONES

It was on September 26, just before the beak of day when the Lord called our dear mother away. Her delicate body was laid to rest in the cold ground, but from the life she lived, her precious soul was heaven bound. Mother certainly lived a life that would surely stand the test.

There is not a doubt in my mind but what she went to rest. To every body she was good and kind. And just as harmless as a dove. The cords around her heart were wrapped with a bountiful love. She taught her children to do what was right and just and in the hands of Jesus we should put our trust. In her precious body here on earth she had to suffer an awful lot of pain, it was for some noble purpose and we know it was not in vain.

Sickness and sorrow, it seemed that mother had more than her share, but now I believe she has now, a home where everything is bright and fair. Her smiling face here on earth no more can we see, but if we could only meet her in heaven, oh, how happy we all would be. Dear mother, to see you ge, we could not help but cry; but there is a blessed hope that we may meet you in the sweet bye and bye.

A true mother's love is one of the purest this side of heaven above. The world may forsake you, even fathers sisters and brothers, yet you have a friend if you only have a living mother. If any of you have flowers to give your mothers, give them while their sweet odor they can smell. If you want to put them on their grave, an angel might stay your hand, you can never tell.—By Son, Grady.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., Oct. 4.—Dr. T. G. Andrews, Ph. D., of the University of Minnesota, arrived at the University of Alabama to become instructor in the department of geology. Dr. Stewart J. Loyd, dean of chemistry school, will be acting head of the department until the place is filled permanently. Dr. Andrews is a nephew of James A. Anderson, University postmaster. He did his preliminary work at Vanderbilt. He is not a total stranger at Alabama, having been employed at the Alabama Musem of Natural History here for a summer.

Geology students took the first series of field trips October 3. A special train transported the party of 175 to the Central Giles Mines in northeast Tuscaloosa county, where State Geologist, Walter B. Jones, led a discussion on the weathering of limestones into clays and the formation of iron ore, ochre, and other minerals. The students also studied methods of washing ore and separation of iron ore into clay.

The state geologist said that no other county perhaps in this section of the south offers such opportunity for real practical work in geology as does the country side within the immediate radius of the University of Alabama. Future field trips include a visit to Kellerman, Ala.

A subscription supper and smoker honoring the staff of the U. S. Veterans Hospital at Tuscaloosa was given Monday evening in Alabama Union by the Tuscaloosa County Medical Society. Co-eds gave readings and aesthetic dancing, while the glee club quartet sang. Dean Stuart Graves of the Medical school, took part in the program.

With two warm up games under their belts, the Alabama gridders will face their first intersectional foe of the year next Saturday when they play George Washington University in Washington, D. C.

The Washington team, the best ever to represent their school, beat Washington and Lee 18 to 0 Saturday. Felton, quarterback, was the big star of the game, punting, running and passing with abandon.

Coach Propst, who scouted the game for Alabama, said that their line would be on about a par with the Tidesmen, but their backfield would be much heavier.

The Alabama eleven has been coming along nicely and should be in the pink for the George Washington contest. The blocking, weak early in the season, has improved greatly. The running attack, led by Capt. John Cain, is strong.

The passing, led by Chappell, is average or better. Cain is in a class by himself when it comes to punting.

The whole team has gradually acquired cohesion and coordination and should make a creditable showing against the George Washington eleven.

The game will be played as part of the observance of the bicentennial of the birth of George Washington, and Alabama was honored by being asked to participate in the celebration.

Alabama will leave Thursday afternoon and will return Sunday evening.

REPORT OF GARND JURY

State of Alabama, Chilton County, Circuit Court of said county and state. To the Hon. F. Loyd Tate, as judge of said court:

We, the grand jury empanelled for the July term of said court, after receiving your honor's able and instructive charge, entered upon investigation of the matters that came before us and herewith submit the following report:

During our investigation we have considered 45 cases and have examined 85 witnesses, and are returning herewith 32 true bills.

The Grand Jury was furnished a list by the sheriff, of all of the prisoners confined in the county jail, that should come before this grand jury, and have returned true bills against all of said prisoners.

We have examined the fee book of the Probate Judge and find it neatly kept and correct in so far as we were able to ascertain. We have examined the bonds of the various county officials and fell that they are ample for the protection of the public and on our examination of the sheriff's account with the state for feeding prisoners, we find it being kept in accordance with the law. On our examination of the office of the County Superintendent of Education, we find that his books, records and papers are being kept neatly and fully in accordance with the law, in so far as we were able to ascertain.

We have made a personal inspection of the County Jail and find that the prisoners confined therein are being well fed, and cared for with reasonable comfort; the jail was very clean and in our judgment sufficient-safe for the keeping of the prisoners confined therein. We suggest that the attention of the proper authorities be called to the fact that the jail is not screened and we recommend that as soon as conveniently can be done, that the jail be screened.

The Grand Jury made an inspection of the almshouse, and found that the inmates consisted of fifteen males and nine females. We found all of the inmates contented and pleased with their surroundings and that all of them are being well fed and given the very best attention. The premises of the almshouse and the buildings are kept neat and clean and the grand jury wishes to commend those in charge for the manner in which the almshouse is at present being handled.

The Grand Jury wishes to express our appreciation to your honor for the clear and impressive charge given us when we were first empanelled. The clearness in which you outlined our duties as grand jurors made us feel deeply, our responsibility and has been of much help to us throughout all of our investigations.

We wish to thank Sheriff W. H. Gillespie and his deputies and Mr. Calvin Jones, the bailiff for the Grand Jury, for the prompt manner in which they secured witnesses we needed to complete our labors and for the aid and conveniences given us during our work as grand jurors.

Now, having complied to the best of our ability with your honor's charge, we respecfully ask that we be dismissed until such time as your honor may see fit and think proper to have us again convene.

This September 29, 1932.

THOS. M. PARRISH, Foreman.

BASIC SLAG ASSURES YOU BETTER LEGUME YIELDS

In Many Cases it is the Difference Between Success and Failure

THE outlay for seed, inoculation, acreage, and labor in planting legumes is about the same regardless of production. In most cases the production is practically doubled by a small additional outlay for basic slag.

It contains phosphorus and lime in a combination which is much more effective in growing legumes than are the same elements obtained from other sources. In addition, it does not injure inoculation. These qualities and others make it the ideal application for vetch and peas.

Growing legumes means better soil and bigger yields, and basic slag gives assurance of a good growth of legumes.

. . . when you feel "tired out" . . . "all run-down" . . . "sluggish" . . . "listless" . . . "no appetite"—it is then time to pause and consider what may be the cause of this condition. If you suspect an organic or functional trouble of a serious nature consult a physician at once.

But if your vital organs are sound and you have thru overwork, worry, unbalanced diet, working conditions, "bad air," lack of proper exercise, unconsciously reduced your vitality and resistance, then restore your vital red-blood-cells and their hemoglobin content so that your blood and tissues may have the oxygen to purify and strengthen your body.

Prophecy Corner

Conducted By

L. A. BUTTERFIELD

Already in this corner we have considered Ezekial's prophecy of the utter extinction of Tyre and noted its remarkable fullfillment. The prophet next turned his attention to Sidon, a still more ancient city than Tyre and only thirty miles distant. For centuries it had been declining in power, and had fallen into comparative decay, while Tyre was still glorying in the splendor of its decay. If the phophet were judging from appearances, as some claim he did judge, he would certainly have predicted complete oblivion as the inevitable fate of Sidon, for nothing seemed more certain than its complete eradication. But Sidon still remains even now possessing a population of twenty-thousand.

Here is the prophecy concerning Sidon: "I will send into her pestilence, and blood into her streets; and the wounded shall be judged in the midst of her by the sword from her on every side." Ezekial 28:23. Notice that the judgement on Sidon was not utter extinction like that on Tyre, but only blood in her streets, wounded in her midst, and the sword on every side. She was to be spared, but she was to have great suffering.

No city in all history has been taken and retaken more often. Once forty-thousand of her citizens chose rather to die than to submit to her captors. So they shut themselves up with their wives and children, set fire to their homes and perished in the flames. Their fellow citizens who were absent at the time rebuilt the city, but its suffering continued.

During the Crusades it was taken several times, and always sacked. Even as late as 1840, when Ibrahim Pasha was driven out of Syria, it was bombarded by the combined fleets of England, Austria, and Turkey, captured by Admiral Napier, and again blood flowed in its streets. In spite of the fact that no other city on earth, with the possible exception of Jerusalem, has had so much suffering, has been so often destroyed and rebuilt, it has continued to present an uninterrupted existence down to the present minute.

Now suppose Ezekial had said that both Tyre and Sidon were to be destroyed and never built again, then every one of the twenty-thousand inhabitants of Sidon today would be a living testimony of the falsity of the Bible claim to predictive accuracy. How does it happen that the prophet is always right? Peter was right when he said, "Prophecy came not in old time by the will of man; but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost.—L. A. Butterfield.

Lesson for October 9

THE CHRISTIAN IN THE FAMILY

Luke 2:4-52; 10:38-48.

GOLDEN TEXT—I will behave myself wisely in a perfect way. O when wilt thou come unto me? I will walk within my house with a perfect heart. Psalm 101:2.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Happy Family.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Home Life of Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Being a Christian at Home.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Making the Home Christian.

Confessedly our subject is a strange one to fit to the texts selected by the Lesson Committee. Jesus is the central person in both texts. It is manifestly improper to think and speak of him as being Christian. He is the eternal Son of God made flesh (John 1:14). A Christian is one regenerated by the Holy Spirit and joined to Jesus Christ by faith on the ground of his redemptive work. Two views of him are presented in these texts:

I. Jesus in the Home of His Mother and Joseph (Luke 2:4-52).

1. Jesus growing (v. 40). While Jesus Christ was divine, yet his deity did not interfere with his development as a human being. The processes of his physical and mental growth were the same as those of any normal human being.

a. He grew and waxed strong. It was necessary for his body to develop. His brain, nerves, and muscles must not only attain unto their proper sizes, but must become correlated.

b. "Filled with wisdom." His mother doubtless was his teacher in those early years. It is reasonable to assume that she taught him to commit Bible verses to memory, and told him the great narratives of patriots and prophets of the Old Testament.

c. "The grace of God was upon him." God's love, favor and tender care were upon him.

2. Jesus found in the Temple (vv. 41-47). At the age of twelve the Jewish child took his place as a worshiper in the temple. He was then considered a "child of the law." Being conscious of his mission, Jesus tarried behind in the temple when his mother and Joseph left Jerusalem after the Passover. When they made search for him, he was found in the temple. Observe,

a. He was found sitting (v. 46). He was no passing visitor or sightseer, but at home in his father's house.

b. He was hearing the teachers of God's Word (v. 46). He was eager to learn God's will.

c. He asked questions (v. 46). His growing mind inquired after truth.

d. He answered questions (v. 47). His answers astonished those who heard him.

3. Mary's complaint (vv. 48-50). She remonstrated with him for his behavior. To this he replied in a dignified, yet tender manner. He made no apology, showing that he was more than the son of Mary. God was his father.

4. Jesus' obedience (v. 51). Though he was fully conscious of his divine being and mission, he lived a life of filial obedience, teaching us that obedience to parents is pleasing to God, and a duty which will be discharged faithfully by those who have the spirit of Christ.

II. Jesus in Martha's Home (Luke 10:38-42).

1. Jesus welcomed into Martha's home (v. 38). Though Jesus had no home of his own, into Martha's home he could come at any time. This home was his special retreat in the last days of his ministry on earth.

2. Mary sitting at Jesus' feet (v. 39). Mary had a peculiar spiritual insight which prompted her to sit at Jesus' feet and listen to his words.

3. Martha's complaint (v. 40). She desired doubtless to prepare the very best possible meal for Jesus. He prefers the love which concerns itself with himself and his message to any personal ministry. Because of her failure to see this, she was "cumbered with much serving." She not only found fault with Mary, but found fault with Jesus for allowing Mary to sit at his feet while the dinner was unfinished.

4. Jesus' reply (vv. 41-42).

a. He rebukes Martha, telling her that she is careful and troubled about many things. Those who are primarily concerned with the Master are anxious for nothing (Phil. 4:6).

The one thing that is needful for everybody is to sit at the feet of Jesus.

b. He commended Mary, saying "Mary hath chosen that good part which shall not be taken away from her."

Never Say Can't

Never tell a young person that anything cannot be done. God may have been waiting for centuries for somebody ignorant enough of the impossible to do that thing.—John Andrew Holmes.

The Golden Rule

"No philosophy has ever improved upon the Golden Rule, and the most gorgeous tapestry of trickery looks like a rag alongside the simple beauties of a square deal."

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Woodson and Mrs. H. B. Deal of Lay Dam were visitors to Birmingham Tuesday.

Authorities of Woodlawn Hospital state that in extending to the general public the services of Out-Patient Department, the Hospital is following the practice of many nationally known institutions in providing high type of clinical and professional serivces without cost, to that mass of people with limited means.

In addition to modern diagnosis X-Ray equipment and facilities for the various radium treatments, contract has been executed for the immediate installation of equipment of the latest type to administer deep therapy treatment which brings this department up to one of the most up-to-date in the south.

A dental department is also maintained in the Out-Patient Department, being available to all hospital and clinical patients.

The Woodlawn hospital was founded by Dr. J. H. Stephens, and, under his supervision, its building program was completed. Later, through the co-operation of representative people in the territory served by the institution, title to the hospital and property were vested in several thousand families, the management being placed in the hands of a governing board to the end that it might be perpetuated as a public or civic organization.

The Woodlawn Hospital is fully recognized by the American Medical Association and is rendering a wonderful service throughout the northern part of the state, especially in its Out-Patient Department, which is worthy of the support of its many friends and patrons.

Also any other business that may come before the organization. This meeting has heretofore been held the second Saturday in January, but recent meetings of the association have changed this until the second Saturday in October, believing this will be to the best interest of the association, in that it will place the new offciers in charge soon enough to enable them to work up everything in readiness for the coming year, thus giving any early meetings in January the full time to consider crop plans for the year. CHESTNUT CREEK CHURCH

The church elected delegates to our association, 12 in all, who will attend same next week at Sardis Baptist church.

We had a good prayer meeting with much interest shown and we cordially invite others to come and take part with us each Saturday night at six thirty.

Our Sunday school began at 10:00 Sunday with 186 on roll, 145 present, with an average of 90 present for the past year and we hope all who are in reach of the church will try to come every Sunday for the next year.

Pastor's subject for eleven o'clock service, "A Weeping Jesus," which was most forcibly delivered and attentively listened to by all present.

A large number attended the Central Singing Society at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Our B. Y. P. U. began at 6:45 Sunday evening under the leadership of Mr. Walker Allen.

A large number from Pleasant Valley church came over to visit our B. Y. P. U. Sunday night and we were very glad to have them present and wish them much success with their re-organized B. Y. P. U.

WALNUT CREEK

On Monday night, October 3, 1932 the Christian Endeavor of Walnut Creek and a number of others gave a pounding at the home of Mrs. F. B. Goodgame for the benefit of Mrs. Isabell Lawley, who has been ill for several months. The pounding consisted of fruits, groceries and other needs of a sick room.

It is the duty of Christian Endeavor to visit the sick and help them, so we all took this means of helping sister Lawley, because we could not all visit her on account of her being so weak.

Those participating in this affair sung a song and the pastor, Rev. P. A. Lynch, led in a prayer, after which the pastor and wife carried the pounding to Mrs. Lawley.—The Corresponding Committee.

Interesting Bits C. C. H. S. News

Dr. Ezell Visits School

Dr. Ezell visited our school at the chapel period on last Wednesday morning. He made a most inspiring and instructive talk on the subject of Daniel. He showed how Daniel put principle and character above everything else. We enjoyed his talk and the valuable lesson we got from it will long be remembered. We appreciate the nice things Dr. Ezell had to say about our teachers and our school as a whole. We trust that he may continue to have this good feeling for us. It is an inspiration to be appreciated.

Senior II's and III's contribute to Chapel Program

On last Wednesday morning at chapel period the Sr. II's competed with the senior II's in a singing contest. Previously the senior II boys had challenged the senior II boys to "out sing" them. The senior II's won this. But the senior III's were not to be easily embarrassed. So they in turn challenged the entire senior 11 class to "out sing" them in quartet singing. The senior II quartet was composed of Maralyn Hardy, Pauline Plyler, Virgil Robinson and Grady Minor. The senior III quartet was composed of Pearl Vinson, Hilda Hart, Floy Devaughn and Melvin Powell. The entire school joined in the spirit of this contest and it was hard to tell which class had really won. The judges rendered the decision in favor of the senior III's, who sung "Swing Low Sweet Chariot." The contest idea was originated by Miss Mary Ellis and has done much to improve our singing in chapel exercises.

Senior III Class Elects Officers

On last Wednesday afternoon at the class meeting, the Sr. III class elected officers for 1932-33. They are as follows: President, Margaret Jones; vice president, Clyde Popwell; secretary-treasurer, Dewey Williams. They selected for their class motto: "Success awaits at Labor's Gate." For their class flower, they selected the Sweet Pea, and for colors red and white. We are proud of the senior class, and we are expecting great things of them.

Last Year's Senior Class

The Chilton County High School is very proud of the large number of students of the class of 1932 who have entered college. Thirty-one per cent of the class are now engaged in their Freshman college work. We consider this above the average.

Eloise Jones, Elizabeth Stanley, Ruth Maddox, Sallie Mahan and Mary Nell Jones are at Alabama college in Montevallo. We are proud of the reports from each of these girls, but we are particularly proud to learn that Eloise Jones has been selected chairman of the freshman class. This is an honor of which we consider Eloise most worthy and an honor to her high school.

Herman Harris, Otis Miller and Erle Ellis are in the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn. We have had excellent reports of them and are pround of the fact that they are reflecting credit upon Chilton County High School. Jane Roberts is in Womans College in Montgomery. She is specializing in music and we are expecting to hear greater and greater things of her.

Concord-Billingsley

Our C. E. society met Sunday, and elected new officers for the next six months as follows: Mr. Olin Culp, president; Mr. Charlie Williams, vice president; Mrs. Willie Mae Weldon, secretary; Miss Virgina Little, group captain for group No. I, and Mr. R. P. Williams, captain for group No. II.

Every body is invited to attend C. E. and Sunday school at this place every Sunday and Sunday night.

Several from here attended the all day singing at Peasant Grove Sunday. They all reported a real good singing and a nice time.

Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Lawrence and children spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Olin Williams.

Mrs. C. L. Dickinson and little daughter and Miss Clara Delle Sims spent Saturday night and Sunday with Miss Ethel Harrell of Billingsley.

Remember the home coming to be held at this place on Saturday, October 15th. All members are urged to attend. The program will be entertaining and inspiring. So come and you will find a welcome awaiting you.

C.C.H.S. Played Selma Last Friday Afternoon

The Chilton County High School played Selma High in a game of football last Friday afternoon, in which the breaks were for Selma, but it was generally conceded that our boys played the best ball. The ball was on C. C. H. S. territory most of the time. The two teams matched each other very evenly until the first half. The Selma boys came back with surprisingly new strength and pushed the ball over for the tally. Their try for extra point failed. Late in the fourth period the local team started a rally, only the final whistle stopped them. The score was 6 to 0 in Selma's favor.

Coach Walker was delighted to hear a most complimentary remark about our boys from Referee Crisp of the Selma Y. M. C. A. Referee Crisp has been refereeing games between C. C. H. S. and Selma for the past three years. He says he has yet to find one single unsportsmanlike movement or play among any team coming from Chilton County High School. We feel that this is a direct compliment to our coach, Mr. Walker, as well as to our boys and the school which they represent. Mr. Walker stands for the right at all times and we see the effect of his training in the boys.

Mt. Pleasant School Opens Tuesday, 11

On next Tuesday morning at 8:30 the Mt. Pleasant Jr. High School will open for the 1932-33 term. All patrons and friends of the school are cordially requested to attend the opening exercise. A speaker has not yet been selected for the occasion.

All children who plan to attend this school should arrange now to be present the first day. The principal and teachers are going to assist in all ways possible to help the pupils in securing books, writing paper, and all necessary working equipment at the very lowest cost possible.

We trust that our Governor and Legislature will make some provision for the common public schools and this year's work can be completed in the most gratifying and successful way.

The faculty this year consists of the following: R. B. Johnson, Jemison, Principal and Jr. High instructor; Mrs. M. A. Wright, Thorsby, Ala., sixth grade and Jr. High subjects; Miss Celia Baldwin, Mt. Creek, intermediate grades; Miss Lera Bean, Clanton, primary instructor.

IN MEMORY

In memory of Mrs. Irene Jones, wife of W. W. Jones, who departed this life on September 26, 1932, at her home in Lomax.

The writer has known Mrs. Jones about thirty years, and has lived a close neighbor to her a good portion of that time. He has never known a more model Christian than was Mrs. Jones. Her life was donated to her God, husband, children and neighbors. I have made the statement many times during her life that she was one among the best women I ever saw.

This good and noble woman has gone to that land where she will never grow old; where she will ever be with the Lord, and will never no more come in contact or be subject to sickness, pain or disappointment.

It should be a great consolation to her neighbors and friends to know that they have had the opportunity and privilege to be associated so many years with her, whose life if taken as a guide, will guide them along the narrow way which leads from earth to heaven. May God bless her husband and children and help them walk in the same way that the wife and mother did, and by and by they will go where their wife and mother is.—Written by a friend.

ED MURRAY HERE MONDAY NIGHT

State Commander Spoke To Chilton County Legion Post

Chilton County Post of the American Legion held an enthusiastic meeting Monday night, at which the guest and principal speaker was Ed Murrah, of Foley, Commander of the Alabama Department of the Legion.

The meeting was presided over by Post Commander, R. D. Woodson. A number of items of business were transacted, chief of which was the order to extend an invitation to the General Gorgas Legion Band, of Birmingham, to give a concert at the courthouse at some date in the immediate future. The plan of the local Post is to sponsor this concert, and give the proceeds to the Boy Scouts of Chilton County.

The Gorgas Band is the official band of the Alabama department of the American Legion. It is composed of sixty of the General Gorgas Post members, and is capable of rendering a very entertaining program. Further announcement of this event will be made when details are worked out.

Commander Murrah spoke to the gathering Monday night, and made a very urgent appeal for every ex-service man to enlist in the Legion this year.

Mr. Carmack, of the Alabama Service Commission, accompanied Commander Murray on his visit here, and spoke concerning the work that is being done by the Service Commission on behalf of the ex-service men in handling their claims for compensation and disability benefits. Mr. Carmack gave a very valuable discussion of this phase of the work.

JEMISON BOYS LEARN ABOUT WINTER LEGUMES

Every effort has been made to teach the growing of hairy vetch and Austrian peas to the school boys of the Jemison High School.

The seed of both hairy vetch and Austrian peas were purchased by Mr. Montgomery and kept on hand for the convenience of the boys. Dirt from a vetch field was hauled into the school shop so that the boys would have dry dirt to use in giving the double innoculation. Three demonstrations in the innoculation of seed has been given to the classes and one demonstration in planting. Three methods of planting were demonstrated. They were: By harrowing off cotton rows with a turning plow; by running a middle buster through the cotton middles, and by the use of the Cole drill.

The method of planting winter legumes by the use of the fertilizer distributor and using basic slag was not demonstrated but has been thoroughly explained to the class.

A larger per cent of school boys are planting peas and vetch this year than ever before in the history of the vocational classes.

Mrs. McKinnon of Birmingham visited Mrs. Loyd Duncan.

NERVY AMERICAN MOTHER FIGHTS BALEFUL FORCES

Titanic Mental Conflict Between Fanatic and Victim Dramatized in "Thirteen Women"

Destruction and death, twins of Fate, have but one master—the will of a woman! On the other hand, these agents of ruin become ineffective in the presence of even the most fragile woman who wills to defeat them.

This startling truth is exemplified in the RKO-Radio production of "Thirteen Women," at the Wadesonian Theatre Monday and Tuesday, October 10 and 11, with Irene Dunne, Ricardo Cortez, Jill Esmond, Myrna Loy and Mary Duncan, in the leading roles.

Miss Dunne defies by the sheer strength of a great will an uncanny Fate which has engulfed her friends. In the role of Laura, young, fighting American mother, she has seen her dearest friends—girls of college days—meet a tragic end.

May, beautiful trapeze artiste, crashes to her death from atop the big tent.

June, her partner, who was to have caught her after a thrilling, triple-somersault, goes to the insane asylum.

Hazel slays her husbnd and is sentenced to prison.

Swami Yogadachi dies beneath the grinding wheels of a subway train.

Strangey and suddenly this eerie, sinister thing—the power of suggestion—which has crept into the lives of the doomed six, invades the home of Laura and her child, Bobby. It seeks to strike at Laura through her small son. Her struggle to resist it forms the climatic thread of the photoplay.

What is this fateful menace, intangible as light, that enters the lives of innocent persons?

How does it come? How does it work?

Helen is driven to suicide.

Others, who have entwined themseles into the life of Laura, go the way of fated flesh.

Could such a diabolical scheme happen only in a motion picture?

The answer is "no," according to Tiffany Thayer, noted noveltist, and the author of the best-selling book, "Thirteen Women," from which the picture was directed by George Archainbaud.

"It was upon a real-life situation that I based my story," said Thayer.

"The things that happen in "Thirteen Women' might happen to any one, especially those whose will-power may not be particulary great.

"It is difficult to fight such a sinister enemy because he invaribly strikes through the mind.

"One's mental faculties must always be alert to fight off the diabolical suggestions placed there by his hidden foe who is always at large."

STATEMENT FROM MR. S. J. M. WEBB

Republican Candidate for A Member of County Board of Education

Editor Union-Banner:

As there seems to be a great deal of agitation in regard to the election of the county superintendent by the people, I desire to make a public statement in regard to this question.

I believe that the people should rule and I wish to state that I am in favor of all officers who are responsible to the people and who are paid out of the public funds, being elected by the people.

It will not be possible for me to see but few people before the election, as there is sickness in my family and has been for several months, so I am taking this opportunity of asking you for your votes and I assure you that if I am elected I shall do my best to serve to the best of my ability.—Sincerely yours, S. J. M. Webb.

DAT BLOOMIN PREACHER

All Ah know is Whut de Bible say Bout Hit.

This Week's Blossom:

—o—

God sa, Malachi 3:17. "In that day when I make up my jewels."

Ah sa. Da will hab to be picked out fum mong lots of imitations.

Ah want you to turn to de 3rd chapter ob Galatins 1 to 13. De tex is Romans 6:14, "For sin shall not have dominion over you: for ye are not under the law, but under grace." De contention ob some is dat Paul in writin dis letter (Romans) wuz jes talkin to Gentiles an not to de Jews, dat all Jewish Christians wuz still under de law. Ah am not gwyin to argus dat question, all Ah will sy bout dat is, dat de Jews as well as evy body else dat is under grace is not under de law. It seems hard fur some people to understan de change fum de law to dat ob grace. Let me fust define both law an grace. Law is a rule ob action established by authority; grace is the unmerited favor and love ob God toward man in Christ.

Now it is evident dat we cant be under both law and grace at one and de same time, ur man is under de curse ob de law fum de time he becames accountable unto God fur his sins until he takes Christ as his Savior. Thousands an thousands ob men hab paid de penalty fur breakin de law ob de lan wid their lives. Da wuz taught to keep de law an also taught whut de consequences wold be if da should break dem. It do seem lak men would not go on and break de law ob de country an run de risk ob punishment, but it seems lak de punishment ob one dont stop others.

But take a case lak dis, a man is brot before de court an pleads guilty ob de charge or charges ginst him, but de judge bein a good man turns him loose or a friend ob de prisoner steps up an pays de fine. Dat act satisfies de law an lets de prisoner go free. Dat's whur grace comes in. Now de preachers has bin preachin de gospel ob grace fur nearly two thousand years an out ob evy generation jes ur fiew would accept de gift ob enternal lift through de grace ob God brot to dem by de death ob Jesus Christ, which satisfied de broken law.

God's law is immutable, evy infraction will be punished, the only way fur ur sinner to avoid punishment is to accept de atonment made by Christ. When ur sinner realizes his guilt before God an also realizes de fact dat he is powerless in his self to satisfy de broken law, den he turns fur help to Christ which is de "end of de law for rightousness to all who believe." Den de sinner is no longer under de law, but is under grace. "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift ob God." Ephesians 2:8

Wid all ob these schriptues rite before their eyes, lots ob people who says dat da is Christians, claims dat we should keep de law ob Moses in evy respect, even gwyin fur enuff to keep de old Jewish Sabath. It seems to me dat ef I so understood de Bible to teach dat we should keep all, Ah would study de book ob Levictus an do my best to live up to it. Ah wouldnt pick out des one an dat one be difrunt fum whut evy body elsepractised. In Romans 7:4, Paul says "Wherefore, my brethren, ye also are become dead to the law by the body of Christ; that ye should be married to another, even to him who is raised from the dead, that we should bring forth fruit unto God." In Matthew 5:17, Jesus says, "Think not that I am come to destry the law, nor the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill."

Whut Ah wants to do wid dis argument aint so much to show where any body is wrong, but de sinner. COUNTY TRAINING SCHOOL OPENS ON OCTOBER 10TH

The leading colored school of the county opens its doors for the 1932-1933 school year on Monday, October 10. Here is hoping that a large number of patrons will be out to hear our own Superintendent, B. Lawrence, explain the school situation. The general assembly will be at ten-thirty.

The Rosenwald Fund has discontinued to aid for bus transportation, which means that we must maintain the bus lines ourselves. It is nothing more than our whole duty to show our appreciation toward the great Julius Rosenwald by keeping the bus line in operation. Remember that, "A helping hand is not help when it helps one to become helpless." Surely, this aid has disclosed to us the vital importance of self support.

Incidentals will be only $2.00 for the entire year, plus seventy-five cents for high school students.

The following is a list of the faculty:

Prof. Benjamin Anderson, principal; Prof. F. E. Lewis, science and mathematics; Miss G. L. Hardy, english and literature; Miss B. W. Mitchell, Social science; Miss Mabel Collier, grades; Miss Mattie Webb 3rd and 4th grades; Miss Louise Riley, 1st and 2nd grades; Miss Virginia Lee, home economics.—Benj. Anderson, principal.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

Evidently the list of people who would like to know just what is Governor Roosevelt's actual stand on the question of protection is growing. The platform of his party, which has been endorsed by the candidate for President, calls for a competitive tariff for revenue. What does that mean?

One distinguished student of tariff priciples has evidently come to the conclusion that this means competitive between American workers and the cheaply paid workers of Europe and Asia, who are not used to the American standard of living. That student is Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, who assailed a lower tariff policy in a nation-wide radio address the other night, declaring that the application of such principles meant the menace of foreign competition and foreign wage scales for American workers.

In his address Mr. Woll pointed out the fact that average wages in American manufacturing industry last year was 60 cents an hour while the average rate was 12 cents an hour in France, nine cents in Italy and seven cents an hour in Japan.

Even a beginner in the study of economics ought to be able to see what would result if our tariff schedules were lowered to the point where we would have a competitive tariff for revenue. And Governor Roosevelt might tell his public whether he wants the American workers to compete with the twelve cent French, the nine cent Italian or the seven cent Japanese worker.

In dealing on the old question of markets Mr. Woll said: "Government statistics clearly indicate that more than 93 per cent of the products of American labor and agriculture are consumed in America. This is due to the high standard of living and work which prevails in our land. Our problem is rather that of extending the home consuming power.

"Unrestrained competition of foreign goods with domestic goods in our home market, whether agricultural or industrial products, cannot and will not solve our problems but will contribute to their severity."

There can be no question as the soundness of this argument. The theoretical free traders would have us open the greatest market in the world, one which consumes 93 per cent of our farm and manufactured products, to the wares of cheap foreign producers in the fond hope that this would increase our markets abroad. But how would we fare in exchanging our big home market, made up of consumers who have money to spend, for one in Europe where the average rate of wages is ten cents an hour.

And as for Governor Roosevelt's' competitive tariff, competitive in goods means competitive in wages. How would it help our producers to cut the earning of our workers from sixty to twelve cents an hour? Wouldn't it rather be better to increase the wage of the foreign worker to sixty cents an hour? The answer to this is of course that we haven't anything to do with fixing foreign wages. Certainly not, and in the meantime let us keep tariff schedules that will protect the sixty cents an hour workers in America from the ten cent workers in Europe.

The best way to help, as Mr. Woll suggests, is to extend the home market which still has great possibilities. There would be no sense or logic in giving up this market in the hope that sometime we might get something in Europe. About all Uncle Sam ever gets in Europe is a pain in the neck.

But in the meantime there is danger to our economic structure in talk of a competitive tariff for revenue. As Mr. Woll well says, "Unless we stand guard, the barriers which have been erected to protect our standards and institutions will be nibbled away or torn down by our enemies and by our well meaning but ill advised friends."

It is particularly vital this year that attention be centered on candidates for Congress. It is more than likely that the whole problem of economy and reorganization, entailing a promised 20 per cent cut in federal expenses and announced by the President for consideration in December, will go over to the new Congress. The voter must be sure that the new Congress is one which will not fiddle with politics, yapping groups, lobbies, while industry and business burn.

Governor Roosevelt says that he will put the government back of the railroads which recalls the fact that in the last Democratic administration the government was not only back of the railroads but all over 'em.

THE WALL STREET BAROMETER

According to press dispatches the New York Stock Exchange is quietly investigating the sudden slump in security values which followed the Democratic victory in Maine. Heads of the exchange, it is said, are anxious to see how much propaganda was sent out by brokers and so-called financial leaders following this election, and what was the nature of the propaganda. The theory evidently is that the bears may have taken advantage of the situation to make one of their sudden drives on the market.

It is doubtful however, whether this sudden slump in prices was due entirely to the so-called "bears." The market had been going up for two months, and was entitled to a corrective reaction, if we are to believe the dopesters. Then again is must be remembered that in these modern days the entire country is stock market conscious for the reason that people all over the country are dabbling in securities traded in on the New York Exchanges. Ever since the middle of July there has been a feeling that business was getting better, and that the Republicans were gaining in strength. Then came the Main election with its surprising Democratic victory.

A great many people evidently sold stocks feeling that a change in administration in Washington might slow up the progress already made or at least unsettle conditions.

It is not that Governor Roosevelt would, if elected president, intentionally do anything that would interrupt the progress toward recovery already made. It is only natural, however, that a great many people should believe that a change of administration at this time might postpone the prospect for recovery through the very uncertainty it would cause, and the opportunities it would present for future battles in Congress on such unsettling questions as the tariff.

TARIFF CRITIS REFUTED

The Democratic theory that the Hawley-Smoot protective tariff has wrecked our foreign trade has received another hard jolt in the news dispatches from the British Imperial Conference at Ottawa, Canada.

These dispatches have reported that, including all its dominions, and all its colonies, the British Empire handled only about 28.5 per cent of the world's trade in 1930, while the United States alone handled 12.5 per cent—almost half as much.

In spite of our tariff, moreover, the United Kingdom sold in the United States more than one-third of all the United Kingdom's exporter linen manufactures; 43.2 per cent of all its tin, and nearly 19 per cent of all its exports.

On the other side of the ledger, we find that the United Kingdom bought one-sixth of all its imports from the United States, among the items being four-fifths of the American exports of ham, more than half of our tobacco exports, and 30 per cent of our exports of motion picture sound equipment.

Concerning our trade with our neighbors, Canada, about the alleged loss or damage for which so many crocodile tears have been shed, we learn that the United States bought more than 90 per cent of Canada's total exports of fresh fish, hides, skins and pulp wood; and between 80 and 90 per cent of her news print.

America, in turn, sold in Canada more than half the country's total exports of corn, vegetables, oranges and crude petroleum; nearly half of this country's exports of iron and steel; and one-third of its foreign shipments of radio apparatus.

The United States bought 15 per cent more of Canada's exports than did the entire British Empire, and 28 times as much as did Australia and New Zealand combined.

A prominent showman of other days says he is going to make the 200-pound chorus girl popular on the stage again. The man who can make the fat woman fashionable will be the real colver of the farm question. He will double the potential consumption of wheat, corn, butter and potatoes almost over night.

Judging from the results of some of the primaries, it is our opinion that regardless of who is elected president the next Congress is going to be the one that will never stop talking.

Somehow or other there is something about Governor Roosevelt's speeches that remind us of a doughnut. They go round and round but have nothing at the center.

Announcement that Japan will make a contract with Russia for the oil to run her warships and will no longer depend on the United States for a supply is a straw to show which way the wind is blowing and also to prove that Uncle Sam wants to watch his step so far as Oriental politics is concerned.

Republicans assert that Governor Roosevelt borrowed his ideas for a railroad speech from Hoover"s policies. Maybe he wanted to get something sound.

Mississippians have four tickets this year and can vote their choice. Usually they only have one of the "take it or leave it" variety.

The MAN in the MOON

Looks Over All—
Overlooks None.

A Job For Everybody

Since everyone seems to think that this is the first and only depression, or panic, that has ever been, and every body is looking for a job, mostly for the other fellow, I began to look around to see just what could be done about this matter of jobs. Now, there are a few who look on the bright side of a situation, even if it is a bad one, (bless them), and these are mostly wisecrackers. One of these boys offers the following solution, and a sure one, as I believe you will agree. He says the way to give everybody a job, both men and women, boys and girls, is to pick out two nice islands, making sure that they are far enough apart that no person can swim the distance. Then place all the men and boys on one of these islands, and all the women and girls on the other. His idea in doing this is that all will forget the depression and make jobs for themselves—building boats. Of course it is only a joke, but I believe it would work.

Repeal—A Real Cure

Just a few days after we published the article in this column, regarding the extra jobs the repeal of the 18th Amendment would create, an old buzzard came scraping along, screwed his mouth up into a smirk that made it look like it had been cut on a hill-side pattern, and inquired if that was all the jobs I could think of that repeal would create. And then he proceeded to enlighten me (as he supposed) along the line of repeal, citing conditions in Canada with her open saloons. "Why," he said "in Canada they have no prohibition and yet they have less trouble with drunks and the liquor business than we have, in spite of our strict liquor law." And then he cited the fact that a number of the big shots in the business world had declared themselves opposed to outlawing the liquor traffic and the open saloon. In reply to this man, and any others like him, as well as their sympathizers, I will let bare statistices and figures speak for themselves. According to these statistics, given by the different newspapers of Canada, here are a few facts: The number of permit to buy liquor, during one year, increased from 60,000 to 140,000; drunkenness among women has increased 53 per cent; as much liquor is sold by bootleggers as in government supervised saloons; arrests for drunken driving increased 1,300 per cent in six years. Think of that! Imagine what the condition would be here, where we have about seven cars to their one. And if these captains of industry are so keen to have liquor free again, why is it that railroads will not have a drinker for an engineer or a dispatcher? Are they not safe? And even the "wet" newspapers, themselves, are very particular that their fine machinery, linotypes, presses, etc., are in the hands of sober operators. Why? Isn't the habitual drunkard safe? All great manufacturers take all kinds of precautions to make sure that their fine and costly machinery is operated and cared for by sober men—not sots. And, then, the editor of the college paper at Columbia University, himself an avowed "wet", and a good leader in the fight for repeal, writes: "Alcohol undermines good judgment." How can the repealist explain away the above facts and figures? Come on, you repealists—tell us something!

Whose Pot is Black?

It makes me want to take sewing lessons when I hear one of our good tried and true loyal Alabama Democrats trying to lambast Mr. Hoover and the Republican administration, and defend the situation Gov. "Boss Man" Miller and his gang have gotten this state into. Yes, sir, they are apt to rip their corduroys most any time, because it takes something with lots of stretch in it to perform that little trick. As for me, I do not believe Mr. Miller is due much of the blame as is falling to him, but that, like Mr. Hoover, he has been hindered by an incompetent bunch of lawmakers, for the most part, who have been much more careful to cater to a group of powerful individuals and combines than to consider the needs and desires of the people of Alabama. But, likewise, Mr. Hoover might have been able to have a few beneficial acts put through if he had been blessed with a bit of cooperation. And when the Demmies start their line of chatter about what Hoover might have done, and didn't, they should be made to remember that something was said about "Saving Millions With Miller"—we'll save 'em all right—to pay for mistakes and bullheadedness, political plums and the peaches that go with some of them.

Slogans

Of late I have seen lots of wild and wooly slogans being carried on cars passing back and forth. Some of them are pretty good, some bad, and some awful. Here are two I ran across the other day: "You ain't seen nothing yet—if you want to look at a REAL panic, beat Hoover." Another says: "Back Hoover and Hoover will bring us back." Studying up slogans seems to be something of a fad these days; study a while and think up a good one—then pull it.

Speaking of Records

Some guy started in on me last week with a scathing denunciation of Hoover's record. But I was ready, and itching for someone to start that kind of chatter. We may have had pretty tight times, but just take a squint at the following: During the last 70 years, there have been only two Democratic presidents. During one of the administrations these United States experienced one of the worst panics in its history—and during the other we succeeded in getting ourselves rid of FORTY BILLION DOLLARS, and being left completely buried beneath a national debt that will not be paid when Gabriel blows reveille. There's a record for you to ponder over. Now think over this "Roosevelt and Recovery" thing.

Hunting Time

Baseball season is all over and football reigns as king of sports again. Too, someone has seen fit to let us all start hunting a month earlier this year. Some say it is a bad ruling—some say not. I don't know. But there's one thing I do know—every morning I can hear the guns popping in the branches near by, and if I don't rush out and take a few pops too, it will soon be too late. So long.—Man in the Moon.

Having consolidated his victories in Louisiana, Huey Long is now looking for new worlds to conquer.

Who remembers the good old days when the only man in town who ever looked at the financial page of the daily paper was the leading banker?

In giving out their straw vote totals, the boys at Democratic headquarters are evidently trying to convey the impression that there aren't enough Republicans left to man the polls on election day.

Our honest opinion is that if Governor Roosevelt should happen to be elected President his biggest worry is going to be William Randolph Hearst.

Vice Presidental Candidate Garner is permitted to ride with Governor Roosevelt on his western trip but he isn't being encouraged to make any great amount of noise.

One trouble about photogaphing an eclipse is that if anything goes wrong you can't ask the eclipse to come back tomorrow for another setting.—Indianapolis News.

An automobile load of tourists always makes us feel glad that we didn't have to pack the luggage.—Toledo Blade.

Back thirty-four years ago the Maine was sunk by the Spainards. Now the Democrats have to come along and try the same thing.

MORAL ECHOES

(By D. W. Haskew)

When you go to dress yourself in the morning, you stand before a mirror. In that mirror you can see when your hair is not combed, when your tie or dress is not hanging just right, and when dandruff or lint has gathered on your garments. Before that mirror you stand and fix and brush until you are in a presentable condition. The Bible is God's mirror, and we need to stand before it every morning of our lives. Dress yourself before the Bible. It will reveal to you the defects, your character and your soul. Fix every garment of the soul before God's mirror, and you will be presentable before the world.

The phone rang. The lady of the house was invited to a party. I heard her say: "I am not certain just now, let me call you back in a few minutes." This lady did not want to attend the party and so she sat down and for several minutes she thought up an excuse. Finally she made the return call, and you never heard a more plausible excuse in your life. It had a sincere ring, but I knew that it was a hoax. It was a thought-up excuse to meet a special occasion. How often is that thing true when God asks you to do something. It may be that God wants you to give money to a needy person, some food to a hungry man, do some work in the church, help in a special way in some community enterprise, give flowers to the church, or to some sick person, and at once you sit down and study out an excuse. It is never any trouble to study out an excuse. To make them sound plausible. The Bible is full of excuses that men thought out and tried to pander off on God. God knows when you render an excuse. His axe is at the root of the tree. Look out.

The piano tuner came to our house. He was told that the piano did not seem to be out of tune, but that it had a harsh, irritable sound. It was noisy and would not send out notes that were soft and mellow. He went into the instrument and found that the felt on the hammers had become packed and hard. He took akeen piece of steel and pricked the hammers where they would strike the strings, and when he had completed, the piano was soft and sweet in its tones. The hammers were made soft and the music was mellow. Listen to the tone of your voice in the home, in the office, in the store, and see if you can not detect a harsh sound? It may be that you have become "hard-boiled" and you need toning down. If you find yourself about half mad with everybody, you have gotten on a high key and you need toning. Make your words soft and mellow, and the world will send back mellow music to you.

While driving along the highway I came to where some men were fixing to blast some rocks. They were drilling holes in a large boulder. One man would hold the drill against the rock, and another man would strike it with a sledge hammer. Each one had a distinct job. One man was to hold the drill, the other was to db the hammering. Together they were making it possible to blast that boulder. Man and God are working together in this world. Their purpose is to blast out all form of sin. Each has a distinct task. All man has to do is to hold the drill of truth in position. God strikes that drill with the sledge hammer of his spirit. Christian people have done much blasting, but there is yet much to be done. We should be firm holders of truth, and let God drive away with His sledge hammer.

Something went wrong with my car. I carried it to the garage and after examination I was told that I had let it get too hot and the block to the engine had bursted. It was a serious injury and the repair bill went beyond the limits of my purse. Somehow I had been negligent in protecting my car and the heat had ruined it. I know lots of folks running up and down the highway of life, who are very negligent about their tempers. They get hot and speak words that burst the block of friendship. They do not seem to think that the block of friendship amounts to much in the engine of life. When that block is bursted by hot words there is a damage that is hard to repair. Better watch you temper.

As little as you think about it—we have got to do some fighting in this world. Often we are forced into certain conditions when there is nothing left for us to do, but to put up a scrap. I saw a little dog that allowed other dogs to chew on its tail all the time, and he did nothing but yelp and run. About sundown one afternoon I saw two tom cats hitch up for a test of claws and teeth. One was much larger than the other and soon he had the other cat flat of his back. Talk about a fight, but that little tom cat served it out in good shape. He was the under cat and he was flat on his back, but there was nothing that a cat could serve that he did not hand out in full measure. He bit and chewed, clawed and squalled, and so terrific were his charges with his resistance tools, that the other cat gave up and made a race for the remainder of his tattered rags. Self respect is honorable. Christian people have got to do some scrapping on the whiskey question, and I for one am not ashamed of the fight. The big whiskey bully may throw us flat of our backs, but even then we are not going to give up the fight. I really believe that this is a good time to do some fighting.

The Man on the Corner

Some Sights He Saw—
and Some He Saw Not.

What We Plant

Life is a series of plantings, and what your restive desire may be planting now will take root and grow and come to flower at a time when it may be you have forgotten that you ever planted it.

What man sows he shall reap—it is not a threat, it is a promise. And earnest, ambitious people are sowing all the time. One of the surprising qualities of life is that men reap things they have forgotten they ever sowed. They plant the seed of desire and expectation, but because they do not immediately see the fruit, they grow weary of waiting and turn their attention elsewhere; but the seed is a living thing and grows—forgotten or not, it grows, and in due time it comes to flower and fruit.—Henry Ford.

Broadus and His Bride

A mixture of welcome and congratulations awaits Mr. and Mrs. Broadus Connatser when they arrive in Clanton this week. Mrs. Connatser was before their marriage last Wednesday, Miss Virginia Martin, of Terre Haute, Indiana. Their love romance began a year ago last summer, when Broadus was playing with the Terre Haute team of the Three-Eye League. They are expected to spend several weeks in Clanton this winter, where they will be at home with Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Fox.

The Leader's Anniversary

Maurice Lande is receiving congratulations upon the occasion of the thirteenth anniversary of The Leader. Thirteen years of truthful merchandising is a record of which Mr. Lande is jusly proud. He has a great many friends throughout Chilton county who have been the beneficiaries of his excellent store and merchandising policies throughout the past thirteen years. We hope the future brings bigger and better things to The Leader, and a full measure of the success which Mr. Lande has proven that he deserves.

In The Grip of Another Fad

A smart guy somewhere has invented a new piece of foolishness called the Rick-Rack. It has cost many a dad a dime, or perhaps several dimes. And I notice not all the dimes were spent for the sole benefit of the kids. Even some of the dads and mothers have been lured into the Rick-Rack racket. I will be glad when this latest fad shall have taken its place along with some of its kindred nuisances, the Yo-Yo, Mumble Peg, etcetera.

SHOWER FOR CARROLLS

The ladies of the Clanton Baptist church are sponsoring a shower for Rev. and Mrs. Homer Carroll, who are attending Howard College. The churches out in the county are asked to help in getting up a supply of canned goods and other useful items for these two worthy young people.

Anything you wish to give may be left with Mrs. Ezell any day this week.

It should be noted that about one-third of the total long-term foreign investments of the United States, amounting to more than five billions of dollars, are in the British Empire—most of them in Canada and Newfoundland.

Where could one find a more complete and solidly factual refutation of the Democratic charges against the Hawley-Smoot protective tariff as a "wrecker of foreign trade," than is to be found in these figures from the Ottawa Conference.—Fort Wayne News Sentinel.

WHAT—A BOLTER?

Speaking in Southern California, Governor Roosevelt said:

"I must confess to considerable political independence myself. In 1904 I did not vote for the Democratic nominee, Judge Alton B. Parker, but for the Republican nominee, Theodore Roosevelt."

Some of the rabidly regular party men in Alabama should in the light of this confession, suffer some serious misgivings about supporting the Democratic nominee for President.

In the sight of others its candid expression of political independence will magnify the Roosevelt stature.—Birmingham Post.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

SEED CHOICE IMPORTANT

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 3.—Seed selection is just as important in forest nursery practice as in growing of field crops, reports J. M. Stauffer, inspector of the Alabama Commission of Forestry. To grow healthy and sturdy seedlings for transplanting to the site where they are to remain and grow into mature trees for timber production, it is essential that the seed be secured from straight, healthy and thrifty parent trees, says Mr. Stauffer. Thus the tree planted will not be merely growing timber but will be producing a timber yield that is of the best for the species used.

Evidence that seed derives its dominant and recessive characters from the parent tree is disclosed by some of the earlier plantations of the eastern United States. Some of these consist of very crooked, rapidly tapering poles, thile others are comparatively straight with no decided taper. In the first instance the seed was taken from crooked, wind tossed trees of the higher elevations, while in the latter cases the seed was gathered from desirable trees growing in the best part of the natural range of the species.

FARM AND GARDEN QUERY BOX

(By K. C. Davis, Knapp School of Country Life, Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn.)

Q.—As cold nights come on rats and mice come into the farm buildings worse than ever. They seem to do much damage. What control measures do you recommend?

A.—Rat-proofing buildings is easily done by making a little trench around the foundation of a house or other building and putting concrete about one foot below the surface. Let woven wire, called hardware cloth, as a lining to the corn crib and grain bins and use such materials to stop up holes in walls and prevent rats from entering walls of houses, barns and other buildings. Each farm or community should have a rat-killing day set when many rats can be killed by using rat poison known as Red Squill. This is mixed with meat or other bait material in open places where rats have learned to come for food. That is, train the rats to come for food that is not poisoned, then put out the poisoned food and they will be killed in great numbers. This Red Squill is not dangerous to other animals. Get details from U. S. Farmer's Bulletin 1533 F, obtained from your Congressman. Start rat-killing contests.

Q.—I have inquired among neighbors to determine the real costs of our leading products. They vary so widely that I write to ask for a solution.

A.—Take one crop as an example, say cotton, corn, tobacco, or potatoes. Make a list of the items affecting the cost and then ask five or more farmers to give from memory the actual cost of each item, and add them up for each farm. October is a good time to do this, as the items are still fresh in mind. The main items on crops are plowing, and harrowing for the crop, fertilizer, seed, planting, cultivation, trolling enemies, harvesting, barketing rent of land or interest on capital, etc. The main items for livestock products are feed, daily labor, controlling enemies, losses, interest on money invested in the project for animals, buildings and land.

NEW RECORD MADE IN STORING FOOD

Auburn, Ala., Oct., 4.—The preservation of food products by canning, drying, preserving and pickling has established a new high record in Alabama this year. Miss Helen done by the home demonstration club agent, has received reports from the home demonstration agents in 41 counties showing that they have supervised or directed the preservation of 2,350,777 quarts, an increase of 500,000 quarts over the 1931 record. If the other 26 counties have conserved proportionately the state total exceeds three million five hundred thousand quarts.

These figures include the work done by the hofe demonstration club women, 4-H club girls and also welfare work directed by the home demonstration agents. Miss Johnson, in reporting this work, said that outstanding relief work was done by the home demonstration agents in the larger counties, Jefferson being the leader.

Most of the food products conserved to date were fruits and vegetables. Meats have been canned on a small scale and more of it will be canned during the fall and winter. Small quantities of fruits and vegetables are to be saved yet this fall, women and girls taking advantage of the final opportunity to increase their home supply of food, and also some for sale.

"It has been a remarkable year in food preservation," said Miss Johnson, "and the home demonstration agents have rendered distinguished service of inestimable value to the people of the state. It means that the hungry will be fed and much suffering avoided."

ALABAMA COTTON IS BETTER THIS YEAR

Auburn, Ala., Oct. 4. — Cotton produced in Alabama has moved this year up to the front seat in quality and is being bought by spinners on an equal basis with cotton produced in other states. And the value of this crop to the state was increased several million dollars.

This remarkable achievement is due to the cooperative work among county agents, bankers, merchants, farmers, spinners, teachers of vocational agriculture, the state department of agriculture and industries, the Alabama Industrial Board, the Farm Bureau and others.

Systematic work for the improvement of the staple of Alabama cotton began in 1929. That year 44 per cent of the cotton produced in the state was untenderable. This was reduced to 38 per cent in 1930, and this year it is 15 per cent, according to an official preliminary estimate.

This improvement in quality has removed most o fthe prejudice held by spinners and buyers against Alabama cotton. It is also enabling Alabama spinners to buy cotton they need without having to go outside of the state to get it. In this way it has brought farmers and spinners closer together, thereby perfecting a mutual advantage.

To continue the work and make it permanent seed farms have been established throughout the state as a continuous supply of pure seed. Several communities have done a complete job of producing only one variety. Notable examples here are the Coates Bend community in Etowah County and the Lily Flagg community in Madison County. Ed Fennell of Leighton, Colbert County, has done an outstanding job of improving and producing seed of the D. P. L. 4-8 variety.

FOSS EXPRESSES VIEWS ON SCHOOL MATTERS

As a candidate for the office of member of County Board of Education, on the Democratic ticket, the question has been asked me how I stood on the referendum, to which I will state that if the majority of the people want it, I would feel it my duty if elected by them, to do my part in seeing to it that they got it.

In other words, to be a true representative of the people, one should follow their wishes in all matters that are just and right.

The school situation, as we all know, is in the most critical condition from a financal standpoint of view that it has ever been known to be, and courgeous, definite action is required by those in power to see to it that the schools are given the attention that rightfully belongs to them.

If elected my desire is to serve the people faithfully, and to do what I feel is conscientiously right.

Yours in the interest of good schools,—C. R. Foss.

Good Health Depends On Mineral Balance

Lee's Mineral Compound With Vitamins Builds Bodily Strength and Vigor by Supplying Needed Minerals and Vitamins

In the light of recent scientific discoveries, leading Physicians and Health authorities agree that the human race could be practically free from most ailments, and could live to a ripe old age if the system could be regularly supplied with a sufficient quantity of the essential Minerals and Vitamins.

DEFICIENCY OF MINERALS

The process of refining modern foods; bleaching of flour, rice, sugar, etc.; together with improper cooking takes out of our foods the very things that God intended we should have.

ACIDITY DESTROYS HEALTH

As the Mineral content of the body is lowered, slowly but surely the acid content of the system is increased until it finally reaches the point where the organs of assimilation and elimination cannot perform their natural functions. Our powers of resistance are lowered. Disease germs creep into the blood. The system becomes clogged with impurities. Various aches and pains appear, and before we realize what is taking place, we are on the very verge of a physical break-down.

AMAZING NEW FORMULA

Fortunately for humanity, science has found a way to prevent most of these conditions. After years of careful research and experimentation, a new and remarkable formula has been perfected. This preparation, known as LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND is a scientific combination of the eleven most essential Mineral Elements of the human body combined with Vitamins. It is not, in any sense, a patent medicine but is more in the nature of a FOOD VITALIZER. By supplying the system with the necessary Minerals and Vitamins, it aids nature in quickly balancing the Mineral content of the body so that good health naturally follows.

BRINGS QUICK RELIEF

Stomach disorders, such as Indigestion, hyperacidity, "heart-burn," gas, and bloating soon yield to this amazing natural compound. Constipation and attendant ills, such as nervousness, headaches, biliousness, bad breath and sallow skin, soon give way to a feeling of renewed strength and vigor.

MAKE THIS 10 DAY TEST
Convince Yourself!

Stop dosing yourself with "patent medicines," harsh pugatives, oils and cathartics for just 10 days. Go to your nearest Druggist and secure a bottle of LEE'S MINERAL COMPOUND. Take it regularly, and watch the results. You'll be amazed at the feeling of renewed strength and vigor that soon appears. No narcotics or alcohol to "boost you up" but a natural method of restoring health and energy.

For Sale by Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton, Ala., and other good Drug Stores Everywhere. Or send $1.25 to Lee's Laboratories, 365 Peachtree Arcade, Atlanta, Ga., for a large bottle, postage paid.

CURING MEAT TO BE FARM STUDY

Demonstrations Will Be Held By County Agent, C. E. Stapp

How to save and cure meat in any kind of weather conditions is a very important question to the farmers of Chilton County. As we saw last winter, the old hit and miss method of waiting for cold or freezing weather to kill hogs may not always be reliable. It can happen that there will not be much cold weather in a winter. That was true last year.

County Agent Stapp, at a conference of County Agents, in Auburn last week, made a special study of how to keep and cure meat in any kind of weather. Demonstrations along this line were carried through. Some hogs were killed, and the agents in attendance were given practical experience in applying the method, which has already been proven by the extension service.

Mr. Stapp states that Auburn has been killing hogs the past summer, and curing the meat by this process. It has worked entirely satisfactorily, he states, and he expects to conduct a number of these demonstration in Chilton County.

It will be worth a very great deal to our farmers to learn how they may keep and cure their meat without regard to weather conditions.

ALABAMA POWER PAYS TAX EARLY TO AID THE SCHOOLS

Birmingham, Ala., October 1.—Alabama Power Company today paid into the State treasury $277,382.47 in settlement of the hydro-electric kilowatt hour tax for the preceding year. It was stated by officials of the company that it had been decided to pay the tax today in order that the money might be available immediately for the educational trust fund to which it goes under the law and be of help in meeting the emergency which exists in the school situation in the state.

Under the provisions of the law the company has until November 1 to pay the tax and has heretofore paid it on or about October 25, but for the reasons given this additional time was waived and payment made today.

This kilowatt hour tax payment represents a substantial part of the $1,965,291 in taxes which it is estimated will be paid by the Alabama Power Company in 1932, officials stated. This sum amounts to approximately 12.5 cents out of every dollar of gross revenue of the company for this year, they said.

NEGRO CAUGHT WITH THE GOODS

Recovery of Items Taken From Culp's Store and Clanton Laundry

The store of A. J. Culp, on the Kincheon Road, was burglarized last Friday night. Last Sunday night Policeman J. R. Hardy, and Constable, Irby Popwell, investigating a clue to the robbery, succeeded in locating the goods that were taken from the Culp store. They were found at the home of Ada Cottingham, a negro woman, at West End.

While uncovering the Culp goods, the officer notified Leo Thompson, of the Clanton Laundry, to come and see if anything in the house was among the items stolen from the Laundry on Monday night before the Culp robbery. Mr. Thompson went and found some dresses and a hat which had been stolen from the laundry. While there Mr. Thompson noticed a negro boy, Napoleon Stone, was wearing a pair of pants belonging to Dick Hayes, which were stolen from the laundry. Stone was brought to jail and turned over to the sheriff.

Another negro, J. C. Gibson, is thought to have been connected with the robbery. But he worked a clever ruse to get away from the officers. As soon as he learned the law was getting hot on the trail of the stolen goods, Gibson turned in to give them some information. As the undercover work proceeded, Gibson saw a chance to elude the officers, and he very promptly joined the bird gang and has not been seen since.

Most of the stolen goods from the Culp Store and the Laundry were finally recovered. A pair of shoes was found, which was not among the things taken from the Culp store nor the Laundry, indicating that the gang must have pulled off other robberies at some time and concealed the goods at this place.

CHILTON CATTLE IN SECOND PLACE

Awards Made At The Cattle Show In Clanton On Last Saturday

County Agent Stapp reports that the Jersey cattle show held in Clanton October 6, 7 and 8, was a success. Sixty-two head of purebred Jersey cattle were in the show. The Commissioners Court appropriated $288.00 as premium money and it was disbursed as follows:

Chambers county boys, $78.00; Chilton county boys, $72.00 Talladega county boys, $43.00; Elmore county boys, $35.00.

The above shows that the Chilton county boys have some good Jersey cattle. Chambers county boys have several times as many purebred Jerseys as the Chilton County boys, because they have been working on their Jersey cattle improvement longer than have the boys of Chilton.

The Chilton county bulls were very noticable in the show. The little bull owned by Daniel Owens, son of J. R. Owens, was awarded ribbon as Junior champion bull, and the club bull being kept by Mr. Stapp at George McCain's barn in Clanton was awarded the ribbon as grand champion bull of the show.

The class of two years old and over was composed of the club bull that was awarded grand championship, the bull owned by Ralph Mims, the bull owned by C. W. Wilson and the old bull owned by Mr. Stapp. The club bull is out of a cow that was imported from the Island of Jersey. His grand sire, Exenia Sultan, sold six years ago for $35,000. The bull owned by Ralph Mims is also out of an imported cow and is the great grandson of Exenia Sultan. The bull in this class and owned by C. W. Wilson is out of a daughter of the state champion butter producer of Alabama. His grandmother held the record of 813 pounds of butter in one year. (That is a pile of butter). Incidentally this bull has more calves than any other bull in the county now.

The little bull owned by Daniel Owens that won the junior championship is out of the cow owned by J. W. Mims and was sired by the bull owned by Ralph Mims. The little bull that pushed Daniel Owen's bull for first place in the junior class was owned by J. P. Culp. After the show he was sold to Earle Thomas and Howard Oden of Isabella community. Anothr young bull owned by C. W. Wilson was sold to W. A. Adams near Mountain Creek.

There are several good, purebred Jersey bulls scattered over the county and farmers who want to improve their dairy cattle should breed their cows to one of these good bulls.

The second place for get of sire went to Ralph Mims' bull. The second place in the herd show consisting of five head from any county was awarded to the Chilton county group. First place went to Chambers, third place to Talladea and fourth to Elmore.

SHAW FURNISHED A GOOD EXHIBIT

Cattle Brought From Farm Across River, Near Lay Dam

Mr. Stapp has been calling farmers' attention to beef cattle where they are not interested in improving their dairy cattle. Mr. Stapp states that anyone who is not interested in raising dairy cattle should breed their cows to a good beef type bull and grow calves fit for beef.

This was demonstrated at the show last week by H. S. Shaw. Mr. Shaw brought in a scrub cow, weighing 540 pounds, with a six months old half-breed Hereford calf by her side that weighed 400 pounds.

Mr. Shaw has a good purebred Hereford bull that he is breeding his grade cows to and has some white face calves that will make good juicy meat. There are several good beef type bulls in the county now. Among those who own these bulls are H. S. Shaw, J. N. Dennis, Dr. C. N. Parnell, Arthur Martin and Mr. Gay.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Prince and son Wilbur, accompanied by Mrs. Irene Rasberry and Miss Eloise Rasberry were shopping in Montgomery Monday.

CHILTON BOYS WON IN JERSEY JUDGING CONTEST

An interesting part of the Jersey show held each year is the judging contest. Three boys from each county participating in the show make up the team for the judging contest.

In the contest held here Friday, four teams of 12 boys representing Chilton, Chambers, Talladega and Elmore counties, competed. The boys were given one class of four cows, and one class of four heifers to place and give their reasons.

Each boy was scored on his placings and reasons. The highest individual score was made by Willie Harris of Chambers County; second high score was made by Clyde Popwell of Chilton and third high score was made by James Dennis of Chilton. The total score of Clyde Popwell, James Dennis and Chester Messer of Chilton County was more than the total score of the boys from any other county, giving first place to Chilton boys.

The American Jersey Cattle Club awarded gold, silver and bronze medals to the boys making the three highest individual scores. The gold medal went to Willie Harris of Chambers County, the silver medal went to Clyde Popwell of Chilton and the bronze to James Dennis of Chilton. James Dennis won the gold medal in the showmanship contest at the show in Anniston last year. The showmanship contest was not held this year.

CONCORD WINNER OF FIRST PRIZE

Foursquare Win Second Place And Friendship Third In Final Count

According to schedule, the Good Samaritan Contest, put on by the Union-Banner and several cooperating business houses of Clanton and Thorsby, came to a close last Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock. About one hour's time was taken in making the final check up on votes, which revealed that Concord Baptist church was easily the winner of the first prize. The second prize went to the Clanton Foursquare church, and Friendship took third prize, missing second place by only 20,000 votes.

The Union-Banner and the merchants wish to congratulate all three of the winning organizations. They worked faithfully and courageously for the prizes, and so far as we have heard, everybody is pleased with the results.

Below we give a tabulation of the votes cast for all six of the entries in the contest:

Concord	1,577,016
Clanton Foursquare	1,346,266
Friendship	1,326,921
Clanton Baptist	772,199
Walnut Creek	573,378
Liberty Hill	64,525

It might be interesting to our friends and readers to note that there were a grand total of 5,660,305 votes cast for all the churches, which represents a business of $56,603.05 done by the business houses cooperating in this contest. The proposition as a whole has been favorable, but it might have been much better, more interesting and more beneficial as a business stimulator had the contestants taken more interest earlier in the campaign and had more churches entered and pulled for the prizes. But be that as it is. It is all over now, and the Union-Banner only hopes that everyone who worked got some enjoyment out of it and that we are all now even better friends than we were before the scramble started.

CLANTON BOYS ARE PLEDGED TO FRATERNITY

Greek letter fraternities at Auburn pledged 261 students during the fall rush season just completed. Among the number it is stated that the following students from Clanton were pledged to Phi Kappa Tau: W. Otis Miller, Herman I. Harris and Nelson Parrish. Lambda Chi, E. Erle Ellis, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Sidney Gibson, Verbena.

If these pledges follow certain scholastic requirements set by the college and the Interfraternity Council, they will be eligible for initiation at the end of the first semester of school work.

The deceased was the mother of Mrs. Charley Wilkins, of Bethsalem community.

Income Tax Appeal Renewed As Schools Plead Helplessness

Governor Miller Addresses Letter To Public Setting Forth His Opinions of Needs As Appeals Come to Him Urging Legislative Action

Governor Miller says, "the school situation is critcal and serious. The schools must continue, if possible. They should not be closed. The boys and girls must be educated.

"The Legislature has submitted an income tax amendment, to permit a tax levy on net incomes in excess of exemptions, and an amendment for a twenty million dollar bond issue to pay the current debts of Alabama due on the 30th of September, 1932. They will be rejected or ratified by the voters at the polls on the 8th day of November. If both are approved, this will enable the state to pay all of its current debts, amounting to practically twenty million dollars, fifteen million of which are school debts and this will leave the schools the education taxes for this year on which to operate.

"Income is property and it is now escaping taxation in Alabama. It has escaped too long. It should be placed in the tax list on November 8th.

"To increase the school funds for this year, which is necessary, bills are pending before the legislature to tax electric power made in and sold out of Alabama and made out of and sold in Alabama, which now escapes taxation in Alabama; to tax National Banks which are now escaping taxation in Alabama; to tax natural gas, which is now escaping taxation in Alabama; to tax foreign securities, owned in Alabama, aggregating about one hundred thirty-six million dollars, which are at present escaping taxation in Alabama. Then there is a bill pending in the house for a special sale tax on a few luxuries like soft drinks.

"Nearly all of these proposed and pending bills are to place a tax on property now escaping taxation. They have not so far met with legislative approval. If they should be passed by the legislature and the two amendments should be approved by the voters on the 8th of November, the schools will be safe, none should close and the credit of Alabama will be kept secure and sound.

"If those bills fail to pass the legislature and the two amendments are lost on November 8th, and the property mentioned continues to escape taxaton, then the school situatoin will be critical, and a school crisis will be upon us, and the closing of schools inevitable, and no arrangement made to pay our debts. It would take the school funds for three years to pay the present school debts. The annual school and other appropriations since 1927 and prior thereto, exceeded annually the school and other revenues and this with the cost of the erection of many school buildings here and there in Alabama caused this great debt. These debts must be paid; and the schools must not close.

"Expenses of the government have been and will be cut, appropriations should and will be reduced by the legislature, a budget bill has been enacted into a statute that will make Alabama in the future live within her income; but cutting expenses, reducing appropriations and living by a budget system in the future within the state's income, will not pay the twenty million dollar debts in Alabama."

Voters May Register Next Week

All who are eligible to register as voters in Chilton County may do so before the coming election. The Board of Registrars will be in session at the Courthouse for five days, beginning next Monday, October 17. Any person in any Beat in the county, who is eligible to register, may come to the Courthouse during those five days and register. All persons are urged to take notice of this, and see that all who are entitled to register come and do so next week.

Mrs. Calloway Asks For Your Support On November 8th

To the Voters of Chilton County:

On Nov. 8, the general election will be held in this county to determine whether or not our offices shall continue to be filled with Republican officers, and I am taking this means of asking every Republican to go to the polls on that date and cast your ballot for the nomniees, as our county, under Republican leadership, is one of the few counties in the state that can pay 100 per cent for its county warrants.

It is said that we can only judge the future by the past, but it seems to me if we contrast the present condition of our county to the present condition of our state, that it will be enough for any person to select the Republican ticket. I have in office at the present time two state warrants, one for $33.00 and the other for over $2,000, which have been deposited in the bank and returned to me unpaid, even though they are for taxes that have been paid by Chilton county citizens to the state and the state has spent the money and in order to settle the claim for the amount due by the state to the county, the state treasurer sent me these warrants, with a not on them which reads, "Hold for the present." If you brought your county warrants to this office and I told you that there were not sufficient funds to pay them, but that we had illegally transferred your funds and used them, how muchlonger would you want our party to be in power? Yet, that is what the Democrats did in Chilton county the last time they were in power and that is what the state Democratic officers have recently done, thereby prohibiting the school teachers and even the pensioners from being paid.

It has not been possible for me to see all the voters since the primary, as the duties as Treasurer require most of my time, and I feel that I am serving your best interest to stay here and serve you officially when you need service from this office, but I hope that you will take this as a personal request from me to vote for me as Treasurer, and to vote for the other nominess on our ticket.

During the past four years I have given you the very best service that I could. I have written letters, deeds, mortgages and petitions for the public and I have never accepted one cent for my services as I have felt my time was paid for by Chilton County and that it's people were entitled to any service that I could render to them.

Since I have been treasurer, over $2,000,000 have been received and disbursed in this office. I have kept your records as straight as I possibly could. The last Grand Jury investigated my work and I was informed that the accounts balanced.

I have recognized this office as it not being my office, but one owned by the Chilton county people and that you were my "boss" and employers, and that I was only your employee, and I have tried to render service as such.

We may not always get the person of our choice in the primary elections, but after that contest is over, I believe we then all belong to the same party and that it is our duty to do all we can to help the nominees win. So let's all meet at the polls on November 8, and acclaim another victory for the Republicans of our county on that date. —Sincerely yours, Gertrude P. Calloway.

ELDER BLOSSOM WILL FORM A SUNDAY SCHOOL CLUB

Dear Editor:

At the close of my sermon in this issue of the Union-Banner I told you that if the Editor approved of it, I would proceed to organize a Sunday school club amongst the Sunday school children. Read my sermon, then you will understand why I wish to do this. The habit of speaking evil of others is a very bad one, and is growing real fast amongst our children, and is one that will be hard to overcome in after years.

Here is my plan: In order for you to become a member, first you must be a subscriber or the child of a subscriber to The Union-Banner. Second you must be a member of some Sunday school (not necessarily a member of a church). Third you must be between the ages of ten and twenty, boy or girl. Fourth you must agree to refrain from speaking evil of anyone or to say anything that will cause others to feel bad. The name of our "club" will be, "The Blossom Brigade," or "The B. B.'s."

To become a member just agree to the above four points and send your name and address to Elder Blossom, in care of The Union-Banner.

P.S.—For your information, will state that Elder Blossom is not really a negro, but is a white minister of the Gospel and an active pastor in Chilton County.

NEW CAPITAL IS BACK OF STORE

Reorganization Is Announced By Manager of Clanton Cash Store

Mr. O. D. DeLoach, manager of the Clanton Cash Store, announces this week that the ownership and capital back of this institution hes undergone some important changes during the past week.

"We have reorganized our business," said Mr. DeLoach, "and have set up our operating arrangements upon a basis that will enable us to better serve our customers. The men who are financing our business are all home folks, interested in the welfare of the people of our own community. We are in position to offer the best advantages to the buying public, and we earnestly solicit a ocntinuation of the patronage and confidence of the many friends who have been with us in the past."

Mr. DeLoach will continue as manager of the business. His new associations will make it possible for him to cater to his trade with all the standard brands of food stuffs and general household needs.

Since its entry into the grocery business in Clanton several years ago the Clanton Cash Store has gained a wide popularity in its field. Under the management of Mr. DeLoach, the store has maintained a high standard of service to its customers.

It will be of interset to the many friends of this popular store to know that a reorganization has taken place whereby all home capital is back of the business, and that the same high standard of service and quality will be maintained, with even a more varied line of high grade standard brand merchandise.

RECENT ENACTMENT OF INTEREST TO ALA. STRAWBERRY MEN

We are informed that the bill in the legislature introduced by our representative, Hon. Percy M. Pitts, repealing the law passed last year requiring the classification of strawberries, has been passed both houses and signed by Governor Miller. So, as the law now is, no state classification of strawberries shipped from Alabama will be required. We understand however, that the U. S. grading system will still be in force. This bill was sponsored by the strawberry associations of the state, and all growers will thank Mr. Pitts for introducing the bill and using his influence in getting it passed into law.

HUSBAND KILLED BY ANGRY WIFE

Former Clanton Woman Figures In Tragedy At Ensley

Birmingham, Ala., October 11.—W. D. Duff, sewing machine salesman, was fatally shot and his wife, Mrs. Ida Bell Duff, proprietor of the Twenty-First Street Grocery, Ensley, was critically wounded Monday morning in front of 1161 Eleventh Avenue, South. Police said they were told that Mrs. Duff shot her estranged husband and then, using another pistol, shot herself.

H. E. Creel, 1161 South Eleventh Street reported that Mrs. Duff came by the Creel residence about 7 a.m. Monday and asked if Duff had been by, police said. Creel said he was taken to work each morning by Duff.

When told that her husband had not yet been by, Mrs. Duff said she would wait out in her car for him, Creel told police.

About 15 minutes later Creel heard several shots outside, and on rushing to the front of the house saw Duff staggering away from Mrs. Duff's car and saw Mrs. Duff point a pistol toward her chest, he told police.

Duff, shot in the arm, chest and abdomen, lived less than an hour. He was taken to South Highlands Hospital by a passerby. Mrs. Duff, taken to the same hospital in a Johns ambulance, suffered three pistol wounds in the chest. Her condition was described as critical.

Officers J. A. Ellard, W. H. Fulgham, W. M. Epsy, W. M. Eddins, and Harold Runyan talked to Duff immediately after the shooting. They said Duff told them that when he arrived at the car, Mrs. Duff called him, and that when he went to her machine they exchanged greetings and she opened fire on him. Duff, the investigating police reported, said Mrs. Duff then took another pistol and shot herself.

The officers stated that two pistols were found in Mrs. Duff's car.

Gip M. Evans, investigator for the Jefferson County Commission, had not returned a finding in Duff's death Monday night.

During the World War Duff was a sergeant in a machine gun company of the Hundred and Sixty-Ninth Infantry.

Mrs. Duff was before her marriage, Miss Ida Bell Bruce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Bruce of Clanton.

DAT BLOOMIN PREACHER

All Ah know is Whut de Bible say Bout Hit.

This Week's Blossom:

—o—

Proverbs 14:32, sa, "The wicked is driven away in his wickedness."

Ah sa, "But lots ob em drives da selves away in their autos."

De tex fur to day is Matthew 5:11. "Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake." Dis tex is one ob de "Beatitudes." De fust twelve verses ob dis chapter is called de Beatitudes, which means "felicity ob de highest kind; consummate bliss." Ef de church people ob dis country would meet de reqirements ob Jesus in these twelve verses, da would be in a condition of supreme happiness all de time. How difrunt dis worl would be, how interested all would be in other people, all tryin to bring happiness into de heart an life of our neighbors an others.

In de 9th verse we fined these words "Blessed are the peacemakers; for they shall be called the children of God." To my mind dar is very few churches in dis country to day dat is at peace wid each other, dar is somebody always doin or sayin somethin to cause someone to feel bad or have their feelins hurt. Stid ob bein peacemakers lots ob folks is peacebreakers.

One oman whut Ah knows nevah misses ur chance to sa something to make somebody feel bad. How can sich people be de children ob God? It looks to me lak dat any true child ob God would try to make evy body feel good; looks lak da wuld want to see people happy and smilin. Evy body has sorrow nuff widout God's children sayin things to make them unhappy. Dis worl ob mankin needs all ob de sunshine an happiness an hope dat can possibly be brought to it. De more we become lak Christ de more ob sunshine an happiness radiates fum our lives, an as we bring happiness to others, we ourselves, experience a joy dat can come fum no other source. So les hand out to evy body bouquets stid ob spiders and scorpions.

De tex sa, "Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake." Lissen to me, since de days ob Christ on down de ages, good men an women has bin reviled an persecuted. Jesus knowed dat de devil couldnt stan fur people to be happy, dat he would hab lies circulated bout um, an cause all manner ob evil to be charged up to um. Happiness is one thing dat de devil dont want in dis worl. He uses his agents to make all ob God's chillun unhappy here, cause he knows dat da will be happy in dat home dat he an his angels lost by causin rebellion against, or open resistance to de lawful or constituted authority ob God.

Now, rite here Ahs gwyin to sa somethin dat lots ob you aint gwyin to agree to, an dat is dis, evy time ur Christian does somethin to cause sorrow an anguish an unhappiness to cum to others, da is doin jes whut de devil wants dem to do. Why will some ob God's chilluns act in a way to make people unhappy when da dont want to be unhappy da selves? Please remerber dat da blessin comes to you only ef de accusation is false. De big trouble is dat ur lot ob church folks wants to do as da please an bring reproach on de cause ob Christ by livin a life ob sinful pleasure, an den git mad when some one takes um to task bout it. Ah want to sa to dat class ob church folks dat you neednt expect de blessin mentioned in de tex when people tells de truth on you. It is only when de accusation is false dat one can claim de blessin.

Now Brudder preachers, let me sa dat you, abave evy body elce, should see to it dat any accusations brought agin you is false. Ah jumped on ur precher one time bout some things he wuz guilty ob, an all dat he could sa wuz, "aint preachers human des lak evy body elce?" Ah thought dat wuz de flimsyest excuse Ah ever heard any body make. Human beins is whut Jesus wuz talkin to in dis tex. He does not require something dat a human bein cant perform. In Luke 6:26, Jesus sa, "Woe unto you, when all men shall speak well of you; for so did their fathers to the false prophets." Now Ah git fum dis, dat when evy body, both saint or sinner, men an women, boys and girls, speak well ob me Ah knows dat Ah am livin a life dat is pleasin to all but not pleasin to God, an dat when Ah lives a life dat is pleasin to God its not gwyin to please de devil nor any ob his agents here in de worl. Church folks, les try to prove dat de religion ob Jesus Christ is somethin dat will make us love evy body and will keep us fum speakin evil ob anyone.

Now Ahs gwyin to close rite here an sa dis, Ah gwyin to see de editor ob dis paper an ax him ef Ah can organize a club mong de readers, an ef he will let me Ah will tell you bout it in another article in dis issue. May de Lord bless you all.—Elder Blossom.

Alabama Schools Would Receive Nothing From Proposed Income Tax!

All Income Tax Receipts Would Be Required For Interest And Retirement Of $20,000,000 Bond Issue

"THE Montgomery Advertiser of Oct. 4 quotes Gov. Miller as making this declaration before a meeting of county and city school superintendents summoned to the capitol last Monday:

"If you want the schools of Alabama to continue, vote for an income tax and the bond issue. If you want the schools to close, vote against the income tax and bond issue.

"We flatly challenge this assertion.

"The income tax and bond issue would not help keep the schools of Alabama open.

"Under the constitutional amendment, receipts of Gov. Miller's proposed income tax (the first revenue from which will not be available until March 15, 1933, when all the schools will be about ready to close) are to be pledged to pay the interest and help retire the principal of the proposed $20,000,000 bond issue. These tax receipts would not be available for any other purpose until this has been done. If the $20,000,000 bond issue is ratified and the rate of interest is fixed at 6 per cent and the rate of retirement at $1,000,000 yearly, it would require a minimum of about $2,200,000 yearly for this debt service.

"The first three-quarters of the year 1932 our federal government has collected income taxes in Alabama amounting to $1,280,449.64 on incomes earned in Alabama during 1931. Fourth quarter payments for 1932 are not due until Dec. 15. If these fourth quarter payments are the same as the third quarter, then the total income tax paid in Alabama this year would be $1,593,326.90.

"This amount, it must be remembered, is for tax on income earned during the year 1931. There can be no question that total income tax receipts in 1933 paid on incomes for 1932 will be much less.

"If Alabama should ratify an income tax with a statute fixing the rate as high as the federal government tax for 1931, which is inconceivable, then the state's income tax receipts in 1933 would still be far less than $1,593,326.90 because of reduced earnings this year as compared to last year.

"With $2,200,000 pledged to meet bond interest and retirement and not more than, and certainly much less than, $1,600,000 produced by the proposed income tax, whence will come the means to keep our schools open?

How will any teacher receive a dollar's salary in the present school term from a tax not payable until six months hence, which tax is already pledged to another purpose?"

Prophecy Corner

Conducted By

L. A. BUTTERFIELD

"Babylon . . . shall be as when God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah. It shall never be inhabited, neither shall it be dwelt in from generation to generation: neither shall the Arabian pitch tent there; neither shall shepherds make their folds there." Isaiah 13: 19-20.

"It shall never be inhabited." Though at the time this prophecy was given the Babylonians were the ruling race of mankind and their capital city the wonder of the world yet today nothing but ruins remains of the city and the whole wide world knows that there is not a single living Babylonian.

"Neither shall the Arabian pitch tent there." How did the prophet know that the Arabian would continue to exist after Babylon had become dust? Two thousand five hundred years ago while a few humble Arabians pitched their tents about Babylon, the Babylonians were the haughty rulers of the world. This prophecy indicates that while the the most powerful race on earth would become extinct, together with their world-famous city, still this little insignificant race of Arabs would continue on for thousands of years, long after this proud city had crumbled to ruins.

How did the prophet know that the Arabs would continue to dwell in tents? In the ruins of Babylon there was ample material to build many villages. The Arabs could easily have transported this material to more favorable spots and built for themselves comfortable houses. But Arabs continue to dwell in tents to this day.

The prophecy said that Arabians would not pitch their tents there. It is impossible to get Arabs to remain on the site of this ancient city overnight. Captain Mignan was accompanied by six Arabs completely armed, but he "could not induce them to remain toward night, from apprehension of evil spirits. It is impossible to eradicate this idea from the minds of these people." Travels p. 235.

"Neither shall shepherds make their fold there." Shepherds pasture their flocks within the immediate vicinity of Babylon but never go amid Babylon's ruins. Rawlinson's "Egypt and Babylon," page 109 tells us that "on the actual ruins of Babylon the Arabain neither pitches his tent nor pastures his flocks—in the first place, because the nitrous soil produces no pasture to tempt him; and secondly, because an evil reputation attaches to the entire site, which is thought to be the haunt of evil spirits."

How very accurate Bible Prophecy is! You and I can depend upon every detail of Bible Prophecy for it will surely be fulfilled.—L. A. Butterfield.

LIBERTY HILL CEMETERY

Thursday, October 20th, has been set as the day on which the cemetery at Liberty Hill is to be cleaned off. Please meet early and bring tools.

Of especial interest to our church members will be the outcome of the business meeting held at our church last Sunday. Rev. J. S. Holland, who has been our able pastor for the past five years, had handed in his resignation, due to receiving other calls to preach. But at this meeting, by an almost unanimous vote, it was decided to not accept Bro. Holland's resignation, and he will be our pastor for the coming year. Bro. Holland has served us faithfully and well during the past and it is with a real and sincere feeling of gratification to the membership to know that he is to be with us another year.

The public will please take notice that the meeting day has been changed to the first Sunday and Saturday before in each month. This change is now in effect.—Z. Lowery.

Prof. and Mrs. L. C. Warr were visitors to the Capital City Saturday.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

LIVESTOCK REMINDERS

Don't let any pigs go to market until you have first provided for your home meat supply this winter. Your county agent will assist you by furnishing instructions on the proper method of curing pork.

The feeding value of molasses for cattle is generally regarded as being equal to corn, pound for pound. The main advantage of feeding molasses lies in its palatability and that it induces heavier feed consumption.

Sam Deramus, Booth, Ala., had the champion ton litter at the Montgomery show recently. His ten Duroc Jersey pigs weighed 2,710 pounds when 173 days old. His feed cost was $2.70 per hundred. Mr. Deramus followed his county agent's instructions in feeding out his litter.

Alabama has 63 registered Berkshires, 229 Chester Whites,. 3,923 Duroc Jerseys, 55 Hampshires, 965 Poland Chinas, and 13 spotted Poland Chinas, according to the Bureau of Census recent report.

The best substitute for June pasture in January is silage. Every dairyman with five or more cows should have a trench silo filled with corn or sorghum this winter. Two or three tons of ensilage per cow should be provided.

Robert Jemison, Jr., Birmingham, is a firm believer in using production bred Jersey Bulls to head his large herd and is urging all dairymen to follow his example.

EXAMINE TIMBER TITLE BEFORE BUYING IT

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 10—Fraudulent sales of timber are being made in various parts of the state, according to investigations conducted by J. M. Stauffer, Forest Inspector of the Alabama Commission of Forestry. Mr. Stauffer urges both the buyer of timberlands and the small sawmill man to be extremely careful that they are participating in a valid sale or trade before closing the transaction. Often the unsuspecting buyer is subject to the machinations of unscrupulous persons. In all cases an abstract of title should be demanded. No timber buyer or sawmill man should be satisfied with any sort of title that may not convey property rights.

Quit claims, tax certificates, tax receipts and assessment blanks are often flourished as evidence of title while they may mean absolutely nothing at all. A piece of property may change hands several times on the strength of such instruments, and the final purchaser may have no more valid title to it than he has to the Brooklyn Bridge.

Instances are known where property has been in the hands of a family for thee score years and ten with taxes paid on it during all that time and yet title had never passed from the United States. Other cases show land transactions wherein conveyances have been made on the basis of paying back taxes for a period of five years or less. This subterfuge is usually employed with reference to land owned by the United States, the state of Alabama and State institutions upon which no tax is due, the land by law being tax free.

ALABAMA FARM NEWS

Perry County farmers have bought 13 purbred glits and 4 purebred boars. J. P. Robinson, county agent assisted in selection of them.

Farmers in Baldwin County, Ala., and a few over Florida recently sold 57,240 pounds of wool for $8,387. One hundred farmers participated in the sale.

Lowndes County farmers are arranging to buy a carload of Hereford bulls to be used in improving beef cattle. They will be bought in Missouri, according to County Agent R. S. Parker.

Five potato curing houses have been built in Franklin County under the direction of County Agent J. D. Wood who is using them for demonstrations. Each house is of the cellar type with rock furnaces for heating.

Eight trench silos were completed in Randolph County in September and filled with sorghum and corn silage. County Agent L. M. Hollingsworth directed the work for demonstrations, believeing that this type of silo will be a big factor in livestock development.

An incubator with a capacity of 9,000 eggs will be operated next year at Haleyville to supply baby chicks to farmers in Winston and other counties. County agent W. P. Whitlock sponsored the project with the cooperation of the county farm bureau.

Bullock County farmers have sold this fall 30 cars of beef calves and steers. The calves were milk fat, they having been produced on the mothers's milk and pasture. County Agent James Nunn says that this type of beef cattle is growing rapidly in Bullock.

HOW TO SAVE PORK IN ANY WEATHER FOUND

Auburn, Ala., Oct. 10.— Waiting for cold weather to kill hogs is necessary no longer. They may be killed any day and the meat cured properly without fear of losing it.

This announcement is made by Prof. J. C. Grimes, head of the department of animal husbandry at the Alabama Experiment Station, Auburn. It is based on experimental work in which hogs were killed in late May with a temperauture of 90 and cured perfectly.

The experiment is reported in an official bulletin now being published. Copies will be available in the near future. The county agents and home demonstration agents will be supplied and special copies will be mailed upon request.

No expensive equipment is required, Prof. Gromes said. The total cost of curing pork this way is about one cent per pound. Ice is the biggest expense, and it is not expensive.

The discovery of this simple and inexpensive method for curing pork will result in much convenience because farmers can kill hogs whenever they want to and it will result in a big saving by avoiding spoiled meat. Each year Alabama farmers have been heavy losers in spoiled meat but this should stop it. Last year the loss was excessively heavy because of the very warm winter.

County agents and home demonstration agents are conducting demonstrations in this new way of curing meat. Prof. Grimes expects it to become a general practice. It will improve the quality as well as avoid spoiling.

A Fair Question A Fair Answer

JUST recently we received a letter from one of our good customers which asked this question:

"Food, clothing, rent have all gone down these past few years. Why shouldn't rates for electricity in Alabama come down too?"

This is a fair question. It calls for a fair answer. The answer is: "THEY HAVE."

To give an exact answer to the customer who asked this question we looked up his bills for the first six months of 1932. Then we figured what he would have actually paid during these same six months for same amount of electricity under rates which prevailed in former years. And this was the record:

FOR HOUSEHOLD ELECTRICITY

What He Paid First Six Months of 1932	Same Bill at Rates in 1922	Same Bill at Rates in 1917	Same Bill at Rates in 1916	Same Bill at Rates in 1915
$31.77	$54.29	$63.81	$76.58	$89.34

FOR ELECTRICITY USED IN HIS BUSINESS

What He Paid First Six Months of 1932	Same Bill at Rates in 1922	Same Bill at Rates in 1917	Same Bill at Rates in 1916	Same Bill at Rates in 1915
$39.72	$40.91	$46.95	$56.60	$66.01

The case of this customer is fairly typical of that of other customers in towns throughout the state. Electricity is today's biggest bargain—especially in Alabama—where household rates are about 16% BELOW the national average.

The little car, with its delivery body, is attracting much attention as it makes its rounds over the town.

The second was for the amount of advertising it would give his business. It will be used, mostly, for short, quick collections and deliveries in the town.

JACKSON ON SCHOOL BOARD

Editor Union-Banner:

Mr. S. J. M. Webb, nominee on the Republican Ticket, stated in the Union-Banner that he believed that the people should rule. Now dear voters, I am going to prove to you that he does not believe in the people ruling.

Mr. Webb had an invitation through both the county papers to come to the mass meeting. And I met the Board on Friday before the mass meeting October 1. And gave the Boord a special invitation to be at the meeting, in person or by proxy, to tell the people how they stood on the question of giving the people a refrendum on the County Superintendent of Education.

Mr. W. L. Sanders was at the meeting and also stated that he was willing for the majority to rule. Mr. S. M. Yates stated that he was going to reserve that right to elect the Superintendent.

Mr. Webb was not there at all. I say if he was willing for the people to rule he sure would have been at the mass meeting and told the voters that he was willing for the people to rule. To prove to the voters of this county that S. J. M. Webb is not willing for the people to rule, I, R. J. Jackson, as chairman, and D. S. Robinson, secretery, was appointed to go and see Mr. S. J. M. Webb as to how he stood on the question of giving the people a refrendum on the County Superintendent of Education.

We went to see Mr. S. J. M. Webb on Tuesday evening, October 4th. I stopped in the front yard of Mr. S. J. M. Webb's home and asked him to came out to the car just for a moment, that we wanted to talk with him on business. He came out and said that you all will have to get out of my yard. I said, "Yes sir, Mr. Webb, you get in the car and we will go down the road." And he did so. After going down the road, I stopped and presented the resolutions that were adopted at the mass meeting. He said, "I haven't got my glasses, just read it to me." After which I asked him was he in favor of the resolutions that were adopted by the people. "NO." He said. I am against every one of your resolutions.

Then he asked the question how did Brother Yates and Brother Conway stand on the question.

I read their statements to him and he made the reply that he stood the same way and he was going to contend for that right to elect the Superintendent.

Now, dear voters, I ask that every one of you, just read between the lines for yourselves. Mr. S. J. M. Webb stated he was in favor of all officers who are responsible to the people being elected by the people.

I will ask Mr. Webb this question, who is the Superintendent of Education subject to, the people or the Board, and who should the Superintendent be subject to?

When we, as taxpayers and citizens of Chilton County, get in operation of a machine or a steam roller, that will eliminate this centralized and appointive power, then we will have reached our goal, and I will fight to that end.—Sincerely yours, R. J. Jackson. (Paid political adv.)

ALABAMA COLLEGE ANNOUNCES SPLENDID ENROLLMENT FROM CHILTON COUNTY

Montevallo, Ala.—From the roll of students making their annual trek collegeward this year from Chilton County, a fine representative group has come to Alabama College.

Among Freshmen entering for the 1932-33 session are: Misses Ella Howard, Thorsby; Mildred Bernice Jefferies, Jemison; Evelyn Eloyese Jones, Chairman of Freshman Class, Mary Nell Jones, Ruth Aulene Maddox, and Sallie Mullins Mahan, all of Clantan; Margaret Nix, Maplesville; Ruth Judson Parnell, Maplesville; and Elizabeth Stanley, Clanton.

Miss Wilson attended Piedmont College at Demorest, Georgia, last year.

The Misses Lucie and Ruth Parnell are sisters of Miss Elizabeth Parnell who has the distinction of being the first daughter of an Alabama College Alumna to graduate.

In spite of the severe economic strain, Alabama College has a total enrollment for 1932-33 of practically the same in number as that for the 1931-32 session.

A recent letter from Miss Ethel Cagle, who is attending college at Troy, says that she is getting along fine with her work but is having to study awfully hard. The environment must agree with her as she has gained eight pounds since going there the first of last month. Miss Eunice Bullard from Verbena is also at Troy this year, and is doing nicely with her work.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Downs, Miss Lena Downs with Mrs. Wes Danforth and Miss Mildred Danforth were recent visitors to Birmingham.

GAS TAX BILL DEFEATED

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 11.—Following a lengthy debate in which administration supporters remained in the saddle until a last-minute dramatic switch, the gasoline tax bill, originally providing for a 3-cent levy was finall junked by the House of Representatives here Tuesday night.

Unique in legislative procedure the gasoline tax measure was hurled into the discard by a vote of 56 to 40, shortly after 7 p.m. after the house previously had given every indication that it would stand pat finally on a gasoline tax of 2 cents a gallon and had adopted a 2-cent levy.

Apparently angered by the sudden swing of the House on the motion by Representative Kettler, an erstwhile adminstation suporter, on the gasoline tax measure, other administration stalwarts cast their vote in opposition of the Guy Bill as amended and the entire gasoline tax structure collapsed, 56 to 40.

I am the Democratic nominee for the office of member of the Commissioners Court of Chilton County, Ala., from District Four, subject to the action of the general election to be held in November, 1932.

Projects In Vocational Home Economics

(By Miss Leacy Newell)

Is your girl using the knowledge that she has gained in school in her home? Does she understand what she learns at school? Does the teacher know whether she is teaching usable material?

Many of you have heard this criticism: "Mary has studied Home Economics for two years, and she can't cook biscuits." Is knowledge any good if it isn't put into practice? All of these questions may be answered, yes or no, but what are we going to do about it?

The great objective of Vocational Home Economics is to help the girl, and we believe that we can solve these problems best in "Home Project" work.

The home project is not to be understood as meaning the doing of exactly the same things at home that are done at school; it is the application in the home of the things that are learned in school. Projects do not mean practice, but they mean practice plus new learning.

A girl sees a piece of work that needs to be done at home. She plans this work with the parents and teacher. She uses the knowledge gained in her home and at school. Also she uses new knewledge that she may gain by study in school and at home. She sees the job through to completion. This is a home project.

A project must not be a manufactured problem, but it must be one that meets a home need.

The project is valuable to the teacher and pupil. Through the project the pupil finds out whether she understands school instruction, and the teacher finds if she is teaching usable material. Also, the project work furnishes a means through which the teacher gets acquainted with the parent and the home; likewise the parents know the teacher.

Before the girl begins her project there should be a thorough understanding between the parent and the teacher.

The best projects are not the expensive ones. In this time of depression, the girl should help solve the financial problems of the home. And in no way could she do it better than through home work.

Don't hunt work for your girl to do just because she has to have a project in order to pass the Home Economics course, but let her assume some of the responsibilities of the home.

An illustration of a student home project work is given in the following material.

Home Projects and What They Mean

(By Thomasine Dorminey)

I find that home projects mean work that the girl can do herself, or else supervise. She tries different plans for doing various things, to see which gives the best results.

In my first year of Home Economics, I took three projects; one consisted of Home Improvement; one of clothing for myself, and the other one was the phase of foods, which was canning.

On my Home Improvement project I took my yard as a basic problem. My yard was rolling and washing away. There had been an old wooden wall around it, but it had decayed.

The first thing that I did was to start hauling small round rock to build a wall, as I intended building a rock wall around it. May I say right here that I, myself, hauled the rocks with a horse and wagon, as if I were a boy. It took me several days, as it was slow work loading and unloading those rocks.

In the meantime, with my Home Economics teacher helping me, I put out shrubbery around the house. All my shrubbery, or the greater part of it, is the native variety, which I obtained from the woods without any cost. All of it is growing beautifully.

Finally, I got the rocks all hauled and ready to be put together with cement. We had to get sand next, however, and that was still more work. I obtained the help of a stonemason in the actual building of the wall, and, of course, he did most of the work, but I want to say, I am sure I did my part too. He taught me how to lay the stones in the right place and position. I helped him very willingly. We finished the wall and I wish all the Home Economics girls could see it, because, naturally, I am very proud of it.

The next project was my clothing. In this one I made over some old clothes, did my laundry work and mending, made my [illegible] underwear, and a few little summer dresses.

In June, July and August, when there was plenty of fruits and vegetables, I canned almost all summer, and I really enjoyed it. The different ways of canning, pickling, preserving and jellying the foods were very interesting, as well as useful.

My second year project work was just as interesting as my first one.

I continued my yard project, which was to put out more shrubbery and to care for the old. I sodded the yard in Bermuda grass, which I got from our pasture. Of course, this was not of any expense.

My next project, for the second year, was personal appearance. I cared for my hair, nails, teeth, body and complexion, as well as my clothing. We had our health rules to follow each day. I enjoyed it, and it was really a pleasure to all of us girls.

Planning, preparing and packing my school lunch was the next list of home work. I learned to make various kinds of sandwiches, as well as to cook and prepare the different types of food for school lunches.

Besides all you learn from self-experience, trying out things for yourself, and the training of future home makers of America, it is really a joy, and I have greatly benefitted by my home projects.

Is There Any Need For Little Children To Fail In Their School Work?

(By Mrs. Madge S. Mullins)

According to the tabulations from the school records last year, only 20 schools had 50 per cent or more of their first grade children to be promoted to the second grade. This is a serious problem, and a problem around which teachers are working this year. Among the schools reporting promotions to second grade, five schools had less than 20 per cent promotions, while three schools had a hundred per cent promotions to second grade. This is a serious matter to be considered by parent and teacher alike.

Six-year-old children, of course, are not in the compulsory attendance age and are not forced to go to school. However, when they are sent to school at the age of six, it is very important in the life of the child to give him every opportunity to grow normally into the school life of the average child. We have the feeling that if a first grade child is given the same opportunity in school as children in other grades he should then deserve to be promoted to second grade just as a fourth grade child deserves to be promoted to fifth grade.

Quite a few factors are to be considered in giving reasons why so many first grade children stay in the first grade two years or more. The teachers of first grade were asked to give in writing what they considered the chief cause of failure in their schools. Thirty-one of the 50 first grade teachers of Chilton county said "irregular attendance" was the chief cause of failure. This being true, we are making this appeal to the parents:

If you start your child to school at the age of six, please see that he is as regular in attendance as the child who is in the compulsory attendance age. If the child spends two years, or more, in the first grade, he soon loses the interest to work hard every year to be promoted at the end of the year to the next grade. His classmates get ahead of him and that causees him to lose more interest. According to the state course of study, there is a regulation that a first grade child must read at least two primers and two first readers before he can be promoted to second grade. This is another reason why it is of such importance for children to attend school regularly. A little child will not be able to take up work with the class after he has been absent from school, because, in the first grade work every lesson is a teaching lesson. If he misses a single lesson, he is without doubt, the loser in the work. With a crowded room already, the teacher cannot then have as much time to teach the child what was missed when he was out, as she could have if he could have been there as the entire class studied the lessons under the guidance of the teacher.

Let us urge you to help keep the little children in school during the entire session of school and give them as much opportunity as the older children have.—Mrs. Madge Scarborough Mullins.

SENIOR III CLASS NEWS

(Editor's note: Beginning with this issue of the school page, there will be an article from the Sr. III class of each of the Senior High schools each month until all have reported. In next month's paper, the Jemison Sr. III's will have an article.)

Class sponsor—Miss Bernice Williams.

Class Officers—President, Margaret Jones; vice president, Jerrel Burdette; secretary and treasurer, Dewey Williams.

Class motto—"Success Awaits at Labor's Gate."

Class colors—Red and white.

Class flower — American Beauty Rose.

The Sr. III class plans to leave beautiful brick entrances to the driveway as a memorial to their Alma Mater. The plans, as yet, are incomplete, but these gate posts will harmonize in color and structure with the gate posts at the entrance of the walk. We are planning to give a Halloween Festival and at least two plays to raise funds for this memorial.

Attendance

During the first month of school the attendance has been good, considering cotton picking and other tasks that are to be done at harvest time.

Some of the schools have begun early in order for the children to be able to get out at noon to pick cotton. It is commendable on the part of the principal and teachers to work in such harmony with the parents as to help plan for children to carry their school work and help with the farm at the same time.

The following is the attendance of the schools for the first month.

We Must Organize For Better Attendance

(By W. L. Sanders)

School days are here again, with joy and gladness to the children that have good warm clothes and shoes to wear, all necessary books, tablets and pencils. But the poor barefooted children, who stand shivering in their tattered clothes have within their little breast a throbbing of sadness because they are deprived of opportunities other children enjoy.

There will be the greatest need for a Child Welfare worker in Chilton County this time than there has ever been before. Though we had a Child Welfare worker, it would be impossible for her to do the Welfare work that needs to be done to get the children in school. To get the best results in welfare work it must be through an organization of some kind. My suggestion is that the principal, teachers and trustees of each school in the county establish a community chest in their school and put on a chest drive.

The trustees should canvass every home in their district and get all the second hand shoes, clothes, mens and womens coats that can be torn up and made into children's clothes—any thing that can be diverted into something that will help get the children in school, and place it in the chest to be issued out by the teacher and trustees.

An organization of this kind properly handled will put many children in school that would not go otherwise. We have many people with willing and waiting hands to help the unfortunate get their children in school, if they are approached in the right way. Teachers and trustees are the best community leaders, and in most cases will have the highest rate of attendance.

I hope that something will be done that all children may attend school this year. Remember, it is better to give than to receive.—Yours for good schools and good attendance, W. L. Sanders.

COUNTY BOARD NOTES

On the last Friday of September, the Chilton County School Board met for the purpose of attending to routine matters concerning the schools. Several items were disposed of, among those were: The colored teachers of all county negro schools were elected. Insofar as was possible, the same teachers were elected to go back in the schools where they taught last year.

The plan was made to open the schools as announced and to run as long as the money holds out. The board will hold in high esteem the patriotism of the teachers in going on last year without pay, but the members feel this year that it would not be at all practical to ask the teachers to make such sacrifice again when they are already so far behind with the past due payments from the state.

Approximately a hundred people appealed to the board for new school bus routes or for extension of routes. It was necessary, however, for those calls to be turned down on account of lack of funds.

Mr. S. A. Daniel, Montgomery, of the Singer Sewing Machine Company was visiting the schools last week, in the interest of the sewing classes in the various schools. Free booklets were distributed to be used by the girls in the sewing classes. Mr. Daniels has promised to bring other free material later in the year.

The secret of happiness is not in what one likes, but in liking what one has to do.—Barrie.

REEDY JONES OPENS UP BLACKSMITH SHOP HERE

Mr. Reedy Jones, formerly of Cooper, but recently from Hot Springs, Arkansas, has opened up a blacksmith shop in the old frame building in front of the jail. For the past four years Mr. Jones has been doing blacksmith work for the Arkansas Light and Power Company on their construction job at Carpenter Dam near Little Rock. Prior to that Mr. Jones worked for the Dixie Construction Company while Lock 18 and Martin Dam were being built. Before going on construction jobs Mr. Jones worked in a shop of his own at Cooper for twelve years. He went to blacksmithing when he was 17 years old—27 years ago.

Reedy Jones is a brother of Clanton's singing barber, Jesse C. Jones. His other brothers are Joe Berry and Wiley Jones of Cooper, Willie Jones of near Clanton, and Randol Jones of Wetumpka. He and his family—a wife and 4 children—live in the Daniel Hand house on Maplesville Road near West End.

Although we never remember seeing Mr. Jones before, he is now a close neighbor to The Union-Banner, being located next door to us on the east; and we take this means of welcoming him into our neighborhood. We hope that the people of Chilton County give Mr. Jones a part of their blacksmith work and make him feel that we are proud to have him and his family with us.

Mesdames Marion A. Gore and Clara Mullins were visitors to Montgomery last Friday.
